DAVID RUST, Sec'y.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

A rather small crowd attended the April meeting, but our two good friends, and true, Dennis Connor and T. J. Nolan, were with us and helped to make the gathering a better one. Mr. Connor reported on the Easter trade in Philadelphia and Mr. Nolan gave a resume of the Boston show. The New York show was reported on by Elmer Weaver, Harry K. Rohrer and Albert M. Herr, from three different points of view.

Charles M. Weaver made an exhibit of 48 varieties of the W. Atlee Burpee Co. sweet peas, and three others, making one of the finest displays we have had for several years. He also gave a talk on sweet peas that should have been heard by every grower of this flower in the county, as he, next to Geo. W. Kerr, is perhaps the best authority on sweet peas east of California. Among other things, he said that with a good prospect of a crop of 50,000 (a nominal figure) for Christmas, a period of unfavorable weather, would find the buds on the ground instead of the flowers in the shipping boxes, and that sometimes it is a question whether or not it pays to try and have sweet peas for Thanksgiving and Christmas, but taking a period covering a number of years, he thinks it does. The later blooming ones usually come in during Lent, when they are a bit hard to move at profitable prices, and it takes Easter to even matters up and show a profit. Many of the newer varieties are a bit lacking in fragrance unless the weather is good and bright, and he hoped that hybridizers would work to increase the fragrance along with their wonderful results in getting new colors. He also finds that sweet peas are having a tendency to sleepiness the same as carnations. Rose Queen being the best keeper and best seller, which may be a hint to hybridizers.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Weaver for his exhibit and his valuable talk.

ALBERT M. HERR.

MOTHERS' DAY, MAY 9.

Mothers' Day Window Decorations.

There is nothing that is so conducive to good business, as bidding for it, and the florist's best bet is his show window. Comparatively few retailers realize the importance and value from a publicity standpoint of the advantage to be gained by there being constantly on display, exhibits of the best flowers of the season, artistically arranged. Every national or public anniversary should be featured, as they are then, through the newspaper columns, in the public eye, and doubly sure to attract attention.

The observance of Mothers' day, in which flowers play such an important part, offers an ideal opportunity for each member of the trade to arrange, in his windows, decorative effects exploiting the event. These should be in view for at least a week, covering this year's period of May 3, to Mothers' day, Sunday, May 9.

Many florists see nothing in Mothers' day but a lot of trouble, because the demand sends up the price of white carnations. These are to be kept as far as possible in the background. The Mothers' day slogan should be, "Your Mother's Favorite Flower."

A good display for one day's window would be a semi-circle of vases, each containing separate flowers, of one kind, avoiding carnations. In the center, a sign should read, "Mothers' day, Sunday, May 9. Which is Your Mother's Favorite Flower?" Another window feature could be plants, flowering and foliage, with a sign, "Mothers' day, Sunday, May 9. Send Your Mother Her Favorite Plant."

All the art stores carry pictures of good size, representing motherhood in some form. Whistler's famous portrait of his mother is one of the best. "Parting Home Ties," is another of national fame, while there are a number of home scenes, in which artists depict the mother and her happy children. All of these can be bought, or hired for the week. Photographs of elderly ladies can be procured from photographers, which, when well displayed in the window, have a very good effect. Penn, The Florist, Boston, Mass., used a number of these in Mothers' day window settings that kept a great crowd around his store, during shopping hours.

Baskets of seasonable flowers, or made up boxes of the same, to which a small card, bearing the inscription, "Mothers' Day" or "For Mother," is attached, are most appropriate.

The Mothers' day poster and posterettes, of the national publicity committee, can also be used to good effect as a part of all window decorations of the week.

Mothers' Day Advertising.

An authority has said that the only sensible reason for not advertising your product is that you do not believe in it yourself. This statement fits Mothers' day exactly. The observance of this floral holiday is the carrying out of a perfected idea; a beautiful thought given life, action and annual recognition by individuals in honor of their mother, the best mother who ever lived.

As flowers are the acknowledged medium of expression of this beautiful sentiment, the celebration of the day affords an important business opportunity for the florist. It is to his interest to encourage by every means in his power, the annual observance of this anniversary, until the custom becomes universal. While the progressive business man can individually exert a powerful influence in his craft, it is the co-operation of the whole trade that brings the best results. They must first believe in and see its possibilities, and are then ready to more than do their part. There are thousands of the trade who never seem to get out of the beaten path, being satisfied to "jog along" in the same old way year after year. Golden opportunities are open to them, such as the national publicity campaign, which is so ably managed by the best talent of the country, but they can see nothing in its appeal, although its slogan which they themselves make use of, is now an almost universal household phrase.

In every community where the trade have joined together and advertised Mothers' day, through co-operative effort, big business has been the result. With the recurrence of each anniversary, the cumulative effect of previous publicity is a great help to that of the present. Greater interest is taken by the trade, because their former efforts brought them good business, and they work all the harder for greater results.

In advance of the appearance of the circus and theatrical attractions, the live press agents make free use of the reading columns of the newspapers, where, on one pretext or another, they "get their story across."

The history of Mothers' day, with its personal appeals, should be made the subject of innumerable articles, which if compiled by competent professional writers, would easily find entrance to the daily press in every community. Such propaganda would be of the greatest benefit in arousing interest and enthusiasm in the observance of the day. An appropriation for the preparation of such articles should be made from every advertising fund. Much can be done by reporters of the local press, who when advertising is in sight, are glad to lend a hand with reading notices at no additional expense. All that is required, is the request, and the furnishing of a little data to work from.

Churches are, as a rule, eager to take this matter up, most clergymen being glad to eulogize the mothers of the nation, and devote the exercises of the day in honoring them. Mayors of cities or other chief officers, will on request, issue proclamations eulogizing and declaring the day one to be observed officially as Mothers' day. Members of every florists' committee, should separately have those various matters in charge, in some cases writing the proclamations, if so requested. All this can be done in a quiet way, with the result that these various agencies will be working and contributing towards a greater observance of the anniversary.

In some communities, flowers have been furnished by the trade, so that each Sunday school scholar is given one to wear; this being another form of advertising and trying to make the custom universal.

Heard in a Retail Store.

Customer—Mr. ——, the fern that I paid you four dollars for 10 days ago is all yellow and withered already.

Retailer—Madam, when did you water it?

Customer—Twice since I bought it.

Retailer—How much did you give it then?

Customer—One-half cup of water each time, and it drank every bit of it. Can you tell me what to do with it?

Retailer—Yes, Madam, go home, and throw it away.

OAKLAND, CALIF.—The Tri-State Pottery Co., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $250,000.

ALLIANCE, O.—Koch's Quality Flower Shop, under the management of H. H. Koch and wife, will open in the near future, at 23 East State street.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

Flowers are now most plentiful, and all retailers should plan an every day campaign featuring in succession this or that flower or plant that can be bought and handled to the best advantage. The way to sell flowers, is to sell them, that is, to push, present and call attention to them in every possible manner. While beautiful in themselves, there is much that can be done in arrangement and display that will, by contrast, bring out their form and coloring. The short-stemmed stock, such as pansies, violets, etc., should be shown in shallow bowls or low handle baskets with a touch of ribbon on the handle. They will then present an artistic appearance, while with their stems in water, will last, and in the quantity lots, attract much more attention than if kept in boxes in the flower case.

Attractive display is a great factor in the sale of cut flowers. A number of small arranged baskets, if given prominence in the window, suggest to the passersby a use for them as a small gift to repay an obligation, perhaps a birthday remembrance, or to cheer up a sick friend, as in their purchases of flowers on the street, they had no intention of buying until they were attracted by their beauty. All other street sales are made in the same way. It is because the one hundred and one things are constantly being offered to the passing throngs, that they find buyers in people who never saw the goods before, and for which there was no previous demand.

The show window is one of the greatest assets of the store, and now, when flowers are so plentiful, it should be used to the limit in exploiting and presenting flowers in a manner best calculated to keep them moving. Do not forget the display cards which in short snappy sentences, add importance to the exhibit, particularly if they contain special price figures. Post cards, which are the same price as before the war, can be utilized to carry a small message to the store's list of customers and prospects apprizing them of these special sales. The little notices can be multigraphed at small expense, and these going out once or twice a week, will speed things up wonderfully. A larger mailing card, in self-tones of various colors, so that no two shall be alike, will allow for more artistic setting up, and will be carried for the same postage.

The coming week will wind up with the observance of Mothers' day, which should surely give inspiration for attractive window display. Wherever this anniversary has been featured in any way by the trade co-operatively, results have been more than satisfactory. Where the initiative is lacking, or when, from some fancied, and generally altogether wrong impression, the trade will not or cannot be brought together, then it is the individual concerns that will push the day, as they believe in it, and will receive the benefit. Mothers' day has great possibilities, and too much thought and planning, particularly in spreading its propaganda, cannot be given to it. Boxes of flowers, nicely arranged, also made up vase baskets, should contain a fair sized card, inscribed, "Mothers' day," in good text or script. One of the colored Mothers' day stamps, at one end, will give it character. The poster of the national publicity committee will be found a good window card. This event should be made the subject of a circular to one's trade and special lists of desirable people. Each piece of such literature is likely to be read by two or more people and, for its price, is the best kind of publicity.

Keep up an active campaign for summer window boxes. The man that goes after this trade, will get it. Many new customers, people who have never had these decorative helps in their windows, or on their porches, will respond favorably, if the matter is well presented.

Sweet peas are now fine and plentiful. They are popular, and should be sold in quantities in special sales, as prices are so much below those of a month ago.

Exploit the Florists' Telegraph Delivery service in connection with Mothers' day. There are many who have broken home ties, that will be glad to avail themselves of this service if they learn of its existence and are shown its efficiency. It is the outgoing orders, those that are created in one's own store, that are most profitable. A wonderful business can be built up by featuring the great extent and speed of the association's service.

Do not fail to use the Mothers' day stamps on all literature and every box and package that leaves the store.

Table Decorations.

The one special feature in the arrangement of flowers for the formal or social home affairs, centers in the dinner or buffet table. Here is where every guest is sure to be interested, and the greatest thought and care should be taken to make this so artistic and beautiful that it will call forth admiring comments and make a lasting impression. The question of cost will, of course, be a great factor, as at this season, flowers of all kinds are relatively high in price, and one has to be governed accordingly.

For a buffet table there is generally limited room, and the decorations have to be confined to the center, although when desired, a canopy effect can be added, as this will not take up any of the valuable space. The center may be a plateau of flowers, which can be made more effective, if a low chandelier does not interfere, by means of a tall, slender vase in the center to be filled with long stemmed flowers that will spread out gracefully. If for a tea, ribbons or chiffon laid on the cloth, running from corner to corner diagonally, and tied at each corner with a fluffy bow and streamers to hang down the length of the cloth, together with a bunch of flowers at each corner, is a good finish. This can be further elaborated by streamers of smilax, dotted with flowers or chiffon bands, tied to the chandelier in the center, and gracefully curving to the corners, giving a canopied effect. Such a decoration is more striking if the flowers and ribbon are both of a color, all pink, all red, all orange, etc., although good two-color combinations are also effective.

MOTHERS' DAY WINDOW DECORATIONS.

The dinner table, with its more or less extensive space, gives the decorator great latitude, so that the decorative schemes are innumerable. The most simple form is a vase or plateau in the center, to be further elaborated for the long table, with a half center at either end. For many years this was the standard, and a supply of various sized flat willow plateau baskets were a necessary part of the florist's stock.

A very effective treatment of the long table is a tall, slender vase in the center, to be filled with choice long-stemmed flowers. At either end are good-sized rose bowls, to be generously filled. A winding spray is then laid on the cloth, with smilax, asparagus or feathered fern fronds. These start either side of the center, beginning with a small point, and curving one to the right and the other to the left, extending and gradually widening in size and thickness down the center, until the rose bowls are reached. These sprays are then filled with the same flowers as are used in the bowls, the effect being as if they were pouring out of these receptacles. The flowers used on the cloth, if well filled with water, will look very well until the dinner is over. A bunch or two of violets scattered among the others, will add a delightful fragrance. Narrow boards planted with choice ferns and variegated foliage plants, can be used to connect the center and half center and vases, filled with choice flowers, above the line of vision, will not interfere with the view across the table. The ferns and other small plants out of pots, tied with moss to the boards, when nicely arranged, have a very decorative effect and are a fine background. This fern bank can be of even width, the length of the table, but is more effective if tapered from each end toward the center. The edges can be finished with stemmed choice tasselled ferns.

The color effect has much to do with the success of table decorations. All one color is bold and striking, the calendula in its bright orange tones, which light up well under artificial light, being a good example, as are also daffodils. The snapdragon of the same shades will look well in the tall vases. All pink snapdragon, with white, makes a beautiful table, and nothing is more dainty than sweet peas, which can be most effectively used in a number of artistic arrangements.

Bands of chiffon, the color of the flowers used, stretched on the cloth just inside the plate line and tuffted at the end or corner where they cross, is a feature that gives a good decorative effect. For the round table, the tall center vase, supplemented with a wreath or circle of flowers on the cloth, several inches inside the plate line, is very effective. This can be made on a mossed frame in two sections, or the flowers sprayed on the cloth, stuck through or supported in a ground work of smilax or fluffy ferns.

Five small rose bowls, placed at regular intervals, filled and connected one with another by an entwining and tapering spray, are used instead of the wreath to get a more elaborate effect. Sweet peas are especially adapted for this form of decoration, as are also freesias, which arrange well with them.

Plateaus of growing ferns, with an inverted pot or other concealed and safe foundation, on which to stand tall center vases of flowers, are effective, and with a dozen or two choice blooms, can be made much more elaborate.

Constructive Criticism.

During the past few years of constructive building of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, and with the all enduring foundation which had previously been built, and with which our organization and its principles have flourished, and is still furthering its progress, may we not feel doubly proud of our accomplishment and progress? With the ever growing increased volume of telegraph delivery business of flowers, who can afford to say he will not join? During the past year, many vicissitudes have arisen, due to strikes, storms, etc., which would have made the sending of flowers impossible, yet through our organization, we were able to cope with almost every situation.

Occasionally, however, we send an order to someone who evidently has not the slightest conception of business, whereby a floral piece is ordered, and because of the scarcity of flowers, or something else, several days afterwards, will come a note saying that it was impossible to fill the order, and not having the foresight to use something, at least to fill the want as best he could.

The purpose of this article, is this: That in the event of anyone receiving an order, regardless of conditions, fill it as best he can, but send something, so that the customer on the other end will feel that you did the best you could. Do not come back with the answer, "No flowers to fill your order." Use leaves, foliage, plants, or whatever possible under the circumstances, but do something to prove that at least you had some conception of the other fellow's feelings. This will go a long way towards helping our F. T. D. orders. This occurs mainly in small towns. Unquestionably, many of you have had this experience, or a similar one, and if this simple remedy mentioned above, is applied to the case, it will go a long way toward helping the small weaknesses we have had happen several times.

With the hope that this will attract the attention of those who have had occasion to have this occur, and profit by past experience and the desire to further improve one of the petty little things that creep into our F. T. D. business, I will say that we are to be congratulated on the wonderful strides already made. We are also proud of the fact that florists, generally, are on the job in regards to the promptness of meeting their obligations when bills are due one another. This is particularly gratifying as it is one of the most encouraging steps into furthering progress, and it reminds us of John Randolph, who said: "I have discovered the philosopher's stone that turns everything into gold; it is, pay as you go." This is one of the essential steps to progress, so keep it up for further success. HENRY PENN.

THE CARNATION.

Spring Care of Young Plants.

The season having passed the month of April, it is now time to make preparations for planting the young carnation plants out into the field, which can be attended to just as soon as the ground becomes dry enough to be properly worked and the weather conditions will permit. To the carnation grower who grows a large number of plants, the work of transferring the young stock to their field quarters is about the most important job that he has to attend to at this season of the year. He, therefore, makes particular effort to see that the work is carried out as it should be, having learned from experience the importance of planting out the young plants as early as the outside conditions will allow. The practice followed generally by most carnation growers of lifting their carnation plants for benching late in July, does not allow the plants any too much time in the field to make their growth. This makes it necessary to plant them out as soon as possible, and the earlier start they get toward becoming thoroughly well established in the field before summer conditions prevail, so much better will be their chances of making fine plants for benching late in July or early in August.

HARDENING OFF THE YOUNG PLANTS.

Carnation plants are half-hardy in their nature, and if gradually hardened off before planting outside, will not suffer any harm from the weather conditions after May 1, but they should not be kept in the greenhouse at a high temperature up to the time they are planted out in the field or they are very likely to receive a severe setback. If there are enough of the plants to occupy a whole house by themselves, then it is a very easy matter to shut off the heat from them to lower the temperature and harden them by ventilating freely, both day and night, and eliminating any syringing, as well as by watering sparingly at the roots. A week or 10 days of this treatment will harden the plants sufficiently for planting out. But if the young plants are being grown on a bench in a house containing miscellaneous plants, then it will be best to transfer them to a cold frame for a week or 10 days' hardening off before planting outside. During favorable weather, the sash can be removed from the frames, but they should be put on again at night until the plants have become thoroughly hardened.

TOPPING THE YOUNG PLANTS.

This part of the work is very important, and if carefully attended to, is one of the principal means of insuring fine branching plants for next season's work. All topping needed to be done on any of the young plants soon to be planted in the field should be done as needed, or at least a week before transferring to the field. At this time of the year, it is an especially unpleasant task to stoop down and top young carnation plants in the field, and the work is very likely to be neglected, whereas if the plants are properly attended to before being taken out, they will not need any further topping before the weather conditions improve.

GETTING RID OF THRIPS, ETC.

Another very important detail in connection with the health of the young plants is to make every effort to rid them of thrips, aphis and red spider before removing them from the greenhouse. While there, the plants are under the control of the grower better than they will be after being planted out, and can be fumigated a time or two to clean them of any insect pests. The trouble with insects attacking the plants in the field is often due to the plants not having been cleaned up before they left the greenhouse.

PREPARING THE PLANTING GROUND.

The best piece of land available is none too good for the summer culture of carnations, and it pays to be just as particular in the selection of the planting ground for these plants as for any other crop. An open, well-drained space of light, sandy loam, free from the surroundings of weeds and trees, is the ideal spot for them. In the preparation of the land, every care should be taken to get it even and in the best possible planting condition, and though as before stated, it is a great advantage to get the young carnation plants into the field as early as the weather conditions will allow, at the same time this advice is not intended to imply that the planting ground should be prepared before it is in condition to be properly worked, because the land must be dried out to a reasonable degree before working it, or it will remain lumpy and hard to bring into the best condition during the time the plants occupy it. Attend to the opening up of any closed ditches or drains, so that as the weather becomes favorable, the land has every chance to dry out quickly and be most easily worked. While waiting for the land to get into condition, the other necessary preparations can be well in hand, so that when everything is ready, the work will run smoothly and be finished up in the shortest possible time.

CARING FOR FLOWERING BENCH PLANTS.

After the Easter season is past, there are many carnation growers who begin to let up on the care of the producing plants on the benches, figuring that their season is nearly over, so that in the rush of the busy spring work, it is not necessary to give them as close attention as heretofore, but this is a serious mistake, especially if the plants are expected to continue producing flowers to the end of the season, and some of the most prominent carnation men of the country figure that their plants pay them as well during the months of May and June as they do at any time during the season. Owing to the changing conditions of weather and temperature during these spring days, it takes more time to keep the plants in a clean, healthy, producing condition. They need more water at the roots, syringing more frequently, and closer attention as regards disbudding and cutting of the flowers. The fumigation must also be attended to regularly to keep the plants free of insects, because if they once become infested, you might as well throw them out, for their profitable days will be over. A good plan is to take advantage of any damp, still evening, about 10 days apart, and do the fumigating by vaporizing with the nicotine preparation, painting it on one of the steam pipes. Should the flowers commence to run a little small, it shows the plants are in need of more nourishment, and the best means of furnishings it is by applying a mulch of equal parts of well-rotted manure and fresh soil to the beds. Let the material be a little on the dry side, so that it can be properly handled, and do not put it on thick, but just enough to evenly cover the surface of the soil.

THE ROSE.

Spring Work in General.

THE YOUNG STOCK.

With Easter a thing of the past, we have a lot of work that has to be done, and much of it at once. Perhaps it would be advisable to start with the young stock. Seldom does it happen in the small range that a great amount of planting, if any, can be accomplished during the month of April, so if the compost for planting the young stock, or for filling the benches or beds, is in readiness, and the grower is not ready to throw out the old plants just yet, it will not do to have the young stock hang around and get in a starved condition before planting time. A shift from a 2½-inch pot to a 3½-inch will carry them along from six to eight weeks, and they will then be just right for planting. They should not be planted later than the first week in June for best results. Plants in 2¼-inch pots can, by trimming the balls a little at the top, go readily into 3-inch pots without damage, but, of course, from the 3½-inch pots and up, careful draining is an absolute necessity.

As advised many times in these columns, do not place the drainage in the pots in a careless manner. There is really only one way to drain a rose pot correctly, and that is to place a small piece of broken crock at one side of the drain hole and bridge over the hole with a larger piece. It takes time, but it pays big dividends in the long run. Of course, a piece of crock that has a decided concave to it can be placed, the concave side down over the hole, using one piece, but if the crock is any way flat, resort to the two-piece bridging.

For shifting, use a good stiff clay soil, full of fibre, and use one part soil screened through ½-inch screen to three parts soil. To this add a 4-inch pot full of good bone meal to each wheelbarrow load of potting soil, and when potting do it firmly and do not make the pots too full. Leave about ½-inch for watering.

Give young stock the best of chances to make good by placing them in a suitable house, free from draughts, drips, etc., and keep all the weeds removed as soon as they reach a size where to pull them will not break them off. Set them up in a good layer of finely screened soft coal ashes, firmly packed, and be sure to water them thoroughly. They must be syringed on all bright days as early as possible, and with the intent to prevent red spider. Get well under the foliage with a fine spray and plenty of pressure, and if any green fly (aphis) are in evidence, get right after them and clean them up by fumigating with a nicotine liquid, or spraying with same. We know of nothing worse for the plants than a bad dose of red spider, as they simply take the life right out of plants, young or old, once they get a foothold. Should the young stock become crowded, they should be given more room at once, and this can best be done by allowing the amount of space between the rows, instead of in the row, or spacing them both ways. As the pots touch each other across the bench, they are not so easily upset, when spraying them forcibly.

IN THE HOUSES.

We will now come back to the houses. After the shifting is finished, look over the flowering plants. Of course, one has decided long before this to discard something, so do not for the sake of a few flowers, let the plants that are to be replaced by young stock, stay in too long; of course, it would be unwise to throw out a lot of plants while they are practically in full flower, but just as soon as they get to that cut down look, discard them.

Never fill raised benches with fresh soil without first making the necessary repairs, and then see that the benches are level, crosswise their entire length. Wash them thoroughly with the hose, and give them a good coat of hot lime wash, with the addition of two ounces of carbolic acid and five pounds of sulphur to every bushel of lump lime that is slacked. Some prefer the hydrated lime, as it is less trouble to prepare, but it does not quite take the place of the lump lime or stone lime, slacked and used hot. But it does not follow that the lime wash should be applied too thick. Mix it about the consistency of the regular whitewash, and it will be far more penetrating. We know of nothing better than wheat straw, placed in a thin layer over the drainage spaces, to prevent the waste of soil when filling the benches. And use a 6-inch board for a track for the wheelbarrows when bringing in the soil, if the wheeling is done on the bench, which, by the way, is by far the best way to fill a raised bench.

Now for the borders. We would suggest when throwing out the plants from the borders, that rather than go to any extra or great amount of expense in repairing a bed with wood sides, to replace them with cement or concrete walls and forever afterwards do away with the repair work on the solid beds. It is a "toss up" these days as to the difference in the cost of making a border, whether lumber or concrete is used, with everything in favor of the concrete construction. If concrete is used, the walls should be about a foot high, two inches thick at the top, and three inches at the bottom, plumb on the outside, and the taper on the inside. This makes it very easy when removing the cross bracing inside the forms. We usually, in a 200-foot house, use enough lumber to make the forms 100 feet long. Then fill them, and in 48 hours remove the forms carefully and complete the other 100 feet. Then we wash the walls with a mixture of pure cement, about the consistency of paint, and apply it with a whitewash brush. We find a most durable wall can be made by using soft coal ashes and the best grade of cement, one part cement to seven parts ashes, thoroughly mixed before adding the water, and then mixed with enough ashes to float it easily in the forms. The concrete should be carefully tamped into the forms, so as to avoid any spaces that would have to be refilled after the forms are removed. Remember, a very straight wall is the most desirable, and just as easy to have right as to have the finished wall unsightly. Keep your lines stretched tightly when placing the forms, and if the ground is leveled properly before starting the work, a lot of trouble is avoided. When filling the borders, where the house has been planted for several years, and the subsoil seems exhausted, the bottom should be given a good coating or top dressing of coarsely ground bone and manure, and have both well spaded in or worked in with the manure forks; that is, where there is no drainage used in the bottom of the borders. We do not advocate placing drainage in solid borders where the subsoil is open enough to carry off the surplus water. Where drainage is absolutely necessary, such as in a soil with a puddling clay subsoil, one had better resort to the raised benches altogether, as the expense of draining such a border sufficiently would be rather prohibitive, we think, and at the same time, it would be practically a bench after all. But, find a soil that drains readily, and there will be no occasion to drain the borders artificially, as well-established plants, moving along nicely, are very hard to overwater.

Do not let the night man go until all danger of finding the foliage dripping with the condensation some cool morning is passed. There are a number of odd jobs he can be put to, while doing very light firing, and if not, if he only had to push the fires a little every two or three hours from midnight till sunrise to avoid the above condition, keep him on the job and cut some fine blooms right through. Otherwise, you will perhaps regret it. Do not let it be the same old story that it will not happen another time, etc. Let this season be the season that it did not happen.

MOTHERS' DAY BASKET.

PLANT NOTES.

Preparations for Memorial Day.

With the Easter stock out of the way, there will be room available for the plants that have of necessity been crowded more closely together for the last few weeks, and the next great day before the grower is Memorial day. In those sections of the country where the late frosts are past the bedding stock must be ready for planting out at that time, and the demand will be for plants to flower, for the customers will desire plants that will make a good showing by May 30, and the stock must be grown with that object in view to have a good sale. The geraniums and other blooming plants should be placed in their blooming pots, spaced out and given a good sunny location, that they may be full of bloom by the last of May. It is next to impossible to sell plants that are not in flower at Memorial day. The production of flowers for that day must also receive prompt attention. Much of the floral work for Memorial day is what is called "cheap" work, that is, flowers that make a great show and are not expensive. So, although there are many roses and carnations used, yet large quantities of the cheaper flowers are employed to fill in and make the sprays and bouquets larger. Early outdoor flowers and blooming shrubbery can be used, but in some sections these cannot be depended upon, so flowers must be grown in the houses. Stocks make a splendid flower for this purpose, and should be benched at once. The plants should now be about three or four inches high and growing rapidly. Candytuft is grown in large quantities by some growers for Memorial day. Seedlings can be transplanted in early April and brought into flower the latter part of May. Spiræa, both as a pot plant and for cut flowers are very useful at this time; six to eight weeks will bring them into flower at this season. There are other annuals that can be raised for Memorial day blooming, but the two mentioned are grown in largest quantities.

Gladiolus.

The gladioli that are being forced for spring blooming will soon begin to open their flowers, and to have good clean stock they will require attention. The spikes should first of all be kept erect, for if they get bent and crooked half their value is gone, and this will occur very quickly on the bright, sunny days when the plants lean over, so they should be kept tied either to stakes or wires to prevent this. The spike should be cut when the first flower opens and placed in water and the other flowers opened in the office or store-room These flowers spot very quickly if water is sprinkled upon them in the greenhouse, and at this season of the year syringing on bright days is a necessity or the red spider is sure to obtain a foothold, and if these pests become once well established it is almost impossible to eradicate them. Considerable discussion is often heard as to whether the corms of gladiolus forced are of any value another year. If the plant is not cut too far down on the stem and the corms are given an opportunity to thoroughly ripen, there is no doubt but that the bulbs may be grown another year and good results obtained, but if the plant is cut off clear down to the ground the corm has no chance to make its full growth or to ripen, and the corms will be practically worthless. Corms that are forced this year and the spike cut so as to leave three or more leaves, if properly ripened, can be planted outside another year and the following year first-class corms will be the result. The Gladiolus Colvillei can be forced year after year if grown properly.

Asparagus Plumosus and Sprengeri.

Small stock of Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri are now a necessity with all plantsmen, for they are freely used in fern dishes and in plant baskets, being very satisfactory plants for house culture. Fresh seed can now be obtained and the stock grown on through the summer, which will make fine stock for the next winter. The seed will germinate more readily and evenly if soaked in lukewarm water placed in a warm location for 24 hours before planting. Instead of sowing the seed broadcast, it is better to sow them about three-quarters of an inch apart, and they can then be allowed to remain in the flats until they are strong enough to transplant. Do not cover the seed too deeply; an eighth of an inch of soil sifted over the seed is ample. The first potting must be carefully done, for they make a long tap root, with very few small roots, and the soil does not adhere to it, and in the young stage this root is easily broken. A warm house with plenty of moisture and careful watering with a slight shade is all they require after being potted. Over-watering will always cause the fronds to take on a yellowish hue.

Begonia Gloire De Lorraine.

The plants of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, and its varieties, both the young rooted stock and the older plants, will now begin to make active growth. There is still time to propagate much stock; many growers prefer the May-rooted plants to those propagated earlier, for the plants start right off into growth at this time, while those rooted earlier grow very slowly during the late winter and early spring months. The young shoots that break from the old plants make fine cuttings at this time, and if the plants are in good health are just as good as the leaf cuttings made earlier. As soon as rooted they should be potted in a light, fibrous loam in 2¼-inch pots and placed in a light, well ventilated house, but should be protected from all chilling drafts. They cannot be successfully grown in a stuffy, moist temperature, and to have strong, healthy plants, should not be forced in too warm a temperature. They will require a house in which the night temperature does not fall below 60° and should be given all the air possible without chilling during pleasant, bright days, carefully avoiding drafts. They will need to be watered carefully, for the roots are very fine and are growing slowly yet, and over-watering quickly shows in the growth of the plant. It is now a good time to procure young stock if the grower is not supplied, for those making a specialty of this plant will have the best of stock at this time.

BALTIMORE, MD.—General Felix Agnus, member of the board of park commissioners, has presented the city with his collection of orchid and other plants.

National Publicity for Flowers.

To florists who wish to work up a little publicity in a novel way, it is suggested that they take advantage of the opportunity presented in most of the larger moving picture houses, especially those making vaudeville a feature, for exploiting the official "Say It With Flowers" song. Orchestra scores, as well as the vocal score, are available through the publishers, and the proper rendition of the song is demonstrated in the Columbia phonograph record now to be had of any Columbia dealer, and which is fully endorsed by the composer. Several florists in the smaller towns have attempted this feature with great success, and with the distribution of a few flowers to an audience, it is said to be a big hit. It is well worth a trial. Incidentally, it might be said that the song, as a headline feature at the Palace theatre, New York, and a prominent theatre in Buffalo, last week, increased its standing as a popular "hit."

We are drawing very near to Mothers' day, one of the two big flower days remaining for us this season. Florists who are not using the posters and other aids for this day's publicity available at the Florists' Publicity Service Bureau of the S. A. F., 431 South Dearborn street, Chicago, are making a mistake, as the day cannot possibly be over-advertised as one for gifts of flowers—and mothers, as a rule, particularly the elder ones, have many loving hearts right within their family circles willing to pay homage on this day, if they are not allowed to forget. A liberal poster display is equal to a good many finger strings for memory-jogging purposes. Again, these aids tie up very well with the magazine advertising of our campaign.

Reference has frequently been made to the growing use of flowers as subjects for the embellishment of magazine advertisements. Who has not seen the beautiful advertisements in colors of a prominent corset manufacturer, in which flowers are made to dominate the design? Printers' Ink, a magazine advocating art in advertising, in reproducing one of these advertisements as an artistic example, says: "This company is to be congratulated on getting away from the customary display of a corseted figure, for without question this picture of the corset and its container, grouped with beautifully painted flowers on the blue satin background, is a decided step forward artistically." All such advertising, of which this is only one of many examples, helps to keep flowers in the public mind, and, perhaps not strange to say, the innovation is synonymous with our campaign for publicity for flowers.

Disappointment over the very lax support given to our publicity fund continues. A week of good response is followed by one of absolute indifference. It is truly either a feast or a famine—instead of a steady stream of contributions, as our committee has the moral right to expect. We have never sought to criticise the amounts of contributions as they come in, but we have easily been able to distinguish those which come from the heart as well as the pocket. When a florist writes, "I am enclosing to you my cheque for $5, all I feel I can contribute at present, but I am in hopes I shall be able to send more later," we feel highly gratified. We know that man's contribution is started from two points of his make-up. We believe in him, just as he believes in our campaign. There surely must be many more such men, a little proud, perhaps, to send so small a contribution. They need not fear criticism. If our committee could only depend upon sufficient help of this kind, its road would be easy traveling. Who will take this hint today? Let us have a good number of such subscriptions to report in our article next week.

Take note of the society's new address, "45 West 18th street, New York."

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Light Period Regulates Plant Maturity.

For generations, scientists have known that sunlight was necessary for normal growth of most kinds of plants, and, although the summer sun might occasionally become too hot, they have understood that it could not cause any injury except perhaps the injury due to burning. A recent discovery by W. W. Garner and H. A. Allard, of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, shows that, entirely apart from any effect of burning, it is possible for plants to have too much daylight or, in other words, too many hours of daylight in comparison with the number of hours of darkness. Too long a day as well as too short a day will prevent many kinds of plants from ever reaching their stage of flowering and fruiting.

CONTROLS FLOWERING AND FRUITING.

Furthermore, the intensity of the light has very much less significance upon the growth of the plant than has usually been supposed. Greenhouse experiments prove that the flowering and fruiting period of practically any plant can be made to take place at any time of the year by darkening the greenhouse in the morning and evening, if the day is too long, or by lengthening the day by artificial light, if the day is too short. This new theory of controlling flowering and fruiting of plants undoubtedly will be used by florists and other greenhouse operators. For example, violets bloom only during the comparatively short days of spring; but if violet plants are covered with light-proof boxes at night, and not uncovered until the sun is about half an hour high each morning during the summer time, violets can be forced to bloom again in the summer. Spring flowers and spring crops happen to be spring flowers and spring crops because the days at the season of their flowering and fruiting have the proper number of hours of daylight. Correspondingly, the early summer flowers and crops must have a longer period of daylight. This has been proved as to a large number of plants, and the scientists believe that the principle will hold throughout the higher forms of plant life, and that it is probably applicable to animal life as well.

REPRODUCTION DEPENDS ON DAY LENGTH.

The plant can not attain sexual reproduction, it has been shown, except when it is exposed to a favorable length of day. The requirements, however, differ widely with species and varieties. But a length of day that is unfavorable to reproduction may be favorable to growth. Under that condition the plant continues its vegetative development profusely and indefinitely without bearing fruit. A length of day may be found that is favorable both to sexual reproduction and vegetative growth. That tends to bring about the "everbearing" type of fruiting.

By employing dark chambers to shorten the period of light, and artificial lights to extend it, scientists of the department have shortened or lengthened the life cycle of plants, have made some of them complete two cycles in a single season, have brought others into flower and fruit months in advance of their regular time and, with still others, have greatly delayed, and even completely prevented fruiting.

Long series of tests have been made with soy beans, tobacco, wild asters, climbing hempweed, beans, ragweed, radish, carrot, lettuce, hibiscus, cabbage, violets, goldenrod, spinach, cosmos, iris, beggartick, buckwheat, and various other plants.

A test made with Biloxi soy beans will show how the principle works. For the test plants, the day was shortened by several hours. That is, they were exposed to the light only from 10 o'clock in the morning till 3 o'clock in the afternoon. They were first placed in the dark house, May 20. Control plants, otherwise treated exactly like the test plants, were left exposed to the light from dawn till dark. The first blossoms appeared on the dark-house plants, June 16. No blossoms appeared until September 4 on the plants that were left in the light all day. But the dark-house plants averaged only six or seven inches high, while the plants that were left in the light all day, grew to an average height of 57 or 58 inches.

These plants required a short day and a long night for flowering and seed bearing. In tests with other plants, just the opposite was found to be true. The plants that were left in the light all day did not grow luxuriantly, but produced flowers and seed, while those that were kept in the dark a part of the day, made abundant growth, but produced no seed, or else were greatly retarded in producing seed.

TEMPERATURE HAS LITTLE INFLUENCE.

Temperature appeared to exert no influence in these tests. The results were the same, even when the temperature was higher in the dark-house than on the outside. Another striking illustration of the relative unimportance of temperature is the fact that plants kept in the dark for a part of the day underwent, in midsummer, the changes that in nature come in the fall, and have always been attributed to lower temperatures. This, also, was true even when the dark-houses registered a higher temperature than that of the outside summer atmosphere.

The results obtained by artificially extending the period of light are just as interesting as those obtained by artificially shortening it. The artificial illumination, in a test with iris, was so arranged as to give 18 hours of continuous light in a greenhouse during the winter. Control plants were kept in a similar greenhouse with no artificial light. The test was begun October 20, 1919. In the greenhouse where daylight was supplemented with electric light, the plants made rapid growth, soon attained normal size, and produced blossoms December 24. The plants in the greenhouse where no artificial light was used, though it was kept at the same temperature, remained practically dormant, and showed no tendency to blossom as late as February 12, 1920.

IMPORTANT INFLUENCE ON CROP YIELDS.

The influence of this discovery on crop yields is likely to be of no little importance. The length of day is proved to be the most potent factor in determining the relative proportions between the vegetative and fruiting parts of many crop plants. Indeed, fruiting may be completely suppressed by a day either too long or too short. The advance in agricultural practice which may come through this new discovery will have to be brought about largely by plant breeders and other crop specialists. For instance, it will prove of material significance in the future planning of cropping systems for different regions, especially where consideration of new crops from different latitudes is necessary.

This new principle undoubtedly explains the erratic behavior which has been observed with many crops when they are shifted to different latitudes, and may also clear up the conflicting results of variety tests and field tests conducted with the same crops but in different regions. The experiments have shown, for instance, that ragweed requires for flowering a stimulus that is afforded by the shortening of the days and lengthening of the nights. It does not come into flower until the period of daylight falls below 15 hours. In the latitude of Washington, D. C., that comes about July 1. But if ragweed seed should be taken to northern Maine, and planted, the plants would not experience a length of day below 15 hours until about August 1. Therefore, they could not come into flower until after August 1 and, though the vegetative growth might be very rank, they could not mature seed before killing frosts intervened. The long days, therefore, make it impossible for ragweed to perpetuate itself in that latitude. On the other hand, plants that get their flowering stimulus from a long day, could not perpetuate themselves through seed formation at the equator, where the day never exceeds 12 hours.

EXPLAINS LUXURIANT GROWTH IN NORTH.

This principle affords the clue to the fact that many plants grow most luxuriantly near the northern limit of their range. The long northern day allows them to attain their maximum growth before the shorter day intervenes to check vegetative growth and start the reproductive process.

It may be found eventually, say the men who worked out the principle, that the animal organism, also, is capable of responding to the stimulus of certain day lengths. They believe that the migration of birds may be an illustration. Direct response to such a stimulus, they say, is more in line with modern teachings of biology than theories which assume that birds migrate as a matter of instinct.

Ove Gnatt Co's New Alabama Factory.

The Ove Gnatt Co., Inc., LaPorte, Ind., well known manufacturers of florist supplies and dealers in prepared foliage and artificial flowers, is at present erecting a large plant at Evergreen, Ala., for the preparation of magnolia leaves. This establishment, when completed, will be one of the largest and best equipped in the United States for the production of this article. The new plant will prove an advantage in the saving of transportation charges, and in serving the company's extensive eastern and southern trade.

MAQUOKETA, IA.—H. L. Hill has disposed of his establishment to Robert Grapengeter, of Davenport, Ia., who will take possession July 1.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The Amateur Flower Gardeners' Association of this city has issued a 23-page "Flower Garden Guide," the articles being contributed by members.

BATAVIA, ILL.—The Illinois Plant Co., who recently purchased the Avenue Greenhouses of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., has acquired the property at Main and South Water streets, and is planning to construct new houses, according to the Aurora News of April 8.

Nurseryman's Relationship to Customer.

At a meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, Mass., held in that city, March 16, John Watson, executive secretary of the American Association of Nurserymen, delivered a most interesting and instructive address, telling of the organization, its aims and progress. He said in part:

"As George Ade says, it doesn't signify how long you stick around; its what you put across that counts. I take it that this is the estimate that nurserymen put upon what they are doing; the expression of their respect for themselves and their business. And when we come to fix our status, I think we should ask ourselves if we are not something more than merely manufacturers and merchants? The man who makes and builds and shears and shapes an evergreen into breautiful symmetry, or trains a tree so that it will be fine and straight and handsome, is by the way of being an artist. He works with living materials while the sculptor works in marble. And what should be his return? I assume that he has his reward in the satisfaction of producing well, but in money? I hear a great deal about costs. Surely nobody wants to work at a loss and, therefore, it is profitable to keep account of what one invests in time and money to produce the things we sell. It is easy enough to do that. And yet, the figures that result are difficult of interpretation and application. If I grow a block of apple trees, I can keep such accounts as will tell me the cost of each one of those trees. But the figures obtained apply to those particular trees; they have no bearing on last year's nor next year's trees; nor any trees grown in any other nursery, for it is impossible to reproduce exactly the same conditions in any two places.

"If we say that price must be based upon cost, then we put our products upon the same plane with bricks and shingles. Competition in cost and quantity-production leads inevitably to price competition and the sure result of that is deterioration in quality. I prefer to think of the better competition that is wholesome and inspiring, the effort to produce something better than anybody else can produce. If we reject the idea of merchansizing at cost, plus a profit on each article figured separately, can we not claim something of the status of the artist?—for the expert plant-grower is an artist. And may we not properly consider the matter of service as an element in price-making?

"You may be asking yourselves by this time, what all this has to do with the American Association of Nurserymen? In referring to the angles of the business, and the estimate a man puts or should put upon his trade, I have had in mind to explain what I conceive to be the motives and the purposes of the murserymen of our association in effecting some radical changes in the policy of our organization.

"When we were organized at Chicago in 1875, the association was one of nurserymen, florists and seedsmen, and so continued for a number of years; the rapid growth of all these interests caused the two latter groups to withdraw after a while to form separate associations. As the years went by, however, it became apparent that many problems required concerted action for their solving, and the necessity for a business organization for strictly business purposes caused a re-organization at Detroit in 1915. While pending for several years, the actual fact was so sudden that the old constitution had to be changed over in the short time of the meeting, and while the purposes of the association were very clear, the made-over constitution did not seem somehow to fit.

"But in 1917 they laid down a code of ethics, not in detail but very broadly, and they made fair-dealing a requisite for continued membership in the association. It is made the duty of every member to report every instance of unfair dealing or unethical practice that comes to his notice, whether between members or with the public. We have a vigilance committee whose duty it is to investigate every report and to apply or recommend such, remedy as seems appropriate to the circumstances, even to expulsion from the association. There is nothing behind that more substantial than the moral influence of the association; but the moral effect of the opinion of one's fellows in a national trade organization of 400 members, and the possibility of losing not only that good opinion, but the privilege of fellowship, is strong enough to secure observance of the rules of fair-play.

John Watson, Princeton, N. J.
Secretary American Ass'n of Nurserymen.

"If you ask why we should do this, let me point out that the nurseryman bears a peculiar relationship to his customer. In every business, confidence must be established. Business to be profitable, must be permanent; ours is a continuing business; very often it passes down from father to son; it has the advantages and the disadvantages of permanency; it means the possession of real estate and crops that are carried in stock for from two to 10 years; once in, you are in to stay, unless, unhappily, the sheriff should close you up. Now if permanency is requisite to success, the confidence of the buying public is of vital importance. The relationship of the nurseryman to the public is peculiar in this: that a larger degree of confidence has to be imposed in him than in almost any other tradesman. I can go into one of your flower shops and I see what you have; I know if it is what I want; but in the case of nursery stock it is different. We cannot look at trees and tell what they are: some of them, we know at a glance; but many things do not bloom nor fruit until some years after the customer buys them. The man who invests in a piano or an automobile or a suit of clothes or any of the things of ordinary commerce, can see the goods and when he sees them can judge very accurately whether they are all right. But the man who buys an orchard of fruit-trees cannot look into them and tell what they are; he buys out of confidence in the seller. And his investment has to continue for some years in the case of fruit-trees, until he does know what he has bought; he must invest in land or the value of its use; the preparation of the ground; the planting, pruning, spraying, and cultivation of the trees until at length they come into bearing. His investment, during those years, becomes many times the original cost of the trees. Therefore, in buying trees and plants, their very nature makes it necessary for the buyer to place great confidence in the grower. So, I say, our responsibility is greater, because the degree of confidence must be greater. Sometimes that confidence is misplaced, and they are the cases that find ready space for publicity while the many thousands of properly and satisfactorily filled orders are not advertised in the same way. It is not surprising that in an industry representing an annual turn-over of $30,000,000, and in which hundreds of thousands of orders are filled in the short space of the fall and spring season, some errors should occur. Nor is it strange that actual imposition is not unknown in the nursery business. And that is what we purpose to try to eliminate."

Boston.

BAD WEATHER HURTS BUSINESS.

Trade during the past week has been unusually quiet, as three days of rainy weather interfered with counter sales, but with a little sunshine, all look forward to a fine business. The street merchants are out in numbers with May flowers which are beginning to arrive in large quantities. Violets have gone for the season, and orchids and sweet peas have taken their place in corsages. Snapdragons, in all colors, delphiniums and irises are in great favor and sell at firm figures.

NOTES.

Business at Carbone's has been good, with the windows tastefully arranged with vases, bowls and baskets with combinations of snapdragons, irises, delphiniums and Madonna lilies.

Kidder Bros. have finished one of their most successful seasons with violets, stevia and freesias, and will now devote their entire time to tomato plants.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. has had a very successful season, and has added Wm. Fennissey, a clever decorator, to its force.

Pierce Bros. of Waltham, are cutting heavily in Scott Key, Pink and White Killarney, Hadley and Ophelia roses.

Wm. Saunders, formerly with Wax Bros., has purchased the store of J. M. Petros, on Huntington avenue.

Wm. McAlpine is cutting fine roses at his Exeter range. S. K. G.

Evansville, Ind.

George Blackman, of the Wm. Blackman Floral Co., is planning to attend the Elks' celebration at Chicago in July, and his son, Walter, has secured his transportation to accompany the Shriners to the Pacific coast next month.

Colonel J. D. Carmody's health continues very poorly.

CUT FLOWERS of callas are said to have sold for an average of 10 shillings per dozen all winter in the London market.

AUTO trucks, 20 in number, are transporting tires and tire materials between Akron, O., and Providence, R. I., the expense being about the same as express rates.

SECRETARY HOUSTON proposed that the present excess profits, which are graduated from 20 to 40 per cent. be changed, and a flat tax on profits in excess of distributed earnings substituted. He suggested the rate of this flat tax be 25 per cent for 1921, 20 per cent for 1922, and 15 per cent for 1923.

A PUBLISHING house which should be in position to speak with authority, says: "We are convinced that the garden movement is soon to see great expansion in the United States, now that the war is ended, and that it will develop during the next 10 years to proportions hardly dreamed of in the past."

THE king of Spain, and his suite, were fined at Madrid, April 26, for walking on the grass. Even with the deep-seated prejudices against them, kings would not be fined for this offence in Chicago where everyone enjoys the privilege of walking on the grass.

Mothers' Day.

Again the opportunity is presented to the florists of the United States to feature, and through every avenue of publicity, exploit this occasion. The fact that it is now a fixed annual floral event, should give it added importance, as each recurrence will be helped by the potential influence of previous campaigns. Many in the trade fail to grasp the possibilities of Mothers' day, which with its beautiful sentiment so dear to the heart of every one, will eventually carry its observance into every home.

First Fund to Decorate A. E. F. Graves.

Contributions for a flower fund to decorate the graves of the American expeditionary forces who fell in France are being received by the Chicago Tribune, and the money will be used by the Paris staff of that newspaper in an effort to cover the grave of every American hero in that country with lilies and violets on Memorial day, May 30. While there are thousands of graves and thousands of dollars are needed, not more than $5 will be accepted from any individual. There are in all 70,552 graves in 593 burial places, and the Tribune staff will co-operate with the Memorial day committee in Paris so that all the cemeteries will be visited. The American Legion, through its national headquarters at Indianapolis, Ind., is also active in the movement, with contributions being received in every mail. The Paris post of the American Legion will hold Memorial day exercises in the various burial grounds.

American Flower Growers' Association.

There are, in every community, some men with a vision for the future of their business, who can look and work towards perfecting it with not altogether a selfish purpose, but who are willing to contribute some time for the good of the trade at large. I am writing this with a view of getting some of such men interested in the forming of a local growers' organization to work in connection with the National Flower Growers' Association.

If you already have an organization in your vicinity, of either plant or cut flower growers, the writer would like to get in touch with its officers with reference to having a committee appointed, whose duty it would be to come to Cleveland, O., next August, to assist in the adoption of a constitution and perfecting a permanent organization of the National Flower Growers' Association.

We are very anxious to have a number of locals organized, at least temporarily, before the national convention in August, so that a committee can be named from among the growers of each locality, who will have a part in the above mentioned work at Cleveland.

The writer will be glad to assist growers in this work if you will kindly get in touch with this office. May we not depend on you live-wires in the progress of trade matters, to comply with the above request promptly?

CENTRAL ILLINOIS LOCAL ORGANIZED.

At a meeting of growers representing central Illinois, held at the St. Nicholas hotel, Springfield, April 20, a local of the American Flower Growers' Association was formed, about 30 members being enrolled, and more pledged, and temporary officers were elected as follows: E. C. Gullett, Lincoln, chairman; W. J. Hembreiker, Springfield, secretary. A committee consisting of Philip Daut, Decatur; Frank Washburn, Bloomington, and James Cole, Peoria, was appointed to attend the meeting of the national organization in Cleveland in August, and to draft a constitution and by-laws.

The meeting, which was a very successful affair, was opened by J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill., secretary of the American Flower Growers' Association, following an enjoyable luncheon.

CHARLES H. TOTTY COMPANY, Madison, New Jersey

San Francisco.

SOCIAL EVENTS MOVE MUCH OF SUPPLY.

This has been a fairly active week. Weddings and other social affairs have made a demand for stock that was very welcome. Funeral work was quite heavy and called for a large quantity of flowers. In the wholesale market, roses have taken another drop and very good stock can now be procured at very reasonable figures. In carnations, Laddie is far in the lead in public favor. The stores find it difficult, however, to maintain an adequate supply. All other varieties are plentiful and very cheap. Outdoor tulips of good quality are being offered freely. There are plenty of giganteums on the market. Prices are low for nearly all arrivals. Sweet peas of nearly every color are to be seen. They are all outdoor stock and are bringing good returns. Violets are rapidly going out of the market after a long, successful season. The orchid supply is limited, with a steady demand. The gardenia arrivals are about equal to requirements. The same is true of lily of the valley. The plant trade is rather slow. Not much flowering stock is to be had. The supply of ferns and other greens cleans up well, owing to the strong demand.

NOTES.

Secretary F. C. Burns, of the California Dahlia Society, says that this year's tests of new varieties at the society's trial grounds at San Rafael will exceed those of any other year. Great numbers of novelties by different growers are now being grown here, and will be judged this fall. He says that much interest is being manifested in the show, which the society will give in September.

The plant growers of the west will be glad to learn that the United States department of agriculture has assigned W. F. Fields, of Washington, to be plant pathologist at this port, with headquarters in the Ferry building. Mr. Fields is a specialist in fungus diseases and will devote his time to examining plant importations for such maladies.

The MacRorie-McLaren Company has been making pretty window displays, calling the attention of the public to the service offered by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery. This firm aims to keep the public reminded at all times of this convenience, and reports a noticeable increase in this department of their business.

P. Vincent Matraia, manager of the Art Floral Company, has purchased a 1920 Cadillac coupe for recreation during the summer months. Trade continues brisk with this firm all the time.

J. A. Axell is experiencing a strong demand for sweet peas, Cecile Brunner roses and asparagus from out of town. He says the violet shipping trade is nearly over for this season.

George C. Roeding, of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, of Fresno, is one of the Hoover delegates at the coming presidential primary in May.

Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co. is chairman of the committee which is pledged to raise $250,000 yearly to advertise this city.

P. Conchi, of Colma, brought in the first Ulrich Brunner roses of the season. The stock had fine long stems and met with ready sale.

DEMAND WEAKENS SOMEWHAT.

The sales of all flowers were a little slower during the past week, and in one or two lines the trade found it hard to clean up without using the stock in funeral work. This was especially true of calla and giganteum lilies. California shipments have been fairly well eliminated as the local cut is heavy enough to supply the general demand and the quality has been much better. There has been less of a demand for cut flowers than anything else, with baskets and pot offerings the easiest lines to dispose of. Local grown roses are making many friends through the fine stock now being furnished, Ophelia, Columbia, Premier and Ward being the most common varieties. There has been rather a shortage of first-class violets, but the call has been rather slow, so that this did not prove the hardship which might have been expected. A number of shops have been offering blooming pansy plants, and these have been used in boxes prepared for store decorations. According to advices from the south, irises will be here for Mothers' day if not before. Some exceptionally fine pot hydrangeas have been received of late, and the lighter supplies of primroses, cinerarias and azaleas helped to turn buyers to this offering. Some of the more colorful tulips move well, and late hyacinths have been arriving in insufficient amounts. The local cut of sweet peas has been increasing and easier prices have been the rule. Orchids are holding up in nice style, especially cattleyas, with a sale for all stock offered, but there has been a notable scarcity of both gardenias and lily of the valley. There has been a fair shipping business, and greenhouse prospects for this summer are very good.

NOTES.

Lately, the Hollywood Gardens originated a style in bridal bouquets which has been greatly copied, and has received notice in national fashion magazines. The bride's and bridesmaids' flowers are made up in colonial design, with the bouquet fastened to an ostrich fan, the latter being the gift of the bride to her attendants. The novelty of the idea became popular at once, and has been used in many fashionable weddings.

Rosaia Bros. announce that hereafter the Woodland Park Floral Company, recently purchased by them, will be known as the Orpheum Floral Company, its former title. Henry Day will be retained as manager. This firm has been showing the best pot hydrangeas and Ward roses seen on this market.

The carpenters working on the new shop of L. W. McCoy have been making fair progress and business is being carried on as well as possible under the conditions. Manager Fred H. Rowe reports excellent Pink Enchantress carnations coming in from the greenhouses, and also some fine roses.

An unusually good demand for calceolarias and dahlia bulbs is reported from the Woodlawn Flower Shop, with other lines moving out nicely. Some fine double daffodils have also been featured.

Visitors: E. A. Fetters and Thomas Brown, Detroit, Mich.; Geo. B. Weigand and wife, Indianapolis, Ind.; all on their way home after an extended stay in California.

PRINCIPAL DEMAND IS FUNERAL WORK.

During the past two weeks, funeral work has furnished the greater part of the trade's activity, but at present, with warm weather and sunshine, the plant demand is opening up nicely and will continue good for some time, as frost danger will be over by May 10. Irises are in full bloom, and every yard with any space to spare, is filled with them and narcissi in pleasing color combinations. Roses seem plentiful with prices still following a range of $4-$6, with the best bringing $8. Carnations are much more plentiful, although some florists are having a limited number shipped in, principally for use in funeral work. They sell at $3 per dozen. Lilies continue in plentiful supply. The florists at the market house have been doing a thriving Saturday business, with a wonderful sale for pansies, and verbenas, petunias, geraniums, etc., much sought Country growers are selling bunches of the blue iris and narcissi at remarkably low figures, and many of these are carried home with market purchases.

WARM WEATHER INCREASES SUPPLY.

Three days of hot weather during the past week have caused a perceptible change in market conditions. Carnations already show the effect of the heat and outdoor flowers are unfolding rapidly. Norfolk lilac appeared this week, but will not be a factor as we have home grown stock in abundance. The usual lull after Easter came as in former years and some weddings and funeral orders have proved to be the mainstay of the trade and break the monotony.

NOTES.

John Cooke, manager of the retail store of John J. O'Brien, of Boston, Mass., visited a number of the local stores, stopping off in this city on his way to Washington, D. C.

M. Paterson Johnston had the decorations for a prominent wedding last week. Mr. Johnston now has a new decorator in the person of a bouncing boy born April 16.

Samuel Feast & Son are receiving much favorable comment on the decorations for a ladies' night at one of the local lodges.

The S. S. Pennock Co. has added a new car to its service department.

SUPPLY CLEANS UP FAIRLY WELL.

Stock is quite plentiful, and at times a strong demand keeps the different lines cleaned up quite well. Roses are plentiful and quality is fairly good, especially in Russell and Ophelia, which wholesale at from six to 15 cents. Carnations are very plentiful and are exceptionally good for the season. Sweet peas are very numerous, but are going fast as they work in well with funeral orders and corsage work. Bulbous stock is just about gone for the season.

NOTES.

Bedding plant prices will vary some from those of last year. Geraniums, red, in 3-inch, will be $1.50 per dozen for small and $2 for large plants. Pink will run $2 and $2.50; 4-inch, red, 35 each or $4 per dozen, with all other offerings somewhat higher.

For the first time in the history of the trade in this city, there will be a co-operative advertisement of large size in the daily papers featuring Mother's day. Miss Hayden, and Messrs. Carter and Barnes have been appointed a committee to handle the details.

T. J. Noll & Co. report excellent business and stock plentiful. With the embargo lifted, shipments are now going out in good shape.

H. Kusik & Co. have been carrying large supplies of roses, carnations and sweet peas all week and report good business.

W. J. Barnes has one of the best and largest stocks of bedding plants in his history and anticipates an excellent trade.

August Luther says he is selling some bedding plants and will be in fine shape when the season opens.

A. F. Barbe reports his bedding plants in good shape and looks forward to a good demand.

STOCK IS IN BETTER DEMAND.

Stock is in better demand this week, consequently prices have advanced somewhat, but at that, there is plenty to go around in almost all lines at very reasonable figures. Some particularly fine American Beauty roses are arriving now and are selling nicely, with extra fancy stock bringing $12 per dozen. Columbia, Premier and Mrs. Chas. Russell are also reaching the market in splendid condition, and are moving at good prices. Ophelia, Sunburst, Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, White Killarney, Double White Killarney, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Montrose, Champ Wieland, Hoosier Beauty, Milady, Richmond, My Maryland and Mrs. George Shawyer are having a better call. Cecile Brunner, Elgar, Baby Doll and Nesbit are to be had in limited supply. Carnations are not as plentiful as they have been, and are in good demand this week. Lilies are seen in good supply at some of the houses, and the same holds true for callas. Orchids are none too plentiful, and there are just about enough gardenias to go around. Lily of the valley is in fair supply, but is holding its own. Sweet peas are plentiful, but are having a very good call, considering the general market conditions. Some fine snapdragons are attracting the attention of the buyers, and are to be seen featured prominently in many of the window displays of the leading stores. Calendulas, daisies, freesias, anemones, narcissi, jonquils, tulips, violets, stocks, pansies and other miscellaneous flowers, including lilac and trailing arbutus, are seen in the offerings. Green goods are none too plentiful. The outlook is very bright for a heavy demand for stock for Mothers' day, and everyone who has not already placed their orders will do well to do so immediately

NOTES.

The Antoinette Flower Shop will open a retail florist store at 934 East Forty-seventh street, May 1, with Henry M. Hirsch in charge. The A. L. Randall Co. furnished the complete set of store fixtures, and the new firm will make a strong bid for the business in its neighborhood. Mr. Hirsch needs no introduction to the trade, having been engaged in the retail business here for many years, during which time he has made a host of friends, all of whom join in wishing him every success in his new undertaking.

The florists' club will meet at the Hotel Randolph next Thursday evening, May 6, at 8 o'clock. The American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. will entertain the members with its two-reel movie, "Wonderland Under Glass." The April meeting was rather poorly attended, when the film was shown for the first time, so it will be placed on the screen again at the next meeting by special request.

The Central Floral Co.'s window displays are attracting much attention. A background of cherry trees and lilacs in bloom, furnish the touch of spring, and while the blossoms are artificial, the trees are natural, which keeps the onlooker guessing. Nine out of 10 believe the blossoms to be natural.

Sam Seligman, New York representative for the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., and Morris Levine, with Lion & Co., New York, called on the trade here this week.

Mrs. Fred Cindel (formerly Miss Fannie Pratt, of Vaughan's Seed Store), now of Johannesburg, South Africa, is visiting friends here, with her husband.

The American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co.'s force held its monthly meeting and banquet at the Hotel Randolph, April 24. L. E. Hooper, local representative of the Louisiana Red Cypress Co., was invited to speak on the "wood eternal," and gave an interesting talk on this subject. Carl Ickes, of the Ickes-Braun Mill Co., and Harry Berner, who has charge of the drafting department of the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., spoke on the use of cypress in connection with greenhouse construction, all of which proved very instructive. H. O. S. Nichols had charge of the affair, and officiated as toastmaster at the banquet.

Nearly everyone in the trade is pushing Mothers' day strong by using the S. A. F. stamps, folders, posters, slides, electros, etc. Those who have not obtained any one of these items, and would like to, can do so through the Florists' Publicity Service Bureau, 431 South Dearborn street. The Mothers' day poster is the prettiest ever issued and is being used extensively all over the city.

Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s roses are arriving in fine condition, particularly Mrs. Chas. Russell and Columbia. Orchids and lily of the valley are in good supply at their establishment. This firm's stock in general has never run so high in quality as this season.

Fred Schramm, of Park Ridge, says that work has been started on his new carnation house. Mr. Schramm is a stockholder in the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, which handles his entire output.

H. N. Bruns' investment in lily of the valley pips was the heaviest ever this year, the figures being very large. His cuts are fine, and the quality is so high that the buyer is more than satisfied.

Erne & Co. expect to experience an early cleanup of stock for Mothers' day, even though they will be well supplied with spring stock of every description.

Wietor Bros. are cutting heavily in Mrs. Chas. Russell, Premier and Columbia roses of fine quality, and have a big cut of Ophelia coming in crop for Mothers' day.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are prepared to handle a brisk Mothers' day business, and while they will have a good supply of stock to offer, an early cleanup is looked for.

The A. L. Randall Co. will have a good supply of peonies for Mothers' day, but it is almost a certainty that the demand will be greater than the supply.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. have had a number of inquiries in regard to stock for Mothers' day, when the demand promises to exceed all expectations.

The John Kruchten Co. has had a good call for sweet peas the past week, which brought high prices, considering the general market conditions.

Miss Harper, of the Bassett & Washburn office force, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of her mother, whose death occurred April 27.

Zech & Mann report a strong demand for fancy sweet peas, which they are handling in quantity. Some fine roses are seen at this establishment.

Tonners' are doing a fine cut flower and supply business, and now have quite a bit of floor space in the Atlas building.

A. Lange had three large wedding orders, April 24, which helped considerably to increase the sales for that day.

The Joseph Foerster Co. is having a brisk call for ranunculus, which are none too plentiful in this market.

The E. F. Winterson Co. is having a good demand for baskets which are a leader with this house.

The E. C. Amling Co. is handling a good supply of irises.

Toledo, O.

MOTHERS' DAY INDICATIONS GOOD.

As customary after a holiday, business has been quiet with most florists since Easter, but during the past week, it picked up appreciably. There has been a lively call for funeral work, and for decorations for weddings and other social occasions. Stock of all kinds has been fairly plentiful, and the quality in most cases is good. Roses of the standard varieties are in excellent supply and the demand cleans them up. Sweet peas are good and sell briskly. Carnations are sufficient for all demands. Snapdragons are here, and bring good prices. The weather here has been cold and cloudy for the most part, and growers are hoping for a change in order to supply the heavy demands expected for Mothers' day.

FLORISTS' CLUB MEETING.

The first meeting held by the local florists' club in some time was called for April 22 at Schramm Brothers' store on Cherry street, and was very well attended. The calamity that befell James Gray, florist of Sylvania, O., March 28, was brought up for discussion. On that day, a tornado visited northwestern Ohio and destroyed his greenhouse and wrecked his home. He was practically wiped out. According to Frank Schramm and Tom Magee, who visited Gray on Sunday, he was living in a shed and was quite discouraged with prospects. Florists here are doing everything possible to help him get on his feet, and at the meeting over a $1000 was subscribed in a few moments. Frank Schramm and Tom Magee were appointed a committee to gather donations from those who were absent. All responded liberally.

NOTES.

The prospects for Mothers' day are bright, and the amount of business transacted is limited only to the extent of the pushing done by florists. Cooperative advertising will probably be used again in this city, as results prove that this is the best method of exploiting the day. The advertising plan of the S. A. F. promotion bureau will be used here by some. It is very good material.

Dronillard & Navarre, who conduct the Navarre Flower Shop, near the Interurban station, formerly owned by S. N. Peck, are making many changes in the arrangement of the store. New fixtures have been installed, and the interior has been redecorated in a most attractive, inviting manner. Their window displays are always most pleasing, and business shows a constant improvement.

HEAVY SUPPLY AND FAIR DEMAND.

The outstanding feature of trade conditions during the past week was the large supply of all seasonable cut flowers to meet a demand that could only be called fair, except in the case of stock for funerals, which, at times, materially reduced the quantity of some of the items on the list. Lilies, however, are being received far in excess of requirements and sweet peas meet the same fate. The former are offered as low as $8 per 100, and while of excellent quality, sales are slow. Roses were never seen in finer condition and many bring fair returns. The cold weather has not been encouraging to outdoor planting, but all growers are preparing for a big rush when the planting season opens.

NOTES.

The publicity committee, A. Pochelon, chairman, held a meeting April 23 to complete plans for putting into operation the system for collecting funds for the co-operative advertising campaign. Every florist in this city and suburbs will be appealed to personally for his support of the project. Mothers' day copy is being prepared and liberal advertising space will be used in the daily papers, as well as a general use of posters and stickers.

Harry Smith, of Mt. Clemens, has sold his greenhouse property to John Bannon, who has engaged Victor Rotel to take charge of the establishment.

The latter has been in the employ of John Carey for 16 years, and goes to his new charge with the best wishes of a host of friends. He will make a specialty of carnations, chrysanthemums and sweet peas.

John E. Carey, of Mt. Clemens, has sold his business to his sons, John M. and James, who will take possession, June 1. The retail store will continue to be managed by James, as in the past, while the growing end will be in charge of John M., who will also continue to conduct his retail store in Detroit.

Doemling & Schimmel, Mt. Clemens, will commence the erection of a modern rose house, 70x238 feet and 27 feet high, steel construction, May 15. Forty thousand roses will be planted in it before July 1. J. F. S.

DEMAND FAIRLY BRISK.

While weather conditions during the past week were not the best for an active demand for flowers, still downtown florists have had a rather brisk business, on the whole. Trade has been tending largely towards loose flowers, which are selling well. They are mostly roses, carnations, snapdragons, tulips, jonquils and violets. Prices are rather firm at the levels which have prevailed during the past few weeks. There is a fairly good supply of all varieties with the demand steady, which produces a very satisfactory market in every way as there is little stock to be carried over. Prices are now down to almost everybody's pocketbook, and as a result, the demand has increased to a large degree. Funeral work has been rather active. One of the best features is the demand for flowers for weddings and parties. Active preparations are being made for Mothers' day, which is expected to be one of the big events in the business. This day is becoming more popular year after year, and it is believed will be as heavy as Valentine's day and may approach Easter in volume of trade. The railroad strike did not seriously affect the trade in this city, although some shipments were delayed as a result of the rail tie-up.

NOTES.

Home dwellers in this city, and in fact, many cities in central Ohio, who go in for the beautification of yards and lawns are using Madame Butterfly roses as the chief decorative feature. At Springfield, which is but 43 miles west of this city, millions of these roses are grown, and are being distributed for the decoration of lawns. While it is supposed to show a deep pink, still many varieties of colors appear, and the effect is beautiful. Frank E. Good, of Springfield, is one of the best known growers of roses in this section, and in addition to Madame Butterfly, he is also growing a large number of Maman Cochet. The five Springfield greenhouses sell between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 roses throughout the United States yearly.

BAD WEATHER DECREASES SUPPLY.

Several days of dark, inclement weather have decreased the cut of flowers so that the supply now about equals the demand. The carnation crop seems to be about right for Mothers' day and roses are holding their own both in number and quality, with prices ranging from eight to 20 cents, with Hoosier Beauty and Columbia, 10 to 25 cents. Sweet peas are still on the short side and clean up at two cents. Gladioli, still limited in supply, although the quality is excellent, bring 20 cents. Snapdragons are in fine crop and find ready buyers at 8 to 10 cents.

NOTES.

The Miller Floral Co., at Farmington, is cutting some fine gladioli, and its roses and carnations are showing daily improvement. Some fine pelargoniums should prove quick sellers for Mothers' day. Wm. Miller, of this firm now has quite a lot of annuals and perennials planted in his outdoor garden. His asters are doing especially well.

A number of retailers, including Bailey & Sons, the Evans Floral Co., B. C. Morris, and the Miller Floral Co., conducted a successful sale, April 16-17, featuring carnations at $1 per dozen, and roses at $1, $2 and $3, according to grade. These four stores disposed of 4,000 carnations and 2,500 roses.

Charles Soter, manager of the flower department at the Walker Dry Goods Co., who has been on the sick list for six months, has returned to his post, greatly improved in health.

The Salt Lake Floral Co. is cutting good stock, especially snapdragons and Emperor daffodils. This firm's carnations are coming into crop again.

The Evans Floral Co. has been busy with funeral work and is very well satisfide with the volume of business.

Emil Lund, of Bountiful, is cutting fine snapdragons and his carnations look promising.

SURPLUS SUPPLY AND LIGHT SALES.

The past week has been one of over production as far as the flower market is concerned. There was a great supply of everything; surplus was the rule, while the demand, early in the week, particularly, was very light. However, there is always some activity, as was the case on Friday and Saturday, due to the free buying of the street men and enterprising out-of-town stores, who are quick to see an opportunity for turning the surplus over in special week-end sales. Roses were a quantity item, and they sold at about one-fourth last winter's prices, but as there are now about four times the quantity received then, results in money returns are the same, which after all is the thing aimed for. The last of the Emperor daffodils were in this week, and the fact that quite a quantity cleaned up at $4, shows that the market was not in such a hopeless condition. Shipments of southern stock have ceased. There were heavy receipts of very good sweet peas, the best of which would only bring $2. Callas and Easter lilies are very plentiful, the giganteums being sold very low in quantity lots. There were certainly three times as many callas in this market the past season, as were ever seen here before, which makes them exceptionally plentiful now, yet the market appears to take them all at an average of not much below 10 cents, which shows that production is not greatly ahead of demand. Southern outdoor lilac from Maryland is offered, but against such a full market it meets with little demand. Greens are an important feature. All kinds are in demand, particularly asparagus. The quality of the shipments of the new crop or spring growth from Florida is excellent. When packed with wet sphagnum in a ball at the ends of the stems, out of which water can still be squeezed on arrival, the sprays are as fresh and green as if just cut from the greenhouse. The price is 50 cents per dozen sprays, which when it is grown out of doors by the acre, would appear to give the returns a velvety sheen. The street men had a harvest the past week, all their stands being stocked to the limit. They handled good flowers, prefering in some instances to pay $1.50 a hundred for sweet peas, rather than lower grades at half the price.

April 26.—There were good shipments in all lines, with a fair demand starting with the average of last week's prices.

NOTES.

That growers profit to a great extent when attention is given to the preparation of their stock for market, so that it shall be offered for sale in such a way as will show it to the best advantage, has been demonstrated by the Joseph Heacock Co. in the marketing of its large crops of sweet peas, which run over 10,000 a day. These were not graded, but were tied in bunches of 25 sprays. These were given a corsage appearance, all the flowers being turned toward the front, the long stems forming the foundation, while the shorter grades were worked in as the bunching progressed until the required number were in place, when they were bound together with the string. In this method of arranging, all flowers showed to the front, and made a much better display than when bunched round with flowers facing in every direction. There are no seconds, all appear first grade, the quality and arrangement making up for the shorter stems. This bunching, it is estimated, has added at least 25 per cent to the value of the stock.

A wholesaler, when asked if a prominent street dealer, was not a good customer, answered: "Yes, but we do not like to sell to him, because when he gets busy, the market is in poor shape, and then we regard him only as a convenience. At such a time, of course, one man's money is as good as another's, but we prefer to sell to the stores, as they buy all the year round. It is a great pity that more retailers do not take a chance when flowers are so plentiful. They could run off a lot of stock in special sales at good profit to themselves."

The May meeting of the florists' club will be devoted to the interests of the grower. A feature will be an exhibition of cut roses, including all the new ones now bidding for a place, and well grown standard varieties. The subject for discussion will be, "Growers' Interests," in which prominent members of this branch of the business will take part.

Clarence Watson, shipping manager of the Leo Niessen Co., says there are still a few out-of-town buyers, for whom no other pink rose will do but Killarney. He says: "We could give them splendid medium Russell, which would carry much better, but they still hang on to their old love.

George Aeugle looks at it this way: "Prices of cut flowers are one-fourth what they were last winter, but we are getting four times as much stock, so it amounts to about the same, only we have to hustle a little harder to get the clean up."

Stuart Miller is back again to his "old love," the commission business, having joined the Berger Bros. force at 1609 Sansom street. Alterations are still going on here. When finished, the building will be modern in every respect.

A. B. Cartledge, Wilmington, Del., is a good buyer in this market. Now that flowers are so cheap, he is running special week end sales which he finds profitable, and at the same time, brings many new people into the store.

Jos. G. Neidinger is in Germany on a vacation. He will keep his eyes open there, and in other foreign countries, for novelties and staples that originate on the other side.

K.

KENTON, O.—John F. Sebransky will expand his business and enter the wholesale field. It is reported he will spend $15,000 in improvements.

HEAVY SUPPLY WITH LIGHT SALES.

With a heavy supply of stock, and a light demand, business in the wholesale district continued quiet during the past week. But there was no reason for complaint. After a long run of high prices, and an exceptionally good Easter trade, it was inevitable that as the supply increased, and social activities waned, there should be light buying and a drop in prices. One feature has been fortunate for the trade in general, and particularly for the growers of bulbous stock; the cool weather has made it possible to handle and sell much stock that in a warm season would have been rendered worthless. Up to the present, there has been a heavy supply of callas in fair condition on the market, and of late they have been going very cheap, due in part to a corresponding heavy supply of cut Easter lilies. The common tulips are about finished, but there is yet a fair movement in the Darwins, which are holding out well. No fault can be found with the quality of roses or carnations. It is simply the survival of the fittest that bring fairly good prices, the remainder, as a rule, going very cheap. Various spring flowers, such as stocks, larkspur and pansies, are much in evidence, and there is a fair call for them. A fine quality of snapdragon continues to arrive, but the market is overstocked with it and it moves slowly at low figures. Southern lilac is now arriving, and the "lilac season" may be said to have fairly opened, which will increase the activities of the street boys.

April 26.—There is no change worthy of note in the condition of the market. The weather is fair and cool and heavy supplies continue to arrive.

NOTES.

To the large number of wholesalers that have forsaken 28th street, selling flowers during the past week was but a secondary consideration to the completion of their stores in the new 18th street market, and getting their fixtures moved. They had announced that they would be ready for business, April 26, but almost all of them were ready for it on the afternoon of April 24. It is a guess whether J. K. Allen or J. J. Coan made the first sale, with George Hildenbrand, of John Young & Co., coming in a good third. On the mezzanine floor, Secretary Young and his assistants were busy getting their office fixtures in shape, as the carpenters had been slow with the finishings. Not to be outdone in good works, President Henshaw of the club, also of the Henshaw Floral Co., turned his section into an impromptu cafeteria and served lunch. Some day, it will be worth while to write a more extended history of the progress and evolution of the florist business in this great city. It will be remembered in the early days, that there were small greenhouses in various sections of the city. The wholesale trade—if such it could be called—was largely a basket trade. Then, one daring man, we believe it was the now venerable James Hart, established a wholesale store. In time, others followed his example, and within the past 25 years, a "colony" of detached stores has sprung up. There has now been consummated a great enterprise in the gathering under one roof, in a splendidly equipped market, of a large body of enterprising wholesalers with mutual aims and interests.

Chris Pappas, senior member of the retail firm of Pappas Bros., of Broadway and 79th street, was married, April 25, to Miss E. Troseni Malaspina, an attractive and well educated young lady, who came here from Greece about a year ago. The ceremony took place in the Greek church, Lexington avenue and 72nd street, and was witnessed by many friends and well wishers. The groom is deservedly one of the most popular men in the trade of this city, where he has been in business for a number of years. He served for four years in the Greek army, and was awarded two medals for bravery in the Balkan war. Many good wishes will follow this happy couple.

On April 21, P. F. McKenney arranged an elaborate decoration in St. Patrick's cathedral for the wedding of Miss Dorothy Dowling to Daniel L. Daly. The chancel was decorated with pink rambler roses and lilies. The pews were also decorated with lilies. The bride is a daughter of Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Victor J. Dowling.

S. H. Russin, formerly of the firm of Russin & Hanfling, dealers in florist supplies, has taken the building at 55 West 19th street, directly opposite the new flower market, and has put in a large stock of florists' supplies. He has been well and favorably known to the trade for a number of years.

On April 20, Joseph S. and Mrs. Fenrich became the proud parents of another daughter. They now have three daughters and two sons. Such a family as always delighted the lamented Roosevelt.

The new wholesale market at Sixth avenue and 18th street, opened on the morning of April 26 under favorable conditions, many buyers being on hand.

Another firm, in addition to those previously mentioned, C. Lecakes & Co., dealers in green, have removed to the new market on 18th street.

Charles A. Funk, formerly head gardener for J. H. Small & Sons, now has an attractive store in Astoria, L. I., and reports an excellent trade.

Herman Warendorff is on a pleasure trip to California, and in his absence, his brother, Edward, is in charge of the store in the Ansonia hotel.

Adolph Le Moult, a well known retailer, has taken an express stand in the new market, prepared to do its express business.

Mothers' Day Orders for Chicago and Vicinity, Telegraph or Mail, Given Best Attention By A. LANGE, 77-79 E. Madison Street

Cincinnati, O.

MODERATE DEMAND CONTINUES.

There has been very little change in the market and the prospects for any great activity in that direction are very small until Mothers' day is with us again. The growers miss the big checks of previous months, and, no doubt, find it hard to reconcile themselves to the new conditions. Carnations are keeping up their quality fairly well, but the quotations cover a wide latitude. Benora is about the best keeper. The maroon, Topsy, is an unusually large variety, and a good seller in this market. In roses, Premier, Columbia and Russell, are the leaders. Stock cleans up well daily except in cases of inferior quality. Single daffodils are still to be had, but other bulbous stock is through. Miscellaneous offerings such as white and yellow daisies, stocks, snapdragons, calendulas, marguerites, myosotis and baby primroses, sell well, but indications point to an over-supply soon. Many customers are beginning to economize in their buying, and while business is good, the prices are lower, and the volume in money is less, and the accompanying profits are smaller.

NOTES.

H. W. Sheppard recently spent a day in Springfield, O., buying a miscellaneous line of plant stock. George Kessen is now with this firm.

C. E. Critchell is handling some fine rose stock, which supplies a steady demand.

The McCallum Co. is doing a big business at its Third street branch house.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, 216 Prospect Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

THE price of bags at Chicago, April 28, was $64.

SCOTCH soot, imported from England, has advanced 10 shillings per ton.

VISITED CHICAGO: Henry Field, Shenandoah, Ia., who reports trade holding up well.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district have shown greatly improved demand since Monday of the present week, prices remaining at $3.00 to $3.25.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, April 28, were as follows: Timothy, $9.00 to $11.50 per 100 pounds. Red clover $34.00 to $40.00.

IMPORTS of crimson clover for the first half of April were over 1,000,000 pounds, and for the nine and one-half months ending April 15, have amounted to approximately 8,200,000 pounds.

IN the east, middle west, and southeast, the sowing season is 10 days to two weeks late, and seedsmen, therefore, expect the demand for clover and grass seeds to continue a little later than usual.

GUADALOUPE, CALIF.—L. D. Waller, of the L. D. Waller Seed Co., and wife, have completed arrangements for an extended eastern trip, leaving San Francisco May 15. Mr. Waller will call on the trade in the leading cities en route, and on the return trip will stop at Milwaukee for the seedsmen's convention.

THE collector of the port of New York reports that his force is so depleted that they cannot accomplish properly the work assigned them. As a result, business firms in all parts of the country are complaining of delays in receiving their goods. In some instances, they are suffering ruinous losses, for not only is their capital tied up and idle, but often the goods are entirely out of season when finally they reach their destination.

CHICAGO.—Vaughan's Seed Store west side warehouse and market gardeners' headquarters is now at Randolph and Jefferson streets, two and one-half blocks east of the old stand at 803 West Randolph street. The increase in floor space at the new location is 50 per cent. Loading space, mostly under shelter, will accommodate 10 teams, while two elevators serve the storage floors. Ice storage is taken care of on the premises, sufficient for two carloads of lily bulbs.

MAIZE BILLBUG.—This beetle, commonly known as the elephant bug, which does an annual damage amounting to thousands of dollars to corn crops in south-central Kansas, has been reported doing injury in Reno, Marion, Greenwood, Cowley and Chautauqua counties in that state. As a control method, the best general practice has been to keep the infested fields in alfalfa for a few years, after which corn may be safely planted, according to Technical Bulletin No. 6, of the Kansas State Agricultural College, Manhattan.

BALKS AT OVERALLS.—L. B. McCausland, of the Ross Brothers Seed Co., Wichita, Kan., writes as follows: "I feel that the fellow who must wear overalls to protect his clothing, will consume the entire output of overalls this season, and I do not care to be one of the causes of his paying more money than he can afford to pay."

PRESIDENT JOHNS has called the regular annual meeting of the Western Seedsmen's Association to meet at the Hotel Fontanelle, Omaha, Neb., Saturday, May 1. It is safe to say that this will be one of the most important meetings of the western association ever called, seedsmen generally being on the threshold of a year that is potent with possibilities.

TOLEDO, O.—Clover seed displayed a weak tone, with opening figures April 26 ranging from 5 to 10 cents under final quotations of April 24, but gained $2.50 during the previous seven days. Cash was offered at $28.50, October $23.40, and December $22.40. Timothy held steady with cash, 1919, at $5.45, April $5.45, May $5.40, September $5.80, October $5.60, and December $5.60.

Ohio Conditions.

The J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., Cincinnati, say they have experienced good spring weather the past three weeks, and have had exceptionally good trade during this time, especially in garden seeds. They also have had fine business in sweet clover, alsike and alfalfa, and the best demand for seed oats they have had for a number of years, due to a large extent to the fact that many farmers did not put out as large an acreage of wheat as they had anticipated. Owing to the continued wet weather of the fall season, the wheat which was sowed early last fall was seriously damaged by fly, and winter freezing and thawing has raised a great deal of wheat out of the surface, and there will not be to exceed 50 per cent of the acreage that was seeded in the fall remain for harvesting. Many farmers have disced up part of their wheat ground and put in oats. Those who are very short on labor are sowing their wheat ground to grass and harrowing it in, thus taking a chance on the wheat, which they would not do if they could get sufficient labor.

There is also a good demand for pasture mixtures, as many farmers who plowed their permanent pastures during the war, in order to increase production of wheat and corn, are now attempting to seed down a field for permanent pasture, while others are seeding down a great deal of land owing to shortage of labor.

The trade in poultry supplies, shrubbery and ornamental plants has been exceptionally good. The high price of food and great reduction in ornamental planting during the war is probably the cause of the increased trade in these commodities.

Continuance of Journal of Agri. Urged.

W. F. Therkildson, manager of the agricultural division of N. W. Ayer & Son, Philadelphia, Pa., well known as one of the leading advertising agencies in America, has sent to each member of the Senate and House committees on printing, a letter calling attention to the seriousness of discontinuing the publication of the Journal of Agricultural Research.

Mr. Therkildson, through many years activity in the work of the American Seed Trade Association, has a keen appreciation of the value of the Journal, the discontinuance of which, in view of the fact that the appropriation required for its issuance is but $20,000, would be, in his opinion, nothing short of a disaster. As a medium through which scientific, experimental and research work of the different colleges is made known to those interested, and which articles in turn, become the basis of the popular bulletins distributed through the various state colleges, treating on a variety of subjects, it is of the greatest value to agriculture. To those who have to do with the diseases that affect plant life, the Journal is looked upon as an authoritative source of information, and plant pathologists throughout the country have come to recognize the publication as the medium through which their experiments and results can be made known to others so interested. Furthermore, the seed trade of the United States would be seriously handicapped by the lack of this knowledge, and in turn, millions who depend upon agriculture, are going to be seriously handicapped, production will be curtailed and losses will be experienced, compared with which the paltry sum involved in the maintenance and expansion of this commendable work would be infinitesimal.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., President; Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids Mich., Treas. Next annual convention September 1920.

POTATO planting will start in the Dakota Red River valley about May 5.

THE United States department of agriculture has issued Farmers' Bulletin 1059, entitled "Sweet Potato Diseases," making the division between field troubles and storage rot and suggesting methods of control.

INDIANA growers of tomatoes are asking canners to pay $20 per ton this year. Canners say their limit is $15 to $16.50. In New Jersey and New York, arrangements are being made by growers to sell as associations and not individually.

THE distribution of potatoes from Aroostook county, Me., to points outside of New England has been stopped by the railroad strike and resultant embargoes, causing an almost precipitate drop in price from $10 to $4.50 per barrel. The price, April 22, was $6.

LASALLE, ILL.—Henry J. Stockman and Robert Barton, of Chicago, have leased 250 acres near this city and will establish a mushroom and French endive growing establishment employing from 25 to 50 men. Their Austin Nursery, near Chicago, will be continued.

THOMAS PETERS, who began his fortune by out-door growing of tomatoes in South Florida, and called the Tomato King, is principal owner of a new club house at Bimini, an English Island, wet, 36 miles off the Florida coast, and reached by autoplane in 45 minutes.

BETTENDORF, IA.—The J. W. Davis Co., growers of greenhouse vegetables and pickles, has increased its capital stock from $170,000 to $250,000, evidently in preparation for greatly increased production the coming season. No plans for enlarging the grounds or buildings are announced.

ONIONS to the number of 1,601,929 cases and 950,942 crates were shipped up to January 24, from the Valencia district to all ports as compared with 625,477 cases and no crates during the corresponding season last year, and 1,395,676 cases and 1,098,784 crates during the like period of the 1917-18 season.

Sweet Potato Disease.

Owing to large losses which disease and decay have caused in the sweet-potato crop held in storage this winter, particularly in the south, United States department of agriculture specialists earnestly recommend that growers take steps at an early date to prevent the use of diseased potatoes for bedding, thus protecting the next crop from the danger of further losses. The three points upon which special emphasis is laid are: Careful selection and disinfection of seed potatoes; care in preparing hotbeds, and crop rotations.

Before the potatoes are bedded, they should be carefully picked over. All with black-rot spots and all badly mutilated potatoes should be thrown out. The sound, healthy ones should then be disinfected by immersing them for 10 minutes in a solution made by dissolving one ounce of mercuric chloride crystals in eight gallons of water. In this work, only wooden receptacles should be used.

For treating a large quantity of potatoes, about 50 gallons of the solution may be made up at one time. After treating the first 10 bushels in this 50 gallons, one-half ounce more of the mercuric chloride crystals should be added, and also enough water to bring the total amount of the solution once more up to 50 gallons. The mercuric chloride crystals will dissolve readily in hot water. The potatoes should be treated just before bedding. Rinsing in water after the treatment is not necessary.

If mercuric chloride can not be obtained, the potatoes may be disinfected by immersing for five minutes in a solution of formaldehyde (commercial), 40 per cent, made by diluting one quart of the formaldehyde with 50 gallons of water. This solution can be used repeatedly without losing strength. The potatoes need not be rinsed but should be bedded soon after treatment.

If the old hotbed is to be used, the dirt should be carted away and replaced by new soil or sand from the woods or elsewhere where sweet potatoes have never been grown. The framework should be disinfected by spraying with a solution of formaldehyde similar to that recommended above. All decayed sweet potatoes and rubbish likely to harbor the disease germs should be raked up from around the bed and carted off or, preferably, burned.

Cover the potatoes with soil or sand of the same sort as that used in making up the hotbed. If manure is used for heating be sure that it has not been infected with the disease germs by rotted sweet potatoes thrown on it.

By carefully following these directions, slips free of disease may be grown, but they may still become diseased if they are planted on ground where diseased sweet potatoes were raised the previous year. Therefore it is necessary to plant the slips on new ground or on ground where sweet potatoes have not been grown for several years.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports of market conditions to the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture for the period April 20-26, indicate increased shipments with an irregular price trend. Potato markets were unsettled, and demand more moderate with price recessions in some consuming markets, but shipping points showed little variance. At Minnesota f. o. b. stations, prices held within a range of $7.15-$7.60, closing $7.25-$7.30, sacked, per 100 pounds. Northern and middlewestern round whites were steady in St. Louis and Kansas City at $7.25-$8 until the close, when prices in the middlewestern markets moved to a lower range of $7-$7.75. New York No. 1 round whites sold early at $7.35-$7.60 bulk, per 100 pounds, closing lower at $6.75-$7.00. Cleveland and Pittsburgh ranged $7.50-$7.65, closing around $6.65 for same stock, sacked, per 100 pounds. Maine Green Mountains slightly higher at f. o. b. shipping points, ranging $5.93-$6.28, bulk, per 100 pounds. In New York prices ranged $7.80-$8.35, about 75 cents lower than last week. Boston prices were steady at $6.40-$6.75, sacked. Philadelphia ranged $7.25-$7.85, sacked, per 100 pounds, but values dropped at the close to a range of $6.95-$7.10. Pittsburgh ranged mostly $7.60-$7.65, closing around $6.65, sacked, per 100 pounds. Onions were lower, with heavy haulings at Texas shipping points. No. 1 and No. 2 yellows, mixed, declined gradually to a close of $2.15-$2.30 f. o. b., cash track, ruling 85 cents to $1 below the previous week. Chicago closed 50 cents higher at $4.75-$5.25 for Texas yellows, No. 1 and No. 2. St. Louis was lower at $4.50 per standard crate, and Kansas City also closed lower at $3.75-$4. Cleveland and Pittsburgh went to $6-$6.50. Eastern yellow varieties sold at $7.25-$8.50 in Philadelphia, and $9-$10 in Pittsburgh. New onions moved to twice the rate of last season. Cabbage was steady, with new stock in liberal supply and demand fair. Prices ranged at about last week's levels. Florida Wakefields, in 1½-bushel hampers, sold at $1.50-$2.50 in Baltimore, New York and Philadelphia, and $1.50-$2 in Cincinnati. Packed in barrel crates, the same stock sold lower in the east than in the middle-west, ranging $2.50-$4, with Cincinnati $4.50, and Detroit, $6-$7 per 100 pounds. Texas stock followed a wide range. Tomatoes were in good demand at Miami, Fla., shipping points. Globes, fancy sizes, moved at $5-$5.25 for 6-basket carriers. Consuming markets were higher, prices advancing $1 in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati to a range of $4.25-$6, and at New York, to $6.50-$7.25. Lettuce shipments showed large increases, and the same was true of celery. Sweet potatoes, in general, advanced 50-75 cents in middle-western markets to a range of $2.75-$3. Many of the large centers were lightly supplied.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 28.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $4.25 to $5.50; celery, Florida, crate $5.50 to $6.00; leaf lettuce, per tomato box, 25 cents; radishes, per dozen bunches, $1.00 to $1.10; tomatoes, per crate, six baskets, $6.50 to $8.50.

New York, April 26.—Celery, per crate, $2.00 to $8.00; cucumbers, per basket, $2.00 to $7.00; mushrooms, 50 cents to $1.75 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 25 to 50 cents; lettuce per strap, $5.00 to $6.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $6.00.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; John Watson, 400 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

Forty-fifth annual convention will be held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, June 23-25, 1920.

THE nurseryman's relationship to his customer is discussed by Secretary John Watson of the American Association of Nurserymen on page 793 of this issue.

NEW YORK.—Nurserymen here are not so scared of transportation difficulties, bad as they are, as of the shortage of intelligent help. They claim that with plenty of hands, they could fill all orders in time for planting.

BRIDGMAN, MICH.—C. E. Whitten & Son, strawberry plant specialists, report they are receiving daily complaints from their customers whose plants have not yet arrived, or which are ruined when received, due to the long time in transit.

As a remedy for the pulp shortage the American Pulp & Paper Association recommends a permanent annual federal appropriation of $1,000,000 for reforestation of areas in the east and north, where the paper industry is concentrated.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—The Funkhouser Post, American Legion, planted 88 trees in Sunset park here, April 19-20, in honor of soldiers from this city who fell during the world war. The trees were Norway maple, sugar maple and pin oak and remarkably pretty.—W. B. C.

National Association of Gardeners.

BOSTON CONFERENCE, MAY 6.

A gardeners' conference under the auspices of the members of the National Association of Gardeners, located in the vicinity of Boston, Mass., will be held in that city, Thursday evening, May 6. The early hour of the meeting, 6:30 o'clock, is to enable members coming from a distance, who may desire to return home the same night, to do so.

The conference will be for a general discussion of subjects relating to the gardener and his profession, in which all members present will be invited to participate. This is in line with the programme of the conference recently held in New York, which proved so successful, and drew forth many helpful suggestions from the floor. The general work of the gardeners' national association will be discussed, and plans of the campaign about to be launched to arouse the interest of young men in the profession of gardening, will be explained. As is now generally recognized, the difficulty of securing assistant gardeners is proving a serious factor in the operation of country estates, many of which have to be maintained with practically unskilled labor, skilled help being almost unprocurable in these times.

The association has recently added the following names to its list of sustaining members: Augustus Busch, St. Louis, (L. P. Jensen, Gr.); William Ziegler, Jr., Noroton, Conn. (A. Beisehke Gr.); James B. Duke, Somerville, N. J., (J. Dymock, Gr.); H. L. Thompson, Perrysburg, O., (H. Hundt, Gr.); Irenee du Pont, Wilmington, Del., (J. Buckingham, Gr.); W. B. Howells, Suffern, N. Y., (T. Hambleton, Gr.); Mrs. David Dows, Brookville, L. I. (H. Gibson, Gr.); Frank J. Dupignac, Mamaroneck, N. Y., (J. Henderson, Gr.); Harry B. Clow, Lake Forest, Ill., (J. Wilson, Gr.); Daniel Guggenheim, Port Washington, N. Y., (T. Leyden, Gr.); Theodore F. Thieme, Fort Wayne, Ind., (W. Warburton, Gr.); General Richard Coulter, Greensburg, Pa., (N. T. Forsythe, Gr.); C. H. Hutchins, Shrewsbury, Mass., (W. J. Dack, Gr.)

Peach Crop of 1920.

The commercial peach crop is now passing through a critical stage in many parts of the country, according to the United States department of agriture. The condition figure refers to condition up until April 10. Late telegraphic reports indicate that many parts of the middle west and south have suffered from frosts the past few days so that any quantity estimate at this time is tentative.

In general, the crop promises to be practically full in California and Georgia, the two leading peach states. The yield in Ohio and Michigan promises to be good, as trees in these states wintered in good condition and are well set with buds. The Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma and Missouri crop promises to be very light, due to the severe freeze which occurred in these states the first week in April.

In the far west, the Utah crop promises to be very much less than last year, and many sections of the state are nearly a failure. The famous palisade section of Colorado also suffered from winter injury and has but about half a crop. The northwest crop in Washington, Idaho and Oregon was for the most part winter killed. The same is true of New England, the Hudson Valley and many parts of western New York.

The middle Atlantic states promise fully as good a crop as last year, and orchards are in good condition, although acreage has declined materially in West Virginia and Maryland.

The prospects, April 1, were for about 77 per cent of a crop in the United States as compared to prospects for 84 per cent of a crop last year at this time. Allowing for about a 10 per cent decline, as is usually the case during the season, due to unfavorable blooming conditions, the crop would be about 67 per cent full as compared to 75 per cent final last year. The crop is now indicated at 29,240,000 bushels as compared to the final production figure of 29,461,000 last year, and 20,597,000 in 1918. Allowing for the normal decrease, which usually occurs during the season, the crop will be about 3,000,000 bushels less than last year.

Japanese Cherries at Washington, D. C.

The famous Japanese cherry trees around the tidal basin are in full bloom and sparkling from the fresh drenchings which the old Roman god, Jupiter Pluvius, poured upon them, according to the Washington Star.

Gardeners at the propagating gardens were anxious as to the possible fate of their beautiful charges, declaring that the rains would not hurt the trees, but that brisk winds would damage them considerably. The Japanese cherry trees stole a march on the gardeners this season and came into blossom two weeks ahead of time. The trees will be a show place for at least a week more, it was stated, provided the weather does not interfere.

National Park for Redwoods.

Washington, D. C., April 26.—Establishment of a new national park in California to preserve the giant redwood trees was indorsed today by the house public lands committee, which ordered a favorable report on a resolution directing the interior department to investigate and report on the suitability, location and cost of a park site.

BAILEY'S NEW STANDARD CYCLOPEDIA OF HORTICULTURE

SIX SPLENDID VOLUMES

THIS work is Prof. L. H. Bailey's latest and greatest achievement and will undoubtedly stand as a monument to him. This is not a revision of the old Cyclopedia but a brand new work containing features not dreamed of at the time of publication of the original cyclopedia which was a pioneer work. The old Cyclopedia of Horticulture, it will be remembered, was a cyclopedia in fact as well as in name, whereas the new Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture is a gardener's manual as well as a cyclopedia and contains features that make it equally adaptable to the amateur and to the professional, to the man without education or the man with high literary tastes.

ATLAS WORM-DRIVE ATLAS "MERCHANTS' DISPATCH"

THE man who is buying a truck asks two fundamental qualities for his money. 1. Mechanical excellence. 2. A body fitted to his business needs that he is proud to have bear his name. Either one without the other will not satisfy him.
Each particular line of business has been studied by our experts and every need anticipated. Behind these experts stand all the facilities of the largest body-building factory in the world.

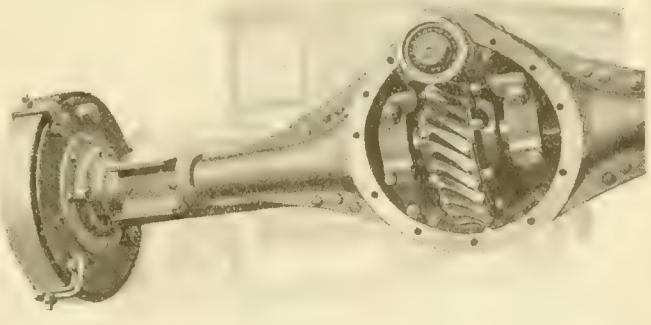
50 different bodies, built for every business

Bearing that body is a chassis that is built with the balanced power and endurance of a locomotive in minature. Compare these three fundamental factors with any other one-ton truck.

1. The Atlas power plant. A four-cylinder engine designed to deliver its maximum horse power at the speed you drive, with a hot spot carburetion that gets 22 miles per hour (unloaded) out of low-grade fuel.

2. The Atlas Transmission. Connecting the power plant with the rear-axle—the load-bearing member. We have never had to replace a single broken part of this transmission—it's a 100 per cent perfect job.

The Atlas "Accessible" worm-drive axle. The load-bearing member—a triumph of engineering—its cantilever truss housing of pressed steel; its proper gear ratio to utilize the motor's full power; its three-point bearing, fool-proof as to adjustment. It is strong, dependable, easily accessible. You must see this axle to appreciate how it utilizes the worm-drive without the latter's traditional weight.



The Atlas "Accessible" worm-drive axle. Send for descriptive booklet.

"Please Enter Our Order"

March was the biggest month we ever had—twice the business of any previous March. And April, at the time this is written, is running ahead of March.

Florists are planning for the future; for the prosperity in the cities that is bound to reflect itself in an enormous business in flowers this year. And many who have investigated Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses, but have hesitated just a little hoping for lower prices, have seen the folly of further delay and are now placing their orders.

Fortunately we have the material and the facilities to give reasonably prompt delivery on the large number of orders received. Perhaps you, too, have been undecided what to do. Our advice is: Take no chances, order now. We will gladly send catalog and furnish estimate on your requirements.

Callahan Duo-Glazed Sash for hotbeds is a double glazed sash with many superior and exclusive features. Booklet on request. We keep Permanite in stock for immediate shipment.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Peonies.

The peony is one of the most important flowers to the florist during the early part of summer, and they are used in large quantities for decorations and other floral work. In cutting peonies for market, especially those that are to be shipped, it is best to cut them when the first petals unfold, and allow them to open in water. They ship much better in this condition and also last much longer. Where they are allowed to remain on the plant until open, the flowers not only bruise more or less in transportation, but the petals drop more easily when the flowers are unpacked if they are open when cut and made ready for shipment. In cutting the flowers from the plant, many growers make the mistake of cutting too low. The demand of the customers is, of course, for long stems, but for the good of the plant there should be left two well-formed leaves upon the stem when the flower is cut off. This will allow enough foliage for the plant to continue its growth and thoroughly ripen off. Where the plant is cut back too severely the root action is injured and a diminished number of flowers will be the result in the succeeding year. Keep the plants tied up by stakes and strings outside of the row; a heavy rain when the plants are heavy with buds will often knock them down and ruin many of the flowers.

Ficus Elastica.

While the rubber plants do not enjoy the popularity that they did 10 or more years ago, yet there is always more or less demand for good small plants every fall, and cuttings rooted now and given good culture can be grown to fine stock at that time. Every plantsman will have plants of Ficus elastica that have outgrown the salable size or have lost many of the lower leaves, and the tops of these can be propagated during the warm weather. The best way to root the young plants is on the plant by mossing the cut. Make an incision in the stem about half way through, in which insert a small stick about the size of a matchstick to keep the cut open. Bind around the cut wet moss, which should be firmly tied on with raffia and kept wet constantly. The plant should then be placed in a warm, moist house, kept fairly close, and in two or four weeks the roots will be seen protruding from the moss. The top should then be cut off and potted in a 4-inch or 5-inch pot and grown in a warm, close house until the roots have become established in the soil. If a number of these plants are being grown, a mild hotbed can be made up outside, built up with boards so as to allow 18 inches of room between the soil and glass, and covered with a shaded sash. Plunge the pots in the soil, and if the frame is kept close, allowing air only on the warmest days, the plants will grow rapidly. As fall approaches more air can be admitted, the plants gradually hardened off and splendid stock will be the result.

Dahlias.

Although the dahlia is of very robust growth and comparatively easy of culture, yet it is one of the most tender plants and will not stand any cold treatment, for the slightest frost will check the growth and almost invariably kill the plant back. It is, then, too early yet to plant the clumps except where all danger of late frosts has passed, but the eyes may start into growth during the warm days of May, so they should be kept in safe and warm quarters. Where the grower has a good, tight frame that is frost-proof the clumps can be taken from storage and placed in the frame and the tubers will grow plump and the eyes break ready for planting as soon as the weather grows warm enough. The place selected for growing them the coming season should, however, be prepared, the ground spaded deeply and, if not manured last fall, some well rotted manure spaded in. Many growers do not advise heavy manuring when the clumps are planted, and especially no fresh manure, much preferring to get a fair supply in the ground the previous fall, so that the rankness will be dissipated in the soil, for too strong manure causes a rank growth and the plants do not bloom as early. With enough manure incorporated in the soil to produce a good hard growth, and not too soft, then mulch with manure when the buds begin to set, is the manner of some of the most successful growers. The young stock that was propagated from clumps started in March should now be good, stocky little plants, and the last of the propagating should be done early in May to have good stock for June planting. Keep the young plants under safe cover and plunge the pots in soil to keep them moist and not require too frequent or too heavy watering.

Marguerites for Winter.

To have good marguerites for winter flowers the plants must have a good start in the spring. For large plants the stock should now be in 2½ or 3-inch pots and growing vigorously, but if the cuttings have not been made they can now be propagated in a cool bench and good-sized plants grown, or stock should be secured at once. Do not allow these plants to become pot-bound, but shift them into 4-inch pots as soon as they require it and pot very firmly. Keep the plants pinched back, that they may branch more freely, and keep all flowers and buds picked off. For many years these plants were grown in the open ground, but in some localities they have been attacked with a club root in field culture, and inside culture has become necessary for success. A cold frame in which the pots are plunged is the culture successfully practiced by many growers. In late summer they should be potted in large pots, 8-inch or 9-inch, or planted in the bench in good, rich soil, so that they will be well established for fall and winter flowering. The plants grown in pots are more prolific in flowering, and the size of the flowers can be maintained with liquid manure. Aphis should be kept down by fumigation, while the leaf miner is a very destructive insect if once firmly established, but persistent spraying with a strong nicotine solution will eradicate this pest.

Callas.

As the summer weather approaches the callas will cease producing flowers and will require a rest to prepare them for another year. They should be dried off gradually until they become "dust dry," when the roots will be thoroughly ripened, shaken out and stored will grow all the year around, but plants grown in this way will not produce as many flowers as those that are rested. Those grown in pots can be laid on their sides in the greenhouse until all danger from freezing weather is passed, when they can be removed outdoors, still placing the pots on the side in full sunlight. Those grown on the bench can be lifted with as much soil as possible and placed under the bench, where they will dry out gradually, and later planted in the full sun outside in a dry location, and as soon as thoroughly ripened, shaken out and stored until wanted to start for another season. The yellow calla, Ricardia Elliottiana, is being grown more largely and the blooms have been used the last winter in many elaborate decorations. The culture of these is in pots and similar to the older varieties.

Plants for Memorial Day.

The grower of bedding plants in quantity, either for cemetery purposes or home planting, cannot complain at this time of the year of not having enough work to do to keep all hands busy, particularly this spring, which owing to unfavorable weather and other unsettled conditions, everybody in general is behind with the work. The cold, wet weather of the early part of April, prevented a great deal of the work connected with the hotbeds and coldframes from being done. It was too cold to take the plants outside, consequently they had to remain crowded on the greenhouse benches, blocking the other necessary work being taken care of. This will make it necessary to make special effort to push the plants along to have them in good condition when needed.

HOTBEDS.

The hotbeds are what the gardeners depend on to push the plants along that require bottom heat and a high temperature to force them into active growth, and there are quite a large number of plants that come under this list. Owing to the lack of material, together with its high cost, manure heated hotbeds are not being used as much as formerly, and steam heated beds are being installed in their place. These cost considerably more to erect, but they are so far superior to those heated with manure, that the outlay soon proves to be money well spent. This not only applies to their use for forcing spring stock, but they also come in handy for summer and fall propagation of roses, hydrangeas and many other plants. The work of getting the hotbeds filled up, should now claim the grower's most earnest attention, so that all the plants, for which the beds are intended, should be placed there without any further delay. A week or 14 days in a well heated hotbed will work wonders with the young spring stock.

PLANTS THAT REQUIRE HOTBED SPACE.

The first and foremost of the plants that require hotbed space, to hurry them along, are the alternantheras, and where large numbers of these plants are grown, they use up the greatest amount of the space. These plants are not only used for planting for Memorial day, but they are among the plants that are in great demand for later work. This should be taken into consideration so that any plants that appear to be small now, are just as valuable as the larger ones, and they can be given a longer period to get into good planting condition. Also, if some of the larger plants will stand for it, cuttings can still be taken and placed in flats of sand in the hotbeds. They will take root and be ready for potting in a very short while. Alternantheras do not require to be potted into larger than 2½-inch pots, and a big majority of the plants raised for cemetery planting are potted into 2 or 2¼-inch, but they are best potted, being far superior to any plants planted into the beds and then lifted and planted direct into their summer quarters. This latter plan is followed by some growers, but unless the weather is very favorable, the plants receive a severe check and suffer considerably.

A finely sifted, light soil, with a liberal portion of fresh sand added to it, is the soil best suited for alternantheras. After potting, plunge the pots to their rims in the hotbed, water in well, then watch closely to see that they are not allowed to become over-wet or too dry. Until the young plants become firmly established in the soil, and get well into active growth, the beds should be kept moderately close, and air given only when the temperature of the beds rises above 75 degrees. After the plants attain sufficient size, and the weather becomes warmer, more air should be given to gradually harden the plants and give them good color.

Centaurea candidissima is another plant that is best off in the hotbed to enable it to reach the desired size. Any of the bedding begonias that are backward in their growth can also be plunged in the hotbeds, but from now on, begonias grow very fast, and unless they need to be hurried up, they will do all right on the greenhouse bench. Lobelias, sweet alyssum, verbenas, petunias, Vinca rosea, cupheas, ageratums and pileas are other plants that will do well in the hotbeds, but they are very fast growers and need to be carefully watched to prevent them becoming overdrawn. When they have reached size enough for planting, shut off the heat from the beds to harden the plants preparatory to transferring them to the outside. Cannas, also, do finely in hotbeds, but they have to have more head room to develop themselves properly than what the smaller stock does, and to handle cannas and other tall growing plants well in the hotbeds, the frames have to be made higher.

CARING FOR THE GERANIUMS.

These plants have arrived at the point where they ought to be ready for selling, and the principal work connected with them from now on, is to encourage them to make good bloom, keep in a healthy condition, and remain dwarf. Those that are well advanced in bud, can be treated to a cool temperature and given plenty of ventilation, but those that are backward in bud, should be encouraged a little while the weather continues cool by keeping the houses a trifle close, but not enough to cause the plants to draw up. Any that are very backward will be greatly benefited by giving the soil a surface dressing of pulverized sheep manure. Give close attention to watering the geraniums. Now that the plants have become thoroughly well rooted, they dry out quickly, but they should not be overwatered and kept continually wet at the roots. They like to dry out a little between each watering, and do better for it. When treated this way, the soil remains sweet, and the roots continue in active growth. The blooms on the plants of geraniums in four-inch pots do not last very long in the greenhouse, especially during periods of dark, wet weather, and in a very short while, some of them will need picking over. Attend to this on time; also, remove any yellow or decayed leaves from the plants, so that when offered for sale, they are in a presentable condition.

HIGH GRADE MEMORIAL DAY PLANTS.

The call for this class of plants is increasing every year; where dozens were sufficient a few years ago, it now takes hundreds to fill the demand. Rambler roses, dwarf rambler roses, hybrid tea roses, specimen geraniums, pelargoniums, hydrangeas, marguerites and to a lesser degree, fuchsias, petunias, abutilons and begonias, are leaders in this line. They require close attention as to watering, plenty of room to develop themselves, and staking as they are in need of it. To keep mildew in check on the roses, a little sulphur should be continually kept on the steam pipe that is most used, it being too early to dispense with the steam heat entirely, so that a little sulphur on the pipe will generally keep the plants clean. Another very important consideration with these plants, is to keep them thoroughly free from insects by attending to the fumigating regularly. The staking of the plants is also very important. There are a number of the French hydrangeas that are very beautiful, but unless properly staked up, they cannot be seen at their best. The staking should not be overdone, but sufficient to hold the branches in their place. The same rule applies to the pot roses.

COLD FRAMES.

By cold frames is meant the outside frames that are used for plants, but not heated by any artificial means. They come into active use in the early part of May when the weather becomes warm enough for plants to occupy them without heat other than that which the frame and sash affords. They form one of the most useful sections of any greenhouse establishment that grows spring bedding plants, because after this time, there are a number of plants that have made sufficient size for planting, and which do not need the artificial heat, but instead hardening off to fit them for outside planting. The cold frames will take care of the sweet alyssums, lobelias, Mme. Salleroi geraniums, verbenas, asters, antirrhiniums, stocks and many other such plants. The plants will require less watering out in the frames, and they can be given all the air possible and hardened to suit their condition.

C. W. JOHNSON.

MOTHERS' DAY FLOWERS IN NEW GRANDMOTHER'S VASE.

Are Our Dead Forgotten?

Contributions to the fund which is being handled by the Tribune to provide floral tokens of appreciation and honor for the graves of 70,000 American soldiers in France, are not reflecting the reverence which we believe the American people hold for the memories of these men. Less than $1,000 has been received. It will decorate fewer than 1,000 graves. Are the last resting places of the others to go unhallowed by the efforts of the living for whom they died? A year ago, upon Memorial day, the Red Cross, the French, the English, and semi-private organizations, placed flowers upon these graves with a prayer of thanksgiving and appreciation for the lives offered up that others might live in safety. Are we to allow strangers across the sea, unaided, again to show this kindly thought for our own heroes while we do almost nothing?

If we are to accept the duty which should be considered a high privilege, we must act quickly. The time is limited. Eight middle-western newspapers have joined with the Tribune in receiving gifts for this fund. The Red Cross and the Tribune's foreign service will co-operate in the work at the cemeteries. In the meantime, we must give if we would not prove ourselves ungrateful to those who gave their lives for us.—Chicago Tribune.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

It is the hits that strike or come nearest to the bull's eye that count, and when one tries for a hit with his customers, he must in some way work into their good graces to get such a mark of appreciation. The essentials in the successful selling of plants and flowers are, first, quality and freshness of the stock; second, its presentation and display, and third, superior service. At this time, there should be no trouble with the first factor, the market being full of high grade flowers in great variety, which will afford a new feature for each day of the week. Presentation in such a way as to make a hit with customers and prospects, is a matter that is most essential, but comparatively few of the retailers give but little thought to this important feature. They look over their stock. It is good and satisfying and the flowers are there, if anybody wants them. They had a pretty good day yesterday, or, "it has been slow for a day or two, but we must expect that—cannot be busy all the time."

What is necessary and, in fact, possible, is busy days all the time. This desirable condition can only be brought about by sufficient energy being devoted to presentation and display. The quality stock which you stand back of, must be brought to the attention of every possible buyer in the range of the store. Its proper display in the shop and show window will in each day's new feature, attract the attention of all who see it, and should be, in each of its featured items, so attractive as to be almost irresistible. It is not difficult to give this prominence to the various stocks; there are many vases and baskets in which flowers may be displayed, while in their original bunches, they are thus made more conspicuous and salable.

One or two special salesdays a week at this season, if well prepared and planned for, will renew old accounts and bring a lot of new people into the store. Presentation and publicity are the moving factors in such sales. When properly arranged and featured, the stock has a great effect on all who see it, but ordinarily not one-tenth of the customers visit the store on the same day. The salvation of the man who sells flowers on the street, is that he is able to place his products before numbers of people, who before they saw his display, had no need for, nor intention to buy, but their beauty created a desire for possession, and a bunch or two are taken along.

In the store trade, it is necessary to notify one's customers and prospects by ads in the papers or circulars, which invite them to call and inspect the particular plants and cut flowers which are now so plentiful, desirable and cheap. These reminders coming regularly in the season of plenty, have their effect, for although nothing may be wanted at the time, an impression is created, and the store is remembered in the next purchase.

Fruit and shrub blossoms are now in full supply. These sell very well in neatly made bunches, and make a good decorative effect in store and window. The dogwood will soon be in, and there is nothing more showy in large decorations.

Keep up the window and porch box propaganda. There are no features that add so much to the outside appearance of the house as well filled boxes of flowering plants and vines. A series of leaflets, containing information and featuring seasonable plants and flowers and other goods of which the store makes a specialty, should be enclosed in every package and all letters that leave the store. It is a cheap, and at the same time, very effective form of advertising.

Memorial day is rapidly approaching, and the stock of wreaths should be gone over. The wreaths of prepared magnolias or oak leaves are the standard for this occasion. When decorated with waxed carnations, roses and other artificial flowers, they can be prepared before and boxed ready for parcel post delivery for quite long distances. Advertising these in the daily and weekly country newspapers has created an astonishing demand in some localities. A small booklet, or good sized sheet with illustrations and prices, should be sent in answer to all inquiries.

Business Management.

One of the members of a successful retail firm with greenhouses and store, who has charge of the accounting, declares that the most essential thing in business is to lay bare the cold, hard facts. Business, as a rule, is engaged in as a means of livelihood, and far too many get little more than this out of it. In the first place, the stock is very perishable. Many promising greenhouse crops have not, from one cause or another, netted anything like the money that was expected, or possible if the best results had been obtained. Insects, diseases, careless growing or inattention to crops, getting them in before the holiday or too late, or an overstocked market are all factors against success

Intensive use of greenhouse space and close crop rotation is most important, and absolutely necessary, if one is to come out with a worth while profit on the year's work. A close watch must be kept, month by month, so that results, if not satisfactory, may be improved: in fact, must be made to show a profit.

Business must be conducted on business principles. Beginning with a volume of trade sufficient to keep one man busy, the proprietor should make, in addition to a good salary, enough to pay all his expenses, interest on his investment, or rent, if he leases. He must collect closely, pay bills promptly, and be able, at the end of the year, to have something to lay away or put back to increase his facilities. His business must grow, increasing in volume of trade and profit, but this is not possible without the bare and hard facts before him all the time. The actual cost, both in growing and marketing stock, and the prices obtained, are as essential as the sunlight. He may love his plants and flowers, but he must not let sentiment overrule his desire to get a good price. Never mind what the other fellow does; he may be a cent or two lower than you, but if your stock is good, and it is necessary to hold at a higher figure to get your profit, you will surely sell it and customers will come back for more.

It is not the volume of business, but what is made or earned on every transaction from things sold with a full knowledge of their cost that counts. It is very easy to deceive one's self with figures, but bare, hard facts are the foundation stones, not theories. You can theorize and work out a most promising scheme on paper, count your chickens before they are hatched, as it were, but very few of them grow up to lay eggs.

It is necessary to keep in much closer touch with store management. One must be on the alert all the time. Cut flower stock is expensive and very perishable; its manipulation and selling is much more difficult in a retail than a wholesale way. Each morning there is a new day, for which yesterday's buying is no criterion. Much is lost by poor judgment in laying in stock.

There are very many items of expense that enter into the overhead charges which are frequently overlooked. These and a hundred other little things, if not carefully and correctly accounted for, eat up the profits. If one is to succeed and realize any worth while returns, he must know to a dollar his overhead expenses, so as to be able to add the correct percentage to the first cost of his plants and flowers to get the necessary profit. Delivery costs, for example, are at least twice the amount many believe them to be. Flowers that remain unsold, or go to waste from one cause or another, are a great item of expense in the cost of doing business, yet very few keep a record of this loss. It is facts, hard facts such as these that must be kept track of if one is to succeed.

There is scarcely a week in the year that the successful firm does not know just how it stands on the previous week's business. There is great satisfaction in knowing these results, and it is not difficult after a simple system has been adopted. This of course must be kept up-to-date. The only way to succeed is to be everlastingly on the job and stop the leaks that are constantly cropping out in every branch of the business, before they get big enough to do any material damage. The only way to do business successfully is to dig for the facts. The men or firms, afraid to cut in and find out how they stand, are on the skids with no sand in their box to stop them, and headed straight for the bankruptcy court.

Store Exterior Decoration.

There is an opening for much new business in the decoration of stores, hotels, clubs, movie theaters, etc., by the use of boxes and vases of foliage and flowering plants. In all the large cities, work of this character has been tried out successfully, but only to a limited degree, here and there, when business men desired to attract attention to their stores, the decorative value of plants in boxes on the cornice, over the windows, or along the edges, over the top of the stationary canopy running from the curb to the store, suggested itself and the florist was called in. The idea was to make the front so attractive that their place of business would stand out and become more conspicuous than any other in the block.

Where there has been sufficient funds available to have the work properly carried out, and the subsequent care of the plants given into the hands of the florist, these decorative effects have been a great success, a credit to the tradesman and florist, besides giving a touch of life and color to the city streets. Even if there is no other available space, many show windows would be made more attractive by the addition of the pavement box, either on the surface or sunk to a level of the flagging. This box, fitting close to the window, filled with boxwood or dwarf evergreens, presents a green border that is very attractive and noticeable because it is unusual. In early spring, flowering bulbs succeed the evergreens, which are replaced by geraniums or fresh evergreens. Although apparently unprotected, it has been found that when properly cared for, plants thrive here and attract attention.

The stationary iron pavement canopies from street curb to the entrances of cafes, hotels, moving picture houses, etc., are much improved by the addition of boxes of growing plants and vines. They should not be erected or filled, however, except with an idea of permanency—substantial boxes, well secured, filled with the most suitable plants and cared for regularly. To leave their watering and other attention to the janitors or other employes, is fatal. It must be done by professional men, who will keep the plants will never pay that." Then the items up to their highest efficiency.

SWEET PEA EARLY ALBATROSS.

Evergreens, in tubs, are also used to good advantage in decorative effects, either at the side of windows or entrances, or as ornaments along the curb. There are so comparatively few stores that avail themselves of this form of onramentation, that the attention of the passers-by is at once attracted. Even so small an ornamentation as a bunch or vase of flowers in a store window, among the goods displayed, frequently causes people to stop and take a look at the unusual sight.

Unsightly but necessary electric light poles, can be made attractive by the addition of boxes of plants, which encircle them at a safe distance above the heads of pedestrians. When filled with foliage plants and drooping vines, these give a pleasing appearance to the street front, which in its novel and advertising effect, is worth much more than the cost and maintenance.

In every large city, a firm that would take up this work with a canvass of all good prospects, presenting the advantages of such decorative effects from the advertising standpoint, would be sure of respectful attention and arouse interest in the matter that would likely ripen in many cases into orders.

It is a great mistake to undertake this work too cheaply; there will be unlooked for overhead charges in many cases, which could not be foreseen. Too often, far too ofen, when estimates are made up, the sum seems so large, that the conclusion is at once formed, "They are pared down and the work cheapened to come within the supposed ability of the customer to pay. Business men are always ready to pay full value for anything they want, provided they feel they are getting the worth of their money. This is the principle to work on all the time. Give the best you have, make the price right, and there will be no trouble about its acceptance.

Sweet Pea Trials at Fordhook.

The W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., has long been famous for everybody's garden flower, the sweet pea, and since the discovery of the early-flowering, so called orchid varieties, has introduced many that have been the best sellers of the winter forcing sorts.

During February of each year the trial greenhouses at Fordhook are the mecca of the commercial sweet pea growers, who find among the new varieties brought out each season, wonderful colors, increased size of flowers, length of stem and other good traits that show in some respect over existing sorts. In some, the improvement, while slight, is not enough to be classed as a new sort, but as soon as a stock can be worked up, it takes the place, and is sent out under the name of the old variety, with or without the designation, "improved."

George W. Kerr, who has charge of the trial grounds at Fordhook, is an expert hybridizer of sweet peas, and for several years has had the honor of being elected president of the American Sweet Pea Society. It takes at least four years of careful saving and replanting of seed before it is known definitely if the colors and other characteristics sought for by the most careful crossing have been obtained. In the comparatively small house given to the sweet pea trials here, there are over 100 varieties in all shades of color, several of a kind planted together. Many of them were the best of the recently introduced Fordhook winners, while the balance were the new varieties, selections of the past two years, a number of which will soon be classed as standards in their color.

Speaking of certain varieties that, while different, did not show marked improvement over existing sorts, Mr. Kerr said that crossing such as these, often gave very good results. It is the firm's desire and business to improve the winter and summer flowering sweet pea, and there is always the possibility of getting good results from varieties that showed superior traits, and yet fell short of the commercial standard. Every year, they are expected to have something new, a little in advance or different in color. There has been great progress made in the past few years and he feels sure of even greater successes in the future.

The young pedigreed stock for planting outside on the four-acre trial section given to sweet peas, was seen in pots, most of the seedlings being several inches high. Each pot was under number, indicating its crosses and parentage. These will go out into cold frames about March 1, and be planted in the field as soon as the frost is out of the ground.

The vines of the numerous varieties under trial were robust and vigorous with quantities of buds and flowers, although up to the middle of February, owing to weather conditions, bud dropping had been very prevalent. Mr. Kerr said that, as far as he knows, this is principally due to weather conditions, absence of sunshine, etc., and but very little in cultural methods has as yet been discovered by the best growers to overcome this great handicap to the production of sweet peas in mid-winter. When new varieties were fixed, or came true, the seed was sent to Floradale, the firm's seed farms at Lompoc, Calif., to grow on in quantity.

The following list contains a few of the most noticeable varieties flowering in the trial house:

White—Improved Snowstorm, cross of King White and Yarrawa, in every way their best early flowering white to date; Albatross, black seeded white, with blush tinge, very large flower, strong grower, very profuse.

Pink—Sunburst, rich pink or cream, with salmon tinge, dwarf grower, fine bench variety; Fairy Queen, large light pink, very pleasing; Early Daybreak, cream pink; Sunburst Cream Pink, dwarf growth, very prolific; Gypsy Maid, bright rose pink, suffused salmon, large flower; Gypsy Queen, best pink to date, a very lovely shade; Early Gem, a winter flowering Margaret Atlee, rich rose pink of exquisite form.

Salmon—Early Apricot, rich, glowing deep salmon, not the largest flowers, but exquisite color; New Seedling, a pure salmon, Mr. Kerr's best, very large flower; cross Yarrawa and Robert Sydenham; surely a prize winner; will not be offered until next year.

Cerise—Gorgeous, soft salmon rose, a wonderfully bright color, large flower on stout stems; Illumination, salmon cerise, distinct, very large flower, strong grower, and good commercial variety; Fire King, an early winter flowering Fiery Cross; the most brilliant of all sweet peas,

Blues and lavenders—Zephyr, lavender or light blue, a good commercial color; True Blue, a lovely, bright violet blue, very distinct, large flower, strong grower, exceedingly floriferous.

A number of seedlings, as yet unnamed, looked very promising. Yarrawa has been found one of the best parent plants, giving strength and stamina to withstand variations of temperature

National Publicity for Flowers.

The Skinner Irrigation Co., Troy, O., in sending a cheque to double their subscription to our campaign fund, writes: "We certainly appreciate the fact that a wide advertising of this slogan, results in more business for us, and it seems rather strange that so many of the florists require urging to contribute to this fund."

The Skinner company is quite right. It is strange. And it becomes more strange as the benefit resulting from the small investment we are able to make with the fund available piles up. The florists do not realize the worth of that slogan—its worth in dollars and cents. We have often called attention to this fact, especially as it is brought home to this office. Last week, we received a communication from a large advertising agency in St. Louis requesting permission to use the slogan, merely as a reference, in a page advertisement they were placing in the Saturday Evening Post, as part of a series entitled, "Signs of Friendship." In making the request, they said: "As you know, in Holland, the hospitality of the people is best expressed by their presentation of flowers to strangers. We have capitalized this thought in the painting of K. M. Ballantine, a proof of which we have attached hereto, the text of this advertisement beginning with the phrase, 'In Holland, they 'Say it with flowers.' Your slogan, 'Say it With Flowers' has been so extensively advertised, that it will be at once recognized in this copy of ours, and for that reason has a particular value to you as additional publicity for your organization."

It may be said right here that the slogan has proved so attractive, that we have had a very great deal of this additional publicity. The issue of "Judge" for April 24, contained a full page sketch, demonstrating a novel use for flowers, captioned by our slogan. This sketch, by the way, is reproduced in the May issue of our society's "Journal."

These examples serve to show how our slogan is taken in the outside world. What if we had to pay for all this extra publicity? But we get it, simply because we are paying to establish the slogan. The "we," in this case, means that small body of florists, loyal to themselves, loyal to their industry, and benefactors to those outside of their own group, the body we have often referred to as "George," Yes, George has been paying for it. And it looks as though George must continue to do this—to the shame of the large army of non-subscribers, whose niggardliness keeps them aloof from the best game ever played in the interests of their own industry—the industry which insures their living, and which can be made to establish a patrimony to be enjoyed by their families when the builders are called "West."

We need more subscriptions now. We are a long way from our goal, and the months seem to pass quickly. Won't you, Mr. Non-subscriber, help George just a little bit—help him to help you? Your cheque could never be appreciated more than now.

The following subscriptions have been received and are in addition to those previously announced, annually for four years, unless otherwise stated:

T. H. Keefe, Madison, N. J.	$ 5.00
F. C. Siebert, Wheeling, W. Va. (add'l)	5.00

A Message to Growers.

I have been requested to write an article setting forth the reasons for, and the purposes of, the National Flower Growers' Association. In making comparisons, by mentioning many other producers who have met with great success by organization, no doubt the skeptic will at once say, "Oh! you cannot compare their product with ours; their problems are so different from our's, etc." Well, I want to say in answer to such critics, before I go any further, that if our product has become a regular commodity on the American market, the marketing of that product can be very favorably compared with any other; whether it comes under the class of perishable, luxury or non-essential, makes no difference. It is, nevertheless, an American product, and is, I am sure we will all agree, a regular commodity, and millions are invested in the producing and marketing of the same, and, Mr. Grower, Uncle Sam tells us that 90 per cent of all the money invested in the flower business, is in the producing end of it.

Now, what are you doing in an intelligent, organized way to market that product? You have built your greenhouses and equipment, made the 90 per cent investment, then trusted to a disorganized market to dispose of the product for you to a few naturally sentimental-flower-loving people. That went all right as long as our business was in its infancy, production limited, and a natural sentiment sufficient to create a demand equal to the supply. We have, however, passed the state of a sufficient natural sentiment, and it now becomes necessary to begin to create sentiment by education, and that means, through publicity or advertising. We already have ample proof of the success of this plan in a small way.

This, however, is not a treatise on publicity. The National Flower Growers' Association has embodied in its constitution, as one of its objects, the marketing of its product through means of publicity, but that is only one of the many objects for which this organization is founded.

Now, for a few comparisons. There are in the United States today, many other producers who not many years ago, had the same troubles that the American flower growers are facing at present. Among them are the orange growers, apple growers and nut growers of the Pacific coast, and to get nearer home, the milk producers and some plant and lettuce growers in the central states. Their way of marketing their product was slip-shop and antiquated, the same as ours is today, before they were properly organized, but things have changed with them since they got together. I shall not take the time to relate of their progress here. Anyone can get the history of advancement made by these producers, as well as many others who are thoroughly organized, have made. Take the milk producers, "just farmers, of course," but today, very wise and intelligent farmers. Only a few years ago, their product was shipped to the city market, some on commission, some otherwise, the same as most of ours is today, and at the end of the month, they would get their returns, and then finds out, and not until then, what their product brought, the same as many growers do to-day. But now it is different with the milk producers. They are organized, and so are the milk dealers in the cities, and at the close of every month, the boards of the two organizations meet and make the price for their product for the preceding month. Some business system, isn't it?" Well, that is only one instance, and only one of the benefits of that instance through organization. There are many others. They know now what it costs to produce their milk. They produce a better grade of milk. It sells according to quality, and is strictly and uniformly graded. No more watering of milk. Honesty must prevail among both producers and dealers, and much more good is accomplished.

I have been asked many times to give an outline of just what will be done, or what will be the work of this new grower's organization. I can best sum the whole up by saying when the growers once become thoroughly organized, they can do whatever work they will undertake to do in a just and fair way. To try to enumerate all the many things that can and should be done, would take a volume. First of all, we should create a more staple market for our product. Uniform prices and wages at least within the local territories, can and should be established. Once a year, preferably in the fall, an inventory of every greenhouse plant should be taken, records of which should be on file in both the local and national offices, to help in regulating the planting of various crops. The matter of insurance protection should be handled for the benefit of members through the national body. Ours is a most hazardous business, and without fire or windstorm protection; also, the matter of credits, grading stock, fuel, labor and numerous other important items of interest and benefit to all the trade, can be successfully carried on through organization. These are some of the many reasons why we should organize.

The next is how to organize, and I shall only touch briefly here on the plan as laid down in our proposed national constitution and by-laws, which will, in a few days, be ready for the printer, and then copies can be had upon application. Possibly the trade papers will also publish the same a little later.

It is not intended that the membership of the national body shall be individual memberships, but rather in units called locals. These locals will be organized in the various communities covering a specified territory, and working under a charter granted by the national body. Individuals or firms will hold membership in the locals. Each local will be an organization within itself, adopting its own by-laws and rules to fit its own local condition, subject to certain conditions set forth in the national constitution, and the approval, of course, of the national body. Each local elects a set of delegates, whose duty it is to attend the national convention, there to elect national officers and a national board of directors, consisting of 15 members by whom the principal business of the national body is transacted.

We are also benefiting by the experience of some other successful organizations that have set the pace for co-operation by copying our form of organization after theirs. The time was when the leaders in our great parent society looked upon these offspring organizations with fear and trembling, lest the S. A. F. might lose prestige. I thank God that time is no more. The society, of whom we are all so proud, is stronger today than ever, and much like the head of large family, is broadening out with the greater responsibilities, and will no doubt do wonders for the various branches of our profession collectively. Individually, however, we are growing too large for the S. A. F. to take care of us; hence, we must branch out into individual organizations, and thereby not only strengthen ourselves, but also strengthen our sister organizations, the Florist Telegraph Delivery, the American Carnation Society, the American Rose Society, the Chrysanthemum Society of America and the many others, along with the parent society, as well.

We, the growers, the foundation of the whole trade, must get together. The call is to us. The national growers' association is being ushered into existence at a most auspicious time when all true Americans want more justice and co-operation. It has the unanimous endorsement of the executive board of the Society of American Florists, the American Carnation Society, and Florist Telegraph Delivery Association, and of many other organizations, along with the good will of the entire trade press. So, come on growers. Measure up to your responsibility by taking advantage of this golden opportunity to elevate your business, better your own condition as well as that of your employes, and the other branches of your profession, by co-operation in a thorough business-like national flower grower's association.

San Diego Flower Show.

One of the most successful flower shows ever held in San Diego, Calif., came to a close April 26, the occasion being the exhibition staged at Balboa park under the auspices of the San Diego Floral Association. The attendance was upward of 5,000 persons by whom it was thoroughly enjoyed. Staged in one of the buildings built for the exposition, the displays appeared to splendid advantage, and by many it was declared to be the best show ever held in that part of the state. One of the most interesting displays was that of a collection of genuine red poppies such as grow on Flanders field. These were originally brought from England, the seed evidently lodged in straw packing, which when thrown out immediately sprouted in the warm rains. There were also numerous entries of fine roses, among them, Isobel, Golden Emblem, Lady Hillingdon and General MacArthur, all greatly admired. The eight artistically arranged table decorations were pleasing features.

Among the principal prize winners were L. L. Hieatt, C. F. Naylor, Miss Kate Sessions, Mrs. Mary A. Greer, Mrs. Walter Rittenhouse, Mrs. J. Hruska, Mrs. Charles Darling, Mrs. M. Philbrook and Mrs. E. Strahlmann.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—N. C. Hansen has opened a flower shop on Wabasha street.

HILLSBORO, ORE.—Benjamin Janite has purchased the Bergen Greenhouses and will take possession June 1.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—The premium list in the horticultural section of the state fair this year now shows a total of over $7,400.

BOSTON, MASS.—The American Iris Society will hold its exhibition in Horticultural hall, June 5-6, in conjunction with the azalea and iris show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

DENVER, COLO.—The fourth annual flower show and children's garden exhibition under the auspices of the Denver Society of Ornamental Horticulture, will be held in the auditorium, November 10-12.

OBITUARY.

James DeLancy Carmody.

James DeLancy Carmody, retired greenhouse builder and heating engineer, of Evansville, Ind., died at Walker's hospital, that city, April 29, age 84 years. Mr. Carmody had been in ill health for some years, suffering from bladder troubles, and endured intense pain with the greatest patience during the past few months. He was a prominent figure at the florists' gatherings for upwards of 30 years, and was well known in that branch of the trade from coast to coast, being exceedingly popular with all who knew him.

Mr. Carmody was born at Kingston, Ont., in 1836. His mother was French and his father an Irish shoemaker. Both parents died, however, when he was quite young, and when four years old, he was placed with the family of Benjamin Holmes, a wagon maker, at Cape Vincent, N. Y., where he remained until the age of 12. The daughters in the Holmes family taught him the alphabet and to read his first books, "Robinson Crusoe" and "The Swiss Family Robinson." He then moved to Watertown, and later became a driver on the Erie canal, living at Palmyra and Oswego. A little later, he sailed from Oswego to Chicago, via the lakes, and rejoined the Holmes family at Racine, Wis. This family later moved to Lake Geneva, where young Carmody worked in the Holmes wagon shop about three years. He then moved back east and spent a year in a jewelry factory at Newark, N. J. He next located at Delton, Wis., engaging in the painting of buildings and signs, and was for a time employed at the saw mills in the northern part of the state. He afterwards was house and sign painter at Baraboo and ran a photograph gallery at Lake Geneva. In Lincoln's first campaign, he painted transparencies and banners at Springfield, Ill.

Enlisting in 1860, he served four years with the Tenth Illinois and Nineteenth Wisconsin, infantry, attaining the rank of lieutenant. He was with General Longstreet in Virginia and at the siege of Petersburg. After leaving the army, he opened a paint shop at Middletown, N. Y. In 1865, he located at Evansville, Ind., starting in business as a butcher, also selling fruits, flowers and vegetables. This experience in the sale of flowers led Mr. Carmody into the growing of supplies, in which he built and fitted his own greenhouses with ventilators and heating apparatus. Later, he became a greenhouse builder, supplying material, boilers and ventilating apparatus for many of the early florists' establishments. He invented the meat-saw greenhouse ventilator and a sectional hotwater boiler.

Mr. Carmody was a charter member of the Society of American Florists and aided materially in the formation and conduct of this organization and its numerous offshoots. Although fully occupied in greenhouse building lines during his later business years, he was an accomplished florist, as may be observed from the illustration of one of his arrangements, which appeared in THE AMERICAN FLORIST of October 1, 1887, reproduced herewith. He was a good speaker, being for a time engaged in minor vaudeville in early life. He made many brilliant patriotic addresses on Grand Army occasions, and frequently discoursed to the trade on important phases of greenhouse construction and heating. He was a keen humorist, and his advertisements in our columns some years ago attracted world-wide attention, almost as much for the fun and spice in them as for the intrinsic merit of the specialties he offered. In the early 80's, he issued an elaborate plant catalogue, designing the cover, making some of the illustrations and setting part of the type. He wrote much excellent verse, with which our readers are more or less familiar.

Mr. Carmody was a loyal friend and a genial companion. He was an exemplary citizen, ever zealous in the welfare of his country and its people. He lived a long life, brimful of industry, doing much work in many varied lines, and all of it well done. Through all, he was modest, even as he wrote in his own characteristic epitaph:

He lived to do a little good,
Because it made him glad to;
He died, not because he would,
But because he had to.

Previous to his discharge from the army in 1864, Mr. Carmody married Miss Fannie Connor, of Charleston, S. C., who died at Chicago in April, 1898, under operation for cancer. Miss Bessie Long, who had been his faithful housekeeper since Mrs. Carmody's death, was generously rewarded in being made his executrix, and practically sole heir to the estate, there being no known surviving relatives. He was a great lover of children, and a few years ago gave a small farm on the verge of Evansville as an outing place for the children of the city.

Funeral services were held at his late home, May 1, in charge of Farragut Post of the G. A. R., of which he had long been a member. George Blackman and Emil Niednagel were among the pallbearers, and the floral offerings from a wide territory were numerous.

PAINESVILLE, O.—The Wayside Gardens have erected a very attractive office building.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Mrs. Elizabeth Cook, wife of John Cook, the well known rosarian, died at her home here, April 14, age 81 years.

HARTFORD, CONN.—Edward Pehl, who succeeded L. Lorenzen & Son several years ago, will remove to larger quarters on Park street.

WORCESTER, MASS.—The residence of Harry I. Randall, which was destroyed by fire recently with a loss of approximately $15,000, will be rebuilt.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—N. W. Prout, formerly with the Aitken Greenhouses, is now with Gallivan Bros. in the capacity of foreman at their Smith's Ferry range.

PEONIES in Illinois, Missouri and Tennessee are reported damaged by the recent cold weather.

BELGIAN window glass production continues to show marked progress despite shortage of labor and material.

Personal.

Robert Craig, of Philadelphia, Pa., now at Porto Rico, says his health has greatly improved, although he notes having gone back some since he played baseball on the winning team at the Chicago convention of the Society of American Florists, in 1887.

Adam Graham, of Cleveland, O., writing from Pekin, China, April 13, says he and his daughters expect to reach California, returning from the Orient, the latter part of May.

John Walker, and wife, of Youngstown, O., have returned from the Isle of Pines.

American Dahlia Society.

CORRECTION EXHIBITION SPACE RATE.

The rate for space at the exhibition of the American Dahlia Society, to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York, September 27-29, has been settled upon as 40 cents per square foot. An error was made in quoting the rate as $1.00 per square foot as previously announced. E. C. VICK, Sec'y.

Profiteering.

With regard to the widespread newspaper campaign against florists for alleged profiteering in Mothers' day flowers, we feel bound to state that florists and others in the trade are well within their rights in charging higher prices for scarce items. Even Uncle Sam's federal bank charges higher rates when money is scarce. So far as we have been able to discern, the cry of profiteer has not reduced the prices of food, clothing and other necessities. The retail florist has been altogether too slow in demanding a fair profit upon his work and material, and it is only when a scarcity confronts him, that he has the courage to insist upon a fair profit. At most other times he sells his goods so far below the cost of production that the business has come to be dispised by working men and women in the trade.

The baseless cry of profiteering will not materially affect the firmly intrenched demand for Mothers' day flowers and plants at a fair profit.

Florists Charged With Profiteering.

The Chicago Evening Post of May 4 gave prominence to the following:

"Flowers will not be used for Mothers' day in the future because the graft and profiteering of florists have greatly interfered with our work."

With this announcement the Mothers' day organization which is preparing to celebrate Sunday, lets it be known that hereafter flags are to be worn on Mothers' day instead of the white carnation of the past. An official badge with a white carnation on a flag, is to be designed.

"Reports from many cities show that the florists are preparing to boost prices Sunday as they have on other days in the past," the official bulletin of the Mothers' Day International Association in Philadelphia says: "All are urged to protest against this action by not buying their flowers."

This year the organization is giving emphasis to the Americanization movement. Flag displays from homes and business houses all over the city are asked.

[Only the previous day the same paper told its readers to let every day be mothers' day and make roses grow along her way.—ED. AMERICAN FLORIST.]

Fertilizers.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Finding it almost impossible to get any kind of farm manure here, please advise if pulverized sheep or cattle manure can be used to mix with rose and carnation bench soil, and proportion for each, also for general pot plant soil. Iowa. C. H. S.

Unless you have positive analysis of the pulverized sheep and cattle manure, it is safest not to add these manures in heavy proportions to the compost soil for roses and carnations. They are highly concentrated and act very quickly on the growth of the plants. Instead of being too liberal with these manures in the bench soil for the plants to start out in, the better way is to use them sparingly at first; then, as the plants establish themselves, apply as surface dressings to the beds as the growth of the plants demands. There are several excellent brands of the pulverized manures, the main uses for which they are intended being the dressing of lawns and gardens. For this purpose they can be used liberally, but there is a vast difference between outdoor and greenhouse bench culture conditions. I use the pulverized manures to quite an extent in my work, and have figured out the safest proportion to use for our soil is a level full six-inch pot of the manure to a wheel-barrow load of soil. This applies to both bench and pot plant soil. Our method is to fill the bench with the soil, then estimate the measurement of the soil the bench contains, and scatter the proportion of the manure accordingly on the surface. Then thoroughly mix it down in the soil with a three-prong hoe. My advice is to be particular, and procure a live, fresh soil. Then be on the safe side in adding the manures, depending principally on furnishing any extra nourishment the plants need by surface dressings to the beds after the plants become established. C. W. JOHNSON.

New York Flower Show.

The members of the joint committee representing the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club, appointed with power to arrange for the eighth national flower show, New York, met in the secretary's office, April 19. Organization of the committee was completed by the election of the following officers: T. A. Havemeyer, chairman; John Young, 43 West 18th street, secretary; F. R. Newbold, treasurer.

March 14-20, 1921, were decided upon for the dates of the show. Arthur Herrington was appointed manager, and his name added to the committee. F. W. Payne was also added to the committee, representing the International Exposition Company. This will be the last flower show held in the Grand Central Palace. After April 1, the building will be given over for the use of permanent exhibitions. The committee decided it would be necessary to make radical changes in the general arrangement of the show and this will be done. The schedule committee was appointed, with Charles H. Totty as chairman, and this schedule will be issued and distributed at an early date.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Japanese Beetle Quarantine Now Effective

Notice of Quarantine No. 40 calls attention to the fact that effective on and after April 1, 1920, the quarantine against the Japanese beetle became effective as follows:

"(1) Farm, garden, and orchard products of all kinds, including fresh or perishable crops, such as green corn, tomatoes, beans, peas, cantaloupes, watermelons, grapes, raspberries, blackberries, cherries, peaches, apples, and all other fresh fruits and vegetables; (2) grain and forage crops of all kinds; (3) nursery, ornamental and greenhouse stock, and all other plants, including bulbs and cut flowers; and (4) soil, compost and manure other than fresh manure, shall not be moved or allowed to be moved interstate from the said quarantined district.

"The following territory is degisnated as the area quarantined for the Japanese beetle: The townships of Delran, Chester, Cinnaminson, Palmyra, Mount Laurel, and Riverside, and the borough of Riverton, county of Burlington, and the townships of Pensauken and Delaware, and the borough of Merchantville, county of Camden, N. J."

GOOD MOVEMENT AND TRADE SATISFIED.

Although the early part of the past week found business rather quiet, the brisk demand on the closing days restored the balance. Late arrivals were disposed of in good shape, and both dealers and growers seem well satisfied. The advent of a season of warm, sunny days is expected to increase the cut of roses at the various greenhouses. The shortage of lily of the valley and gardenias has given a marked impetus to the sale of sweet peas to be used in combination with orchids, and in baskets and boxes as well. The building of a large number of new homes in this city has had a good influence on the trade in bedding plants. Geraniums have been strong sellers and there has also been a good call for pansies. Nursery stock is bringing good prices. Although some carnations are a trifle off, many growers are showing the best blooms of the season. There are a large number of advance orders and everything points to an unusually busy Mothers' day. Pot plants have been attracting some attention, especially forget-me-nots and hydrangeas. There is also a marked demand for tulips and all varieties of ferns. Orchids are good, both in color and quantity, for this season. The more colorful varieties of tulips are being cleaned up in good shape, and late hyacinths, though sinking in production, have kept their popularity.

NOTES.

The Hollywood Gardens made their first showing of California irises for the current season in a very attractive window display, consisting of a very tasteful selection of matched baskets. Large baskets, filled, were flanked by small ones containing narcissi, lupines, English primroses and wallflowers. The stock was supplied largely from the greenhouses of the firm.

Rosaia Bros. are featuring well colored hydrangeas and report a good sale of colored tulips. George Rosaia, after a week at the greenhouse of the firm, superintending the handling of the stock for Mothers' day, says that there will be plenty of carnations to take care of the demand.

The florists of the city have instituted a contest among the school children that is sure to be productive of good results. They have assigned the growing of a different flower to each of the various grades.

The Orpheum Floral Shop reports that its window display of daffodils and carnations was productive of a very satisfactory week-end business.

Miss Anna F. Burns reports that local greenhouses are supplying practically all the needs of the Burns Floral Company.

Mrs. Ruth Munch, of the Woodland Flower Shop, is on her annual vacation.

Fred H. Rowe reports a good demand for pot plants. C. H. S.

MAY OPENS WITH RUSH OF BUSINESS.

The past month ended with a rush and sales on May 1 were the the best for that day in many years. Snapdragons, delphiniums and Madonna lilies were in unusually strong demand and of high grade. Roses, carnations and spring bulbous flowers have sold fairly well and there are good calls for English daisies, pansies, sweet peas, marguerites, calendulas, etc.

NOTES.

At the store of Penn, The Florist, the window this week was arranged with baskets of flowers ranging in price from $3 upward. There was considerable newspaper advertising and business has been very good.

Henry Penn is receiving many congratulations on his election to the board of governors of the City Club whose membership numbers over 7,500 persons of the highest standing.

Wm. Nicholson is now cutting heavily on snapdragons, with which he has had a very successful season. The same is true of carnations, sweet peas and his giant gypsophilas.

At Philip L. Carbone's, busines has been very brisk with several large wedding orders booked for June. Sales in practically all departments are ahead of last year.

The Boston Floral Co. reports its business for the year shows an increase of 50 per cent. A large force of salesmen is now traveling New England for this firm.

Thomas F. Galvin, Jr., has opened commodious quarters on Devonshire street and his store is well stocked with both plants and cut flowers.

Newman & Sons, one of the oldest florist firms in this city, are moving to new quarters on Tremont street, next to the Majestic theater.

Frank Deering has returned to this city and is again with Galvin's Park street store, where he will be in charge of all outside work.

Dolansky & McDonald are devoting one-half of their wholesale establishment to artificial flowers for Memorial day work.

Frank Edgar is shipping in some excellent bedding plants. S. K. G.

NEW MILFORD N. J.—Frederick Meyerhoff, a resident of this city since 1900, and well known as a grower of carnations, freesias and callas, as well as a specialist in grape culture, died April 20, after a long illness.

TRADE SHOWS GOOD CONDITION.

The volume of business has shown an increase during the past two weeks, and present indications point to a heavy Mothers' day demand. Carnations are getting scarce but the quality is excellent. Sweet peas are showing fine form and the call for them is strong. Lily of the valley is being received in small quantities. Orchids are scarce. Roses of all kinds are available.

NOTES.

A committee representing several of the prominent local florists has made a protest to the mayor, regarding the sale of flowers by street merchants on the principal thoroughfares. No action has been taken in the matter as yet.

At the food show during the past two weeks a New York singer has been rendering "Say it With Flowers" and distributing blooms furnished by local florists to her audiences.

George T. Boucher has been featuring a fine display of garden accessories of the Morristone type in one of his windows.

The trade sympathizes with Mrs. Alma Keyes, in the death of her husband, April 28, from heart trouble.

Colin T. Ogston is now cutting good snapdragons at the Kimball greenhouses.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

The demand for stock for Mothers' day is exceedingly heavy and from present indications the market should clean up completely in all lines early, at high prices. American Beauty roses are in strong demand at the advertised quotations and are disposed of quickly. Mrs. Chas. Russell, Columbia and Premier are having a heavy call and the same holds true for Ophelia, Sunburst, Milady, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Mrs. George Shawyer, Montrose, Richmond, Killarney, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, My Maryland, Hoosier Beauty, Champ Weiland and the miniature varieties Cecile Brunner, Elgar, Nesbit and Baby Doll. Carnations are selling quickly at this writing and are scarce at $10 and $12 per 100. Orchids are selling at $2 to $3 each and gardenias are commanding good prices. Lily of the valley is bringing $10 per 100, and more in the better grades. Snapdragons are good property and so are stocks, lupines and candytuft. Tulips, daisies, calendulas, pansies, lilac, anemones, narcissi and other miscellaneous flowers are moving fast, including sweet peas which are quite plentiful but cleaning up right along. Lilies and callas are obtainable in good sized quantities. Green goods are meeting with a heavy call and ferns are now bringing $5 per 100. Flowering plants are exceedingly scarce for Mothers' day, and with the demand extra heavy for cut flowers, there is no reason whatever why the market should not clean up completely in all lines at the advertised prices and even higher, providing no pickled stock is dumped in at the last minute. The out-of-town demand is heavy and the city trade never was more brisk.

looker is able to grasp the idea at a glance. An elderly woman representing "Mother", and picking lilacs from the bushes, occupies the centre of the scene. The average person quickly realizes that the suggestion is a cleverly arranged reminder to say it with flowers for Mothers' day.

Tom Rogers, of the Weiland-Risch Co., has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife, who died April 29 from cancer. The funeral was held at Spring Lake, Mich., the following Saturday, when the remains were laid to rest in the family lot. Herman Rogers, and son, of Detroit, Mich., attended the funeral.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is fortunate in having a number of labor saving devices at its Morton Grove greenhouses, otherwise the proprietors would have their share of troubles in getting all the work done in time, owing to the scarcity of help. Their soil digger is coming in particularly handy right now and is saving a lot of time and labor.

The Excell Laboratories have moved from 115 East South Water street to 4535 Ravenswood avenue. This firm has done exceptionally good business with the florists the past year, supplying them with insecticides and plant food.

Peonies will not be as plentiful in this market as in former years if the report is true that there will be only about half a crop, owing to the recent frosts. The fields in Tennessee, Illinois and Missouri appear to have been hit hardest.

Fred Stielow, of Niles Center, is cutting particularly fine Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, which are attracting the attention of all the buyers at the store of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

Tonners' are handling a good supply of sweet peas, which are moving nicely, considering the large quantity now arriving in this market.

D. B. Gurney, president of the Gurney Seed & Nursery Co., Yankton, S. D., was here on business this week. The American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. is building for his firm a new range of houses consisting of 60,000 square feet of glass.

H. Van Gelder, president and manager of Percy Jones, Inc., received a request this week from a subscriber of THE AMERICAN FLORIST in the Argentine Republic, South America, for his price list on ribbons and chiffons.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report a heavy demand for stock for Mothers' day, especially from out-of-town points. The local trade is also especially good, and a grand clean-up is being experienced.

The Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co. has discontinued its downtown office and hereafter the firm's only address will be West 31st street and Spaulding avenue. Telephone, Lawndale 9930.

The Chicago Evening Post of May 4, gave prominence to an article charging the florists with profiteering in Mothers' day flowers, and urging the wearing of flags on that occasion.

Weber & Schmalzried, who recently purchased the Chas. H. Abbott rose range at Crown Point, Ind., are consigning their stock to Kennicott Bros. Co.

The E. C. Amling Co. will increase its floor space to a large extent by using the basement beneath its store. A freight elevator is now being installed.

Erne & Company report the early business as brisk for Mothers' day, with a complete cleanup in stock at this writing.

The Joseph Forester Co. is pleasing its trade with fancy lilies which are in good demand for wedding and funeral work.

G. Fleischer, of Pueblo, Colo., called on the trade here last week, leaving Friday for Kansas City, Mo.

TRADE SHOWS DECIDED FALLING OFF.

Business has dropped off considerably during the past week. Funeral work is about the only outlet for flowers just now, as social affairs call for little stock that the florists carry. The rose stock that is being handled is of the best quality. It is cheap and even the very finest stock is difficult to dispose of at times. Sweet peas are a good item to hold, as prices on these remain firm, and they sell readily. Carnations are showing the effect of the warm weather and much of the cut is of poor quality. Laddie is the only variety that there is steady demand for. There is quite a large lot of giganteums still coming in. They move slowly at low prices. There are plenty of outdoor tulips, which are quite cheap. Some extra good Spanish iris is coming in and cleans up well. There is quite a supply of cattleyas and gardenias. Lily of the valley is scarce again. In pot stock, there are some good rambler roses and hydrangeas offered. Genista racemosa is another good selling plant. Quite a few rhododendrons and Azalea Hinodigiri are noted.

NOTES.

The flower show held in the Hotel St. Francis, April 22-24, under the direction of the California Wild Flower Conservation League, was a great success, and was the sixth annual affair of its kind. A large and varied collection of the native flora of the state was on display. A fine lot of flowering shrubs were also shown.

The E. W. McLellan Company is again in with a fine crop of American Beauties. They have had the market to themselves with this rose this season, as it has been almost discarded by many growers who have planted Russells instead.

At the Conservatory Floral Shop, Manager John N. Sievers is much encouraged with trade since the opening of his new store. He is carrying a fine grade of stock and intends to cater to the high class trade.

Louis Copuro, of the MacRorie-McLaren Company, says his firm was busy on funeral work last week. Plant trade is reported very heavy with this firm this season, and large shipments are being made daily.

The Western Evergreen Nursery is sending in finely grown French hydrangeas. They also report a steady demand for Bostons, of which they have several large houses.

J. A. Axell is receiving a fine cut of roses from Ferarri Bros.' greenhouses. They are now producing a large supply of cattleyas and gardenias, for which the demand is steady.

Julius Eppstein, in the St. Francis hotel, had several important decorations during the week calling for orchids exclusively.

Podesta & Baldocchi report trade quite steady, especially for high grade stock.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

SUPPLY PLENTIFUL AND LIGHT SALES.

There has been no material change in market conditions since the last writing. Stock still continues plentiful and prices low, with a light demand. This city appears to be harder hit by the railroad strike than most points, for we seem to be on the embargo list all over the country, very few shipments arriving by express, and it is next to impossible to ship out of town, either by express or freight. The only relief is the parcel post, and it is so congested that it makes a very unsatisfactory way of delivery. American Beauties are in short supply and not very good in quality, which is just as well as the demand for them is light. Tea roses are extra good and in heavy supply, but with low prices, the wholesale houses have no trouble cleaning up. Carnations are good property and sell out daily; in fact, there has never been a time this season when there has been an oversupply of good carnations in this market. Sweet peas are arriving in large quantities, and are hard to move. Some of the finest snapdragons of the season are being received and sell without trouble.

CARNATIONS SOAR FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

Mothers' day is close at hand, and the sudden jump in prices, while readily paid by the stores, and later by the public, is not good for the business. Every paper in this city is urging a boycott on wearing flowers on this occasion, but the public is well trained to newspaper sensationalism, and makes due allowance for everything printed. There seems to be concerted action everywhere to quote carnations at $12 or $15 per 100. While these prices are high, all storemen realize they must order ahead or get left in a scarcity or big demand. They also know that the price might keep a good many back, and an eleventh-hour depression might send the price way down. Why then ask such fabulous prices of those at a distance from markets? Roses are good, and prices are up on all grades; in fact, the end of the week will see them double last week's quotations. Sweet peas are still arriving in large quantities and quality is good, considering the season. Prices range around $10 to $15 per 1,000. Gladioli from Florida growers are arriving in quantity in good condition. Yellow and white daisies are in fair quantity and sell well. Outdoor jonquils and Poeticus narcissus are plentiful, and when sold, bring 35 cents per 100. In greens, plumosus and leucothoe are fair. Ferns are poor. Stocks, snapdragons and mignonette are good and sell well.

NOTES.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange is handling a good quality of Sweetheart roses, lily of the valley and sweet peas.

Julius Baer and Edward Forter, Fourth street florists, have had their share of work for the week.

H. W. Sheppard was very busy last week filling F. T. D. orders for a large funeral in this city.

INCLEMENT WEATHER DETRIMENTAL.

Weather in this city has been anything but favorable to brisk business, although stock has been fairly good. Roses, carnations and sweet peas are in good supply, with prices varying. Jonquils have been a glut on the market. Indications now point to Mothers' day as a second Easter.

NOTES.

During the past three weeks, this city has lost through death two of its pioneer florists, Mr. and Mrs. William Belsey. For many years, they conducted a store on Main street, and were very active in the trade during that period.

The Colonial Flower Shop has removed to the corner of Delaware avenue and Chippewa street, where it will have a more commodious and attractive store.

The Fillmore Flower Shop formerly near Fillmore and Utica streets, will be located at the corner of those streets in larger quarters.

Reichert, the Florist, arranged a very attractive decoration at the Armory for the recent Rotary conference.

S. A. Anderson is having his building remodeled, and in July, will completely change the interior.

The calendar is well filled with weddings for the latter part of May and early in June. BISON.

GREAT ACTIVITY IN CARNATION PRICES.

There has been a continued oversupply of cut flowers in nearly all lines during the past week, but from indications, April 30-May 1, owing to the week-end demand, it would seem that the worst is over. Carnations on Saturday jumped from $4 to $6, and held firmly at the latter figure; whites, it was said, will go to $8 on Monday, and from that to $15 before the week is out. The quality in all lines is very good. The spring crops of Russell roses are now at their best, and some very fine stock is seen. Columbia, Premier, Hadley and Ophelia are also in good form. Double White Killarney finds a market as the only rose of its color. Yellow daisies are at their peak now, both in size and quality. Sweet peas in old and new crops are seen in quantity and some are exceptionally fine. Gladioli from side crops in carnation benches, are coming in, as are some of the miniature or baby type. There is a fair supply of cattleyas which clean up daily. "Take it all in all, it was not such a bad week, although, of course, we could have handled a lot more business," is the way one large wholesaler puts it.

May 3.—Shipments were very meager this morning. Everything, owing to the cool weather of the past two days appears to be in short supply, which as the crops, particularly roses, are going off, will send prices soaring. Quotations in all lines were from 25 to 50 per cent above the close of last week, with prospects of additional advances, particularly in carnations, which it is said, will reach $15 for whites before Saturday.

CLUB MEETING.

The feature of the May meeting of the florists' club was the address of Wallace R. Pierson, of the American Flower Growers' Association. This was a clear, concise explanation of the purposes and advantages of growers combining for the best interests of their business. He answered many questions, and was given a rousing vote of thanks. After the adjournment of the club meeting, a session of the growers present was called, with A. M. Campbell, chairman, and John R. Andre, secretary. This meeting became an enthusiastic one, electing delegates to attend the session of the national body at Cleveland, O., in August. It then adjourned to convene the third Tuesday in June for the purpose of organization.

NOTES.

The large rose house of the Florex Gardens is "in again," the first stock being cut the past week. The plants were cut back after the chill they received as the result of the accident, when the roof caved in from weight of snow, and are now producing some very fine Premier and Columbia. The original large house is now down, and the two new ones to take its place are being pushed along as rapidly as possible.

The Joseph Heacock Co.'s catch crop of sweet peas, calendulas and callas, that filled half of its large new house, 72x600 feet, the past season, are about cut out. They produced almost twice as much in returns as was expected. Roses will be planted as soon as the ground can be prepared, so as to give them a good, early start.

Ellwood Heacock states that his company's new operation is progressing rapidly, the large rose house, 72x600 feet, being more than half glazed. The roses are all to be grown on tables, which are now being erected. It is hoped to commence planting the last week in May.

The Robert Craig Co. is taking its last crops out of the old 49th street houses, prior to moving and consolidating with the large plant at Norwood. Pot roses, daisies, a line of bedding plants and quantities of ferns are the principal stocks which are to be closed out.

Eugene Bernheimer has added French pastry as a side line, having connected up with a chain of restaurants, in which the pastry is a particular feature. They have stores at 60th and Market streets, Germantown avenue, near Chelten avenue, and under the Schubert Theatre.

Great preparations are being made by H. Bayersdorfer & Co. for the Memorial day trade. Enameled flower wreaths are in good demand, as are all kinds of waxed flowers. Their Mothers' day figure vases had a big run.

Rudolph G. Lorgus, of the Lorgus Floral Co., West Chester, Pa., was married to Miss Helen H. Oster, of Lancaster, Pa., April 28. They will reside in West Chester.

A fine crop of rambler roses for Memorial day sales are a feature of the W. K. Harris stock. Crotons and pandanus are grown in quantities as centers for vases.

Macaw Bros., at Norwood, are much pleased with their orders for young stock of the new fern, Macawii. Choice Pandanus Veitchii are a feature here.

Berger Bros. will have a fine shop when alterations are completed, but have to put up with numerous inconveniences until the work is finished.

Harry C. Geiger, recently of the Florex Gardens, is now in China, on his trip around the world. He expects to spend several months in Japan.

George Burton is cutting excellent American Beauties in quantity. These are handled by the Leo Niessen Co.

The first peonies were received by the S. S. Pannock Co. last week. They came from Georgia.

MARKET THREATENED WITH OVERSUPPLY.

Business continued quiet during the past week, with heavy arrivals of stock. Long American Beauty roses ranged from $30 to $50 per 100. In tea roses, there has been a near oversupply, with the surplus going very cheap. A heavy stock of Cattleya mossiæ came in and ranged in price from $25 to $50 per 100. The C. gigas are now arriving in limited numbers and wholesale at the rate of $1.50 each. There has been a heavy stock of Easter lilies and callas, all, particularly the latter, moving slowly. Carnations have been slow, and at this writing, one can hear but little talk of Mothers' day business, if what is published in the newspapers is accepted, but there is likely to be some movement within a few days. A great mass of the minor offerings, such as stocks, snapdragons, cowslips and other seasonable flowers are on the market, and they are slow in cleaning up. There is a superabundance of sweet peas, and though they move freely, it is at greatly reduced prices. Good lilac is now arriving and catches the fancy of the public.

May 3.—The weather continues cool, and in some lines, the supply is lighter, but there is an abundance to meet a light demand. Good carnations are a little higher than last week. The price for pink is $8 and for white, $10. There is much critical comment in the newspapers on prospective high prices.

FLOWER BOYCOTT ON MOTHERS' DAY URGED

"Because of the sky-rocketing prices of cut flowers, an appeal was sent out yesterday by the Mothers' Day International Association against the wearing of flowers on Mothers' day, May 9. A harvest was reaped last year by florists, who boosted prices throughout the country, the appeal points out, and it is urged that the display of flags from homes and public places be made to take the place this year of boutonnieres."

The above item was published in newspapers May 1. We know little of the Mothers' Day International Association, but suppose it to be one of the numerous associations that has been organized for the purpose of telling the rest of the people what they should do. Leaving it to its own devices, a few words may be said relating to Mothers' day business. The writer has from the inception of this movement, been opposed to making so sacred a sentiment as mother love an excuse for profiteering. If sound judgment prevails in the counsels of the Society of American Florists, a similar stand should be taken. When flowers are scarce they will necessarily be high priced, but when the markets of the country are full of them, it will be a stain on the good name of the florist business to double or treble prices for this occasion. The florists should realize that they live not by the necessity but by the sentiment and good will of the rest of the people. Any propaganda to the contrary is silly and beside the mark.

NOTES.

In one of the large show windows of the Dards store, Madison avenue and 44th street, there has for the past week been a unique and instructive exhibit of the methods, for centuries common in many households, of spinning flax. There are yet many men and women living in this country that can recall as one of the memories of childhood, the little spinning-wheel, propelled by foot power, and the distaff. These are shown in the exhibit at the Dards store, and also other implements used in household industry, such as the heckle for cleaning the flax for spinning shuttles for hand weaving, etc. One of the spinning wheels is said to have come over in the good ship Mayflower, and from its marks of age, that may well be believed. The exhibit was arranged by the staff of the store under the direction of Manager Perry, and a lady, who understands the various processes, has given daily exhibitions of her skill.

Charles Thorley is now well located in his new store, 604 Fifth avenue. As previously stated in these columns, it was formerly the home of the late Mrs. Russell Sage. As a flower store, it has interesting features. Mr. Thorley has made no radical changes in the building, preserving, so far as possible for business, its original outlines. In the large front room, where the main store is located, there is a stained glass window that is said to have cost $25,000.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held in the Engineering building, West 39th street near Sixth avenue, on the night of May 10. It is expected that matters of interest will be discussed, and there should be some good exhibits.

V. L. Podesta and family, of San Francisco, Calif., spent some time in this city during the past week. They are en route to Europe. Other visitors were: Mrs. Schluraff, Erie, Pa.; Howand E. Smith, Hazelton, Pa.

Joseph A. Millang, of the New York Cut Flower Co., in addition to good roses, is receiving fine carnations.

Edward Brenner, in the new market, is handling an exceptionally fine stock of yellow daisies.

A great stock of good sweet peas continues to reach Traendly & Schenck.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

SEED stores at Chicago report seed potatoes well sold up.

PETER HOLLENBACH, Chicago, will be three score and 10, May 25.

AURORA, ILL.—Blair, Harper & Co. are reported in financial trouble.

FROST is reported to have damaged seed crops in the Sacramento valley.

WHEN will the decline in commodity prices, now anticipated, hit seed items?

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—A. J. Brown, and wife, of Grand Rapids, Mich., were recent visitors.

DUTCH ports, closed for two months by strikes, are again open. French harbors are now affected.

KELWAY & SON, Langport, Eng., report their business double that of last year for the same period.

WASHINGTON opinion is that the free seed distribution will be continued with reduced appropriation this year.

THE annual meeting of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association will be held at the Savory hotel, Des Moines, June 1-2.

BOSTON, MASS.—R. & J. Farquhar & Co. say their business for April is far in excess of that of any previous year.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The Henry F. Michell Co. says its April business compares very favorably with that of last year.

NEW YORK.—Vaughan's Seed Store reports April business well ahead of last year, and promising to make good the March shortage.

JAPANESE reports state that commodity prices have declined sharply of late. This may affect prices of lily bulbs and similar stock.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Fred H. Howard, of Howard & Smith, and John C. Bodger, of the John Bodger & Sons Co., are taking a vacation in the mountains.

CALIFORNIA growers of sweet peas for seed have united in the highly commendable work of reducing the number of inferior and too-much-alike varieties.

WITH good growing weather, the soil and moisture conditions are now favorable to good California seed crops, although it is expected some items will be late.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. T. Ferrell, of A. T. Ferrell & Co., Saginaw, Mich., enroute to Oklahoma; D. B. Gurney, of the Gurney Seed & Nursery Co., Yankton, S. D.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, May 5, were as follows: Timothy, $9.00 to $11.50 per 100 pounds. Red clover $25.00 to $35.00.

A. H. GOODWIN, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, started on his first summer fishing trip, May 1. This firm's retail business is running in excess of other years, and the wholesale department is holding its own.

TOLEDO, O.—Clover seed remained practically unchanged May 4, but dropped $1.00 during the previous seven days. Cash was offered at $27.50, October $23.50, and December $22.50. Timothy held steady with cash, 1919, at $5.60, May $5.60, September $5.70, October $5.55, and December, $5.55.

A BILL has been introduced in the house of representatives (H. R. 13703) authorizing an association of producers of agricultural products. Curtis Nye Smith says this is a rank attempt to permit farmers to be released from the effect of the anti-trust act. Seedsmen should call the attention of their congressmen to it.

COLUMBUS, O.—Owing to cold and wet weather during April, the mail order business of the Livingston Seed Co. has held up well, as it gave customers a chance to get supplies from a distance, but for the same reason the local trade has been very quiet, there being no immediate demand. The soil has been unfit to work throughout the entire month. The holding back of the local trade, however, has given the firm a good chance to reorganize for the mail trade, following the fire which destroyed its city warehouse April 1.

CLEVELAND, O.—C. E. Kendel, of Kendel's Seed Store, says the weather through April has been a succession of cold, rainy, days, with not over a day of sunshine two or three times at wide intervals, during the whole month. There has been little planting done, and less seed sold than in any April he can remember. Customers are being urged to buy their seeds so as to have them on hand when the weather warms up and the soil dries out. Mr. Kendel, however, dreads the rush that will come if the weather turns warm soon, and the stock of beans and onion sets remaining on hand, if the unfavorable conditions continue much longer.

Grass Seeds.

Chicago seedsmen report the demand for timothy better than for the past several weeks, while trading at other markets continues light, with very little change in prices. Redtop and orchard grass prices are easier because of the lack of demand, while Kentucky bluegrass prices remain unchanged at most markets.

Onion Sets.

Onion sets in the Chicago district have been moving briskly the past week, accompanied by a sharp advance in prices to $3.50 and $4.00. Local seed stores report the supply well cleaned up.

The continued wet weather in South Holland has delayed the sowing of seed for sets, it being estimated that only five per cent was in the ground April 28.

French Bulb Prices.

Cable advices indicate that the growers' syndicate fixed prices April 24 about as follows: White Roman hyacinths, 325 francs per 1,000, Narcissus Paper White grandiflora, 12-15 ctms., 100 francs, 13 ctms., 100 to 125 francs, 14 ctms., 130 to 140 francs, Soliel d'Or, 250 francs. Since the meeting, it is reported white Roman hyacinths have advanced 25 per cent, and that certain crops of the latter will be passed by the French inspectors.

Cases, it is said, will be invoiced at 15 francs each, though some dealers will only charge 50 cents, United States money.

Western Seedsmen's Association.

The annual meeting of the Western Seedsmen's Association was held at Omaha, Neb., May 1, the attendance numbering about 50. A very hopeful tone was in evidence in the discussion that took place regarding stocks of field and vegetable seed held by seedsmen at this time. One prominent western seedsmen said: "It is true that the early trade has been disappointing, owing to the late season and poor rail facilities, but there must still be a big demand for forage crops, especially as farmers are forced, through scarcity of labor, to abandon cultivated crops to some extent. Then it must be borne in mind that seeds of all kinds in stock now were produced at a lower labor cost than the next crop will be, and consequently, are good property."

There was a general discussion of seed laws, the association seeming to favor the passage of a uniform seed law drawn along the lines of the Maryland law. The Oklahoma law was discussed, especially as pertaining to packet seeds. All seedsmen present expressed a willingness to co-operate with the Oklahoma authorities, insofar as they could, but stated it was absolutely impossible to print all the information required on each packet of seed. Many seedsmen expressed the belief that when the Oklahoma authorities and the seedsmen came to see each other's point of view, it would be found that their aims were mutual, and that a plan would be worked out which would be equitable to all.

The following officers were elected: Fred Mangelsdorf, Atchison, Kan., president; Carl Chesmore, St. Joseph, Mo., vice-president; Henry Windheim, Omaha, Neb., treasurer; Howard Webster, Independence, Ia., secretary.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., President; Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids Mich., Treas. Next annual convention September 1920.

POTATOES to the number of 30,000 barrels, still in the ground, were sold at Brownsville, Tex., April 26, for 8¾ cents per pound, said to be a record price to growers in that region. Potatoes at that time were retailing in Chicago at $1.35-$1.40 per peck, or 9 to 9¾ cents per pound.

ACCORDING to I. E. Vaughn, of the University of Wisconsin, Racine, Kenosha and Milwaukee are the principal onion producing counties in Wisconsin. "Brown and Outagamie counties promise to become large factors in the onion industry," he says. "A future development in onions is seen in the area in central Wisconsin where marsh soils are being reclaimed and put under the plow. Onions grow well on heavy soils."

Tomato Fertilizer Profitable.

As a result of tests made by the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, and reported in Bulletin 169, it appears that tomato growers could profitably increase the yield and earliness of the crop by the use of at least 250 pounds to the acre of a commercial mixed fertilizer. One analyzing three or four per cent nitrogen and 10 to 12 per cent phosphorus is suggested.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, May 4.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $4.25 to $6.00; celery, Florida, crate, $5.00 to $5.50; leaf lettuce, per tomato box, 25 cents; radishes, per dozen bunches, $1.00 to $1.10; tomatoes, per crate, six baskets, $7.00 to $9.50.

New York, May 3.—Celery, per crate, $2.00 to $8.00; cucumbers, per basket, $2.00 to $7.00; mushrooms, 50 cents to $1.75 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 25 to 50 cents; lettuce per strap, $5.00 to $6.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $6.00.

Vegetable Seed Sales.

Replies that have been received from inquiries sent to a number of representative retail vegetable seed dealers indicate that the quantity of vegetable seed sold to market gardeners so far this season is equal to or greater than last year. Exceptions are shown in the case of reports from a few industrial centers, principally in the east, where the quantity sold to market gardeners is estimated to be 10 to 30 per cent less than last year because of the shortage of labor on truck farms. Sales last year, however, were not equal to those of a normal pre-war year and sales this year are reported to be 10 to 45 per cent less than for a pre-war year, with the exception of a few districts in some of the northwestern, western, and southwestern states.

On the whole, the sales to home gardeners this year seem to be larger than those of last year and of a normal pre-war year, ranging from a five per cent increase in some sections to 50 per cent in others.

In some of the northern states very little vegetable seed has been sold to date, either to market or home gardeners. This is not to be taken as an indication of a falling off in sales, because normally the bulk of sales are made by seedsmen in those states later in the season.

There is no uniform increase or decrease in sales reported for any special kind or kinds of vegetable seed. The decrease in sales to market gardeners, however, is restricted principally to seed of those crops which require the most hand labor in harvesting and preparing for market.—Government Market Reporter, February 28.

Wild Cucumber Menace to Pickle Industry

Wild cucumbers are a serious menace to pickle growing. That the eradication of this plant would reduce, if not entirely eliminate, the mosaic disease of cucumbers which in some sections has practically driven the pickling business out of existence, is shown by studies made in Wisconsin by United States department of agriculture scientists Their investigations prove that the white pickle disease, or mosaic disease of cucumbers, also attacks the wild or four-seeded cucumber, a vine which occurs along streams, and is used for ornamental purposes in many parts of the middle west. Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin, where this wild vine thrives, are the center of the pickle-growing industry in this country. The wild plant is a serious menace to the cultivated cucumber in these states, because it is the principal, if not the only, means by which this disease is carried over from season to season.

All persons in town and country in cucumber regions are urged by the United States department of agriculture to stop planting the wild cucumber, and to pull up and destroy all wild cucumber plants found in their vicinity. It is pointed out that many other climbing vines, both annual and perennial, can well be substituted for the wild cucumber, and do not harbor a disease injurious to the cultivated crop.

Cabbage Maggot.

Under present conditions, it will pay the grower of early cabbage to look around carefully and see if some remedy can be found to prevent, or reduce, the damage done by the pest generally known as cabbage maggot. In sections where this pest is common, the injury varies from a total loss to at least 30 per cent, according to the weather conditions. It is generally admitted, that once the maggots have entered the root stems, there is not much that can be done on a commercial scale. Prevention is the remedy. Some years ago, we used the tarred paper method, which is a device to prevent the fly from going down along the stem. These tarred paper discs, in order to succeed, must fit closely and lay flat on the ground. We found it a slow and tedious job to fit them. But the remarkable part of the job was that one-half of our fields after the plants had received treatment to receive the discs, never got them, owing to weather conditions and pressure of work. The result was that the untreated sections came in fully as good, if not better, than the treated part. We soon discovered the reason: The eggs had probably been deposited when this work was done, and the preparatory work removed these eggs and scattered them out in the furrows, where they were destroyed by the subsequent cultivation. Moral: Watch the fly lay the eggs, and promptly remove them with the hand or hoe, and follow with a vigorous horse tool. MARKETMAN.

Vegetable Markets.

From reports received by the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture for the period April 25-May 1, values were generally firm. Potato markets were irregular with demand slow and light movement at Minnesota shipping points. Northern round white stock, sacked, ranged $6.95-$7.25 per 100 pounds carloads, f. o. b. Carlot bulk stock in Chicago was quoted $6.90-$7.15. In eastern markets, No. 1 round whites were steady at $6.65-$7.35. Supplies were light in Cleveland, O., causing prices to advance about $1 to a range of $7.50-$7.85 per 100 pounds. Maine Green Mountains were stronger at shipping points, advancing to $6.38-$6.53. This stock in New York sold at $7.75-$8.20. Onion haulings at Laredo, Tex., continued heavy and the supply exceeded the demand. Yellow Bermudas, No. 1 and No. 2 mixed, lost 5-10 cents, ranging $2-$2.25 f. o. b. cash track. Crystal White closed at $2.15-$2.25 per standard crate. Prices at consuming markets were generally lower than the previous week. Cabbage was steady with consuming markets fairly well supplied and prices did not move far from the range of the previous week. Florida Wakefields were steady in the eastern markets at $1-$2.50 per 1-½-bushel hamper and ranged $4-$4.50 per barrel-crate in New York, and unchanged at Detroit at $6-$6.50. Flat type sold at $60 per ton bulk at Pittsburgh. Sweet potatoes were fairly steady with most of the consuming markets moderately supplied. Supplies of tomatoes were light and an active demand put prices on higher levels.

Tomato Seed from Canning Houses Unfit.

DANGEROUS AS DISEASE CARRIERS.

Canning-house run tomato seed should be avoided, as it is usually made up of a mixture of strains and varieties and is likely to carry disease germs and produce an inferior yield and quality of fruit. Whenever possible, seed should be bought from selected stock of the variety best adapted to the locality in which the crop is to be grown. Few canning companies have given sufficient attention to this phase of the work to be able to supply such seed. United States department of agriculture specialists say the commercial production of high-grade seed requires the supervision of a man trained in the principles and skilled in the methods of breeding and of seed saving. As careful work of this kind is done chiefly by reputable seedsmen their seed is much better than that saved and offered for sale at canning houses.

Crossing of tomatoes, such as naturally occurs in fields of plants grown from the mixed seed from canneries, brings out in the crop many qualities that do not usually appear in the parent varieties. These are chiefly small

"Hamburg Late Pink" Chrysanthemum

Picture was taken Dec. 6, 1919, and will give a good idea of what "Hamburg Late Pink" looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

"Hamburg Late Pink" is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals, and if grown for late will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late Pink" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but, for late pink, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers; but by selecting late buds, after October 1st, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late Pink" cannot be surpassed. "Hamburg Late Pink" will be disseminated in the spring of 1920. Plants ready now and all orders will be filled in rotation.

and rough fruit, pale flesh and pulp, thin walls and partitions, and low percentage of solids. Although not all these characters occur, as a rule, in the same fruit, some of them occur in so many fruits that they reduce the yield and quality of the crop.

Land adjoining some canning houses where refuse from wilt-infected tomatoes has been dumped has become so full of the wilt-producing fungus that a crop of tomatoes cannot be grown on it. Seed saved from such tomatoes would not only carry disease but it would also mix with seed from good tomatoes. Moreover, disease-bearing particles from the wilt-infected tomatoes would adhere to good seed. Both the diseased seed and the seed carrying disease germs on its surface would carry disease into the seed bed and field. This method of distributing disease organisms to seed in the canning house is not limited to the wilt disease.

Spoilage in Cold Packed Canned Peas.

After extensive studies in the heat resisting organisms of cold packed canned peas, published in Technical Bulletin No. 47, of the Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing, Ruth Normington arrives at the following conclusions:

"The spoilage in cold packed canned peas is largely due to the presence of resistant spore-forming organisms which are not killed by the temperature attained in the prescribed method for processing. Therefore, before canning peas or other vegetables, the product should be very carefully washed to remove all soil or dust and thus remove the greater percentage of organisms. The time for processing of vegetables should be lengthened so that the center of the can may be at a high temperature sufficiently long to kill the more resistant organisms. The processing of all cold packed canned vegetables should be carried out by the steam pressure method to insure the greatest probability of success. The results obtained in the chemical analysis of spoiled peas suggest that the determination of creatinin and ammonia, especially the former, may serve to detect bacterial decomposition in this canned food product."

Timber Helps Poor Lands.

Timber is essentially a poor-land crop. Steep slopes, poor soil, rocky land, unusual corners, gullied and wooded tracts—all these afford opportunities for growing timber profitably, say specialists of the forest service, United States department of agriculture. A careful survey of the average farm will reveal a surprising number of spots of this sort which can be utilized to advantage. If they do not already have trees, planting them with the proper varieties will materially increase the value of the land.

Park Uniformity Urged.

Montevideo, Uruguay, April 8.—Worldwide legislation to stop the "hideous deformity" of streets, parks, gardens and plazas, and to beautify all cities, was advocated at the first congress of architects here. Representatives were present from all South American countries as well as from the United States. The congress, in proposing legislation for the adoption of regular plans, and the location of public buildings and monuments, recommended the continuation of the system of uniform squares. Classes in "urbanization" in universities and special schools of agriculture were also proposed, a resolution stating that these were indispensable to the culture of the people.

Plant an Acre of Trees.

With labor scarce and expensive, most farmers will plant crops that can be tended with the least help, and many are considering in this connection the growing of trees. One man can take care of thirty times as much land in timber crops as in any other form of farming, according to K. W. Woodward, New Hampshire Agricultural College forester. It is a well known fact that the woodlot on many a New Hampshire farm has paid the mortgage, and there is every evidence that timber is going to be more valuable in the future than in the past. Areas unsuitable for tillage or pasture may profitably be planted to white pine, red pine or Norway spruce. Three-year-old trees at $8 a thousand may be ordered through the farm bureau or the state forester.

Garden Bordered With Box-Barberry.
Electros of this illustration with each order for 1000 or more if requested.

Have you seen a garden bordered with this spring? Every plant bright and green—not a dead one. A strong contrast to the northern Buxus bordered garden, now either dead or sadly winter injured, brown and dejected looking.

Mr. Siebrecht, the veteran plantsman, on seeing the garden the other day shown in accompanying illustration, exclaimed with his characteristic enthusiasm, "Magnifiicent. There is a fortune in it for the nurserymen."

We offer you well rooted dormant summer frame cuttings ready to set out direct into the nursery without further expense to you at $65.00 per 1000; all sold out of larger sizes.

Many of the leading catalogue firms have already contracted with us for their supply for the ensuing season, and others are buying these frame grown plants for their own planting, preparing for the enormous demand which is sure to follow.

It is a safe statement that BOX-BARBERRY will soon be the plantsman's best seller.

Protecting Woodlands from Injury.

That young growth in the woods, known popularly as "brush," is something to be rid of, is a prevalent but mistaken conception, since, as forestry specialists of the United States department of agriculture point out, a forest can not maintain itself long without reproduction. For the sake of getting a scattering of green grass in the spring, it is the short-sighted practice in hundreds of localities to fire the woods regularly. This results in killing thousands of small trees needed to continue the forest in the future, and also injures a large amount of marketable timber. Furthermore, such burning destroys a large amount of rich vegetable fertilizer.

Cattle and hogs in hardwood stands, and hogs in long-leaf pines, keep the forest from being restocked. Damage from insects can be reduced by cutting timber at the proper time of year and by utilizing lightning-killed trees without delay, since they harbor destructive pests. Cattle destroy the productive leaf mulch which keeps the trees growing during long, dry spells. All large openings where light comes through into the forest should be filled with younger trees. Fully stocked woods contain little or no grass, but afford full shade, which prevents the soil drying out and keeps the trees growing.

Soil Building Power of Trees.

Certain kinds of trees, like the locust and the acacias, build up poor soil through the nitro-gathering bacteria in the root nodules, according to the forest service, United States department of agriculture. The soil-building power of trees on slopes is a fact which the farmer should not overlook. Steep lands, which have been cleared of timber at much expense, after being cultivated for a few years, often become gullied, and the rich lands adjoining are covered with deep deposits of sand. The surest and cheapest method of protecting such slopes is to maintain forests on them. Small gullies can be stopped up by closely packed brush and tree tops, anchored by stakes if necessary. Large, open gullies are checked successfully only by planting over the entire gully basin, supplemented by low brush dams across the larger units of the gully.

SUPPLY IS SHORTENING UP.

After a period of really unusually good supply, it appears there will be a shortage of flowers for Mothers' day. This is especially true of carnations, and some of the prominent dealers are arranging for shipments from outside points. Pot plants will be in generous supply. Indications point to a more general observance of this occasion that in any previous year and local florists are doing their best to help in its full observance. Hyacinths, tulips and narcissi are now gone, but cinerarias of every color and size are seen in profusion and prices are reasonable. Rambler roses and hydrangeas are also among the offerings, although the latter have not done so well this season. Decorated baskets will also prove popular and the market-house brigade will be well supplied with ferns, geraniums, pansies, petunias, etc., suitable for all tastes and purses. Prices in most items are unchanged, with roses ranging from $4 to $8.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Co. still has a good cut of carnations and roses and is able to meet all requirements of the local store as well as the Chattanooga branch. They also have a fine stock of hydrangeas, baby ramblers, pansies and baskets of all kinds to meet the requirements of the most fastidious.

Geny Bros. acknowledge a scarcity of stock with outside shipments helping out in the carnation supply. Roses are doing fairly well but are none too numerous. Business on the whole has been good, however, and they are well supplied with pot plants.

M. C. D.

Salt Lake City, Utah.

BUSINESS SHOWS SATISFACTORY TONE.

With funeral work showing a strong lead in the demand, the market is kept fairly well cleaned up in all lines. Gladiolus Peach Blossom made its appearance this week at 10 cents. Carnations are at their best and are quoted at 12 cents for Mothers' day. Laddie will be 20 cents. Roses are showing their appreciation of the sunny days, blooming freely with excellent color.

NOTES.

The Salt Lake Floral Co., Robert Wilson, proprietor, has been taken over by Nelson Lindgren, well known in this vicinity as a grower, and who until five years ago conducted greenhouses at Bountiful, disposing of them at that time to Emil Lund. The Salt Lake Floral Co's. range is old established, consisting of 125,000 feet of glass and large outdoor gardens devoted to plants of all kinds. Mr. Wilson will take a well-earned rest and has made no announcement of his plans for the future.

The Miller Floral Co's. store is making active preparations for a heavy Mothers' day trade. Robert Miller, of Farmington, general manager of the firm, is on a combined business and pleasure trip of two weeks visiting Los Angeles and San Francisco, Calif.

HEAVY MOTHERS' DAY TRADE ANTICIPATED.

Active preparations are being made for Mothers' day, which is expected to be a big local event. Additional stocks have been secured and extra salespeople will be hired to handle the trade, which is expected to be larger than last year. The occasion has been increasing in importance as far as the sale of cut flowers is concerned and business is expected to be fully 20 per cent more than last season. Prices will not be as high as during Easter as there is a concerted effort to hold down prices to reasonable figures. Roses will sell from $4 to $8 per dozen, while carnations will be quoted at from $3 to $4 per dozen. Snapdragons will be $2 to $6 per dozen. Violets are entirely out of the market. Sweet peas of extra quality will sell for $2 per bunch, and tulips from $2 to $3 per dozen. Plants have been rather scarce since Easter, and there are not a great many calls for them. Greens are plentiful. Weddings are becoming more numerous, and quite a few are scheduled for early in May. Party work has been fairly active, and will be during the month. There is a fair number of funerals, but this phase is not very active. The graduation season is coming on, and as a result a good deal of corsage work is expected during the coming month or six weeks.

MAY DAY BRINGS UNUSUAL DEMAND.

May day brought a tremendous demand for flowers in this city and Council Bluffs. A local society held a flower day, blooms being sold from baskets on the streets to passersby for the benefit of charity, the day's sale netting the society more than $5,500. Leaders in the movement made the statement that the only reason this figure was not larger, was due to the fact that supply became exhausted. During the day, 30,000 flowers were sold, and 10,000 carnations and roses had been disposed of by noon. Soon after that hour, in response to an urgent appeal, a Council Bluffs florist came to the rescue with 5,000 pansies to help out the situation. Florists in both cities were completely stripped of their available supply for the day in both roses and carnations.

National Publicity For Flowers.

Mothers' Day.

The trade throughout the country was much surprised, judging from the correspondence reaching our promotion bureau, over a despatch, dated from Washington, D. C., and emanating from the Mothers' Day International Association, of which Miss Anna Jarvis is the head, to the effect that flags should be used rather than flowers on Mothers' day, owing to the high prices charged by florists for flowers on the occasion. Charges were made that the florists were profiteering. One of the New York papers went further, quoting an interview with a misinformed prelate, at which it was declared that so many carnations had already been bought up as to make it impossible to purchase them except at exorbitant prices, one dollar per flower being the amount named. The Mothers' Day International Association also sent propaganda to newspapers individually, of which the following received from a prominent metropolitan newspaper in Massachusetts is a copy:

"City Editor:

"One of our slogans this year is, "Do not buy flowers for Mothers' day, but help us to stop florists' Mothers' day profiteering.

"Will you help us to stop this graft? Obligingly,

"MOTHERS DAY INTERNATIONAL ASSN."

In addition to all this, the following letter was received at the secretary's office:

'Philadelphia, May 1, 1920.

"John Young, Secretary,
and S. A. F. & O. H.,
New York.

"Gentlemen:

"This is a notice to the Society of American Florists and all concerned, that you are infringing on the trade marks and copyrights of the Mothers' Day International Association, Inc., and Anna Jarvis, both of Philadelphia, through the use and sale of florists' supplies and printed matter bearing the words, "Mothers' Day" and the white carnation, etc. It is also notice to each and all of you to at once discontinue these infringements or we shall proceed against you to the full limit.

"You have been effecting sales through misrepresentations to the public as to our emblem, and through infringements, and now in addition to the profiteering of years past, you have entered upon a new line of trade for the purpose of further profiteering, and free advertising.

"It is not believed that florists generally understand facts as they exist against Mothers' day, through the propaganda of some persons at the head of your society. We do not believe many florists have contributed to the S. A. F., money to be used to misrepresent facts regarding Mothers' day, or to annoy the Mothers' Day Association and interfere with the welfare of its work, or for litigation, or for other expenses for which their money has been spent in some ways. It is our purpose to investigate if contributions to your bureau were for these purposes, and for infringements upon moral and legal trade rights which are recognized as dishonorable in all lines of business.

"To us it seems a small matter for your society to have proceeded against Mothers' day welfare in the way it has through some of its representatives, in order to sell a parcel of posterettes and posters, and similar stuff through infringements. We asked you to have a better understanding, but you refused.

"It is hoped that any other movement, considering the use of flowers, will profit by our unfortunate experience, annoyance and expense. We shall certainly not hesitate to protect any we can.

"Trusting we may have a prompt assurance of your discontinuance of your infringements, we are,

"Respectfully,
"ANNA JARVIS (Signed), and MOTHERS DAY INTERNATIONAL ASSN., INC."

The secretary then wrote the following letter to the Associated Press, addressing it to their general office in New York:

"May 6th, 1920.

"The Associated Press,
51 Chambers Street,
New York.

"Referring to the item in the enclosed clipping, which evidently is from a press report sent out from Washington, also in the more extended form copied in the advertisement also enclosed, I take the liberty, in behalf of the florists of this country, of declaring the charges to be without foundation, and the statements as absolutely untrue and injurious to those engaged in the florists' industry.

"I am also enclosing a copy of a letter, purporting to be issued by Miss Jarvis and the Mothers' Day International Association, which may be considered as bearing on the case. A copy of the poster complained of is enclosed in addition.

"First of all, Miss Jarvis is justly recognized as the founder of Mothers' Day, or at least, as one who has revived an old English custom, recorded by Chambers as a practice of going to see parents, and especially the female one, on the mid-Sunday of Lent, taking for them some little present, such as a cake or a trinket.' A youth engaged in this amiable act of duty, was said to 'go a-mothering, and the day itself came to be called 'Mothering Sunday.'

"Public Resolution No. 25, 63rd Congress, is a joint resolution designating the second Sunday in May as Mothers' day, and for other purposes. Governors of states and mayors of cities have, by proclamations, endorsed the action of Congress, and the day is now very generally obseved by the Ameican public as one on which homage is to be paid to mothers living, and honor accorded to the memory of mothers dead.

"So much for Miss Jarvis' claim of proprietorship in Mothers' day. As a little inside history, it may be mentioned that Miss Jarvis solicited the aid of different florists' organizations at the outset of her efforts to create interest in the day. As a result, the Society of American Florists gave her a check for $100.00 to be used in any way she saw fit in the promotion of her ideas. The society further collected subscriptions from individual florists throughout the country, amounting altogether to $1,000, which sum was also turned over to her.

"As to the charge that florists have been profiteering, I would say that this is baseless. One dollar apiece for carnations is absurd. If such a price ever was received, it certainly was not at a florists' establishment. At a charity fair, perhaps, $5 apiece might willingly be paid. White carnations are never sufficient for the demand on Mothers' day, for the reason that florists who grow them must, necessarily, take the remaining 364 days in the year into consideration, days on which white flowers are in very small demand. Miss Jarvis never could seem to understand this, and her misunderstanding was the cause of an abatement in the support given her by the florists. With the exception of white carnations, governed by the law of supply and demand, just as other commodities are, flowers for Mothers' day are just as reasonable in price as on other days at the same season, and there is not the slightest justification for Miss Jarvis' message, the publication of which she has foisted on the evidently unsuspecting press.

"If you can help to contradict the statement complained of, your assistance will be highly appreciated by our society.

(Signed) "JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y."

The Associated Press very courteously took action in the matter, as will be seen by their letter in reply:

"John Young,
Society of American Florists,
New York City.

"Dear Mr. Young:

"I enclose a copy of an Associated Press despatch from Washington today which gives a denial by W. F. Gude of the statement of Miss Anna Jarvis, concerning which you wrote under date of May 6. This meets the point raised in your letter.

(Signed) "HAROLD MARTIN, Sup't."

The despatch referred to was as follows:

"Washington, May 7.—Acting for the Society of American Florists, W. F. Gude, its Washington representative, has issued a denial of the statement by Miss Anna Jarvis, president of the Mothers' Day Association, that florists profiteered in white carnations, the symbol of observance of Mothers' day, last year. Miss Jarvis had called on observers of the day this year to abandon the carnation and display American flags. All members of the society, throughout the country, Mr. Gude said, have been urged to sell white carnations at the usual market rate on Mothers' day, Sunday, May 9."

As to the charges of infringement of copyrights, and so forth, they may safely be ignored. Mothers' day is a public day ,and so declared by Congress, therefore our publicity committee do not feel that they need have any further concern in the matter.

FURTHER HELP NEEDED.

The publicity campaign is swinging along, and our slogan, "Say It With Flowers," is daily becoming stronger in its effect on the public. Arrangements have been completed whereby a series of advertisements will appear in the national magazines during June, July, August and September, to keep the slogan before as many people as possible in a continuous manner. The copy to be used is very attractive, and should achieve the result aimed for. Among the magazines selected are the following: Literary Digest, Collier's Weekly, Outlook, Independent, Life, Judge, Scientific American, Leslie's and Argosy.

The committee is still very much hampered in their work through the want of proper financial support. It is regrettable that so much they would like to do, is impossible because the necessary amount of money is not forthcoming. They are obliged to work on the installment plan, which impairs maximum results. Mothers' day was productive of a splendid business, much of which undoubtedly was due to splendid campaign work. Would it not be a good idea, Mr. Non-subscriber, to show a little appreciation of what has been accomplished for you and the trade by sending in that long-delayed subscription to the fund that makes the benefit we all enjoy possible?

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

43 West 18th street, New York.

Cleveland Trade Exhibition.

We reproduce herewith plan of the floor space which will be occupied by the trade exhibition at the thirty-sixth annual meeting of the Society of American Florists to be held in the Ninth Garage, Cleveland, O., August 17-19, 1920.

The cost for space will be 60 cents per square foot, which does not include tables, platforms, decorations or signs. The selling of goods by persons or firms not having engaged space will be prohibited unless such person or firm shall have secured a permit or license from the secretary, the same to cost not less than $35.

Exhibition classes are arranged as follows: A.—Plants, spaces No. 65-72 and 89-96, inclusive. B.—Cut blooms, spaces No. 37-42 and 59-64. C.—Boilers and heating apparatus, spaces No. 1-5 and 49-52. D.—Greenhouse structures, spaces No. 43-48, 53-58 and 77-84. E.—Florists' supplies, spaces No. 6-14, 98-106, 15-20, and 31-36. F.—Bulbs, seeds and garden requisites, spaces No. 73-76, 85-88, and 107-112. G.—Miscellaneous, spaces No. 113-116 and 21-30.

First come, first served, and the secretary of the trade exhibition reserves the right to allot space in other sections, if the designated section is sold on receipt of order for space.

The advisory committee consists of F. C. W. Brown, Herman P. Knoble and Carl Hagenberger. All communications regarding the trade exhibition should be addressed to John Young, secretary, 43 West 18th street, New York.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The scarcity of flowers, due to the cool weather of the past week, and the great demand of Mothers' day, which brought the inevitable higher range of prices, shows how alert one has to be to manage his affairs successfully in such emergencies. At these troubled times, one has to be able to look ahead, size up the situation, and act quickly. The man who plans well, is not generally caught napping. It is the last-minute buyers that have to pay and bear the disappointments.

Write down a little account of your Mothers' day business, with its details as to its successes and shortcomings; what you did and how you could have done better. File it away. It will be found very useful when laying out next year's campaign.

The bedding plant season is now wide open. A small line of such stock should be carried in every store. In the residential district, particularly, there will be a good demand for all kinds of flowering and foliage garden plants. These can be handled at a very good profit, but must be pushed and turned quickly. A post card, with a list of the popular plants, all priced, each and per dozen, will cost but a trifle to get up, which if mailed each week during the season to the store's list, and the prospects of the neighborhood, will help wonderfully.

Window boxes, vases, and hanging baskets are good stock, seasonable and salable. They should be well filled, kept in condition, well displayed and energetically pushed.

Thousands of books and other articles would never see the light of day but for the persistent salesman sent out by the publishers and manufacturers to introduce them. Even with all their beauty, and their great advantages in decoration of the house and its surroundings, plants have to be shown, and all their possibilities brought out and enlarged upon before many persons become interested. A pair of window or porch boxes or hanging baskets, going into service at one house, will often influence the sale of others to the neighbors, so that breaking the ice is all that is needed sometimes to get an entire neighborhood interested.

Push the Memorial day preparations. All the spare time utilized for this purpose now, greatly relieves the stress of the last few days. Well made magnolia and oak leaf wreaths, with a tri-color ribbon and small flag decoration are a finished and salable article. Their movement is greatly enhanced, however, by their proper display. Show them in the window for a week or two, not just the day before. Many will then see and be reminded of the grave of that almost forgotten hero or soldier friend whom they knew as a boy.

As many will soon be leaving the city, get busy with all the over-due accounts. A nicely written letter, calling attention to the account being on a cash price basis, and only charged for convenience, and that they are due when bills are rendered monthly, will in most cases, be sufficient. Taking a handful around on a dull day, is the old-fashioned way, and while some may be collected, it is much better to let Uncle Sam carry your message. He is sure to get a hearing when the party may not be at home to you. It is always best to send such letters in plain envelopes, as with the firm name on the outside, it is known to be a bill, and is often put aside without being opened.

Always plan tomorrow's window decoration the day before. The various accessories and the plants or flowers are then sure to be on hand for an early arrangement. Several nicely finished tables of various heights and sizes, together with some velveteens in different shades, are a great help in showing off arranged baskets, corsages and vases of cut flowers. Adopt several sizes of show cards as standard, which your show card man can then letter up in a hurry as required. These cards are sure to be read and put life into any kind of display.

The trailing tradescantia is coming in again. These have sold well the past winter in three-inch pots for the filling of fern dishes, and for sale individually. The grower-retailer will find a bed of the numerous varieties on the floor, under the edge of a bench, a source of profit, as so many cuttings may be taken, and a half-dozen, placed in a three-inch pot, will make a showy plant in a couple of weeks. They also make a good plant in wire hanging baskets for the porch decoration, as the cuttings placed in the moss and soil, soon root and gain length.

Do not forget the national publicity campaign. Invest as you would like to benefit, then back it up with good stock, displayed to draw custom. If the entire trade will each give their mite, it will greatly increase the work of the committee. Send your little investment to Secretary John Young, 43 West 18th street, New York. Do it today.

Business Leaks.

There is nothing that so saps the life and profits of the business as the small neglected leaks, that, like the defective spigot, appear insignificant, but continued waste from which grows to be a serious matter.

The most expensive items of stock in the store are the cut flowers. It is in the care of this perishable material that neglect and waste is often allowed to creep in. Rough handling in the unpacking, placing in or removing from jars, often causes bruises or snapping of buds. If all stems do not reach the water, through shallow filling of vases, or careless arrangement of flowers, there is loss. If the ice gets too low in the box, the stock heats over night and is rendered almost unsalable. The way to check such leaks is to mark down the cost of every flower that is lost in this way and has to be thrown out. Many will think it too insignificant to be worth while, but if they keep a true record for just one week, the result will be not only surprising, but the means of starting a reform at once.

Allowing standard supply stocks to run low is costly, as to have to telegraph, when with time to spare, a letter would answer as well, is expensive. Frequently when a wire frame is wanted, or it may be cycas leaves, lettering, etc., and they can be obtained from the local supply house, there is the man's or boy's time and carfare that could have been saved by a little forethought.

Careless routing or timing in delivery of packages is another source of leak, calling for considerable expense in carfare and messenger's time, which are then necessary.

Letters mailed on time in ordering various plants, flowers or supplies are as effective and much cheaper than telegrams, messengers or phone calls. A hand to mouth policy in buying supplies is costly. Wherever possible, get goods so as to obtain quantity prices, a dozen or more of a size, rather than one. Figure up how many wire frames, cycas and wheat sheaves, magnolia leaves, wax or wrapping paper, letters, etc., were used in three months. Get the best price on such an order, and compare with totals of the small lots bought daily as required. The saving will surprise you.

There is great importance in the close collection of accounts. Never let a bill get old. The more it is delayed, the less chance there is in getting it. Hundreds of dollars are lost by reason of such carelessness. A $5 account is equal to the net profit on a $20 order. In fact, no matter how small the bills, do not let them get away. You not only lose the money, but also the customer.

Handle cut flower and larger packing boxes with care. They are easily soiled. For all funeral deliveries, keep a set of used boxes, which are to be brought back and kept for the same service. A set of stronger boxes for this purpose, will pay for themselves in no time.

There is great economy in making up chiffon and ribbon bows for designs and corsages. To guess at the amount required, and cut it from the bolt in a hurry, is very wasteful. The made-up bows, kept in a box, are ready for instant use, and contain a measured and proper amount.

The proper care of all kinds of greens, galax leaves, etc., will conserve much of this material. Such stock must be kept out of drafts and not allowed to lie around, or more bunches opened up than are necessary. Adiantum should always be kept wrapped in paper; it adds days to its life.

One of the greatest leaks in business is the overlooking or neglect to make a charge for everything that is sold. Frequently the store is crowded, a waiting, hurried customer demands attention before there is time to enter the charge of the sale just made, or there is an immediate call to the phone, which prevents, for the minute, the proper entry. One has to be on their guard constantly, not only for themselves in this respect, but also for their employes. The charge slips should be gone over carefully at the close of each day's business to discover or correct discrepancies of this or errors of any kind. Such inspection, with everything fresh in mind, will be of great assistance in correct posting, and frequently adds to the volume of the day's business.

Much can be saved in the quick turnover of stock. When certain lines of baskets, flower bowls, fern dishes or novelties of any kind do not seem to take or find favor, after a time, they should be given special attention by intensive selling methods. Much can be done to make an article attractive in showing its proper use and decorative possibilities. Do not condemn and put to one side or throw into the junk heap an article because people do not immediately appreciate it. The fault is probably with yourself. One man will say: "I would not take it as a gift" His supply man's answer is: "Well, you do not know how to sell it. Brown buys two and three dozen at a time, and is soon back for more." Avoid a junk pile or unsalable stock in dark corners. Holiday goods that are kept over for another year, should be properly boxed and given safe storage.

If a basket needs a new foot or handle, or has a leaky container, or can be made like new with a coat of gilt or paint, it should immediately be given the repairs required, and is then ready for the front shelves.

These are just a few of the many leaks that do not get into the various expense columns of the overhead, but eat tremendously into the profits in the course of the year.

Joy's Mothers' Day Publicity.

The Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., in stimulating Mothers' day business and at the same time counteracting the effect of the propaganda directed against flowers as messages of sentiment for that occasion used an attractive advertisement, two columns by 10 inches in the local papers of that city, May 8. The Nashville Tennesseean, one of the leading newspapers of the south on that day, in a front-page article calling attention to the general observance of the day, said: "Flowers will be worn in spite of the movement fostered in the east to have flags instead of flowers worn."

Penn's Advertising Slides as Club Aids.

Free, to all Florists' Clubs.

We are loaning, gratis, our collection of lantern slides, taken from newspaper ads, which are of special interest to florists, and give a general idea of our retail advertising. This makes an unusually interesting lecture, if the club will request any of the advertising clubs of their respective cities, to send a member who will criticize the copy as it appears. A great deal of constructive good is usually the outcome. The following clubs have already used them: Buffalo Florists' Club, Philadelphia Florists' Club and Baltimore Florists' Club.

Better results may be obtained from this slide exhibit by consulting Robert Kift, secretary of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, 4044 Haverford avenue, Philadelphia, Pa., who found them most instructive, and he will be glad to assist any secretary who may want to use them.

As retail florist advertising is one of the chief topics in clubs, nowadays, this makes a timely subject, and their use may be had gratis.

PLANT NOTES.

Winter-Flowering Geraniums.

With all growers having a greenhouse and doing a retail business there is in the fall a good demand for pot geraniums for house culture. Plants lifted from the open ground and potted in the fall are not very satisfactory, for the plants recover from the later transplanting slowly and go out of bloom and often do not flower again until spring. It is better to grow plants for this purpose in pots through the summer, and these, with good culture, will bloom all winter long if in a sunny position. Cuttings taken at this time will make nice stock for this purpose, or small plants left over after the spring sales can be used. The plants should be potted firmly, so that they will make a short, stocky growth, and kept well pinched back throughout the summer, that as many branches may be procured as is possible. All buds should be picked off as soon as formed, allowing no blooms until the plants are firmly established in blooming pots, in which they should be planted the last of August. A 6-inch pot makes the best size for house culture, and the plant can be easily grown so that it will fill this size nicely. A frame outside is the most convenient and best place for growing them through the summer.

Cinerarias.

The sowing of cinerarias is better done in June than later. Many postpone this until July, but during the extremely hot days of that month it is often difficult to obtain good germination, and the seed pans or boxes will have to be watched carefully or they will become dry and the young seedlings burn off. The soil should be well shaded until the young seedlings show themselves, when the shade should be made lighter. As soon as the plants have one or two well defined leaves they should be potted in small pots and given a nice, dry position near the glass, which should be shaded, but care should be taken that the young stock does not get drawn. Always bear in mind that the one thing in growing cinerarias to be on the watch for is the aphis. These insects quickly infest these plants and rapidly suck the life out of them. Constant fumigation will keep them in check, but if not attended to regularly it will be time and money thrown away to attempt their culture. Cineraria hybrida is the variety most grown, and these are obtainable in some elegant strains with large high-colored flowers. The Cineraria stellata is a much larger and more rapid growing plant which is very showy but is not so well adapted for house culture when in flower.

Ardisias.

One of the most popular berried plants for Christmas is the ardisia, but it is not grown as generally as it should be, the production being left to a few plant growers, for it is of very easy culture, the only drawback being that it is of very slow growth. When the seeds of the old plants are thoroughly ripe, they should be sown. They germinate slowly, and should be sown about an inch apart, in rows the same distance apart, and they can be left in the seed box until early summer and potted in 2½ or 3 inch pots and grown in a warm, lightly shaded location. They should be potted in good fibrous loam and kept in a moist, close house, that all the growth possible may be obtained at this time, for the plant naturally checks in winter. In early spring these young plants will flower and produce a crop of berries for the next winter. The plants that have been grown for three years or more have generally passed the ornamental stage, for they lose their leaves and have a "leggy" appearance. When they reach this stage the tops can be rooted and fine plants obtained. This can best be done at this time of the year by cutting into the stem and wrapping the cut with wet moss firmly tied around. Keep the plants in a warm, close atmosphere and the moss continually damp, and in four or five weeks new roots will grow in the moss, when the tops can be cut off and potted, still keeping the plant in the same temperature until new growths start. This operation will not in any way interfere with the plants blooming, for they frequently set an abundance of buds while the top is making new roots. The brown scale is the greatest enemy of ardisias, even in the young stage, and they must be removed at once when found, for they sap the growth of the plant. The older plants should be frequently sponged with a strong nicotine solution.

SWEET PEA EARLY GYPSY MAID.
See Issue of May 8, Page 842.

Small Ferns.

The fern spores that were sown in late winter should now be in condition to transplant into flats. It will be difficult to separate the plants yet into individual specimens, but little clumps can be lifted with a toothpick and planted in flats about an inch apart. The flats or boxes should not be deep; about an inch and a half of soil is sufficient. The soil should be composed of two parts of live loam and one part leaf mold, with a generous sprinkling of sand, and sifted through a fine sieve. The flats should be placed in a moist house that is well shaded and the walks kept well wet down all through the hot weather. If a nice, warm, moist temperature is maintained the plants themselves will not require much watering, only light springlings, and they will very rapidly root into the new soil and send forth their fronds. If the grower has not grown his own ferns, it is a good time now to place an order for them with the fern specialists, for they can be purchased at very low prices and they are very easily grown on, and where there are many fern dishes to be filled in the fall the difference in cost of the young plants lifted from the flats in midsummer and those purchased out of small pots in the fall is considerable. A thousand or more of this small stock does not take up much space and will be disposed of before the bench room is needed in the winter.

Peonies.

The work on these plants is not by any means finished when the blooms are cut, for they must be taken care of to insure a good crop for another year. Where the plants are grown in rows the constant traveling has packed the soil down hard, and the ground should be given a good cultivation in order to lighten it up. The weeds should be kept down all summer and not allowed to rob the soil of its richness. If the plants were severely cut in harvesting the bloom, so that there is not much foliage left on them, it is well to spread a mulch of strawy manure on the surface. This is often the case with the officinalis varieties, which do not make the heavy growth of the later varieties, and, as it is natural for the roots of the peonies to have the shade of the heavy foliage of the plants during the summer, the cutting of the stems and foliage of these varieties robs the roots of this, and a mulch that will protect the ground from the hot summer sun is very beneficial and will also reduce the labor of weeding. Any old blooms left on the plant should be cut and thrown away. Plants that have become broken down by high winds or heavy rains should be tied up in shape.

Solanums.

These little Christmas plants should not be allowed to stand around in the hot greenhouses, badly pot bound and drying up every day, for they will grow hard, and it cannot be expected to obtain a good plant under these conditions. They will stand lots of abuse and do fairly well, and that is the reason, probably, that they are so often neglected during the busy days. But it is much better to plant them out in the field than to carry them along in this condition. They can easily be handled in this manner, lifting them early in the fall. They will need to be kept pinched back into shape—any strong leading shoots should be cut back when they are soft. They can be planted fairly close together, and will need frequent cultivation. If there is no suitable outside location where they can be planted out, they can be plunged in a frame and potted up as it becomes necessary, but outside treatment of some kind is far preferable to the greenhouse, which is too warm, unless shaded, and they make better growth and bloom more freely in the bright sunlight.

Primulas.

The young primulas that were sown early should now be in 3-inch pots and be given as cool and airy a location as possible. To get the best growth on these plants, they should never be subjected to great heat, for the species are naturally cool growing plants on the edges of the woodland, in their native state. Outside in a frame with a lath covering is the best place that they can be grown, the pots sunk in the soil even with the rim. In potting these plants they should be placed in the soil deep enough for them to stand firmly; they will not stand deep potting, but many growers do not pot them deeply enough, and they frequently get turned over sideways during watering. They must be watered carefully, and preferably with a can with a fine rose. The later sowings will have to be carried on in the houses until they are large enough to be placed outside. They will have to be shaded, but do not shade them heavily enough to cause them to get drawn.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Seasonable Suggestions

The principal work connected with the chrysanthemums during the month of April and early May is to get together and work along a sufficient number of the young plants for the coming season's plantings and needs. Preliminary to this, a plan of the intended planting should be worked out, and then, arrange for the required number of plants, either by propagation or purchase. According to all reports, there is a very heavy demand for young chrysanthemum plants this year, so that it will be a wise policy to make sure of your needs without further delay before the stock is exhausted, and when making up the selection, do not confine it to the cheapest and most common kinds, but try out some of the newer and more valuable offerings.

Paul Richmond in Utah.
Formerly of Chicago, Now with the Miller Floral Co., Salt Lake City.

To be successful with the very early varieties, they should be planted in their permanent bench quarters by May 20-31. These, therefore, should be the first on the list to be taken care of. One important thing in connection with the early varieties is not to allow them to become hard and woody in the early stages of their growth or they will bud up quickly without having made sufficient growth. They should receive close attention to their needs, and grown cool, to enable them to keep up their active growth while they remain in the pots, then, when planted in the bench, they will go right ahead.

The propagating bed is necessarily a very important factor in working up the stock, and at this time needs more careful watching than earlier in the season on account of the weather conditions not permitting as steady bottom heat to be used as was the case three or four weeks ago, consequently, the sand does not keep as warm or remain as sweet as previously. This makes it very important to use fresh sand only, and pay particular attention to the spraying and shading of the cuttings, so that they do not wilt to any great extent. Give free ventilation, and avoid a close, stuffy atmosphere at any time during day and night.

As the cuttings become rooted, pot them up before the roots have a chance to lengthen out and become wiry. Use a live, fresh sandy loam soil, and pot firmly. Our plan is to wash the roots clean as they are taken from the sand by dipping them in a pail of clear water. This lessens any danger of disease being taken from the cutting bed sand, and freshens the roots so that they take hold of the soil quickly. After potting, the young plants should receive a good watering, kept a little close, and shaded from the direct sunlight. As they become established in the soil, give them more ventilation, and pay particular attention to the watering at the roots, and syringing. Chrysanthemums require liberal waterings to keep them in active growth, but it can very easily be overdone, and the best results are obtained with the plants when the soil at their roots is not kept extremely wet, but allowed to dry out to a moderate degree between each watering.

The earlier propagated stock, now in the advanced stage of their growth, should be repotted as their condition demands. Do not allow them to suffer for the want of attention in this respect, but encourage them to remain strong and sturdy, by looking closely after their needs. At this season of the year, the greenhouse benches are generally crowded to their limit, and all hands are very busy with the spring work, but even taking these facts into consideration, the grower has to look ahead and not neglect any of his stock that is expected to produce results next fall and winter.

Well advanced plants, intended for bush specimens, should be kept closely pinched back to encourage them to make new growths. They should also be repotted when ready, and given ample room to develop themselves.

Do not neglect the regular fumigating to rid the plants of insects. In a short while, the weather conditions will not be so favorable for this work, and spraying will have to be resorted to, but just now, while the weather continues cool, it is good policy to keep up the regular fumigating about once every two weeks.

C. W. JOHNSON.

American Rose Society.

An executive committee meeting of the American Rose Society was held at the City Club, New York, April 22, 1920. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were accepted as read.

The secretary was instructed to send a letter of appreciation to Captain George Thomas for his assistance in making the 1920 American Rose Annual attractive by a donation of three colored plates of roses originated by him. It was voted that the society should publish an annual report to its members, giving the proceedings of the society for the year, with a list of its members, and other information covering the affiliation of local rose societies, rules governing amateur exhibitions, and the purposes for which the society's medals would be awarded.

It was voted that the secretary be authorized to inform the English and French rose societies that the executive committee of the American Rose Society has approved withholding registration of American varieties until assured that the same name has not been registered abroad.

The president appointed the following honorary vice-presidents for the year 1920-1921: E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; John Cook, Baltimore, Md.; Captain George C. Thomas, Chestnut Hill, Pa., and Charles E. F. Gersdorff, Rosslyn, Va.

It was voted that a new scale be adopted for judging displays of cut roses as follows: Artistic arrangement, 40; quality of bloom, 40; variety, 20.

The Washington rose show garden committee made a report of progress through the chairman of the committee, J. Horace McFarland. Frederick Law Olmsted has offered to produce a plan for such a garden, providing the American Rose Society would assume the responsibility for its development. It was voted that the report be accepted, and that a project for the development of the garden be referred back to the committee.

It was voted that the American Rose Society's gold medal be sent to the Portland Rose Society, to be awarded at its June meeting in compliance with the rules of the American Rose Society.

It was also voted that the president be requested to send a letter of condolence to Benjamin Hammond on the death of Mrs. Hammond.

Dr. A. C. Beal, chairman of the rose test garden committee, made a report of various pilgrimages to be held during the spring of 1920. These are announced as follows: Washington, D. C., June 3; Hartford, Conn., June 24; Ithaca, N. Y., June 25; Portland, Ore., June 25, and Minneapolis, Minn., July 3. It was voted that the society should hold a general meeting at Washington at the time of the garden exhibition. It was voted that the president should present the Hubbard gold medal to E. G. Hill at the June meeting in Washington, D. C.

A letter was read from Secretary Young stating that there would be a meeting of the national flower show committee held in Cleveland during the month of June, at which time all questions regarding the conduct of the next national flower show will be discussed and decided upon. President Pyle stated that he expected at the meeting to represent the American Rose Society.

The secretary reported the total expenses of the society in connection with maintaining a booth at the New York flower show, March 15-21, 1920, to be $151.25, and that 420 members availed themselves of free entrance to the show, at an expense to the society of $168.00.

The secretary made the following membership report of the society on April 21: Regular members, 1520; life members, 68; affiliated members, 430, and honorary members, 10. Total, 2028. E. A. WHITE, Sec'y.

BUSINESS SHOWS IMPROVED TONE.

There was a much better tone to business last week than for some time past, with a steady demand for nearly all classes of stock. We have seldom seen such fine rose blooms in the market. Ophelia, Hadley, Columbia and the different varieties of red roses are now at their best. Most of the American Beauty stock is badly mildewed and only brings $1.50 per dozen. With the exception of Laddie, there is little demand for carnations except for funeral sprays. A fine lot of tulips from outdoors is still arriving and clean up nicely. Red peonies have made their appearance and meet with much favor. Sweet peas still continue to be the most popular spring flowers. Good prices are the rule this season. Gardenias are in limited supply and there are just enough cattleyas to supply the demand. Lily of the valley is a little more plentiful. In decorative stock, pink and red hawthorn is in favor. Some finely grown campanulas in pots are being shown by the leading stores. Pot plant trade is quiet with the exception of Boston ferns, which are selling well.

NOTES.

Following the oft suggested lines of increased production, the executive committee of the Nurserymen's Bud Selection Association, met in San Jose last week, with the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association. The object was to seek the development of prune and apricot trees which will produce larger fruit of quality, at least as good as the fruit produced at present.

The many friends of Charles Willis Ward of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, will regret to hear that he is very sick, and according to his physician, no hopes are held out for his recovery. He is suffering from heart failure and asthma. Mr. Ward was always very popular with the trade here, and it is with the deepest regret that his illness is received.

M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, is a visitor this week, looking over the market for Memorial day. This is one of the biggest days of the year at his store, shipping as he does, great quantities of flowers to Nevada. He says spring trade in Sacramento is quite good.

C. Eadlee Lilly, of Santa Cruz, says the gladioli crop at that place is in fine shape this year and of the best quality. Shipments of cut blooms will start forward early in June.

Avensino Bros. are specializing on peonies at present, and are receiving some elegant stock. They also note a growing demand for lily of the valley.

It is said that the closing of the flower stores of this city on Sundays will become general before the summer months set in.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

Washington, D. C., Florists' Club.

Resolutions condemning the spreading of reports that florists of the country had taken advantage of Mothers' day to profiteer in the sale of flowers were adopted unanimously by the Florists' Club of Washington at its monthly meeting, May 4. Newspaper reports from New York and Washington, stating that florists charged as high as $1 each for white carnations last year were read and discussed, together with the appeal sent out by Miss Anna Jarvis, president of the Mothers' Day International Association, urging that instead of flowers, the day this year be observed by the display of American flags. Members of the club declared that the high limit on white carnations last year was $3 per dozen, and it was not expected that this price would be exceeded this year, basing that opinion on the expected wholesale prices, which it was estimated would range from $12 to $15 per hundred.

Members of the club severely censured persons who might be responsible for the assertion that $1 each had been charged for carnations, declaring that such statements were ridiculous and that it would be impossible to dispose of such flowers at that price.

Following the discussion of the subject, the following resolution, offered by William F. Gude, was adopted:

"Whereas, it has come to the attention of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., that there have been a number of misstatements appearing in the public press of the country to the effect that carnations were sold in the city of Washington on Mothers' day last year at as high as $1 each, and

"Whereas, such statements are not based on fact and are totally devoid of truth; therefore,

"Be it resolved, that we, the members of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., decry these erroneous statements, believing them to have come as a result of a misunderstanding on the part of the sponsors thereof, and do go on record as protesting against the same."

An entertaining description of Bermuda was the feature of the evening, an interesting talk on the island being delivered by William F. Gude, who has just returned from a trip to that famous resort.

Appreciation of the work performed by Z. D. Blackistone during his two years as president of the organization was expressed by the members of the club through the gift of a handsome cut glass water set.

J. Harper Hetherington, recently elected president, announced the appointment of the following to serve as an entertainment committee during 1920: George C. Shaffer, David J. Grillbortzer, Otto Bauer, Clarence L. Linz, Harry B. Lewis, Adolph E. Gude and George C. Dalgleish. A meeting of this committee is to be held in the near future for the purpose of electing a chairman, at which it is probable the question of an annual outing will also be discussed. B. F. L.

New York Florists' Club.

The New York Florists' Club met in its hall in the Engineering building, on the night of May 10, President Henshaw in the chair. The transportation committee for the trip to the convention of the Society of American Florists at Cleveland, O., August 17-19, reported through Thos. B. DeForest, that arrangements had been perfected to make the trip over the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western R. R.—"Phoebe Snow's" road.

A. T. De La Mare read appropriate resolutions on the death of Mrs. Benjamin Hammond, which were adopted.

The leading feature of the evening was the illustrated lecture on the iris, by Arthur Herrington, the well known all around horticulturist, and superintendent of flower shows. The lecture was interesting and instructive, the stereoptican finely illustrating the great variety and beauty of the irises.

Richard Vincent, Jr., addressed the club in behalf of the American Dahlia Society and its exhibition to be held in the roof conservatory of the Hotel Pennsylvania, this city, September 27-29. Secretary E. C. Vick, of the dahlia society, also spoke, giving important details of arrangements for the show, which will involve considerable expense for such a young society. The treasurer of the society, Wm. J. Rathgeber, was present, and spoke on the best methods of popularizing the dahlia. He joined the previous speakers in asking for the cordial support of the club members.

T. A. Weston, a newly elected member, was introduced and made a short but clever talk. Near the close of the meeting, Mr. Adams, a visitor, gave an amusing exhibition of sleight-of-hand.

The exhibition committee had nothing to offer, but hope to do better at the June meeting, which will be the last before the vacation of July and August. Max Schling exhibited specimen blooms of an unlisted white rose, said to be called the Easter Bride, in southern Europe.

The following were admitted to membership in the club: Samuel J. Clark, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; W. S. Murtfeldt, Newburgh, N. Y.; Alonzo J. Bryan, Washington, N. J.; A. C. Palm, Portchester, N. Y.; T. A. Weston, New York; T. E. King, Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y.; Wm. A. Finger, Jr., Hicksville, N. Y.; J. P. Mossmann, Hackensack, N. J.

Chas. H. Totty, for the flower show committee, reported that a meeting of the committee had been held in the afternoon, and stated that efforts were being made to provide new and special features for the next show.

COAL for next winter should be put in as early as possible.

FLOWERS and food continue in strong demand in most European countries, at high prices.

PORTO RICO is coming to the front as a source of arecas, kentias and dracaenas for the American market.

THE stand of the Society of American Florists' in the Mothers' day controversy, as set forth by Secretary John Young on the first and following pages of this issue, is highly commendable.

SECRETARY A. F. J. BAUR, of the American Carnation Society, has favored us with a copy of the report of the twenty-ninth annual meeting of that organization, held at Chicago, January 21-22, 1920.

THE liberal newspaper publicity given the opposition to the use of flowers for Mothers' day seems to have had the effect of stimulating rather than decreasing the demand. As stated in our issue of May 8, the baseless cry of profiteering will not materially affect the sale of flowers and plants at a fair profit.

Mothers' Day.

From reports received regarding Mothers' day business, which from all indications exceeded last year's totals by about 25 per cent, the flower buying public evidently were disinclined to accept seriously the charge, unfounded and unsupported, of the Mother's Day International Association that profiteering on the part of the florists was to be the order of the day, and while some of this propaganda found its way into the columns of the daily press in some cities, it apparently passed unnoticed. Customers in the flower shops found prices on both cut flowers and plants very moderate, showing little, if any, advance over those of a year ago, notwithstanding higher production costs. Carnations, as usual, were far below the demand, especially white sorts, but nevertheless, purchasers seemed well satisfied with the high quality of blooms offered at $2.50 and $3 per dozen, more than that being asked in very rare cases. In some instances, where prices seemed out of proportion, the retailers did not handle carnations, and found that other stock of good quality was just as acceptable. The well-directed publicity of the Society of American Florists was evident in both local and Florists' Telegraph Delivery business, and to even a greater extent where a co-operative spirit was manifested locally. Nearly all reports thus far received are to the effect that everything available moved freely to a quick cleanup. "Say it With Flowers" undoubtedly expressed the sentiment of the day to a greater extent than ever before.

Fake Insecticides.

In a recent communication from a prominent firm of Indiana florists, our attention is called to an insect destroyer which requires no spraying, the method of treatment being to inject the powder into the trees, where, to quote the circular telling of its many virtues, "It Works in Sap, Like Iron in Blood," one treatment lasting five years. Our correspondent, who received a dozen of these circulars, with a letter asking him to sell the goods, forwarded one of them to Frank N. Wallace, state entomologist, Indianapolis. His reply was as follows:

April 19, 1920.

"In reply to yours of April 13, will say that the "Royal Insect Destroyer" is a fake, pure and simple. The sad part about some of these things is that, once in a while, the men that get them up, really believe in them, but nevertheless they are fakes. You would be wasting your time to do anything with this, and if you attempted to sell it, I am sure you would only have trouble with your customers. May I keep the circular as I should like to look them up? I am in hopes that the government can get after such people through the interstate commerce laws."

"Ship by Truck" Essay Contest.

High school students of the country will be given opportunity to compete for a four-year university scholarship to be awarded for the best essay submitted in connection with "Ship by Truck—Good Roads" week, May 17-22. According to plans approved by P. P. Claxton, commissioner of the federal bureau of education, contestants to be eligible for the national prize must have won one of the prizes to be awarded by various organizations and individuals in their respective communities. High school students may submit a 500-word essay, which must be entitled "Ship by Truck and Good Roads." The national prize is known as the H. S. Firestone University Scholarship, and will be given in any college or university selected by the winner. School superintendents are being acquainted with the terms of the contest, which will close May 22.

United States Botanic Garden.

In its rotogravure section, May 2, the Washington Star devoted a full page to illustrations of a number of the principal features of interest of the United States botanic gardens in that city, with an excellent portrait of George W. Hess, director. There are splendid views of the Bartholdi fountain purchased by Congress at the close of the Centennial exposition in Philadelphia, Pa.; a section of the rotunda of the main conservatory, showing an acacia tree planted by President Grant; a picture of one of the large beds of flowers, with the capitol in the distance, and fine illustrations of the European hornbeam, planted by President Lincoln; an oak from the tomb of Confucius, planted in 1865 and a specimen plant of the rattan palm.

Fertilizers.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

The reply to your correspondent under this head, issue of May 8, page 846, is very effectively made by C. W. Johnson. We would, however, like to correct his impression with reference to the main uses for these concentrated manures, which he states are dressing of lawns and gardens, in other words, for outdoor application. While this demand takes a large tonnage of our output, there are tremendous quantities of both pulverized sheep and cattle manures used by the florists and vegetable growers for under glass soil preparation, mulching, etc. This is especially true of the pulverized and shredded cattle manure.

THE PULVERIZED MANURE CO.

Soul of Business.

"The building of character is the soul of this organization," says a card from Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, "because the ideal of service is possible only with those who recognize their social responsibility to the community. The mature minds that guide the destinies of this institution today are but the ripened fruit of youthful zeal and enterprise planted in some secluded corner in years not far ago. In the alchemy of this store there is a ceaseless refinement that yields from its crucible the precious metals fittest in the welding of service. Here in the ranks today are the generals of tomorrow."

Iris Garden for Bronx Park.

The American Iris Society and the New York botanical gardens began work May 10 laying out the paths and grading the ground for the iris garden in Bronx park, New York, where thousands of varieties of the flower will be grown, according to Prof. H. A. Gleason, acting director of the New York botanical gardens.

The American Iris Society will carefully study the 2,500 varieties of iris in cultivation with a view to determining the nature of their various diseases and finding remedies.

MOTHERS' DAY DEMAND BREAKS RECORDS.

The demand for stock for Mothers' day was exceptionally heavy and exceeded all expectations, with the market cleaning up completely in all lines at an early hour each day at the advertised quotations, and even higher. The call from out-of-town points was extra strong, and it was impossible to fill anywhere near all the local orders. Carnations were in heavy demand, with fancy stock selling as high as $15 to $18 per 100, and medium flowers at $10 to $12, with very few obtainable at these figures. American Beauty roses had a splendid call, and so did Premier, Columbia and Mrs. Chas. Russell. Ophelia, Sunburst, Montrose, Mrs. George Shawyer, Milady, Richmond, Hoosier Beauty, Killarney, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, My Maryland, Champ Weiland and Mrs. Aaron Ward cleaned up early, and there was a strong call for Cecile Brunner, Elgar, Baby Doll and Nesbit. The rose offerings, like the carnation supply, cleaned up completely at high prices with short and medium stemmed stock having the preference. Orchids commanded good prices and so did lily of the valley and gardenias. Peonies were to be had in limited supply and moved fast at $15 per 100. Sweet peas were in heavy supply and moved nicely at good prices, but considerable pushing was needed to keep the tables clean, although there was no surplus when the eleventh hour demand was over. Snapdragons were quite a factor in the market and brought good prices. Calendulas, daisies, mignonette, poppies, lilac, tulips, jonquils, narcissi, lupines, candytuft, stocks, pansies and other miscellaneous seasonable flowers were all disposed of quickly at high figures. Notwithstanding the many articles in the daily papers that the florists were profiteers, the demand was heavier than the supply, which may be attributed to a large extent to the advertising by the Allied Florists' Association and the national campaign of the Society of American Florists. Stock was in fairly large supply, but the call was so great that it was impossible to take care of it properly. The market was cleaned up completely in practically every line when the stores closed for the week and everyone will agree that the demand for Mothers' day will exceed or already has in some instances exceeded that of Christmas or Easter.

MOTHERS' DAY IN THE RETAIL STORES.

The demand this year exceeded all expectations with the total sales for May 7-8 running ahead of those of the two big days preceding last Easter. The sales for the week were not quite as large as those of Easter but taking everything into consideration it was remarkably brisk, notwithstanding the fact that there was an organized effort to kill the demand by calling the florists "profiteers," etc. The heavy local advertising offset the whining stand of the would-be opposition, and when the last shot was fired, the trade was victorious with not a bit of stock left to sell. The demand was particularly strong for carnations and very heavy for roses. Peonies moved quickly and miscellaneous stock such as snapdragons, tulips, jonquils, narcissi, daisies, mignonette, lupines, stocks, candytuft, lilac, sweet peas, etc., cleaned up early. The heaviest demand was principally for medium priced stock but the buyer took what he could get in most instances rather than take a chance of not getting anything at all. Plants were in short supply and what few were offered cleaned up quickly at high prices. Tulips, jonquils, gladioli, geraniums, daisies, calceolarias, hydrangeas, rambler roses, a few azaleas and a limited supply of lily of the valley in pots were the principal offerings in this line. The weather was ideal and the only complaint to be heard on all sides was in regard to the great scarcity of stock, it being necessary to stand in line at times at some of the wholesale houses to get what one needed.

NOTES.

Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s cut flower department was entirely redecorated this week, following the biggest Mothers' day trade on record. John Poehlmann is confident that the Memorial day business will be exceptionally heavy this year because it falls on Sunday.

O. Johnson, formerly with the Batavia Greenhouse Co., is now in business for himself selling investment securities. His headquarters are in rooms 610-612, 181 Quincy street.

The Joseph Foerster Co. had a splendid Mothers' day business which cleaned up all the stock it had to offer, including the shipments that arrived at the eleventh hour.

Bassett & Washburn had such a heavy call for stock for Mothers' day that it was impossible to fill anywhere near the demand. Their shipping trade was particularly large.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is handling a large quantity of choice adiantum which is good property now. This firm's Mothers' day trade was a record breaker.

EXTRA SPECIAL STOCK BILLED ACCORDINGLY

The directors of the Allied Florists' Association met Tuesday afternon, May 11, when it was decided to appropriate a sum to decorate a suitable float for the parade to be held, Friday afternoon, celebrating the opening of the Michigan boulevard link. All florists were invited to participate in the parade but all delivery trucks must be decorated. Over 400 industries will be represented and never before was such a golden opportunity available to parade the "Say it With Flowers" slogan before so many people. The association is co-operating with the Tribune fund to decorate the graves of our dead soldiers in France. Placards bearing the words, "Cover Them With Flowers" and money containers are being placed in every retail store, through all the wholesale houses where those who have not already obtained same can do so at once.

Ronsley had the order for the Zukor-Roth wedding last week, which amounted to nearly $2,000 and included the bridal bouquet of orchids and lily of the valley, 10 bridesmaids bouquets and a number of corsages for members of both families. The bridal bouquet alone cost $300. Mr. Zukor is a moving picture man and is president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. disposed of a large quantity of stock for Mothers' day which was much greater than in the past. Carnations were in especially heavy demand at this house, but everything sold up early at high prices.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. have no kick coming in regard to their Mothers' day business which was the best ever. The out-of-town demand was exceptionally heavy and the city trade was exceedingly brisk.

Paul Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is enthusiastic over the remarkable demand for Mothers' day when the total sales at this house were exceptionally heavy.

Erne & Company enjoyed a splendid Mothers' day business with an early cleanup in stock each day. Mr. Erne anticipated a heavy demand but was surprised at the quick disposal of stock.

Wietor Bros. had a heavy cut of roses and carnations for Mothers' day but sold the stock as fast as it reached the store. N. J. Wietor says the total sales for the week made a new record.

Peter Reinberg found it impossible to fill anywhere near the demand for Mothers' day according to Herbert Hansen, although the regular customers were all well taken care of.

The A. L. Randall Co. moved a good supply of peonies in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable stock for Mothers' day which was the largest ever at this establishment.

The Weiland-Risch Co. had a few gladioli to offer in addition to its regular line for Mothers' day which cleaned up quickly like everything else.

The E. F. Winterson Co. is having a good call for green thread which it attributes to the special offer it is making on this item this month.

The John Kruchten Co. cleaned up everything it had to offer for Mothers' day at an early hour, including a large supply of fancy sweet peas.

The J. A. Budlong Co. never enjoyed such a brisk business for Mothers' day as this year and such a complete early cleanup.

Tonner's are pleased with their Mothers' day trade and cleaned up completely in all lines.

Hilmer V. Swenson is the proud father of a baby girl who arrived May 11.

Mrs. Marie Augusta Blome, wife of William Blome, fond mother of William, Emil, Paul, Arthur and Ida Schmidt, died this week. The funeral was held from the late home at 3928 North Irving avenue with services last Wednesday at 2 o'clock at Rosehill chapel. The family have the sympathy of the entire trade in their great loss.

Phil Foley, Jr., was arrested Monday evening, May 10, for speeding in River Forest. He was in a hurry to get the crew home from Maywood, where the Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. is building a new range for Hans Jepsen.

Allie Zech received a telegram last week from H. J. W. Richmond, Sullivan, Ind., reporting the death of his son, who was killed in an automobile accident. The funeral was held Mothers' day.

Miss Bess Wonderleigh, of the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, drove here in her new car, May 12. She had considerable tire trouble but managed to reach this city all right.

Geo. V. Wienhoeber had some unusually well grown hydrangeas in his window the past week. His Mothers' day trade was the best he ever experienced.

H. F. Pahud, of the Pahud Floral Co., Indianapolis, Ind., spent several days here last week buying stock for Mothers' day. He reports a brisk season.

Vaughan's new retail stores at 10 and 12 West Randolph street, did a normal business the opening week beginning May 10.

A. Vanderpoel is now located in his new store and greenhouse at 4022 Colorado avenue.

Visitors: Chas. Graham, Cleveland, O.; C. Russell, of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, O.; John M. Carey, Detroit, Mich.; A. Barber, of the Park Flower Shop, Cleveland, O.; L. Pennock, of Pennock Bros., Philadelphia, Pa.; Ed. Amerpohl, Janesville, Wis.; W. Kenyon, South Bend, Ind.; Martin Reukauf of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Randolph, May 6, with a good attendance. President Waters in the chair. Eric Paselk, Morton Grove, and L. A. Woodward, 208 South La Salle street, were elected to membership, and E. D. Burton, 900 Masonic Temple, H. E. Larson, 431 South Dearborn street, R. P. Bohlander, Hillside, Frank Psenicka, Grosse Point, and Aram Mestjian, Wilmette, were nominated for membership.

The feature of the evening was a second presentation, by request, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co.'s moving pictures, entitled, "Wonderland Under Glass," with an interesting address by E. D. Burton, the company's sales manager. The films for the moving pictures, Mr. Burton said, were produced at a cost of $3,500.00, showing greenhouses in the process of manufacture and construction. Many additions are contemplated, covering greenhouse operations, plant diseases, methods of culture, etc. These pictures have proved very helpful in the making of sales, as they bring the greenhouses direct to the prospective purchaser instead of, as formerly, taking the purchaser to the actual greenhouse establishment.

Owing to the inability of Hilmer V. Swenson to attend, his assistant, H. E. Larson, displayed the Society of American Florists' moving picture, entitled, "Her Birthday." Mr. Larson, referring to the publicity service of the national society, pointed out the desirability of retailers using the dealers' helps in promoting their business. Advertising materials, such as billboards, posters, folders, posterettes, stereopticon slides, etc., embodying selling suggestions, have been specially prepared for florists' use, also short moving picture films. The films and slides may be rented as needed.

Chairman James Morton, and Ralph B. Howe, of the garden committee, reported an extensive distribution of garden booklets among school superintendents and others interested in the garden movement. Members desiring these booklets for local distribution should address James Morton, 66-72 East Randolph street.

An invitation was received from the Allied Florists' Association to attend an important meeting at the Hotel Randolph, May 13, at 8 p. m., and the invitation was accepted.

Chairman Guy W. French, of the good-of-the-club committee, announced that on account of the waiters' strike, the May party had to be postponed.

MOTHER'S DAY SHOWS LARGE GAIN.

With fair and cool weather for Mothers' day, business was fully 25 per cent greater than last year, notwithstanding the propaganda to replace flowers with flags. Carnations were of very good quality, especially white and Ward. Enchantress was not so good. Roses, snapdragons, stocks, sweet peas and jonquils were plentiful. Plants were much in demand but were very scarce.

NOTES.

S. A. Anderson's building on Main street is being torn down and all that will be left is a temporary roof over the flower shop. When completed in August, this firm will have a fine home.

Miss Minnie Wilson, who has been assistant bookkeeper at S. A. Anderson's, has resigned to take a much needed rest.

Mrs. E. Douglas Savage and children have gone to England for a visit. Douglas is now keeping "batchelor's hall."

John Flebelkorn, of W. J. Palmers staff, has his "Shiver Lay" car painted all ready for the summer.

The Colonial Flower Shop is now located in its new quarters.

MOTHERS' DAY CLEANS MARKET.

"Every Knock is a Boost," was never more truly proved than for Mothers' day for, with some agitation against wearing high priced flowers, and the possibility of profiteering, no one in our business ever experienced such a craze for flowers, either cut or in pots, as the past Saturday and Sunday. Weather conditions for the growers were just the opposite of that which prevailed the week before Easter. After a seige of cold days and still cooler nights, it began to warm up about May 4, and from then on, continued to increase until Sunday, May 9, when it reached the 78° official mark in the shade. These favorable codditions brought on an avalanche of roses, carnations, sweet peas, lilies, etc., but the demand was so great that by Saturday night, our three wholesalers had to close for want of supply. There were some good snapdragons which cleaned up at sight at from $2 to $3 per dozen. While shipping orders which went out before Friday, were nearly all filled complete, those that came in late had to be cut, while some could not be touched at all. As some of the consumers realized that a pot with one or more flowering plants was a better investment, these too had their inning; after the meager supply of hydrangeas, roses and other leftovers from Easter were gone. Many thousands of geraniums, daisies, and in fact anything with a flower, was eagerly grabbed up, regardless of price or size. While wholesale prices throughout were not exorbitant, it is a shame and disgrace to our profession when we hear that just a few took advantage of the situation and charged a retail price way out of proportion to what they paid for the stock. While the general public is willing to pay more for everything, because, earning more, that they have the money is no excuse for anyone in the florist business to profiteer and thereby heap shame and disgrace, not only on themselves, but the innocent likewise. Something ought to be done to bring the guilty parties to time.

NOTES.

The regular florists' club meeting held May 6, was fairly well attended but a good many regulars, being busy with preparation for the past holiday, were prevented from hearing the illustrated talk on "Alaska," by one of the public museum officials, which proved to be highly interesting and instructive. Tom Skinner, local, Harry Penstein, local, and Arnold Brueggemann, of North Milwaukee, were elected to membership.

MOTHERS' DAY BREAKS RECORD.

Favored by magnificent weather, and pushed along by a last-minute, rapid-fire co-operative publicity campaign Mothers' day business here smashed all records and almost every florist cleaned up completely. Never has the writer seen such a variety of excellent flowering plants for this day, and the advertising, directed principally to plants, created a great demand. Cut flowers sent in from local growers were excellent stock, and there was scarcely any increase in prices. Stirred by the unfavorable publicity featured on the front page of one of the leading daily papers, in which a boycott on flowers was urged by the Mothers' Day International Association, both growers and retailers here made a determined effort to keep prices on a reasonable level. They succeeded admirably, and the public was never offered such splendid stock at such modest prices. Many retailers curtailed their orders on carnations, and refused to raise prices on those sold. This method is the only cure for the situation. Everyone in the trade ought to realize that Mothers' day is one day, which because of its beautiful sentiment, should preclude any price advance. In the line of plants, there were excellent quantities of hydrangeas retailing at $1 to $10; Darwin tulips, at $2 to $6; hyacinths, $1 and up; begonias, $1.50 to $3; daisies, $1.50 to $3; Martha Washington geraniums, $1.25 to $2; also a fine display of genistas and primroses. Carnations, of course, were scarce, and retailed for $3. Roses were of excellent quality, plentiful, and ranged in price from $2 to $6. Sweet peas were unusualy plentiful for this time, and of excellent quality. They were in great demand at from $1 to $2 per bunch. Darwin tulips retailed for $2 and $3. Snapdragons brought $3 and $4. Daffodills were plentiful at $1 per dozen. Numerous telegraph orders were received from all parts of this country and Canada, and many were sent out.

NOTES.

Miss Helen Patten had a splendid interview in one of the daily papers, in which she stated that the public could help keep prices down by not insisting on carnations, and refuted the charge made that florists were profiteering. She had a fine supply of plants and cut flowers and sold out completely by Sunday noon.

Feniger, who has an excellent location on Adams street, filled the sidewalk in front of his store with daisies for Mothers' day, and they sold like hot-cakes. He also had a wonderful display of hydrangeas and other plants. He reports the biggest business ever done.

Schramm Brothers advertised heavily, using the S. A. F. material and smashed all records for business. They did not handle carnations, but sold lots of plants at reasonable prices.

FINE MOTHERS' DAY BUSINESS.

Mothers' day has passed into history as one of the best ever. The newspaper criticisms, published in the daily press throughout the country, in an effort to destroy the sale of flowers on this day was checkmated promptly in practically every city. Locally, it was well handled, and eventually the publicity worked to the advantage of the trade. While the market sold out on nearly everything, the prices appeared entirely too high for this late holiday. Roses of all kinds were in big supply, and not nearly enough good stock to go around. Red roses are not plentiful and find ready buyers and the same may be said of White Killarney. Premier is the best at present, with Butterfly and Columbia about even in suply and demand. Miscellaneous stock, snapdragons, yellow and white daisies, baby primroses, forget-me-nots, mignonette, etc., moved well but will be long items from now on.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell continues to lead in choice red roses. Miscellaneous items are all of good quality here.

The Avondale Floral Co. sold out everything in plants in bloom. Cut flowers went well, too.

T. W. Hardesty, Julius Baer and Robert Kelly say business was away ahead of last year.

H. W. Sheppard sold out everything but the register. F. T. D. business was unusually heavy.

Edward Forter says business was fine. Much more stock could not have been handled.

Frank Voltz is cutting some extra fine pink snapdragons.

MOTHERS' DAY MAKES GOOD SHOWING.

Mothers' day business was much larger than in any previous year, but there did not seem to be the same vim of other special days of the year. There was no advertising done by the local florists; in fact, only the free advertising the newspapers gave the trade by calling on the public to wear flags instead of flowers, but it was few flags that were worn here. The demand was larger than ever and the two main factors, carnations and roses were in short supply. With the exception of carnations and short roses, there was no increase in prices. The supply of American Beauties was small, which is just as well, as the quality was poor. The call was for Russell, Premier and Columbia in the order named, and the stock was good. The surprise of the day was the quantity of first-class snapdragons that arrived. Never before were so many handled in this market, and as the price was reasonable, they cleaned up without any trouble. Sweet peas brought another surprise. The supply was much larger than expected, and the quality was fine! The next and last big day of the season is Memorial day, which this year should be better than ever. This market depends on peonies for this day, but the season is about two weeks later than usual, and unless we have unusually warm weather, it looks as though the supply would be small.

NOTES.

E. J. McCallum, of the McCallum Company, has returned from a visit to the Detroit branch. Chas. Edgar, who represents the firm in the middle-west, and wife, are spending several days at headquarters, getting new samples. For the next few weeks, Mr. Edgar will call on the eastern trade, making Philadelphia his headquarters.

On April 30 the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Company held its regular monthly dinner for employes at Kramer's. The company has made a feature of these monthly dinners and get together meetings, and has found them of great benefit both to employer and employe.

Pete Hopman, of New Galilee, Pa., is making heavy shipments of snapdragons to the McCallum Company. His Mothers' day shipments totaled about 7,000.

The Zeiger Company has been busy with several large weddings, having worked all night preparing for one of them. M.

TRADE INCLINES TO DULLNESS.

Market conditions for the past week have been rather listless. The most activity is noticed in bedding stock and pot plants. There has been a marked scarcity of pot primroses, while hawthorns and firm-stemmed hydrangeas have been hard to get. The preference seems to be for pansies, asters and geraniums, the supply of which has hardly been able to balance the demand. The first Japanese cherry blossoms are appearing and are proving great favorites with the trade, owing to their double bloom and warm color. The rose crop is not large, but the cut is increasing, and the quality is very satisfactory. Ophelia, especially, has a good color. Ward and Premier are a little short, but the arrivals of Mrs. Charles Russell are increasing. Sweet peas from the local greenhouses are very plentiful and of extraordinarily good color. They are making the best showing of the season. The quality of the California irises, has proven somewhat disappointing and deliveries are falling off, owing to their lack of popularity. The first fuschias from the southern market are attracting considerable attention and a good sale is anticipated.

NOTES.

What is said to be a new cactus is being displayed in the show windows of Rosaia Bros., this week. The plant, which is about four feet in circumference, has nearly 250 blossoms of a deep, rich red color. The plant is a production of their own greenhouses. They are also showing a fine sturdy hydrangea of an orchid-lavender shade. The blooms are fully four inches in diameter, and all double. They are furnished by Domato Bros., of San Francisco, Calif.

The Hollywod Gardens are making a window specialty of snapdragons, tastefully arranged in tall blue baskets. These flowers, which were grown at the firm's own greenhouses, are in some cases, combined with Ophelia roses with striking effect. The resulting sales have been very satisfying.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop is showing a novel display of soft flexible straw hats, arranged in shape of May baskets, and containing combinations of spring flowers. Some arranged with black tulips, attracted especial attention.

Harry Day, manager of the Orpheum Floral Co., says that there has been a good demand for double calceolarias, but he has been inconvenienced by inability to fill the orders for local grown dahlias.

Some of the narcissi shown by Fred H. Rowe, of McCoy's, are the finest of the season. They average four bright glossy blooms to the stalk, and are very strong and hardy.

Mrs. Anna F. Burns has an attractive display of early California fuchsias, which are being welcomed by the trade.

MOTHERS DAY MAKES GOOD SHOWING.

A combination of a week of cool weather, which shortened the supply, together with an increasing Mothers' day demand, this year, the best ever, made a very satisfactory showing for all branches of the trade when the business closed Saturday night. It was a busy period, with demand and prices increasing until the climax was reached Thursday and Friday, when the full stocks of carnations arrived, and the dealers knew where they were at. Carnations were, of course, the feature. It is estimated that some 200,000 were handled for the week through this market. Prices started Monday at $8 for colored and $10 to $12 for white. Later on, the whites brought $15 and other colors $12. Finally, on Saturday, whites jumped to $20, with other colors, $15. Laddie sold for $20, but there was not much stock sold at these high figures. $15 being considered standard for good stock. As is usual at Mothers' day, the street men are willing to pay the top figures as they generally sell their stock out in single flowers as boutonnieres and get the highest prices. Some of the wholesale dealers, and a number of street men made personally conducted tours to the New York market for Mothers' day carnations, where they found the wise ones waiting for them with a limited supply at prices almost as high as the local market. In fact, quite so, when expenses were added. It is estimated that less than 25,000 flowers were obtained by at least 25 purchasers. On account of the cool weather, the quality of nearly all carnation stocks was fine, there being very little complaint about sleepy flowers. The demand for all varieties of flowers was also quickened, the impulse being felt all along the line, prices advancing fully 25 per cent over those of the week previous. The quantity stock was sweet peas, the cool weather had been favorable to them. They sold from 50 cents to $2 per hundred. There were also quantities of yellow daisies and snapdragons, the latter selling from $1 to $1.50 per dozen sprays. Outside lilac was in, and large quantities were sold on many street corners. As to prices, white carnations were taken at $15 without a word of complaint, it being considered a fair price; $18 and $20, asked by some on Saturday, was not favorably received, and only paid under protest and dire necessity. The broadcast statement of Miss Jarvis, accusing the trade of profiteering, which some of the Philadelphia papers gave first-page prominence, aside from the indignation of the craft, appeared to have no effect, as the demand here was never better, and not one person was reported as being seen wearing a miniature flag. The newspapers exploited the day considerably with fullpage illustrated essays and stories of the mothers of prominent men. There were also strong editorials. Mothers' day and its observance, in which flowers play such a prominent part is now a national holiday. As far as any control over it, Miss Jarvis no longer holds the reins. It is fully established, and it is up to the trade in every community to exploit and feature this annual flower event. Both the Press and Public Ledger gave interviews with the trade, in which the local craft strenuously denied any profiteering, giving wholesale and retail prices of white carnations which show very small profits.

May 10.—Today's reports of Mothers' day business served to confirm the earlier opinions that it was the best ever. Even a drenching rain, which lasted until 2 p. m. Saturday, and put a damper on earlier sales, only made the afternoon and later trade all the stronger, giving both the stores and streetmen a chance to make a complete cleanup. The only stocks not in demand were the higher grades of roses, callas and long snapdragons. This morning's shipments were in fair volume and found good call. Carnations opened at eight cents and held that price all day.

NOTES.

The growers' conclave, which followed the adjourned meeting of the florists' club, was very interesting. Alfred M. Campbell, who was appointed to the chair, started at once to get down to brass tacks, calling one after the other of those present to voice their views as to the advantages of a growers' associtaion. The various opinions were for the most part favorable, a number wondering why their branch of the trade have not joined together long ago. After considerable discussion, it was agreed to send five men to the growers' convention at Cleveland to represent the growers who make this city their market, the following being elected: Alfred M. Campbell, H. L. Foust, Robert A. Craig, J. K. Thompson and James Heacock. John Andre acted as secretary. The meeting adjourned to come together for a permanent organization the third Tuesday in June, the place of meeting to be announced later.

The exhibit of flowering and foliage plants made by the Robert Craig Co. at the last meeting of the florists' club was extensive and showed quality. Geranium Alice Lemon is a beautiful pink, very profuse, with large heads of bloom. Their new double white daisy, Craigii, looks like a sterling novelty. There were also well flowered miniature hydrangeas and bougainvilleas. The vases of the new white rose, Mrs. John Cook, made a good impression. Wallace R. Pierson, who grew the flowers, believes it will be a good forcing variety, they having cut seven flowers to a plant in one month.

A. B. Cartledge, Jr., is much pleased with his business at the new Susquehanna avenue store. He has installed George Faulkner as manager, whose hustling abilities, together with his long experience, make him eminently fitted for the place.

Alfred M. Campbell, John Berger and Jacob Duetscher, bucked the New York flower market the past week. Object, white carnations. The cool weather of the week, however, cut down the supply so that there was little doing.

GOOD WEATHER FAVORS MARKET.

Continued cool weather was one cause for keeping the wholesale markets in a fairly prosperous condition during the past week. In various lines, the supply of stock was somewhat reduced, and there was an increase in prices. Special American Beauty roses advanced to $60, and in some instances, $75 per 100. There was also a slight advance in good tea roses and other stocks. Carnation prices advanced from $6 and $8 per 100, May 5, to $12, $15 and $18, May 7-8. It has been stated that some of the best whites sold for $20 per 100, which may have happened in the case of a few small lots. The high prices realized for carnations may be attributed almost exclusively to out-of-town buyers. There were buyers from Philadelphia in the markets on almost every day of the past week, and outgoing shipments were heavy. The local retail trade has never received great encouragement from Mothers' day business, and most of the retailers were averse to buying heavily at such high prices. They were probably further restrained by so much unfavorable newspaper comment. Throughout May 8, there was a steady downpour of rain, which further discouraged trade.

May 10.—The weather continues springlike and business is active. Reports from all parts of the city, and from neighboring cities and towns, indicate that Mother's day business was good, but not confined to the sale of carnations. It now appears that the business of the day has got into a more rational channel; to wit, that the people are buying extensively of all kinds of flowers and also plants. That is what we have advocated. If the day is to be considered, let the lines of Christmas and Easter be followed, and educate the people to that idea. Confining the trade to carnations, creates a shortage, plays into the hands of speculators, leaves other good stock unsold, and creates general dissatisfaction.

MOTHERS' DAY IN RETAIL STORES.

After the steady downpour of rain, May 8, Mothers' day was clear and springlike. Many people were on the streets, but there was no evidence that the day was being observed by wearing carnations. In crowds totaling thousands, the writer did not see one dozen carnations. There were various observances of the day—but not by wearing carnations. In a number of retail stores visited there was considerable activity in orchids, roses, sweet peas, lilac and other flowers. Indeed, in these times of high prices, it was not to be expected that an extravagant price would be paid for carnations when many other flowers were being peddled on the streets. A number of retailers, on account of high prices, discouraged their customers from buying carnations.

NOTES.

The eighty-ninth annual exhibition of The American Institute of the City of New York will be held November 3-5, in the Engineering building, 25-33 West 39th street. Chrysanthemums will be the principal exhibits, but the show will include roses, carnations, fruits, garden vegetables, etc. For schedule of prizes address Wm. A. Eagleson, secretary, board of managers, 324 West 23rd street.

John Doganges, formerly a well-known retailer of this city, died May 5, aged 50 years. He is survived by two brothers, Thomas and N. A. Doganges, who are in the retail business at 2685 Broadway.

Manager Perry, of the Dards store, stated that they had a fairly good trade in carnations, retailing them at $2.50 per dozen.

Hession, Madison avenue and 76th street, had a sign in his window, May 8, offering carnations at $2.50 per dozen.

American Seed Trade Association.

E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, 216 Prospect Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., has been placed under corn borer quarantine, effective May 8.

THE Continental Seed Co., Chicago, has moved its offices to 327 South La Salle street.

GUADALOUPE, CALIF.—Dr. Franklin, of the L. D. Waller Seed Co., was presented with a fine boy, May 4.

IT is said the freesia crop in southern California has not been injured as badly as in the northern section.

FOTTLER, FISKE, RAWSON Co., Boston, Mass., reports that April business was never better than was the case this year.

VISITED CHICAGO: C. C. Massie, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; F. H. Henry, of Henry & Lee, New York.

RETAIL seedsmen of Chicago report last week the busiest of the season. A. Henderson & Co. had their high record day, May 8.

THE United States surplus property division, Washington, D. C., offers at Schenectady, N. Y., 400,000 pounds of dried beans in 100-pound sacks.

THE Sibley Warehouse, for 30 years storage headquarters at Chicago for the seed trade, will be remodeled and used for other purposes hereafter.

THE farm bureau has appealed to the public to "stop eating potatoes" until the planting season in the north is over, to avert a national potato famine.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, reports a normal business at its new retail stores, 10 and 12 West Randolph street, the opening week, beginning May 10.

W. B. HAYT, the well known southern representative of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., is home again at Fishkill, N. Y., after a long and successful season.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, May 12, were as follows: Timothy, $9.00 to $11.00 per 100 pounds. Red clover $30.00 to $38.00.

RETAIL business, it is stated by the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, is running in excess of other years, with wholesale trade holding its own. Sales in general are very good considering the season.

RAILROADS east of the Mississippi, and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers, covering what is known as the official classification territory, have agreed to ask for a 30 per cent increase in freight rates.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—The J. Steckler Seed Co., Ltd., say that while the entire spring business was a little late, April sales have shown a gain of about 36 per cent over the same month last year, with indications of a continuance of good business during May, in which case, the decrease earlier in the season will be overcome.

NEW YORK.—A. C. Webster, formerly manager of the seed department of the Ames Plow Co., Boston, Mass., is now with Weeber & Don. Business was quite active in the seed trade district during the week ending May 8.

THE improved demand and higher prices for millet and sorghum is attributed to the backward spring which prevented the desired seeding of clovers and grasses. Buckwheat is said to be in the same class as millet and sorghum this season.

THE Rudy-Patrick Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo., referring to item in our issue of April 24, say they are not carrying stocks in Chicago for general merchandising there, and only held for shipment from that city one small lot which had been bought there.

VARIETIES of vegetables well suited for South Dakota conditions are listed in an interesting bulletin, "The Balanced Garden," which is now being distributed by the extension division of state college, Brookings. The list includes perennial and annual crops.

FLORAL PARK, N. Y.—Compared with the corresponding month last year, April showed an increase of 96 per cent in business, according to John Lewis Childs, notwithstanding the fact that March business was the best in the firm's history and the season late.

AN unusually good demand for seed potatoes was noted in eastern and southeastern markets during April, and prices advanced considerably, according to the government report of May 8. At the close of the month, jobbers were quoting about $8.00 per 100 pounds for Cobblers and Green Mountains.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—James Vick's Sons say truckers in this section are unable to get sufficient help to handle the crops this season, which cuts down the demand in this line. This firm will have a considerable acreage in asters, and will add to its list of vegetable seeds, although the cost of production will be almost double that of former years. The work, however, is well advanced, considering the season. The retail business started late but has been very heavy the past few weeks, especially the mail orders. The help and transportation difficulties here have been much the same as those experienced elsewhere.

A. J. BROWN, of Grand Rapids, Mich., writes from San Francisco, Calif., May 7, that he expects to be home, May 16. He finds a light acreage planted in the Santa Clara and San Joaquin valleys, and is of the opinion that there will not be a large surplus of garden seed, of the varieties produced in this section, after the wholesale trade which draws its needs from this locality has been supplied.

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—The Travellers hotel here looks like a seed trade convention headquarters, with representatives of 10 or a dozen well known seed growers in attendance. Something like 25,000 acres of garden peas are said to be planted within a radius of 20 miles. Frost damage, reported in this department last week, is now said to be 25 per cent, and confined to early varieties. Later kinds promise an excellent crop.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—President C. C. Massie, of Northrup, King & Co., says that with the season fully two weeks late, prices high and a shortage of help, farmers are not buying heavily. There is, however, an excellent demand for oats, barley and corn, indicating increased acreages of coarse grain. Forage seeds are meeting with good sale. The garden seed demand is fully equal to that of April, 1919, which, however, was a very quiet month. On the whole the month's business compares well with a year ago. With continued favorable weather, active May business is anticipated.

Cold Weather Delays Iowa Corn.

Des Moines, May 5.—This year was the coldest since 1907, and as one result plowing for corn in Iowa is probably not more than one-quarter done, and there has been no corn planting as yet, according to the weekly weather and crop bulletin issued today by the United States department of agriculture.

Onion Sets.

Onion sets in the Chicago district, May 12, sold at $5.00 per bushel in bag lots. The planting of onion seed for sets progressed rapidly during the first 10 days of this month. A good rain, May 11, was helpful.

The Chicago retail stores report all kinds and colors of onion sets well cleaned out. Onion seed has sold well the past week.

Anti-Trust Act.

New York, May 7.—The Barbers' Supply Dealers' Association of America, with headquarters in this city, and branches throughout the United States, prosecuted under the Sherman anti-trust act, was ordered dissolved today by Federal Judge Augustus N. Hand.

[Seed dealers are asking if this case parallels that of the Pacific Coast Seed Growers' Association.—ED.]

National Garden Bureau.

The National Garden Bureau of the American Seed Trade Association, is making highly satisfactory progress with its work of serving leading newspapers of the country with timely, practical and reliable reading matter on horticultural subjects, with suggestive illustrations. Members of the association have subscribed liberally to carry on this work, $2,115 having been received to date. Some 300 leading newspapers are using the service distributed over 35 states. The committee in charge of this work, consists of Leonard H. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, chairman; David Burpee, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and A. M. Eldridge, of the Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, Ia. The address of the bureau is 440 South Dearborn street (room 350), Chicago.

Chicago, May 11.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $4.25 to $5.50; celery, Florida, crate, $6.00 to $6.50; leaf lettuce, per tomato box, 25 cents; radishes, per dozen bunches, $1.00 to $1.25; tomatoes, per crate, six baskets, $8.00 to $9.50.

New York, May 8.—Celery, per crate, $2.00 to $6.50; cucumbers, per basket, $2.50 to $7.00; mushrooms, 75 cents to $2.15 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 40 to 65 cents; lettuce, per strap, $5.00 to $6.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $5.00.

Seed Treatment for Potato Disease.

Common scab and black scurf can be largely eliminated by seed treatment. Soaking the tubers in a solution made by dissolving four ounces of corrosive sublimate in 30 gallons of water destroys the germs of both diseases. Or a solution of one pint of formaldehyde in 30 gallons of water may be used. This will control scab, but is not so effective for black scurf. The latter disease does not thrive during some seasons, at least in southern Ohio, according to the state university agricultural college, even when scurfed tubers are planted. However, it is safer to treat the seed. The length of treatment usually recommended is one and one-half hours with corrosive sublimate and two hours with formaldehyde. It has been found during the last two years, however, that soaking the seed for half an hour, and then covering them in a pile for an hour or an hour and a half, gives practically as good results. This has not been tried carefully in Ohio. The use of too strong a solution, or soaking for too long a time, is dangerous, since the "eyes" are likely to be killed. Treated seed potatoes should be planted in soil which has not been in potatoes for several years.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; John Watson, 400 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

Forty-fifth annual convention will be held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, June 23-25, 1920.

THE Arnold Arboretum reports the past winter unusually severe on young stock, with extensive injuries by field mice.

HOOD RIVER, ORE.—According to August Guignard, prices of fruit trees in the northwest are due for another increase. The price is already five times what it was four years ago. Two-year apple stock has advanced from $55 to $100 per 100 and pears are $75 as compared with $40 in 1919.—C. H. S.

SEATTLE, WASH.—At a recent meeting of the Northwest Rose Society, plans were made for a rose show which will be the most pretentious ever given in this city. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Prof. Ivan W. Goodner, president; H. M. Lindley, vice-president; Mrs. Arthur A. Phinney, secretary, and Herbert L. Collier, treasurer.—C. H. S.

SECRETARY JOHN WATSON, of the American Association of Nurserymen, has just returned from Washington, D. C., where he attended the federal horticultural board's hearing in the matter of changes in the brown-tail and gypsy moth quarantine. Mr. Watson says: "The changes that caused the hearing will probably be slight in the importance of new areas to be covered, and will not affect movement of nursery stock more than present restrictions, which call for thorough inspection and certification, as stated by the chairman of the board. That is exactly what nurserymen ask, thorough, efficient inspection and the certification of such stock as is found free of pests, and leave to move freely such certified stock. The only objection of the nurserymen has been to possible quarantines against states, rather than against infested or infected stock wthin them. Recognition of the propriety of shipping clean stock and destroying unmerchantable stock is what nurserymen have always asked."

Australian Apple Embargo Lifted.

Commercial Attache Ferrin has cabled from Melbourne, May 5, 1920, to the effect that the Australian government has removed the prohibition against the importation of American apples, effective May 19, 1920. (The prohibition against the importation of apples has been in effect since July 18, 1917.)

Garden Bordered With Box-Barberry.
Electros of this illustration with each order for 1000 or more if requested.

Have you seen a garden bordered with

Box-Barberry

this spring? Every plant bright and green—not a dead one. A strong contrast to the northern Buxus bordered garden, now either dead or sadly winter injured, brown and dejected looking

Mr. Siebrecht, the veteran plantsman, on seeing the garden the other day shown in accompanying illustration, exclaimed with his characteristic enthusiasm, "Magnificent. There is a fortune in it for the nurserymen."

We offer you well rooted dormant summer frame cuttings ready to set out direct into the nursery without further expense to you at $65.00 per 1000; all sold out of larger sizes.

Many of the leading catalogue firms have already contracted with us for their supply for the ensuing season, and others are buying these frame grown plants for their own planting, preparing for the enormous demand which is sure to follow.

It is a safe statement that BOX-BARBERRY will soon be the plantsman's best seller.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

"NEW POMPON ANNABEL."

A sport from Mrs. E. D. Godfrey: is a sturdier grower with exceptionally good foliage. Has long stiff stems, well branched, with an unusual number of flowers about 3½-in. across. Excellent keeper, in bench, or cut. Color, a beautiful cerise, tending toward lavender. Flowers of anemone type, with several rows of petals, and yellow center. Season of blooming, Thanksgiving to Christmas. Past season, I cut the first on Dec. 2nd and the last Jan. 10th. It is far better than parent, or any other Pompon and will bring more money.

Sold under agreement that you permit no other person to obtain stock until 1922. Prcies, 2¼-in. pots, $3.00 per dozen; $20.00 per hundred. Rooted cuttings, $15.00 per 100. Sold out to about May 15. After that will have about 5,000 a week. Can be benched as late as Aug. 15 for good crop.

CLUB MEETING.

Discussions as to places for holding meetings through the summer and fall took up some of the attention of the members at the May meeting of the florists' club. Invitations were received from some of the growers in this section to hold meetings at their places during the next six months, and the club decided to accept most of them. In accordance with this decision, the next meeting will be held at the establishment of Frederick Goldring, a former president of the club, at Font Grove, Slingerland, on the night of June 3. Invitations to hold meetings at Round Lake, Canajoharie and Rhinebeck were also accepted. The journey to those places can be made by automobiles. Myron Jacobson, an employe of William C. Gloeckner, was elected a member.

NOTES.

Mothers' day found the local florists with a demand for carnations beyond their ability to supply. The dark weather this spring kept the blooms from unfolding and the growers were able to ship into market only in small amounts. The trade, however, had plenty of roses, sweet peas, snapdragon and flowering plants. Some of the retailers believe it will be necessary to educate the public to buy other flowers also than carnations for Mothers' day, because of the inability to supply the demand for this one flower.

As a guest of President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University, William C. Gloeckner, retail florist, president of the Albany Unconditional Republican Club, attended the dinner given lately in New York in honor of La Fayette B. Gleason, secretary of the republican general committee of the state of New York. The dinner was held in the Hotel Commodore, and was attended by many of the prominent republican politicians of the state. Mr. Gloeckner represented the unconditional republican club at the function.

GOOD MOTHERS' DAY BUSINESS.

Mothers' day business in this city was quite active in every way. The downtown shops reported a slight increase in the volume as compared with last season, indicating greater popularity of the event. All flowers, with the exception of carnations, were good and prices were generally reasonable. On the whole, the week was an excellent one, and dealers have cleaned up their supplies to a large extent. Most of the stores switched the demand for carnations to other flowers, such as roses, snapdragons, narcissi, jonquils and sweet peas. Plants were also especially popular for Mothers' day and many were sold. The movement which was started by the club women of the city, looking towards changing the tokens for the day, fell flat. Prices were really 50 per cent below those that prevailed during the winter, and there could be no complaint of profiteering when those levels were maintained. Carnations were very scarce and prices were high. Roses sold at from $4 to $6 per dozen, and were of excellent quality. Snapdragons were $3 to $5, while narcissi brought 75 cents to $1 per bunch. Pot plants were offered at 50 cents to $3, depending largely on the variety. Social events are getting more numerous and the same is true of weddings. Quite a few large weddings are scheduled for the latter part of May, and of course June will be a month of marriages. Funeral work has been quiet during the past week or 10 days.

MOTHERS' DAY SHOWS POPULARITY.

Mothers' day business was most gratifying, the florists having all they could do to keep up with the rush. Aside from the growing popularity of the occasion, the proclamation of Governor A. H. Roberts also aided in its general observance. Regardless of the fact that the Mothers' Day Association, of which Miss Anna Jarvis is the head, urged the recognition of the day with flags, the governor advocated the remembrance with flowers, as much of the fine sentiment attached to the day would be lost if the floral feature was abandoned. Flowers of all kinds were none too plentiful, and both carnations and roses were scarce. All day Saturday the shops were crowded with eager buyers until it resembled almost Easter activity and everything sold well. Plants were in high favor and fancy baskets well filled with growing plants were popular items. Prices were satisfactory to the dealers and yet no exhorbitant to the customers. Hanging baskets were also good property and moved well at prices ranging from $2.50 to $12. Ferns in pots seemed to strike the popular fancy also.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Co. reports an unprecedented business with the store crowded throughout the day with customers. They had a fine stock and were able to take care of the trade nicely. Their cuts of roses and carnations were especially good. Thomas H. Joy has returned from a business trip to Knoxville and Chattanooga.

The McIntyre Floral Co. as usual was well to the front with a fine assortment of plant offerings, but sales were greater than could be handled. Their roses and carnations were both very fine and they were able to take care of all customers in these items.

Geny Bros. enjoyed a fine Mothers' day demand and cleaned up early in the day, with no possibility of replacements. It was the best business for this occasion in their history.

L. H. Haury & Sons, while rather short on carnations and roses had an excellent supply of plants which sold readily.

Despite the propaganda of the Mothers' Day International Association, that flags should supplant flowers as an emblem for the occasion, because of reported high prices especially in the east, the customary demand for floral offerings prevailed; in fact, the demand was much greater than in any former year. Carnations were in normal supply, but fell short of requirements, according to Walter Blackman, of the Wm. Blackman Floral Co., and the price, $2.50 per dozen, much lower than quoted in many other cities.

W. B. C.

Omaha, Neb.

The carnation supply for Mothers' day in this city was far short of the demand and the flower shops did a big business, with brisk sales at $4 per dozen in some cases and 30 to 40 cents for single flowers. The retailers claim that even at the high price of $4, their profit was not great, inasmuch as the wholesalers and growers had raised their quotations.

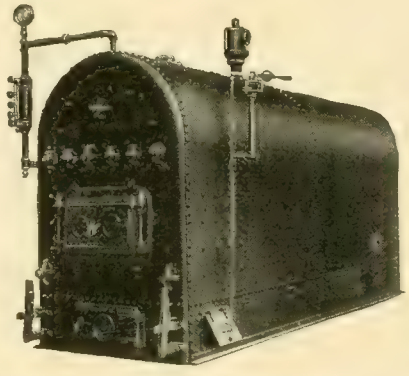
HEATING

COOLING

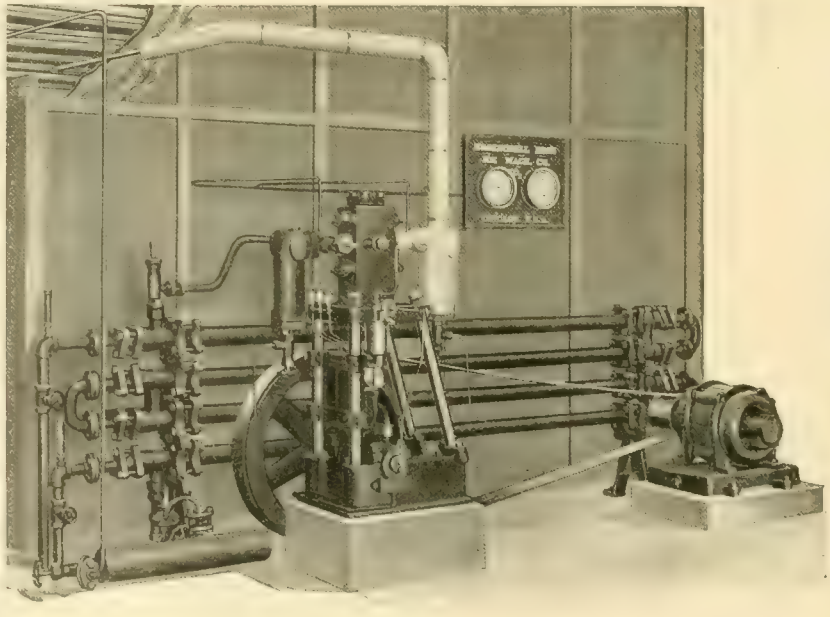
Year after Year, the KROESCHELL Hot Water Boiler has given the best of satisfaction to men who know boilers—men to whom results are the very things that count. There is a KROESCHELL for every Greenhouse plant, be it large or small.

The KROESCHELL Water Tube Steam Boiler was created to meet the demands of high pressure steam heating plants, less than 100 h. p. capacity. No masonry required—no tubes to clean.



THE KROESCHELL WATER TUBE STEAM BOILER.

Greenhouse Owners like the KROESCHELL because of its extreme simplicity and freedom from trouble. As a fuel saver, it pays its own way. The KROESCHELL will increase your heating plant efficiency 20 to 40%.



The KROESCHELL CO'S Refrigerating Apparatus provides the most complete cooling equipment on the market for the Wholesaler, Retailer and the Grower.

The high efficiency, low cost of operation, places the KROESCHELL System of Refrigeration in the foremost ranks for Florists' use.

Our Engineers will gladly study your cooling problems and make recommendations. This expert advice will save you time and money.

MEMORIAL DAY SUGGESTIONS.

A Great Business Opportunity.

May 30 is the last floral holiday of the season, and in some communities, the most important. It is an anniversary of the civil war, a day set apart in honor, of, and to keep alive, the memories of the heroes of that conflict. The date selected is at a time when flowers are most plentiful, in order that the feature of the celebration, which is the laying of flowers on the graves of those who gave their lives for their country, can be well carried out.

Memorial day presents a great business opportunity to the florist. Its possibilities have been brought out to a greater extent in the New England states than in any other community. Here the trade in all lines is taxed to the utmost during the week previous to the event. Large quantities of flowering plants and cut flowers are brought along and timed to be at their best for this occasion, as for Easter. Why this section of the country should more generally observe this custom of decorating the graves with flowers and made-up designs, and of setting out plants, filling baskets and vases with the same in the ornamentation of the lot, is hard to explain. The fact remains, however, that Memorial day is looked forward to by the trade of this section as one of their best and most profitable holidays, and every effort is put forward to be prepared to meet the demand. It is but a step from the remembrance of the soldiers of the civil war, who are now but a memory, to that of one's own loved ones, and it is the almost universal custom of decorating these graves of relatives that makes the day so important.

Earnest inquiry has developed no facts that point to any united or other action of the trade in these sections that has brought about this general use of flowers. In recent years, however, in endeavoring to systematize the work, and relieve the great strain of the last days, retailers, particularly since the introduction of the prepared magnolia and oak foliage, make up large quantities of wreaths of these leaves, which are decorated with waxed, artificial crepe paper roses, carnations, dahlias, chrysanthemums, sweet peas, etc. This stock is made up months ahead, packed in corrugated board boxes that can be sent by parcel post or express. These are extensively advertised and thousands are sold through this newspaper publicity, which has also much to do in spreading the propaganda of the day and enlarging its observance.

These artificially flowered designs are almost exclusively wreaths and sprays, the latter having for a background, cycas leaves and green ruscus. Many of the trade protested at first against the handling of such material, but as it was found acceptable to a large class of buyers, and so convenient as to time of making up, its adaptability for shipment when required and withal found very profitable, the business in these make-believes has grown to enormous proportions. All department stores put in a line of these made-up pieces for this event and sell them by the thousands.

On the whole, this material, on account of its stability for display, has increased the sale, rather than taken the place of fresh flowers. It has featured the event, thereby helping to create a better and larger observance, and a greater demand for plants and natural flowers.

This decoration of all graves, that has become the custom in these communities, and which would be of such advantage to the florist business if it became universal all over the country, is worth the best thought of the leaders of the trade everywhere. Working cooperatively, with newspaper propaganda appealing to the patriotism, particularly of the young in keeping green the memory of the fallen heroes, not only of the civil but of the more recent great conflict, a renewed interest in the day could be created that would help materially in its greater observance.

It is not only the business of florists to raise flowers, but also to sell them. They must not only show them, but also show how they are to be used. They must put into the minds of people, the various ways in which they can be made profitable and enjoyable to them, of which Memorial day affords one of the best examples.

There is not a newspaper in the land but would gladly publish well prepared articles that would rouse the patriotic impulse of Memorial day. There would be no cost for this except that of the skilled writers in the preparation of the copy, while to most editorial staffs, the furnishing of interesting data would be sufficient. Every community has its fallen heroes of the last great war, the personal history of whom would make interesting reading, and help to arouse enthusiasm for this beautiful custom. It is the homage due those who gave their lives for their country for which the day was instituted and declared a holiday, and it is its proper observance, by visits to the cities of the dead, and the decorating of their graves with flowers, that should be especially featured in all such articles. This will encourage the adornment of all graves.

If the entire trade, each in its own community, would work co-operatively to bring about a more patriotic observance of the day, a great impulse could be given the movement, which in a few years, would make it the nation's greatest outdoor floral holiday.

Cemetery Florists' Memorial Day Trade.

The last week in May sees the culmination of months of preparation for the cemetery florist. Many, whose establishments are situated near a large cemetery, make a specialty of the care of lots, seeing to the sodding, cutting grass, planting flower beds, filling vases and hanging baskets, and attending to the watering of the same. It is the custom of many families on all such occasions as Christmas, Easter, Memorial day and for anniversaries throughout the year, to place flowers, loose or in designs, on the graves of their loved ones, which business is a great factor of the trade.

As soon as the weather permits in early spring, the work on the various lots is started, all pruning, care of spring bulbs, cleaning out and removal of plant vases to the greenhouses to be made ready for filling, beds dug and made-up for planting, which operation follows as soon as danger of frost is over. Great effort is put forth to have every lot finished, with beds planted, vases and baskets filled and in place before Memorial day, as that is the general visiting and official opening day of the season at all cemeteries.

In some localities, it has become the custom to decorate a large proportion of the graves, not only of all soldiers, but also of relatives and friends. It is this general decorating that gives the florists the bulk of their trade for this event, and they should not only be prepared with a good stock, but also feature the event in every possible way.

There is always a demand for flowering plants, something that can be set out, and is likely to flower all summer. Roses, geraniums and all kinds of bedding will be found salable. Low pans of geraniums and other plants that can be had in full flower, are good sellers, as they are very showy and not easily blown over. Geraniums in pans are very effective, some growers carrying them in quantity for this demand.

Small baskets holding a dozen assorted plants out of 2½-inch pots are in favor with many who wish to do their own planting. The odds and ends of the bedding stock, if placed in these baskets a week ahead, will get well filled with flowers and present a very inviting appearance.

Decorated, prepared magnolia and oak leaf wreaths are always popular. These, trimmed with artificial flowers, can be prepared a long time ahead. Many prefer that the ornamentation shall be with natural flowers, which makes a lot of work for the last day. Red, white and blue immortelles and cape flowers are good stock, as they are in demand for all soldiers' wreaths. Cycas leaves can also be used to good advantage in wreaths and sprays.

There are a great many who want a few flowers, but are not prepared to pay much for them. To meet this demand, there is nothing better than a good supply of shrubbery, together with whatever is most plentiful in the market. Peonies are, of course, the most showy flower if they happen to be in quantity for May 30. The date this year falls on Sunday, which will make it a popular visiting day at the cemeteries.

There is great advantage in being well prepared at such times, when the rush comes. Shrubbery, peonies and other cut flowers may be made up into bunches to sell at from $1.00 to $3.00. These will keep well if arranged the day or night before, and stored in a cool place, free from drafts.

A show house, or one of the largest near the entrance of the establishment, should be filled the week before with salable plants in blocks of one kind together. With this array, customers are satisfied to make their selections, whereas, if they had to go from one house to another, all over the place, much valuable time would be lost for probably less business.

Cut flower cemetery vases, either of glass, painted tin or iron, are generally in good demand, so that a quantity on hand is essential.

It is a good plan to circularize all lot owners, describing the plants, cut flowers and designs that are in stock. It is worth while emphasizing the importance of giving orders at one time for the various anniversaries of the year, which are placed in your year book, and filled as the dates arrive without further notice.

Memorial Day Window Decorations.

The old proverb, "The Lord helps them that help themselves," should be framed and hung up in every flower shop. It contains most excellent advice that is the groundwork for almost every success. What one can do themselves through their own initiative and energy is wonderful. The way to get a good Memorial day trade, is to go after it; that is, make a bid for it. There are many who now see little in the observance of the event, that if its real significance was pointed out, or brought home to them, would feel it was not only a duty, but would take pleasure in paying homage to the nation's heroes, in visiting their last resting place, and incidentally, take some flowers for those near and dear to him, who had passed away.

For a week or 10 days before the event, one of the best forms of publicity is the window display. This, if made attractive, is sure to be seen by great numbers of people, all of whom will be more or less impressed, and have their minds filled with new thoughts of the day.

There are many decorative features that will bring out the spirit of the celebration. A camp fire scene is one. On the smouldering embers of a fire is a pot; a section of a tent, and stacked rifles from which is suspended a drum; a copy of an old newspaper of the early sixtys, also a few song sheets of "Marching Through Georgia," "In the Prison Cell I Sit," "Rally Round the Flag Boys," etc. Place a camp stool or two next the tent. The grass can be represented with sheet moss.

The central feature of another arrangement is a bust of General Grant, placed on a flag-decked pedestal, at the base of which is a large prepared magnolia or oak leaved wreath, decorated with red, white and blue immortelles and palm leaves, or the magnolias with sago palms and a purple or tricolor bow. A collection of decorated magnolia or oak wreaths, marked, "Memorial day, May 30," will be suggestive.

One of the prominent flowers at this time is the peony, and a window of these will be sure to attract attention. A spray, or a vase basket or two, filled with these flowers, and tied with tricolor ribbon, should prove attractive. A special lot of magnolia wreaths decorated with waxed flowers, a number of them together with a special price card, is good business for some locations.

Low pans, filled with growing geraniums in flower, are always good sellers, as are baby rambler roses in pots.

Memorial Day in Illinois.

GOVERNOR LOWDEN'S PROCLAMATION.

Springfield, Ill., May 13.—The following Memorial day proclamation has been issued by Governor Lowden:

"Again with hearts united we approach our national Memorial day. It has become the great occasion among our people for the expression of patriotic sentiment. The glowing pages of glorious history are again read. Over the grave of every American veteran flies the flag. The appearance in uniform of soldiers of three wars of the republic stirs the youth to increased love of country and stimulates their imagination to deeds of heroism and valor. The tender recollections of the honored dead inspire renewed devotion to the high ideals for which in the sunny south, in the islands of the sea, or on Flanders field they gave their all.

"In many homes there are lonely hearts because of the costly sacrifices made in the great war from which we have recently emerged. In that war our people were united as never before in our history. Everything which tended to separate them into groups on account of race, religion, residence or rank was forgotten in the common desire to serve best the interests of the country.

"Now again we find ourselves distracted by conflicting motives. The great wave of war-bred patriotism seems to have broken upon the rocks of selfishness. But this clash of opinion and interests must and will give way. The clear note of national spirit will soon be heard again above the present discordant sound. Memorial day brings to the mind and heart of the people renewed recognition of a common heritage and a common obligation. Respect for its dead exalts a nation above selfish ambition and strife.

"Memorial day of 1920 might well be notable in our annals if it were possible to recapture that spirit of united loyalty and patriotism which characterized the world war.

"I urge that on the coming Memorial day the citizens of Illinois with gratitude for the past and with faith in the future, renew their devotion to American ideals as with fragrant flowers they remember our patriotic dead.

"FRANK O. LOWDEN."

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The next seven days will culminate in the last holiday of the season, Memorial day, and if the proper featuring, publicity and energy have been put into the preparatory work, the facilities of the store will be taxed to handle the business. Whether the volume of trade is large or small, depends almost entirely on the management of the store. If, in its decorative effects, it looks inviting, with an up-to-date stock well and attractively displayed, it is sure to win customers and bring them into the establishment. So many retailers are averse to stepping out of the beaten path, or doing anything radical. If they manage to make ends meet in the course of a year, they are satisfied, taking comfort in the thought, "It might have been worse." The fact, that with a little more energy and hustle, they might have been safely anchored a step higher, does not appeal to them. To be satisfied with things as they are, is a bad condition to get into, as it relegates one to the tail-end of the procession.

Be ready, and stock up for Memorial day with everything necessary, in full supply. Do not wait for customers to come. Force, in a way, the business on them. It can be done by dozens of different methods. Work every prospect, large and small, to the limit. Do not let a few failures deter you. Success is assured to those who work hard enough for it.

Mothers' day results amply repaid all whose enthusiasm inspired greater business energy. Miss Jarvis' cry of "profiteers," had little or no effect. Prepare now for next year. Make a collection of all the newspaper clippings, many of which were splendidly written. Committees in every community should have such material prepared in advance, so as to bring the event well before the public at least a week previous to the anniversary.

Conduct special sales of flowering plants at this time. Marguerites are now at their best; they are fine for window boxes or will flower for a long time out of doors. Hydrangeas are also showy, hardy plants that are general favorites. Many growers bring on a lot grown cold that are about due. Carry and display a large stock; 50, together, will attract attention, where half a dozen would not get a look.

Porch plants, such as ferns, pandanus, rubbers, dracænas, etc., are also good stock. As far as possible, they should be shown in suitable jardineres or pot covers. Well filled lawn vases will find favor with those who have a place for them.

The commencements will soon be due. There is a lot of business here that can be secured with properly directed energy.

June wedding arrangements are well under way. The securing of a number of these events on succeeding days when decorative material, flowering plants, etc., may be used several times, adds considerable to the profit.

Dogwood is now in and beautiful decorative effects may be made in the store with well flowered branches which have been thoroughly saturated with water.

Get the summer addresses of customers who spend this season out of town. These prove valuable at times, when for some reason, it is desirable to reach them quickly.

While it is a little early to talk vacations, it is well to plan ahead. All in the trade who can make it convenient, should arrange to attend the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland, O., August 17-19. This will, without doubt, be the largest and most important meeting of the national society ever held. The retail trade of Cleveland is very well organized and up to date in every respect. The city is central to almost the entire trade of the country. Every person in the trade, who has not as yet become a member, should join at once. Send $5.00 to John Young, secretary, 43 West 18th street, New York, and get credentials entitling to full privileges. The trade exhibition will be the best ever.

Keep a close watch on the costs or operating expenses of the store. There are many savings that can be effected, if each major item, such as delivery, telephone, purchasing, making-up, labor, decorating of store and window, advertising, etc., is carefully gone into. A constant looking ahead is sure to save time and energy and result in greater efficiency at less cost.

Commencement Flowers.

Class days, with graduation exercises, which accompany the closing of the school year, will soon be in season. There is considerable business for the florists connected with these events which can, by up-to-date publicity methods, be secured. It is now none too soon to lay plans for soliciting as much of this commencement work as possible. There should be secured a list of all the scholars and their home addresses, attending the various schools and academies in or about the town or community. Nearly all institutions publish such a list. This, when obtained, will furnish the address of the parents, which, when properly canvassed by mail, will be found very fertile territory.

Many orders for flowers will be received if the custom is given the proper presentation, as relatives would frequently like to send flowers if they knew their orders would receive prompt and careful attention. Suggestions for this purpose include baskets of cut flowers artistically arranged, boxes of flowers nicely tied up with decorations on the outside to make a good impression as a gift box, and foliage and flowering plants, featured to make them especially attractive. It should also be brought out that orders can be delivered through the F. T. D. service, either by mail or telegraph, to any point in the United States, however distant, with the aid of its 1,500 members.

Class day exercises are important, as on this occasion it has become the custom for each girl graduate to carry a bouquet of flowers. These range in price from $1.50 to $5, and sometimes higher, and in number, as in the high school commencements, often run into the hundreds.

It is necessary in securing these orders to do a little diplomatic work in getting acquainted with the various class presidents or leaders among the scholars as it is generally through them that the contract is received. At times, the flowers take the form of corsages, which when the number is large, is quite an important order, and well worth going after. There are also, both on class day, and at the time of the graduation exercises, more or less decorative work with plants, green and flag festooning that is well worth while. These orders all go somewhere, and the man who is first on the job, with good suggestions, frequently adding materially to the work of previous occasions, has great advantages in securing the order.

For all such occasions, particularly on commencement day, it is very important to see that address tags and cards are securely attached to the various packages. All baskets and bouquets, other than those enclosed in boxes, should be wrapped in whole sheets of 24x36 wax paper. This can enclose the flowers without undue strain, and fastened in the folds with metal clips, which are better than pins or string, make a neat looking package. The colors of the flowers show through, and they are protected from the drafts which often wilt the flowers, and they then present a sorry spectacle.

Receipts should be taken for every package from some one in charge. These are very easily secured by checking up a list sent along with them and signed by the proper party. If at any time, the graduate to whom the flowers were addressed, did not receive them, the question as to their being sent, is then proved from the receipted list.

Progressive Ideas.

One of the greatest forces in business is initiative, or originality. Everyone is interested in things that they see for the first time, or methods that are new to them, particularly if the article has merit, or the plan of procedure is practical, and proves to be economical and a time saver as well. Novelty will oftimes sell an object of art or fancy that has little else to recommend it. Even the commonplace in almost any line can be given an attractive appearance by slight additions, or putting a familiar object to new uses.

A florist filled a lot of used wheelbarrows with soil and plants, which when placed at vantage points about his grounds attracted favorable mention, and were much admired. With these movable ornaments, he was able to make frequent changes in the decorative scheme of his lawn. New ideas, particularly if they are featured, are sure to get a favorable reception, if on inspection they are shown to be meritorious. One of the most successful in connection with the artistic arranging of cut flowers, was the shallow bowl and similar receptacles with the movable, perforated flower block, an adoption of the Japanese metal holders with holes or perforations for individual flower stems. These are very practical and simple, and when filled properly, present flowers in an exceedingly artistic arrangement.

The small figure vases, the features of which are individual figures of children or young women in fancy costume, behind which is concealed a vase to hold flowers, have had a great run. They made a hit as valentines, and can be used in their various make-ups to fit all the anniversaries of the year. There is novelty in each new set that is sent out, and they have been found to be, and still are, great helps in the sale of cut flowers.

There is novelty in any extreme. The one-inch flower pot, which was introduced as an advertising convention novelty, to pin on a man's coat, has been taken up and used extensively for the sale of baby ferns and other small plants. One florist used them by the thousand, filled with miniature cacti in variety, for which he found a ready sale. They are also used quite extensively as a receptacle for small creations in artificial plants and flowers.

Tiny Japanese gardens, filled with dwarf evergreens and minute ornaments always attract attention, and are another evidence of what can be done to interest those who are looking for novelties.

The introduction of the vase basket in its various sizes gave a great impetus to the sale of cut flowers, as it was possible to make charming color combinations in the various duo-tones or shades in which the baskets were painted, and the flowers suitable to be arranged in them. The metal or fibre water-holding liner supplies the moisture to insure the keeping of the stock, as well as in the ordinary vase.

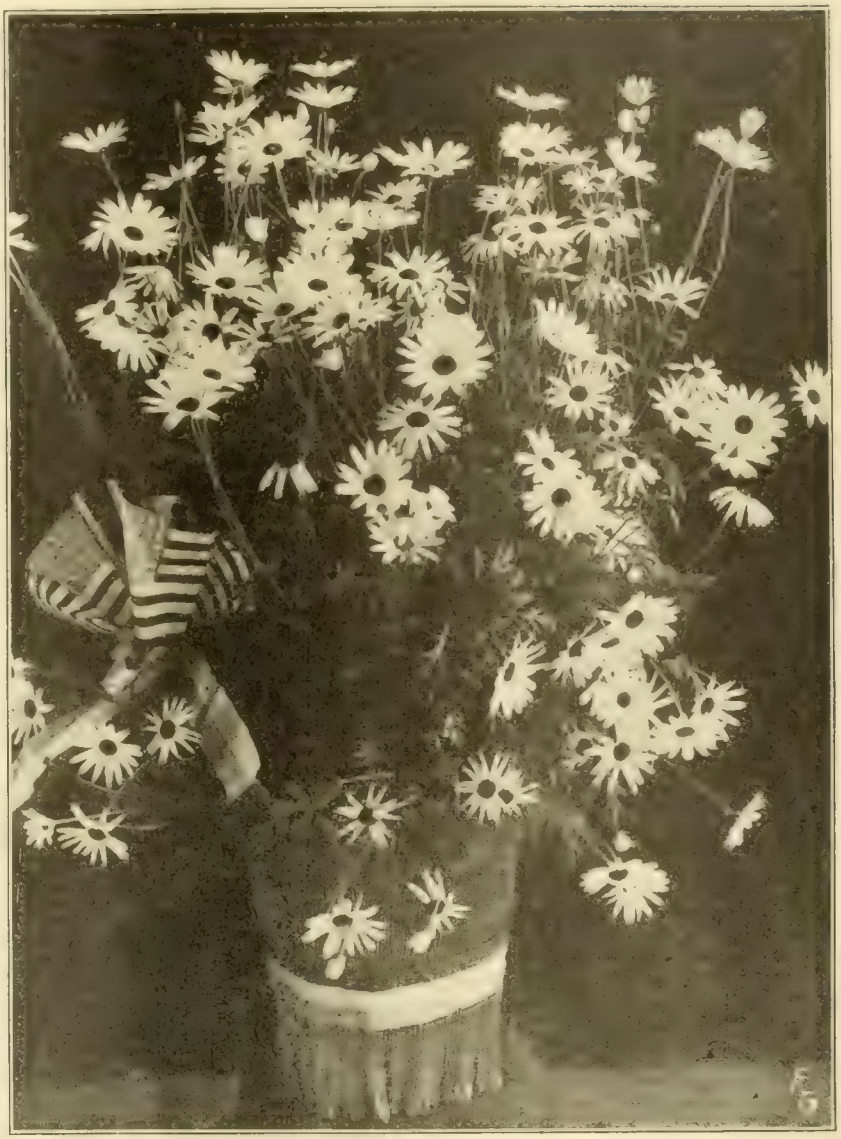
The inception of these various novelties come as bright ideas from storemen, who are all the time working out new features to interest and attract the public. They are, in a sense, an evolution, one thing bringing on or suggesting another still better. The vase basket is a substitute for the tumblers. These little baskets were first made to hold damp moss, which when lined with foil, answered the purpose. A cheap glass tumbler that just fitted, stuck in one day, gave them a great boost, and for several years they were known as tumbler baskets. The liners now used are paraffined cardboard cups which are ideal for the purpose.

The wicker American Beauty flower vase that is now so universally used, is a copy of a glass Bohemian vase that had been found very useful, but being accidentally broken, resulted in an order to the supply man to make the same in wicker, with a zinc liner that would hold water. This proved eminently practical, and some of the original vases are today, after 25 years of service, still in fair condition.

The store and intensive selling methods of the progressive retailer are undergoing evolution all the time. Stock displayed one way this week is given a touch of novelty by an entirely new setting later on, or something else is brought forward and featured to make an even greater hit. One novel window display will be followed by another, equally attractive, until people come out of their way just to have a look at the artistic creations.

A clever idea, worked out by a retailer who was featuring a box of flowers was a display in his window of cut flower boxes, in which a hole had been cut in the lid. This contained a vase in which the flowers the box was supposed to contain were nicely arranged. They looked much more numerious in the vase than if exposed in the box and kept fresh and inviting. A well-written card stated that a satisfactory box at the price was a "special, every day in the year."

The above are just a few examples of what has and can be done, while the possibilities of attractive featuring in the future presentation of plants and cut flowers is unlimited.



MARGUERITES AT THEIR BEST, MEMORIAL DAY.

Allied Florists' Association of Illinois.

The regular meeting of the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois, held at the Randolph Hotel on the evening of May 13, with an attendance of about 60, representing the various branches of the trade, was one of the best since the organization was formed, and those present derived much benefit from it. All of the directors of the association were in attendance, and after the session had been called to order, and the minutes of the previous meeting approved, a report from the officers was called for by the chairman. The financial statement of Treasurer W. J. Smyth was very encouraging. Secretary H. V. Swenson told of the progress made by the association, and of the great amount of work that had been done during its brief existence. The total membership on May 1 was 423, representing an increase of 81 since the previous meeting. The total collections during March amounted to $3,176.59, with some payments still outstanding. The advertising expense for March was $2,111.92, and the general expenses during February and March amounted to $566.90. During February, March and April, 23 advertisements appeared in Chicago papers, representing a total circulation of 8,981,658.

Reviewing the work of the associatioin and its aims, Secretary Swenson said in part: "Starting as an active organization, March 1, less than two weeks after the first meeting, it can be proudly stated that the Allied Florists' Association has accomplished something. It virtually came into active being March 1 without much preparation as to details. During the two months of its existence, it has also been necessary to organize its office and management in order that it might function properly in the future. When it is taken into consideration, that in addition to what has been done in advertising, etc., straightening out entanglements, installing systems and instructing clerical assistants, no apologies are necessary for what has been accomplished. We can say, however, that real results have already been due to our advertising. The very first space that was used, telling the public that mild weather and sunshine brought more flowers, and that they were reasonable in price, resulted in favorable comment and increased purchases. As regards the sale of roses, out of 40 or 50 reailers, there was not a single report that direct results were not apparent. In fact, the majority stated that they received many calls for the roses advertised.

"Just a word here regarding sales. Many florists have told me they considered quoting prices a mistake, as it dictated a policy that the individual might not wish to consider. It is true, we should not tell a man what his selling price should be, as overhead expenses, etc., differ in each case, but on the other hand, forget profit and loss for the moment and consider the true benefits resulting from a sale:

"First, while you make less profit per sale, you make more sales, turn your money over more quickly, and in the end, close the transaction with more money on the right side of the ledger. (In this, I have in mind the man who gets behind the sale and pushes.)

"Second, sales bring more people into the store, many who never bought before, and some of these will become regular customers. If you figure it out, and practice it, you can put 500 customers on your books, where you only had 50.

"Third, many people who respond to sales, come and buy something double in price the article advertised, but the sale price brought them in.

"Fourth, a good bargain once in a while, pleases the public. You need not fear the sale price will hurt your regular business, if you give a good reason for it, and make the public appreciate the value offered.

MOTHERS DAY.

"No one can say Mothers' day this year was not the greatest in its history. To the skeptics, we will grant that the event 'went big regardless', but we must give due credit to the advertising. Posters in all flower shop windows, heralded 'Say it With Flowers' for the occasion. More than 100,000 stamps were used, and a conservative estimate places the number of mailing folders sent out, at more than that number, and in addition, were the advertisements which appeared in the papers just before the day. Not much more could have been done without a waste of money, and it should be remembered that this united effort was engineered principally by the Allied Florists' Association.

"I want you to know how the association put forth its best efforts for Mothers' day, and give you proof of the importance of having an organization supporting you. The Mothers' Day International Association, founded by Miss Anna Jarvis, and of which she is the head, has been perfecting its organization since a year ago to fight the florists. She has succeeded in forming a powerful association, backed by prominent men and women, and with the moral support of national leaders and officials. She has succeeded in securing the recognition of civic bodies and women's clubs. Without any warning, a week previous to Mothers' day, this organization, through a press bureau, endeavored to secure publication of its write-ups in papers all over the country, especially in the large cities. Some of these were printed in Chicago papers before we were aware of the matter, but the Allied Florists' Association immediately got in touch with the press. In the Chicago Post, we had one of the articles eliminated after it had appeared in only the first editions. We worked on this matter steadily for three days, and assure you it was no easy task, for the papers were loaded with this propaganda, with shrewdly written letters and communications in support. Several of the newspapers sent reporters to investigate the market and publish the facts accordingly. Nevertheless, they listened to our statements, and their reason for doing so, was the fact that we were organized, a recognized association, a good customer, a power—not a mere individual whom they could easily ignore. As a result, very little of the unfavorable propaganda appeared. Instead, we succeeded in having published, articles in favor of our industry. I understand that in other cities, the press was filled with propaganda detrimental to the florist trade. The civic and women's clubs and other organizations supported Miss Jarvis. But in these cities, the trade was not organized. This little experience is just one of the many reasons why we should be united. When we meet problems, such as these, we are helpless as individuals, but powerful as an organized body.

Yours truly
Charles Thorley

"Allow me to touch on just a few more activities of our association. We are now co-operating with the Chicago Tribune in raising funds for the decoration of graves of our soldiers in France. All this gives publicity to the florist, centers interest in Memorial day, and will stimulate business generally. It is a question whether a connection of such great value could have been made unless we were a recognized body.

"May 14 the Allied Florists' Association will be represented in a great parade of industries to celebrate the opening of the boulevard link. We expect to be a strong contender for the first prize, to be awarded the finest float. There will also be a number of individual florists in the parede, and we urge all who can do so, to take part. Through all these different means, we secure publicity. I believe we can frankly say, however, that it is only incidental to what we can accomplish in the future. With an organization such as we have, we can keep in touch with events and grasp opportunities as they present themselves. Could you do this as an individual?

DIRECTORS SERVICES INVALUABLE.

"The directors are devoting valuable time each week to the interests of the association. They have met weekly, and sometimes semi-weekly, since the inception of this organization, and at practically all these sessions, every director was present. Every transaction is carefully discussed and cautiously acted upon. The disbursement of your money is controlled, first, by unanimous vote of the board of directors, and bills carefully approved by a finance committee of three members, and further sanctioned by the president, secretary and treasurer."

Following the reports of the officers, the meeting was open for suggestions by the members. One of these was to the effect that minute-men, selected from local florists, appear before the audiences in moving picture theatres throughout the city in the interest of the Memorial day flower fund. This met with favor and was freely discussed. Finally, it was decided that the secretary present these suggestions to the Tribune, and offer the services of the florists, with the idea of working together to make the fund most successful.

MAJOR O'KEEFE ADDRESSES MEETING.

The speaker of the evening was Major P. F. O'Keefe, of the O'Keefe Advertising Agency, Boston, Mass., and those present listened with interest to one of the best addresses they had heard for some time. Major O'Keefe's summary of what the advertising campaign of the Society of American Florists had accomplished in benefiting the florists in general throughout the country, brought to many a clearer vision of the true value of advertising, and the national publicity in particular. He clearly outlined how the slogan, "Say it With Flowers," had become firmly established in the public mind. His talk was so convincing and admirably delivered that it is to be regretted that all the members of the association were not present to hear him. After having given Major O'Keefe a rising vote of thanks, the chair opened the discussion as to what percentage of the local fund should be contributed to the national movement, and it was finally recommended that this matter be referred to the board of directors to arrange the details and report at the next meeting of the association.

Charles Thorley.

Writing in the New York Evening Post of May 14, Herbert Reed says in part:

"That Gov. Smith will sign the Walker measure legitimatizing professional boxing in this state, under certain well designed restrictions, seems to be assured."

He also states that Charles Thorley, the well known florist, will be appointed by the governor as head of the boxing commission. He continues as follows: "The one sure appointment, Charles Thorley, is well known in this city as the best type of all-round sportsman. Mr. Thorley is a typical New York product. A good many years before he became prominent in the New York Athletic Club, he had worked his way up from the newsboy stage, and was something of a figure in real estate. It was not so long ago that, in a Vesey Street auction room, he bid in the Russell Sage mansion. There is a good yarn about that, by the way.

"Mr. Thorley went about his bidding with the aid and counsel of Mike Dreicer, and when Dreicer told the clerk that the purchase had been made in the name of Charlie Thorley, a man, somewhat bent, and fairly well along in years, approached Thorley and shook his hand.

"Aren't you Charlie Thorley?" he asked. "Yes," said Thorley. "Well," said the stranger, "you don't remember me, probably, but I used to sell newspapers with Charlie Thorley just outside this door on Vesey Street."

"Remember," he added, "we used to carry baskets of fruit from Washington Market to the street car line and pick up the nickels."

"And Thorley did remember."

Our acquaintance with Mr. Thorley has been altogether along the lines of the florist business, but it is safe to predict that boxing will be carried on according to the law if he heads the commission. We may add that his store, the former Sage mansion, is now the attraction of Fifth avenue. The front, from the entrance to the roof, is practically a mass of foliage plants in boxes.

Chicago Boulevard Link Parade.

The opening of the great, new, double-decked bridge connecting the north and south boulevard systems of Chicago, May 14, with the accompanying parade, afforded the local florists a fine opportunity to display their ability in the decoration of floats, automobiles, trucks, etc., for such occasions. The trade grasped the opportunity, and made a splendid showing. The float of the Allied Florists' Association, which was awarded the gold medal, was strikingly handsome. The dimensions of the float were 8x32 feet, and some 30 florists assisted in the decorating work. The wholesalers contributed about 100,000 flowers, half of which were used in the decoration of the float, and the other half distributed to spectators.

Fleischman's exhibit was a good second, receiving the silver medal, and others of the trade who had decorated machines in line, included Everette R. Peacock Co., C. Frauenfelder, John Mangel, Central Floral Co. and Miss Anna Grace Sawyer.

It is estimated some 300,000 persons saw the parade, with 10,000 machines in line.

National Flower Growers' Association.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS.

The following is a copy of the proposed constitution and by-laws of the National Flower Growers' Association, being sent out by J. F. Ammann, secretary of the organization, to florists' clubs throughout the country with the request that they be referred to a committee of growers, whose duty it shall be to select delegates to represent their respective communities at the convention of the Society of American Florists at Cleveland, O., August 17-19, 1920, when this or a similar constitution will be adopted and a permanent organization perfected.

CONSTITUTION.

Article I.

This organization shall be known as The National Flower Growers' Association.

Article II.

The objects of the association are the advancement of commercial floriculture under glass; devising ways and means for the best and most economical way of producing and marketing stock; discouraging unfair competition and encouraging co-operation; to more perfectly combat insects and diseases; to bring about uniform working conditions for labor, uniform grading of flowers and plants; to procure uniformity and certainty in the customs and usages in the trade; to educate floriculturists to better business methods; to devise and carry out ways and means of bettering selling conditions and eliminating the present cause of waste in marketing flowers; to secure a uniform basis of credit and collection of accounts; and to promote the interests of commercial floriculturists.

Article III.

The business of this association shall be conducted by a board of directors.

Article IV.

This association may adopt a code of by-laws to carry out the objects of the association by a two-thirds vote of the delegates present and voting at any regular meeting.

Article V.

This constitution may be amended by a two-thirds vote of the delegates present and voting at any regular meeting, provided notice of proposed amendment has been mailed by the secretary to each local at least 30 days prior to said meeting.

BY-LAWS.

Article I.—Annual Meeting

Section 1. The first annual meeting of the association shall be held at Cleveland, Ohio, in August 1920, and thereafter each annual meeting shall be held at the time and place fixed at the preceding annual meeting.

Section 2. The annual meeting shall be conducted by the president and the duly elected and certified delegates from the various local associations working under a charter issued by this association.

Section 3. Each local association shall be entitled to one delegate for every 25 members, or a fraction thereof, in good standing.

Section 4. Twenty-five delegates shall constitute a quorum.

Article II.—Notice of Annual Meetings.

Section 1. Notice shall be mailed to all delegates, local organizations and the officers of this association of the time and place of the annual meeting of this association by mailing notice thereof at least 30 days before the date of the annual meeting.

Article III.—Officers and Terms of Office.

Section 1. The officers of the association shall consist of a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. The president and vice-president by virtue of their offices shall also be members of the board of directors.

Section 2. The president and vice-president shall be elected at the annual meeting by a majority vote of the duly elected delegates present and shall serve for one year or until their successors are chosen.

Section 3. The secretary and treasurer shall be elected by the board of directors.

Section 4. The salaries of the secretary and treasurer and the amounts of the bonds to be furnished by each shall be fixed by the board of directors.

Article IV.—Election of Directors.

Section 1. The number of directors of this association shall be 15, consisting of the president, vice-president, and 13 additional directors, who shall be elected at the first meeting of the association; the five directors receiving the largest number of votes shall serve for three years, the four directors receiving the next largest number of votes shall serve for two years and the four directors receiving the smallest number of votes shall serve for one year. At each annual meeting thereafter except the third, four directors shall be elected for a full term of three years. At each third annual meeting five directors shall be elected for a three-year term.

Section 2. Eight directors shall constitute a quorum at any meeting of the board of directors.

Section 3. The compensation of the directors shall be Five Dollars ($5.00) for each day's attendance at directors' meetings and for each day consumed in traveling to and from the meeting place, and 10 cents (10 cents) per mile one way from place of residence to meeting place.

Article V.—Presiding Officer's Voting Power.

Section 1. The presiding officer at any meeting of this association or the board of directors shall only vote if the question of the removal of an office is not involved; he may vote in case of a tie, except that of his own office by the board of directors.

Article VI.—Directors' Meetings.

Section 1. The annual meeting of the board of directors shall be held within five days prior to the annual meeting of the association, and the board shall meet at such other times as may be designated by the president.

Section 2. The directors shall at each annual meeting elect a secretary and treasurer of this association. It shall be optional with the board of directors to select the secretary or treasurer from within or without its own membership. No director shall be eligible to vote upon a question involving his election or his removal from office.

Section 3. The directors shall at their annual meeting receive the reports of the treasurer and the secretary, together with the accountant's audit, and report upon the same when submitted by the president and shall order same to be made a part of the regular proceedings.

Section 4. The president shall call a meeting of the board of directors at the written request of any five directors.

Section 5. All notices calling a meeting of the board of directors, except the notices for the annual meeting of the board of directors, shall state the nature of the business to be brought before the board.

Section 6. All moneys of the association shall be deposited in the name of the association by the treasurer in a trust company or bank to be selected by the board of directors, and shall be drawn upon only by the checks signed by the president and treasurer.

Article VII.—Duties of Officers.

Section 1. The president shall preside at all meetings of the association, shall appoint all committees, unless otherwise provided, shall with the treasurer sign all checks for the withdrawal of funds of the association and shall perform such other duties as his charge may require of him.

Section 2. The vice-president, in the absence of the president, shall preside and perform the duties pertaining to the office of president.

Section 3. The treasurer shall deposit the funds of the association in a bank or trust company designated by the board of directors, and shall, with the president, sign all checks for the withdrawal of funds; he shall deliver to his successor in office all moneys, books and property of the association in his possesion and perform such other duties as may be required of him by the board of directors.

Section 4. The secretary shall keep a record of the proceedings of the association. He shall notify all directors of all regular and special meetings of the board of directors by mailing a notice addressed to each director not later than 10 days before the meeting date; and he shall perform such other and further duties as may be required of him by the board of directors.

Article VIII.—Dues.

Section 1. As annual dues, an amount equal to 50 cents for each one thousand square feet under glass owned and controlled by members of local organizations shall be forwarded to the secretary of this association by the secretary of each local organization in quarterly installments—on March 1, June 1, September 1 and December 1—and shall be deposited in the treasury of this association.

Article IX.—Local Associations.

Section 1. Membership shall consist of units called local associations working under a charter to be granted by this association through its board of directors. Commercial floriculturists desiring to organize a local association may apply to the board of directors of this association for a charter. They shall furnish to the board of directors such information as may be required by the board as to number of members, number of square feet under glass operated or controlled by each, etc. The board of directors shall take into consideration the number of floriculturists in the section represented by the applicants and shall fix and determine the number of members requisite to form a local organization in each particular locality, and shall designate the territory over which the said local organization shall have jurisdiction.

FRAUENFELDER'S EXHIBIT IN THE BOULEVARD LINK PARADE, CHICAGO, MAY 14.

Article X.—By-Laws of Locals.

Section 1. Any constitution and by-laws of local organizations or amendments thereof, before becoming effective must be submitted to and be approved by the board of directors of this association.

Section 2. At any time when the requisite number of commercial floriculturists in any particular locality shall apply for a charter for a local organization, and when the constitution and the by-laws of such proposed organization shall have been approved by the board of directors of this association, the said board of directors may, in its discretion, grant a charter to such local organization.

Section 3. The annual dues of members of the local organizations shall be not less than One Dollar for each thousand square feet under glass owned or controlled by them, with Ten Dollars as a minimum, and shall be paid to the treasury of the local organization quarterly as follows: January 1, April 1, July 1 and October 1. Such dues shall always be paid in advance, the first quarterly dues to be submitted with application for membership as an initiation fee. Any local organization may increase the amount of its dues, but in no event shall dues be less than herein provided.
substitution.

Section 5. In the event of the failure of any local organization to remit dues to this organization as is herein provided the charter of the said local organization shall stand suspended. Any charter so suspended may be reinstated by the majority vote of the board of directors, upon payment of all sums due this association.

Section 6. Any local organization may adopt any by-laws desirable for the conditions existing in its own locality but the same must first be approved by the board of directors of this association, which shall in no event conflict with any provisions herein contained.

Section 7. It shall be the duty of each local organization to have an annual invoice made of the amount of square feet of ground under glass that each member owns. Also, the number and kind of plants grown on the premises. This is to be done once each year between the dates of October 1 and December 31. One copy of such invoice shall be mailed to the office of the national association not later than January 15 following such invoice and one copy is to be kept on file in the Section 4. Failure to pay dues on the part of any individual within 30 days from date of first notice shall mean office of the local secretary.

Section 8. The secretary of each local organization shall notify the secretary of this association immediately of the election or substitution of any delegate or delegates representing such local organization. Such delegates shall be the duly authorized representatives of the various local organizations which have elected them until the secretary of this association receives notice that they are no longer delegates.

Section 9. Any portion or the whole hereof may be amended or substituted at the will of the association at any annual meeting, but all amendments and substitutions must be made in writing and a copy thereof shall be mailed to each officer of this association and to the secretary of each local organization 30 days before the annual meeting. It shall require a two-thirds vote of the delegates present and voting to adopt any such amendment or suspension.

Fakes.

The savings division of the treasury department says: "If there is a sucker born every minute, there also is a scheme to capture him hatched at least every half hour. Confidence men and unscrupulous promoters are producing new ones daily to take the place of the gold brick, the green goods, the Spanish prisoner, the dying engineer and oil and mining stocks guaranteed to yield 1,000 per cent profit."

A city man received a glowing circular from a "development company" in Chicago offering 10 acres in Florida as a "peanut unit." The price was $2,500. The literature—a high brand of fiction—which accompanied the offer—informed him his 10 acres would produce 1,000 bushels of peanuts at a crop, and one crop would pay for the land. The department of agriculture informed him that the average return from 10 acres of peanuts would be but little more than $300, that he could buy 100 acres in the same country for the price asked for 10, and that "to pay $2,500 for this land would stamp you as a sucker of the rankest class." He did not buy.

Cyclamen Culture.

The illustration herewith shows cyclamens as grown by Peter Grosse, who appears in the picture at the establishment of W. S. Kircher, Defiance, O.

Cyclamens, Mr. Grosse says, by the middle of May should be in three and four-inch pots which will make it possible to give them one more shift before warm weather sets in, as the plants are better for not being handled more than necessary during the hot months. Another shift should be given about June 15, being careful that the bulbs are well covered, and at no time exposed to the sun, otherwise they will become hardened, the growth curtailed and the leaves stunted. A temperature of 60 degrees will be none too high where the plants are given plenty of room. If crowded, however, the plants will become drawn. If sprayed lightly in the late afternoon, it will not be necessary to shade the glass to any extent. The water will be absorbed through the night, and will enable the plants to withstand the heat of the following day. During the last week in August and the early part of September, make the final shift to the flowering pots, with just the top of the bulb showing. It will then grow about one-half inch above the soil and ripen nicely.

The worst enemy of cyclamens is the green fly, which causes the leaves to curl and offer a hiding place for thrips and red spider. Spraying every two weeks with nico-fume will keep the plants clean, and if tobacco dust is mixed with the potting soil, it will prevent insects gaining a hold, and at the same time answer for leaf mold.

The cyclamens under Mr. Grosse's care are among the best in this section. Twelve thousand of them from three-inch pots, disposed of recently, brought a good price. Out of a stock of 70,000 plants, there are now on hand 30,000 which are receiving careful attention and will soon be in fine condition.

Mr. Grosse saves his own seed and expects to have 500,000 this year.

National Publicity for Flowers.

FAITH IN THE CAMPAIGN WORK.

M. W. Farr, Reading, Mass., writes: "Enclosed find $10 for one year's contribution to the advertising fund. I think this is a great thing for all florists, and all should contribute, as it will doubtless be returned many times over."

If all the florists would but have the same faith in our work Mr. Farr has, we could reach our goal. Too many florists are predisposed to argue with themselves in a parsimonious way. "Business is good," they say, "why should we pay to keep it so, when there are others who gladly contribute? They must help us, if they help themselves, therefore, we need not worry." This is not the true American feeling. Such a thought is evidence of disloyalty—disloyalty to the industry which makes a good living possible.

The publicity campaign was inaugurated to benefit the whole trade, not any particular part of it. The splendid results from it have proved this. That the demand for flowers has increased through it, is no longer questioned. Not a day passes but the secretary does not receive at least one letter asking how flowers can be delivered at some distant point, and every such letter is traceable to our national advertising. This is only a small instance of the good accomplished, but large enough to assure us that the advertisements are being read. We know for a certainty that our slogan is working as we desired it should. Ask any florist whose daily business includes much of the transient variety, how many of his customers refer to it. Look around you and notice how often paragraphers in the public press refer to it. Even the stage has taken it up. A once popular whiskey slogan had similar publicity sufficient to insure an enormous sale of the product, but its publicity cost millions where ours is costing mere thousands. Again, if our campaign had done nothing more than stimulate florists to direct a little publicity for themselves our efforts and expense would not have been wasted.

Then, why should a man hold aloof from the movement from a parsimonious standpoint? He is, to quote an old saying, "skinning a flint for a half-penny, and spoiling a sixpenny knife over it." Just so long as he holds out, will the full measure of benefit from the campaign be delayed. Now do not be a skinflint because it is easy to be one. If our noble army of subscribers had been skinflints, the florist business would not be what is is today, prosperous, and to be made more so when our fund increases.

What our committee needs now is more money to work with. We are faced, at this time, with the problem of providing for our fall advertising, which includes Thanksgiving and the Christmas holiday advertising, contracts for which must be placed months ahead of the dates of issue. There is also much advertising for ordinary, everyday business to be provided. It was surely noticed how well floral gifts showed up in the Christmas trade of last year. Help to make it twice as good this year—it can be done through judicious advertising.

Why not give your support now, when the committee so greatly needs it? Send your check to the secretary right away—and do not worry as to the amount; whatever you give will be gratefully appreciated.

Edging for Shrubberies.

A correspondent of the Arboretum writes: "Can you recommend several shrubs suitable for edging planting before taller shrubs? I have used xanthorrhiza considerably, but it is almost the only shrub that I find low enough for that purpose. I want to bring some cornels down to the edge of a drive and I also want to plant in front of privets and thorns."

There are not many shrubs with deciduous leaves which can be successfully used for this purpose. The best which has been tried in the Arboretum is the fragrant sumach (Rhus canadensis, or as it was formerly called, Rhus aromatica). This widely distributed North American shrub rarely grows more than five feet tall, and when planted in good soil is often broader than tall with lower branches spreading flat on the ground, and upper branches erect spreading or drooping. In early spring before the leaves appear the branches are covered with clusters of small bright yellow flowers which in June are followed by dull red fruits which are pretty much hidden by the small compound leaves. Among the small shrubs in the Arboretum few are more brilliant at this season of the year for the leaves turn gradually to bright scarlet and orange. This rhus has been largely planted along some of the drives and this week it is a conspicuous feature of the Arboretum. The xanthorrhiza has also been largely and successfully used here. It makes a neat border plant, and it is also well suited to grow under tall shrubs or trees. The xanthorrhiza spreads rapidly by underground stems which do not grow more than from twelve to eighteen inches high; the small purple flowers which are arranged in drooping clusters, appear as the leaves unfold; these are pinnate, of a cheerful green color and in the autumn turn pale yellow. Some of the North American roses might be used to edge beds of larger shrubs although most of them are too upright in habit to be really useful for this purpose. There is a dwarf form of the chokeberry (Aronia nigra) in the Arboretum collection which might be used to advantage for this purpose. Unfortunately, however, it probably cannot be found in commercial nurseries. This is true, too, of the dwarf quince of Japan (Chaenomeles japonica, sometimes called pyrus or Cydonis Maulei in European nurseries). This is a shrub with spreading branches which do not rise more than two feet above the ground.

CYCLAMENS AT W. S. KIRCHER'S, DEFIANCE, O.
Grower Peter Grosse in the Foreground.

The flowers vary on different plants from crimson to pink and to white, and are followed by small yellow, fragrant quince-like fruit. These handsome little shrubs, like the larger quinces and many related plants, attract the San Jose scale, which needs careful watching and frequent spraying. All the snowberries (Symphoricarpus) including the red-fruited S. vulgaris can be used in front of larger growing shrubs; and the trailing stems of one of the American burning bushes (Evonymus obovatus) make a good border when taller plants protect them from the direct rays of the sun. Some of the low-growing Chinese cotoneasters, like C. horizontalis with its varieties Wilsonii and perpusilla, and C. apiculata are well suited in habit to plant before larger shrubs. If used, however, with cornels or privets they might appear too exotic, and their proper place is in front of beds of the large-growing Chinese cotoneasters. Their value for this purpose can be seen on the southern slope of Bussey hill where dwarf cotoneasters have been planted before the large growing species. There are a few broad-leaved evergreens which can be successfully used here to form an edging to beds of larger evergreens. The best of them is probably Andromeda floribunda from the southern Appalachian mountains, one of the hardiest and handsomest of the broad-leaved evergreen plants which can be grown in this climate. It makes a good edging, and with abundant space a wide, symmetrical specimen. Two low hybrid rhododendrons, R. myrtifolium and R. arbutifolium (R. Wilsonii of many gardens) are useful to plant on the margins of groups of taller growing kinds; and R. carolinianum, although it blooms earlier than most rhododendrons which are hardy in this climate, might be used for the same purpose.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, October 17, 1919.

American Peony Society.

PLANS FOR ANNUAL EXHIBITION.

At a meeting of the directors of the American Peony Society, held at Reading, Pa., recently, a prize schedule was adopted for the spring show to be held in that city. The dates provisionally set are June 10-11. The exhibition is to be staged at the Hotel Berkshire, and all those who plan to be there should reserve their rooms at the hotel without delay. On the evening of the first day, there will be an informal dinner at the Reading chamber of commerce. For the following day, an automobile trip is planned, to give the visitors some idea of the beauty spots in that picturesque region.

Everything possible will be done to make the show a big success. Reading has exceptional cold-storage facilities, which should encourage growers at a distance to send in some fine exhibits. Those who intend shipping should communicate with B. H. Farr as to details.

The chamber of commerce has made a substantial contribution to the prize schedule, and will aid in other ways in giving everyone an enjoyable time. The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society is also aiding very generously to provide a prize schedule that is much larger than at any previous peony show. It has been especially enlarged so as to appeal to the gardening fraternity in Philadelphia and vicinity, a region famous for its fine estates and gardens.

Entries for the show are to be addressed to David Rust, secretary of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, 606 Finance building, South Penn square, Philadelphia, Pa., and all exhibitors are particularly urged to send in their entries not later than June 1. It is impossible to make adequate preparation for vases and table space unless something is known beforehand as to the number of entries in each class.

Among the new and interesting features of the show are two prizes for collections of Richardson and Hollis varieties, respectively. The society has published this year a special bulletin on Hollis' introductions, and some fine exhibits are looked for in this class. The Harrison memorial prize of $100, offered by L. R. Bonnewitz, the president of the society, for a new yellow peony, is still open this year, and any good blooms staged in competition for this prize, would be worth seeing.

In order to expedite the judging, two committees will divide the labor, one taking the open classes, the other the amateurs.

American Dahlia Society.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Dahlia Society was held at the Grand Hotel, New York, May 10, 1920. A prize schedule for the fall flower show was partially prepared, to be completed by the committee and presented at the next meeting, June 14. More than half of the trade space has already been taken for the dahlia show to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York, September 27-29, and many prizes have been contributed. The indications are that the total number and value of the prizes will be more than offered at any previous show. Quite a number of orders have also been received for trade tickets, which are offered at $25 per 100, the regular admission being 50 cents.

It was finally decided that only exhibitors occupying trade space will be allowed to do business in the hall during the show, and that all competitive exhibits will be together, separate from trade exhibits, and not combined as was originally intended.

The many obstacles appearing, have been overcome, and everything now points to this being the largest and most successful show of any single flower ever held.

Gypsy and Brown-Tail Moth Quarantine.

The issuance, May 1, of the notice of public hearing called for May 7 for the purpose of revising the existing quarantine in New England on account of the gypsy and brown-tail moths has, through a misunderstanding of the purport of this notice, occasioned some alarm on the part of nurserymen, florists and others, who jumped at conclusions that some new and drastic quarantine was about to be placed which would seriously affect the sale for interstate movement of ornamental and other plants from the states covered in the proposed quarantine. In explanation, it may be stated that this quarantine is a mere revision of the quarantine which has been in force since 1912. It is, therefore, not a new quarantine and will impose no new restrictions on the territory which has hitherto been covered by the quarantine. This territory involves approximately the coastal half of New England and practically all of the large nursery and floral establishments of that district. The purpose of this quarantine is merely to make such changes of the exterior border line as the spread of the moths during the year have necessitated. Such changes, either in the form of extensions or reductions, have been made annually. It may be pointed out, furthermore, that this quarantine does not prohibit the movement of nursery stock, florists' stock and other products covered, but that movement of all such products is provided for under inspection and certification. Nurserymen, florists and others interested have been working under this quarantine for some eight years, and the efficiency of the inspection and certification under this quarantine has permitted the interstate trade in ornamental and florists' stock to proceed without restriction—trade which without the endorsement of such inspection and certification, would probably have been brought to an abrupt termination by drastic quarantine action on the part of surrounding states.

The only serious effect of any extension of this quarantine is to cause a greater expense of supervision and certification to the department of agriculture and the states concerned.

To avoid the necessity of these annual revisions, and the notices of public hearings which these revisions require, together with the misinterpretation of these notices which is likely to follow, it is now proposed, in connection with the revision of this year, to so word the quarantine as to make it possible to effect the additions or reductions in the quarantined territory from time to time, without the necessity of annual public hearings. In conclusion, it may be repeated that the existence of this quarantine, and the guarantee which is given by the inspection and certification of nursery and other ornamental stock, as well as other products leaving the territory, is the very condition which makes interstate movement of these products and the continuance of the enterprises concerned possible.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Amelia T. Braun.

Mrs. Amelia T. Braun, better known in the trade as Mrs. Theodore Braun, and a retail florist of New York for the past 44 years, died at her home 149 Third avenue, that city, May 14, age 72 years. She had been in failing health for some time, and the business has been conducted by her daughter, Mrs. Elsa V. Schreebe, and her husband, L. B. Schreebe. Mrs. Braun was born in Germany, as was her husband, who died over 20 years ago. After his death, she continued the business in the same neighborhood where it is now located. She is survived by her daughter and son-in-law, two grandchildren, Mrs. George Miller and Harold Schreebe, and one great grandson, George Miller, Jr. Mrs. Miller is at present in San Antonio, Texas.

THE difference between a rut and a grave, is width and depth; dead ones are found in both places.

SOME communities report being short of coal now, in the last half of May; we are wondering what the conditions would be in difficult shipping weather.

H. SUZUKI, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., who returned to New York from Europe on the S. S. Mauretania, May 16, says that cut flower prices are higher in England than in the United States, lilies, for example, selling at one shilling per bloom. In Belgium, he found the horticultural trade very quiet, with bay trees going very cheap. He made extensive purchases which will be shipped to Japan by way of India.

Personal.

E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum, Jamaica Plain, Mass., is preparing for a two-year tour of India, Ceylon, Australia and New Zealand, in search of new plants suitable for cultivation in this country.

American Gladiolus Society.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

The following named gladiolus has been offered for registration by Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago. If no objection is filed with the committee before June 1, the registration becomes complete. The following is the introducer's description:

Name—Mrs. H. A. Caesar. Description: This seedling gladiolus is a cross of America with Sunbeam. Its habit of growth is more robust than America, and with same flowering season. The length of spike is about the same, but it produces more buds, frequently showing five to eight open flowers, well placed on the spike. The color is a beautiful lavender, shading to lilac, with a yellow dash in the lower petals. Admirers have called it Orchid Beauty. The spikes are uniformly straight and upright, with no crooked stems.

A. C. Beal, Chairman,
Nomenclature Committee.

American Rose Society.

NATIONAL ROSE GARDEN PILGRIMAGE.

The summer meeting of the American Rose Society will be held in Washington, D. C., June 2, 1920. All visitors are expected to register at Wm. F. Gude's store, 1214 F street, N. W., between 9 and 10 a. m. Promptly at 10 o'clock, the party will proceed by auto to the department of agriculture to pick up any others who may have registered at the department main building. The party will then proceed to the garden for an inspection, two hours being allowed for this. There will be no speeches at the garden, these being reserved for the banquet which will follow later. At 12 o'clock, the party will be taken to Twin Oaks, where as in former years an enjoyable time will be spent, two hours being allowed. The banquet will follow, and at this function certain prominent members will uphold the oratorial traditions of the society. The report of the judges will be presented at the banquet. At 4 o'clock, the party will be conducted to the site of the show garden, the same to be dedicated with appropriate speeches. Those in charge have prepared a programme well provided with entertainment, and it behooves the members of the American Rose Society to encourage those in charge of our national rose garden by attending the meeting. There is going to be a larger attendance than in any previous year in the history of the society. Are you going to attend the banner meeting and partake of the joys and pleasures of this Feast of Roses?

A. C. BEAL, Chairman,
Central Test Garden Committee.

Plant Division Aid Examination.

The United States civil service commission announces an open competitive examination for aid in the division of plants, national museum, June 23, 1920, to fill a position at $1,200 per annum, and vacancies in positions requiring similar qualifications at this or higher or lower salaries, unless it is found to the interest of the service to fill any vacancy by reinstatement, transfer or promotion.

The duties of the position will consist of general work about the herbarium, including the preparation of material and its arrangement. It is desired to secure persons who have fair knowledge of botany and who are familiar with taxonomic methods and with herbarium work in general, including collecting, preserving, mounting and labeling of plant specimens and their care. At least two years training in college or university is a prerequisite for consideration for this position. Competitors will be examined in the followng subjects, which will have the relative weights indicated: Practical questions (including translation from Latin, French or German), 50 points; thesis (to be delivered to the examiner on the day of the examination), 30; education and experience, 20.

Applicants should at once apply for Form 1312, stating the title of the examination desired to the Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or the secretary of the United States civil service board, in their respective districts.

Express Receipts in Duplicate Required.

On and after July 1, the American Railway Express Co. will keep a duplicate copy of every receipt it issues, when receiving business from shippers. The duplicates will be retained by the express company for the purposes of record and reference, and will be held at the shipping office. Shippers who have been accustomed to prepare their own receipts, or who have their own forms, have been requested to make provision for supplying duplicates of such receipts to the express driver or receiving clerk who signs them. As a matter of convenience to shippers, the regular receipt forms of the express carrier will be revised to permit their use in duplicate form.

In cases where prepaid receipts are now being issued in duplicate, the extra copy being used as a record of charges paid, a third copy will be required under the new system, and in such instances, prepaid receipts will be issued in triplicate.

One of the objects of the new system is to bring about better protection for, and methods of recording the movement of express packages in transit.

MOTHERS DAY BEYOND EXPECTATIONS.

The Mothers' day business in this section was far in excess of the florists' most sanguine expectations. Needless to say, all the available carnations were cleaned up long before the holiday was over. Tulips, especially those of the Darwin variety, which are just coming in, were in great demand, so were roses and pot plants of all kinds. The supply of roses, which has been rather limited all week, is so completely cleaned up that many are having difficulty in taking care of their regular trade; however, it is expected that the supply will be increased from now on until June. Retailers here feel that the Mothers' day campaign, in addition to adding another holiday to swell the business, has opened up a new channel of trade, since it has drawn in large numbers of people, hitherto unacquainted with the appropriateness of flowers as gifts at all times. Crowds filled the stores until late Saturday night, and began again early Sunday morning, keeping the regular sales force and extra help busy until noon. So insistent was the demand that even inferior stock, which had been left till the last, was eagerly accepted by late comers. The attempt to interest the public in flowers other than carnations, met with some success, although they moved rather slowly for boutonniere trade until the supply of carnations was exhausted. The unusual number of large funerals and social functions have been enough to keep business up to the top notch, even without the holiday trade. The stores are finding it hard to get sufficient stock for their baskets and wreaths. The first of the local iris is being shown this week. The color is not yet all that could be desired. The trade in bedding stock is at its height; pansies, forget-me-nots, geraniums, and cinerarias are still the favorites. Local bluebells and lily of the valley are very popular. Tulips are offered in great profusion, some of the shades, especially the purple, being very choice. Sweet peas, in the lighter shades, continue to be plentiful and gladioli are coming on in good shape. The orchid is still selling well, owing to the activity of the social season.

NOTES.

At the opening of the new store of J. S. Graham, Inc., the retail merchants of the city expressed their good wishes with a large number of flower baskets. The features of the display were a large rustic basket filled with snapdragons, surrounded by Premier roses, the square handle being decorated with orchids and rambler roses, furnished by the Hollywood Gardens. Three baskets of bright spring flowers were furnished by the Woodlawn Flower Shop; three plant baskets of calceolarias, by Rosaia Bros., and baskets containing combinations of lilac, calceolarias, cinerarias and narcissus by McCoy's Flower Shop.

The Woodlawn Florist Shop showed a novel baby window this week. A stuffed stork, stood in a pool of water, in which were floating pansies, narcissi and other flowers of lively hue. Ribbons leading from the stork were attached to a baby buggy containing a large baby doll. A card in the window set forth the advantages of flowers as a nativity gift.

The Hollywood Gardens' store is preparing a very handsome funeral piece in the form of a casket pall. It is composed of a striking combination of Columbia roses, lily of the valley and orchids.

Mrs. Anna F. Burns reports the trade for Mothers' day, far ahead of last year, and states that even the Easter demand was outdone by the business on this occasion.

Henry Day, of the Orpheum Floral Co., reports that the supply of carnations, which came in too late for the Mothers' day trade, is cleaning up well.

Kenney's Home of Flowers is having a good trade in bedding stock this week, including marguerites, cinerarias, pansies and forget-me-nots.

C. H. S.

Nashville, Tenn.

SUPPLY MODERATE; MOVEMENT NORMAL.

Trade following Mothers' day has been fair, with supply about normal, among the offerings being roses, carnations, sweet peas and lilies. The variety has also been increased by the abundant supply of fine peonies in all colors. Irises are about done for, but the ladies of the Iris Club have made a truly wonderful display of all colors obtainable in some of the gardens surrounding this city. The cool weather of "blackberry winter" is now here and has called for some heat and temporary return to winter clothing. Bedding plants are now a factor and many are now being shipped out of the city. The market house contingent are receiving many orders and regular dealers have all they can take care of.

NOTE.

In the suit of the McIntyre Floral Co. against the Prairie Fertilizer Co., for damages resulting from accumulations of fine lime dust on glass, plants and personal property and food, the court has rendered a verdict against the fertilizer concern and has enjoined the collection of $10,000 due the company for a recent fire loss, pending the decision as to the amount of damages to which the McIntyre Floral Co. is entitled. The case has been appealed by the defendants.

Cut Flowers and Florists' Supplies

Let the President tell the Story—

For the past six years I have been connected with T. J. Noll & Co., wholesale commission florists of Kansas City. The Noll interests have been bought out, and I have assumed direct charge. The successful policy which has won the approval of the trade will be continued and enlarged.

In the future, this firm will conduct the wholesale cut flower and supply business under the name of the KANSAS CITY CUT FLOWER COMPANY, at the same address as before.

We will serve you faithfully and efficiently; we look forward with pleasure to a happy business relationship with old customers and new accounts. Our enlarged facilities will enable us to take good care of new customers.

Yours for service,

L. R. BOHANNON.

Our supply of cut flowers is ample and the quality is fine. Excellent Sweet Peas, Snapdragon, Roses and Carnations are now here. Peonies are being booked for Decoration Day. Get our quotations on all stock.

You can secure from us, promptly and at attractive prices, all staple florists' supplies and attractive novelties. The trade has already approved our fine selection of baskets.

GRATIFYING MOTHERS DAY BUSINESS.

Mothers' day business showed a great increase over former years. There was a heavy demand for all kinds of flowers, with carnations the leaders. Florists who are members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association did a rushing business and great quantities of telegrams were handled for eastern and southern points. Assorted boxes of spring flowers were much in demand and probably made up the bulk of the business. There was a large cut of roses, all of which were sold at good prices. Sweet peas were much in demand, the colored varieties moving best. Delphiniums and snapdragons sold readily. There is a fine supply of red peonies being received and they were much sought for by buyers. The florists here made no special effort in the way of advertising to secure Mothers' day business. If they had done so, there is no doubt but what there would have been a decided increase in the amount of orders handled.

NOTES.

P. Vincent Matraia, president of the Art Floral Company, made a business trip to Los Angeles during the week. He visited with the trade at Hollywood, Los Angeles and Santa Barbara. At the latter place, he purchased a carload of kentias for his Powell street store. He says trade in the south is fine, and was surprised at the good prices received for stock in Los Angeles. He says far better prices are being received there than in this city for cut flowers.

Providing that the weather continues fair, there is every indication that there will be a large supply of cut flowers for Memorial day. Growers and wholesalers report an unusual inquiry for stock for the occasion, and already are placing large orders.

The Lynch Nursery Company, of Menlo Park, shipped large consignments of white carnations to this market and Sacramento for Mothers' day. Matchless is their standard white variety and it is finely grown at this place.

Avensino Bros. are specializing on orchids in variety at their new store on Geary street. The window displays of these flowers are always sure to draw crowds, owing to the pleasing manner in which they are arranged.

Albert O. Stein made his usual beautiful display for Mothers' day. His large store was handsomely and artistically arranged with pot plants and spring flowers. Trade here is reported as being very good.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. did a heavy F. T. D. business on Mothers' day. Frank Pelicano is one of the oldest members of the association, having served on the board of directors for many years.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee, on Hyde street, did a large shipping trade for Mothers' day. She expects that the shipping end of her business will continue to be strong until the season ends.

The Chas. C. Navlet Company reports a fine trade for Mothers' day at their stores in this city and Oakland. Spring plant trade is also reported as being excellent with them.

E. P. Searle & Co., cargo surveyors, at 120 Second street, are asking for bids on 207 cases of Japanese bulbs which they have stored at the above address.

J. A. Axell made large shipments of roses throughout the state and is greatly pleased over the many inquiries now being received for Memorial day.

Miss Dolores Howard, the efficient saleslady of the Art Floral Co., leaves shortly for a vacation to be spent at the beaches in southern California.

The E. W. McLellan Company is sending in a heavy cut of American Beauty roses from their greenhouses, at San Lorenzo.

Victor Ferrari, manager of Ferarri Bros. greenhouses, is supplying the market with a fine cut of cattleyas and phalænopsis.

Rosaia Bros. & Co. have a large acreage of gladioli planted this season, consisting of the best commercial varieties.

The Nels Peterson greenhouses at San Mateo supplied this market with a fine quality of carnations for Mothers' day.

STOCK IS PLENTIFUL.

Business was good the past week, but the demand was not as heavy as might be expected, consequently stock is plentiful in almost all lines. American Beauty roses are good property and clean up at satisfactory figures right along. Premier, Columbia and Mrs. Charles Russell are reaching the market in splendid condition, and are moving nicely, although the heaviest demand in these three items is for short and medium stemmed stock. Roses in general are in large supply and are to be had in quantity lots at some of the stores at attractive prices. Carnations appear to be cleaning up at good prices each day and there is seldom any surplus in this item. A few peonies are reaching the market and are disposed of regularly at high figures. A few local grown indoor gladioli, principally Halley and Pendleton, are to be had together with a miscellaneous assortment of outdoor southern grown stock. Lilies are in large supply and callas are seen at a few of the houses in good sized quantities. Lily of the valley is in strong demand and there is a ready call for gardenias and orchids. Snapdragons of splendid quality are obtainable in quantity and are being featured extensively in many of the leading store windows. A few tulips are seen. Daisies, poppies, calendulas, stocks, narcissi, candytuft, pansies, and other miscellaneous seasonable stock is included in the offerings. Greens are scarce, especially ferns, which in almost all instances are bringing $6 per 1,000 with very little good stock obtainable at this figure. The dealers lost the greater part of their ferns in storage this season and one wholesale house was only able to get 75 bunches out of the regular size case, which, of course, is below the average. The outlook is very bright for a heavy business for Memorial day and everyone who depends upon this market for his supply for the occasion will do well to place his order immediately to avoid disappointment. Do it now.

NOTES.

L. R. Bohannon, of the Bohannon Floral Co., who has been connected for the past six years with T. J. SHORT SUPPLY MOVES OUT WELL.

Due to the complete cleanup for Mothers' day, the demand for flowers on Monday and Tuesday following, was very brisk and as stock had been cut fairly close, the market was again in A-1 condition, with good prices prevailing. While business for the whole week was good, after Wednesday, prices receded. Lilies, which came in more freely, seemed to hang fire. With most in the trade locally, Mothers' day proved to be just as good, and better, than either Christmas or Easter, and we trust that our plant growers will map out their plans for the 1921 holiday accordingly.

NOTES.

Rich, Lietz, at 1433 Fond du Lac avenue, had a novel experience a short time ago. Being unable to get Pocahontas coal, he used soft fuel, which, while carefully handled, back fired, filling up his two greenhouses and dwelling with gas. While some of the plants were a complete loss, others had their foliage badly damaged.

Miss Gertrude Sommers, of the J. M. Fox & Son force, had the misfortune, while carrying two vases, to trip, some of the glass injuring her left wrist quite badly. In spite of the handicap, she was on duty for the Mothers' day rush, which wound up with a lot of funeral work for the next morning.

Local carnation growers are behind in getting out the young stock, due to the late season. We even had quite a frost May 12-13. From present indications, there will be no oversupply of outdoor cut flowers for Memorial day, as all vegetation is fully two weeks late.

Gust Baerman & Sons, on the Burleigh road, were fortunate in having a good sized lot of crocus in bloom, which they potted up for Mothers' day, and they proved to be a good proposition. With them, it was the best ever.

Otto Eggebrecht & Sons, on the Fond du Lac road, besides selling all their cut flowers for Mothers' day, also moved about 500 geraniums which according to quality, realized 35 and 50 cents.

During the week May 3-9, one of the big features at the Holton & Hunkel Co. was the handling of 84,000 carnations, besides large quantities of sweet peas and roses.

Gust. Rusch & Co., in commenting on the Mothers' day business, say that it eclipsed any holiday since they have been in business.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. had a good cut at their greenhouses for the past holiday, and report a complete cleanup.

SLOW BUSINESS AND LOW PRICES.

The market has been slow the past week, and little change for the better is looked for until the Memorial day demand puts in an appearance. Good roses are now quoted at $6 to $15 per hundred and the supply greater than the demand. Carnations are of various grades, and the prices are in accordance with the quality of the stock. The best are now held at $4 per hundred. Sweet peas are sold in thousand lots at $5, better grades at $7.50 per thousand, and the best stock at $1 per hundred. Easter lilies are in good supply, but do not move as fast as expected. Callas seem in better demand, and sell out at $12 per hundred. Pansies are unusually fine, and when the stems are of good length, bring $1 per hundred. Peonies have made their appearance and no doubt will be much sought, when they arrive in larger quantities. Gladioli, indoor stock, both Halley and America, can now be had in small quantities, not sufficient for quotation. Miniature gladioli are good sellers. Leucothoe is done for this season. New ferns are a welcome addition. Smilax is poor and high at the price asked. Flowering plants do not show much variety, but a few well grown begonias are seen, also hydrangeas in the smaller sizes. Boston ferns are about cleaned out, only the smaller sizes being left. Hardy rose bushes for outdoor planting are in big demand, and a very scarce article. Much poor stock is seen. Memorial day will soon be with us but retailers do not look for big business, Mothers' day taking some of the interest away from this holiday.

CLUB PUBLICITY ACTIVITIES.

The meeting of the florists' club, May 11, was quite well attended, and the proceedings were interesting and embraced a lengthy and complete report of the teams appointed previously to solicit subscriptions for the publicity on the co-operative plan which has been adopted. As a number of the florists have not yet signed, it was decided to delay the matter of assessment until the signatures of all florists in the city are secured. This will be accomplished, it is hoped, by the visiting teams by June 1, when the assessment plan will become operative without delay. Chairman of the committee, A. Pochelon, gave a detailed account of the advertising he placed for Mothers' day, which includes space in all daily local papers and many weekly publications. Posters and stickers were also distributed from his office. From reports by members present, the advertising proved most effective as everyone was favored with excellent trade, notwithstanding the assaults of the organization, which sought to cast odium on flower sales and substitute flags and buttons to convey sentiment on the occasion.

A feature of especial interest was a paper originally presented before the Pasadena Horticultural Society by the author, J. Austin Shaw, entitled "First Impressions of an Eastern Horticulturist in the Land of Flowers and Sunshine." This was followed by an addresses by E. A. Fetters and Thomas Browne, both recently returned from a lengthy visit to the Pacific coast. They gave their impressions of the country, which abounds in scenes particularly appealing to the trained eyes of florists who can appreciate both the beauty and commercial phases of floriculture. phases of floriculture.

NOTE.

R. Wells, for many years with the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, and recently with P. Reuss & Co., is now the local manager of the Detroit-McCallum Co.

E. W. Myers, manager of the Detroit Florists' Exchange, was elected a member of the club. J. F. S.

BIG MEMORIAL DAY TRADE INDICATED.

Following an excellent Mothers' day business, all indications point to a very favorable Memorial day trade with advance orders being received daily. Cut flower prices are being well maintained, due to a rather limited supply. Carnations and roses both range from $8 to $20 per 100. Bulbous stock is on the wane and Easter lilies have gone back to 12½ and 16 cents.

NOTES.

Henry Comley's force has been kept very busy with funeral work and wedding orders have also been numerous at this establishment.

Harry Quint, on Boylston street, reports the best business in his history and had a good Mothers' day business.

Newman & Sons' new store on Tremont street is very attractive and is in a good location for theatrical business.

A. M. Davenport is sending in some excellent bedding stock and a few Stewartii and Golden Gem calceolarias.

Galvin's two stores are having a good season, with a number of wedding orders booked for June.

Charles Evans has a good stock of hydrangeas and rose bushes for Memorial day trade. S. K. G.

BEST MOTHERS' DAY ON RECORD.

Sales for Mothers' day were the best in the history of the trade in this section. Increased volumes of 50 to 100 per cent are common. The florists of this city went in for co-operative advertising and with the support of the press, gained considerable publicity for the occasion. Stock was in good supply and the more prominent stores did not find it necessary to increase prices. The demand for roses at $8 to $25 per 100 proved greater than for carnations at $12 for the better grades. Sweet peas were plentiful at $2 to $4. While in heavy crop, they were used largely for corsages, as the weather for the day was fine. At present, roses are very good, especially Premier. Select Dunlop is a prominent offering and Columbia and Ophelia are holding their own. Carnations, while not in oversupply, are ample for requirements and are at their best as regards quality. The other items available include irises, snapdragons, mignonette, lilies and Darwin tulips.

NOTES.

On the occasion of the meeting of the florists' club May 10, about 20 members of the Hamilton club were present. They are much in favor of the publicity campaign and interested in its details.

There is now a large demand for roses, discarded from the benches, which now bring $18 and $20 per 100. A few years ago these could be had for the asking.

J. J. Higgins is now in his new location on Yonge street, and reports increased business.

J. A. Neal has been ill for some time, and is at his farm.

PLANTS LEAD IN STRONG DEMAND.

The market is gradually getting back to normal. Mothers' day cleaned up all salable stock, making it necessary to cut roses and carnations half open at the eleventh hour, and still the demand could not be met. As usual, the plant department is bare of everything with the exception of a small supply of Martha Washington geraniums. Prices have dropped to their regular level and sweet peas have gone out of season. Due to backward weather conditions, the retailers will have to rely largely on roses and carnations for Memorial day. Peonies are just showing color, and possibly a few of the early varieties will be on hand, but this is doubtful. Outdoor sweet peas are also late.

NOTES.

From this year's exceptional business, it is the consensus of opinion of the retailers that Mothers' day will outdo any of the other special days.

The staff of the Miller Floral Co. worked 40 hours straight to get all orders out on time.

BEDDING PLANT SALES NOW BIG FACTOR.

Spring bedding plants, and problems, are taking a large share of the attention of local florists at present. The demand is good, and there is some hustling to handle the orders and provide stock wanted. Prices average probably 50 per cent higher than last year. The weather has only lately been favorable to plant growth, and the demand has consequently developed with a rush that is very hard to handle. Mothers' day business was the heaviest ever for that occasion. The demand covered about everything offered. Flowering plants of all kinds, as well as the full range of cut flowers, were all cleaned up. Made-up plant baskets were not offered in quantity, so only a few were sold. The F. T. D. business was good, both in and out. Prices on cut flowers were advanced very little over usual everyday prices, except on carnations, which went to $3.00 per dozen, for the best. As usual, there was the old-time

GOOD DEMAND IN ALL LINES.

Trade during the past week has been fairly brisk. There is a good demand for practically all sorts of seasonable flowers, and the supply is adequate to all needs. The quality is better than usual. Memorial day, which always brings an extra demand, this year is expected to be better than usual, due to the patriotic spirit, which is widespread. There will be a good supply for the occasion, according to retailers in the down-town district. Social functions are numerous and quite a few large receptions and other affairs were held recently. Others are planned for the near future. Weddings are also increasing in number and many are scheduled for the month of June. Funeral work has been rather quiet recently. The principal flowers in the local market are roses, which sell from $3 to $8 per dozen; carnations, $2; fancy sweet peas, $1.50; snapdragons, $3 to $5; tulips at $1 to $2; narcissi, 75 cents, and calendulas, 75 cents to $1. For Memorial day, indications point to a shortage of peonies. Other flowers will be in good supply.

NOTE.

The general Memorial day committee is considering the question of how to collect sufficient flowers for the decoration of veterans' graves. Usually, school children are asked to bring their extra flowers to the various school buildings and thus are collected. If the children are requested to bring their flowers on Friday, it is feared the blossoms will be in poor condition by Monday. On the other hand, if they are asked to bring them in on Saturday, only about half as many will be secured.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE PASS YOUR GREENHOUSES

Do you give them any suggestion to buy flowers as they pass?

Think! of this opportunity you are passing up every day. GREAT—BIG—WONDERFUL greenhouses full of beautiful flowers. All kinds of good selling suggestion space going to waste, while it should be doing you some good.

PUT UP A "SAY IT WITH FLOWERS" BILLBOARD. Place it in a conspicuous place where it can't help but be seen by everyone who passes (as shown in above illustration). If only ONE out of 1000 passing, acts on the suggestion and buys flowers you'll be money ahead because the sign will cost you less than 25c per week based on its lasting 2 years. It will last longer than 2 years because—the sign is made of metal.

Every floral establishment in the U. S. A. and Canada should consider this billboard. The same type of sign would cost you at least $100.00 if you went outside to buy it. And here the S. A. F. offers it to you at cost—and at a quantity rate, $50.00. Yet some florists fail to grasp the opportunity.

THE S. A. F. CONTRACT WITH SIGN BUILDERS EXPIRES SHORTLY. ORDER NOW—Don't keep putting it off.

MOTHERS' DAY DEMAND UNUSUAL.

EASTER.

Mothers' day business surpassed all expectations and some of the stores were not prepared for the unusual influx of orders. The number of deliveries made reminded many of Easter. The day seems to have arrived at a point of general observance in this city. The florists, two weeks before the event, in advertising in the local papers, called attention to a $2 box for delivery Saturday, which doubtless did much in increasing sales.

CLUB MEETING.

The May meeting of the florists' club with President Ekas in the chair was well attended, about 60 being present. The greater part of the evening was devoted to discussions on publicity. The advertising slides of Henry Penn, the live-wire Boston retailer, loaned for the occasion, were shown and many in attendance were surprised at the extensiveness of his undertakings, which the slides clearly demonstrated. A pleasant feature of the meeting was the sleight-of-hand performance of Mr. Walton, a guest.

A resolution was adopted on the death of the late John Nuth, one of the most respected members of the trade in this city.

Representatives from the Woman's Civic League, interested in the Washington monument flower market, outlined their plans to the club and asked the organization's co-operation.

WEEK OF DULL BUSINESS.

It took good salesmanship to get rid of the stock the past week, at least as far as the local market was concerned. The wohlesaler who cleaned up every day, had to plan, temper his prices, and keep after the trade all the time. Monday was satisfactory, but the rest of the week, until Saturday, when the street men were all busy, was anything but comforting. The quality of the stock in all lines is very good for the season. American Beauty is the only scarce rose; all other sorts are ahead of the demand. Russell is fine, as is also Columbia. Premier has also made good, and stood the rising temperature very well. There are several new crops of sweet peas which are in demand. The tail-end stock is very short and brings a short price. Snapdragons are very good, and popular for spray work. Carnations are plentiful, but clean up fairly well. Callas are getting smaller, but find a good market. Easter lilies are shortening up. Calendulas are moving and will soon be cut out. There is plenty of outside lily of the valley. Cattleyas are on the short side, selling up well every day. Smilax, from out of town, is seen in the market. It ought to be good, at $8 per dozen. Darwin tulips are fine stock, and in demand at top prices. The bedding plant men are now in the midst of their spring rush. The Robert Craig Co. is featuring a general line of this class of stock. A large block of splendidly flowered marguerites in six-inch pots are a feature. The removal of the houses has commenced. Several have been sold, and are being taken down by the purchasers.

COAL PRICES ADVANCED.

The growers are up against it in the great advance of bituminous coal, which is now quoted at the mines at $7 per ton for best grades. One of the large growers said last week, with coal at $7 at the mines, and labor in the greenhouses $4.50 to $5 per day, the outlook is anything but encouraging.

NOTES.

The H. F. Michell Co.'s pavement display is a great factor in their local business. It takes several salesmen to handle the trade created by this publicity. Philip Fruend always has their large windows up-to-date. Garden tools, artistically arranged in one, and a growing vegetable garden in the other, have been leading features the past two weeks.

C. U. Liggit says there is an almost unlimited market for all kinds of florist plant stock. Roses in some varieties are particularly scarce; in fact, there is no surplus throughout the entire list of florist forcing stock. Those who are fortunate in being able to work up a line of any of the florist's specialties, will find for them a ready sale at top prices.

The Leo Niessen Co.'s market is a busy corner in the early morning. The number of florists' cars from all sections of the city, that line the streets at 12th and Race, gives some idea of the way in which the trade is growing. High grade Russell roses, carnations and cattleyas are features of their large stock.

Berger Bros. are much pleased with their new location. Alterations are so far completed as not to interfere with business. One block each way, with the exception of the Leo Niessen Co., this locality now holds the entire wholesale florists' trade of this city, so that it can be said to be fairly well centered.

Edward Reid is of the opinion that if many of the local retailers were alive to their opportunities, they would do much more business. The way to get trade is to carry stock. There is nothing inviting about an empty ice box, and customers soon find this out, and go elsewhere.

B. K. Hedrick, a progressive grower of Perkasie, Pa., is erecting a house 41x250 feet. It takes courage to anticipate the future these days, particularly when glass houses cost about $2.25 per square foot of ground covered.

Horace Stern, who is just closing his first season at the Gontram greenhouses, Holmesburg, which he purchased last year, is well pleased with results. His spring crop of snapdragons was particularly fine.

Mrs. John Prince and daughter will sail for England May 28, to visit relatives. Mrs. Prince will visit the grave of her son, an aviator, who was accidentally killed while flying at an aviation field in England.

Allen T. Wicks, late with Thomas Young, Jr., has taken the Leonard Dudman range at Llanarch, Delaware county. His first crops are sweet peas and stock jellie, which latter he is doing exceptionally well.

Ralph Parent, Millville, N. J., has purchased, and is taking down a twin house of the Robert Craig Co. at 49th and Market streets, which he will transport by truck and add to his present glass area.

The Joseph Heacock Co. finished picking sweet peas from their large house, May 15. These have been in heavy crop since the last week in February, and were of splendid quality.

The Bissett brothers, George and Alexander, have taken the Smith greenhouses at Seacane, Delaware county, and report a very good season.

GOOD SUPPLY AND FREE MOVEMENT.

Trade during the past week has been fine, with a good supply moving fast. Callas, roses, sweet peas, marguerites, pansies and daffodils are still in and sell well. Carnations are excellent and have a steady call. The demand for floral work is brisk and takes care of about all of the local production. From the present outlook, geraniums will be plentiful for Memorial day and of good quality.

PRICES SATISFACTORY; SUPPLY NORMAL.

Business was fair the first part of last week, but became slack toward the last. Continued cool weather has kept down the supply of stock to the normal, and also maintained it in good condition for the season. Although demand has seemed rather slow after the flurry of Mothers' day sales, there is no cause for complaint. We cannot recall a previous May 15 when carnations wholesaled at $5 and $6 per 100. The call for American Beauty roses is light, and the prices on specials have been fluctuating between $40 and $60 per 100. Tea roses range from $3 per 100 for No. 2's, to $15 and $20 for special Columbias and Premiers; $35 and $40 per 100 for special Scott Keys and Hadleys. There are, of course, variations in these prices, depending on quality. In orchids, Cattleya gigas continue at the wholesale rate of $150 per 100; C. Mossiæ $50 and $75 for the best. A great stock of sweet peas coninues to arrive, and good blooms have wholesaled for $1 per 100, with the short ones going very cheap. There is a moderate movement in Easter lilies and lily of the valley. Peonies from Maryland are now on the market, and for early arrivals, the stock is of fair quality. There is a large supply of miscellaneous flowers, such as larkspurs, snapdragons, stocks, pansies and minor offerings. Pansies are in heavy supply, and quantities of flowering plants are on sale at the green groceries. Although the retail trade of this city has not, in the past greatly profited from Memorial day business, there has always been activity in the stores located near the cemeteries. Wholesalers have usually had good business from neighboring cities and towns, and it may be believed that it will be increased this year. It is reasonable to expect that with the memory of those who bravely fell in the late war still fresh in the minds of the people, there will be a loyal and generous observance of the day.

"Rest ye in peace, ye Flanders dead!
The fight that ye so bravely lead
We've taken up! And we will keep True faith with you who lie asleep,
With each a cross to mark his bed,
And poppies blowing overhead
Where once his own life blood ran red!
So let your rest be sweet and deep
In Flanders fields!"
—R. W. Lillard.

May 17.—With a good supply of stock available, the market is rather quiet.

NOTES.

At the annual meeting of the Greek-American Florists' Association, held May 13, the following officers were elected: James T. Caparell, president; George Hanges, vice-president; Spiros Sakas, secretary; James Sotiriades, treasurer. James T. Campbell is well known in the trade as president of the Boston Florist Co., a retail firm with a store at Lexington avenue and 34th street. George Hanges is the proprietor of two retail stores on Columbus avenue and one on Broadway. Spiros Sakas is one of the Gramercy Florists, with a store at 260 Third avenue, near Gramercy park, and another at 47th street, near Fifth avenue. James Sotiriades is president of the Transfer Florist, Inc., 1659 Second avenue.

W. H. Long, the retailer of 412 Columbus avenue, arranged an attractive decoration on the Joan of Arc statue, which is located at Riverside drive and 93rd street, May 12, the occasion being a celebration held at the statue. Many yards of laurel and hemlock ropeing were used on the pedestal, which almost completely covered the granite. Garlands of yellow immortelles decorated the heroic figures. There were also a number of wreaths of roses, lilies and other flowers. One wreath was on an order from Paris, France. Another was from the Louisiana Historical Society of New Orleans.

Joseph S. Fenrich, in the 18th street market, is handling fine stock of the new rose, Madame Butterfly, from the Chas. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J. Also, excellent Hadley, Russell, Premier and Columbia from the Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison. Mr. Fenrich is well located near the main entrance to the market.

S. H. Russin, who recently opened a florists' supply store at 58 West 19th street, reports an encouraging business.

Joseph S. Trepel, who has a number of stores in Brooklyn, recently opened another, with two and one-half acres of nursery attached, at Jamaica, L. I. A. H. Knickman, for several years with John Nicholas, the Grand Central florist, is Mr. Trepel's manager of the new enterprise.

Calling, April 15, on Manager Hale, of T. F. Galvin, Inc., we found him making up a basket of rare orchids on an order for Miss Helen Frick, who has conducted the "Oaks" greenhouses, Bayside, L. I., has bought the range at Bayside, for many years conducted by the late Joseph Bechamps.

FOR MEMORIAL DAY

MASUR, Florist

Prompt deliveries to Greenwood, Evergreen or other Brooklyn cemeteries.

256 Fulton Street, Between Clark and Clinton Sts.

H. E. Froment, in the 18th street market, has been busy handling his large stock of roses, and looking after the improvements being made in his store by carpenters and painters.

Theodore Schultze, of Flushing, who recently opened a retail store at 584 Lexington avenue, has sold it to the D. & D. Floral Co., a concern composed of Greek-American florists.

The Van Praag Florist Co. has removed from West 40th street to a fine store at 21 East 49th street where their facilities for the retail business are greatly improved.

William P. Ford, the wholesaler, 107 West 28th street, is on a trip to his farm at Chadsford, Pa., where he will look over the prospects of the peony crop.

William P. Ford, who has returned from a trip through Pennsylvania, states that the outlook for peonies for Memorial day is not encouraging.

Max Richter, who for several years sailed for Europe that day. The price of the basket was $100.

The Henshaw Floral Co., in the 18th street market, has installed a department of florists' supplies.

J. J. Coan, of the 18th street market, is receiving quite a good stock of peonies from southern points.

A. F. F.

Pittsburgh.

GOOD DEMAND AT REASONABLE PRICES.

The business situation continues good. Reasonable prices keep the supply and demand about equal. Usually between Mothers' day and Memorial day there is a lull, but so far it has not been noticed in this market. The cool weather has been of benefit to indoor stock, and the quality arriving leaves nothing to be desired. American Beauties are in slightly increased supply and clean up without any trouble. Columbia, Premier and Russell still have the call with the other varieties selling out, when there are no more of the favorites to be had. Never before at this time of the year were carnations of such good quality, and the cut has not decreased at all, which indicates that we will have some good stock for Memorial day. The first consignments of southern gladioli have arrived, but they were a little worse for wear due to the long time they were on the road. Sweet peas are still in heavy supply, with the demand not near so brisk. This district has experienced two heavy frosts in succession, which have done considerable damage in some locations.

NOTES.

Tuesday, May 11, witnessed the opening of this city's newest flower store at 523 Wood street, to be known as "McClements." It is owned and managed by John McClements, formerly with Randolph & McClements, and Philip Breitenstein, of the old and well known firm of Breitenstein & Flemm. The store is in the heart of the shopping district, and is modern in every respect. In addition to flowers, they will handle a full line of imported and domestic fruits.

The McCallum Company has made all arrangements for handling the largest peony business in its history. They have arranged for the entire crop of one of the largest growers in the east and have chartered a special refrigerator car to bring the cut to this city for Memorial day. E. J. McCallum will be at the patch to superintend the cutting, packing and loading.

Randolph & McClements report that when they checked up on Saturday night, they found themselves over sold, and it took some tall hustling to get enough stock to fill their orders for Sunday morning delivery.

George McCallum will represent the McCallum Co., on the Pittsburgh chamber of commerce trade tour, which takes place May 25-28. This tour is an annual event, each year taking in a different route.

MOTHERS DAY ADVERTISING SCORES BIG.

The appeal to "knock flowers" for Mothers' day observance evidently found few in this city who accepted it seriously, and with the co-operative advertising of the trade in the local daily papers, business showed an excellent gain over previous years. With all indications pointing to an exceptionally large crop of carnations for the occasion, a most severe hailstorm just before Mothers' day practically destroyed the entire supply and consequently caused a last-minute shortage, making it necessary to order from the outside where possible. Plants and cut flowers sold equally well. The supply for the past week has been much improved, and roses, carnations, sweet peas, lily of the valley and snapdragons are quite plentiful, of exceptionally good quality and low in price. The spring bedding season is now on and is heavier than ever before. Prices are higher but are paid without complaint, as buyers seem to realize that cost of growing has advanced as in other things. Funeral work for the past week has been unusually heavy and the number of weddings are on the increase.

NOTES.

The greatest surprise in many weeks came when the announcement was made that T. J. Noll & Co. had disposed of their business to L. R. Bohannon, Chicago, and others, which in future will be known as the Kansas City Cut Flower Co. Later in the week, it was reported that T. J. Noll had opened up another wholesale establishment under the old firm name at 12th and McGee streets, occupying the entire second floor.

Samuel Murray, at his well equipped store, had the best Mothers' day business in his history, with an increase of 40 per cent locally and 75 per cent on Florist Telegraph Delivery orders, one of which was for Cardiff, Wales. He had a large number of unusually fine gloxinias, and these sold exceptionally well. As carnations were in such short supply these were reserved for F. T. D. orders and none were sold in the store.

To Miss Hayden, of Samuel Murray's store, is due great credit for splendid work in organizing all of the retailers in the advertising campaign in connection with Mothers' day. There was not a single refusal to aid in the movement, all contributions being very generous, as shown by the fact that about $900 was subscribed which made possible effective advertising in all of the local papers.

Among the heaviest losers as a result of the recent hail storm were John Stevens, Jacob Heptung and the city greenhouses. All outside stock that would have been in for Memorial day was destroyed.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, 216 Prospect Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

SAGINAW, MICH.—A. T. Ferrell, the Clipper Seed Cleaner man, has returned from Oklahoma.

H. B. MCCULLOUGH of the J. M. McCullough Sons Co., Cincinnati, O., and wife, are returning from California.

READING, ENG.—Leonard Sutton, of Sutton & Sons, has been knighted for services rendered the empire during the war.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—O. H. Drew, formerly of Hibernia, N. Y., has returned to the mountains for the summer.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are reported well cleaned up, May 19, latest express shipments going out at $5.00 per bushel in bag lots.

NEBRASKA and Iowa seedsmen are hard pressed for good seed corn; the best they have will only test 80 per cent, which is too low for using in corn planters.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, May 19, were as follows: Timothy, $9.00 to $11.00 per 100 pounds. Red clover $30.00 to $37.00.

SEATTLE, WASH. — Alexander Galbraith, formerly in charge of the seed division of the Washington state department of agriculture, has joined the forces of the Seattle Seed Co.

ONION SEED acreage in the Sacramento valley is reported only 20 per cent of normal and this is said to have been damaged 50 per cent by recent conditions; beet acreage is insignificant, with 50 per cent stand; carrot stand fair, but yield will be under normal because of draught.

THE Michigan Bean Dealers' Association has decided to postpone the $200,000 advertising campaign to increase the consumption of Michigan beans, until a test case in Chicago on the ruling of the department of agriculture to prohibit the substitution of oriental beans for Michigan beans has been decided.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—By a vote of 33 to 101, the house has refused to give up the free seed distribution perquisite which attaches to the office of a congressman. Conferees on the agricultural appropriation bill were instructed to insist on restoration of the $240,000 item for free seeds stricken from the bill in the senate.

PARIS, FRANCE.—The seed season has been satisfactory, although the export business to some countries, especially the United States, has been much less than normal. Domestic trade in vegetable seed has been good on account of the heavy demand caused by home gardening, and flower seed sales have been likewise large. The weather was ideal in February and March, but April has been stormy with little sunshine.

New York Seed Trade.

The S. S. Noordam, first of the Holland-America fleet to cross the Atlantic in 10 weeks because of the dock-workers' and sailors' strikes in Rotterdam and other Dutch ports, arrived May 16 from Rotterdam, Boulogne and Plymouth with a capacity list of passengers. B. Ruys, director-general of the Rotterdam Lloyds, comes to establish a New York terminal for his company, which will inaugurate a new service between this port and Java by way of the Panama Canal. Mr. Ruys said the Holland strike was lost by the strikers, who had rejected a compromise offered by the companies, and had been compelled to return to work at the old rates. Most of the throng in the second and third cabins of the Noordam are Dutch farmers and their wives and children, bound for farms in Iowa and South Dakota. They said thousands of others would follow them as soon as the passport and other retrictions to trans-Atlantic travel were modified or removed.

Although the weather of the past week was cool, with much rain, business was active in the seed stores, but there is but little, if any, improvement in shipping conditions.

H. Suzuki, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., returned from Europe on the S. S. Mauretania, May 16.

Hogewoning & Sons, Inc., are now located at 299 Broadway.

S. S. Skidelsky is away on a business trip.

Southern Seedsmen's Association.

Plans are practically complete for the second annual convention of the Southern Seedsmen's Association which will be held at Jacksonville, Fla., June 7-9. An interesting and instructive programme has been prepared and indications point to a good attendance.

The visitors will be welcomed to the city by Mayor Martin, responded to by Dick O'Bannon, Claremore, Okla., second vice-president of the association. Following will come the address of President E. A. Martin, Jacksonville, and the report of the secretary-treasurer, Frank S. Love, of Montgomery, Ala. The first day's session will close with an address on "The Advantage of Illustrations in Catalogues," in the able hands of L. B. Reuter, New Orleans, La. In the afternoon the visitors will be entertained by a trip to Atlantic Beach.

Tuesday, the second day, will have among its programme features an address by A. W. Cockrell, Jr., president of the Chamber of Commerce, and D. R. Mayo, Knoxville, Tenn., will speak on "The Benefits of Our Association," followed by John M. Scott, vice-director of the Florida experiment station, whose topic will be "Forage Crops," and Secretary-Treasurer Love will speak on "Growers' Contracts." This session will close with the election of new members, and in the afternoon there will be a barbecue at Roseland Farms and a boat trip on the St. Johns river.

The business session on the third day will be taken up with an executive meeting, the election of officers, committee reports and general talks on benefits of association.

The reception committee consists of R. L. Eaton, chairman; A. C. Hattaway and H. G. Rheney, while the entertainment features are in the hands of Chairman E. A. Martin, Frank S. Love and H. D. McMichael.

Plant Breeder Examination.

The United States civil service commission announces an open competitive examination for plant breeder, June 22, 1920. A vacancy in the bureau of plant industry, department of agriculture, for duty at Blissfield, Mich., at $2,000 to $2,400 a year, and vacancies in positions requiring similar qualifications, at these or higher or lower salaries, will be filled from this examination, unless it is found in the interest of the service to fill any vacancy by reinstatement, transfer, or promotion.

The duties of the appointee will be to carry on experiments in the growing of sugar-beet seed, and in the production of improved strains of sugar-beet seed secured by various methods of breeding, with special reference to correlated characters, and to determine the best means of keeping sugar-beet roots over winter for seed production, the best time and method of planting the roots, harvesting the seed and other points in connection with experimental and commercial sugar-beet seed.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., President; Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids Mich., Treas. Next annual convention September 1920.

NEW YORK.—A cargo of 50,000 bags of Danish potatoes has arrived on the S. S. Aarhous, consigned to local importers.

AT Chicago, a slight frost occurred in the morning of May 14, destroying carrots and some other newly started crops of the truckers.

SEVERAL tons of fruit and vegetables, shipped by Cuban growers to New York, and ordered held on arrival for higher prices, became decayed and were dumped in the ocean, May 5. The loss will fall on the shippers.

BEACON, N. Y. — The home garden brigade, founded several years ago by Benjamin Hammond, well known manufacturer of insecticides and greenhouse paints, is now one of the largest organizations of its kind in the state. Every school in the city is represented, the total enrollment numbering several hundred.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, May 19.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $3.00 to $4.00; celery, Florida, crate, $5.50 to $7.00; leaf lettuce, per tomato box, 25 to 30 cents, radishes, per dozen bunches, $1.00 to $1.25; tomatoes, per crate, six baskets, $8.00 to $9.00.

New York, May 17.—Celery, per crate, $1.00 to $6.50; cucumbers, per dozen, 60 cents to $1.75; mushrooms, 50 cents to $2.00 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 25 to 50 cents; lettuce, per package, 50 cents to $7.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $5.00.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports to the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, for the period May 9-15, indicate prices practically unchanged with the exception of a slightly weaker tendency on potatoes and onions. Old potatoes were steady with Minnesota round whites ranging $7.10-$7.25 sacked per 100 pounds, f. o. b. In middle-western markets, jobbing prices were $6.75-$7.65, and carlots in Chicago, sacked and bulk at $7.25-$7.50. New York round white sacked were steady in eastern markets at $7.85-$8. Maine Green Mountains were offered at $6.85-$7.65 with Boston slightly lower at $6.75-$7. Haulings of new potatoes were slightly heavier and demand and movement good. Eastern and middle-western markets early in the week ranged $16-$18, but weakened toward the close to a range of $14-$16. At south Texas shipping points yellow Bermuda onions, Numbers 1 and 2 mixed, ranged $1.35-$1.80 per standard crate carloads, f. o. b. usual terms, with demand moderate and movement limited. Haulings were light. Eastern consuming markets weakened slightly to a range of $2.25-$3. Middlewestern markets showed slightly larger declines. Cincinnati, Cleveland, Buffalo and Detroit ranged $2-$2.75, and Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City, $1.75-$2.25. Texas flat type cabbage ranged in Pittsburgh, Detroit, St. Louis and Chicago at $40-$65. There were some early sales in Cincinnati and Detroit high at $70-$80 bulk per ton. Alabama pointed type stock, in 100-pound crates, sold generally in Cincinnati, Detroit and Boston at $4.50-$5.75. Detroit and Pittsburgh closed around $4. Eastern markets were lightly supplied and South Carolina Charleston Wakefields in 100-pound crates ranged $6-$7. Florida Wakefields in 100-pound crates sold $4.50-$5.75 in New York and Philadelphia and same stock in 1½ bushel hampers in Baltimore and Philadelphia at $2.25-$3.25.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

There was an excellent display of both flowers and vegetables at the monthly exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticulutural Society, held in Horticultural hall, Boston, May 15-16, included in the exhibits of the first named being narcissi, tulips, orchids in baskets, calceolarias, pelargoniums, geraniums, etc., the principal prize winners being Edward A. Clark, Faulkner Farm, Arthur Lyman, Miss Cornelia Warren, Albert C. Burrage, George F. Stewart and Mrs. George E. Buxton. In the vegetable classes, the prominent exhibitors were Oliver Ames, Edward Clark, Faulkner Farm and Hillcrest Farm.

Forty-fifth annual convention will be held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, June 23-25, 1920.

THE department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., announces the discontinuance of commercial fruit crop reports on account of insufficient funds.

WE are indebted to the Minneapolis Board of Park Commissioners for copy of its thirty-seventh annual report, 101 pages of informing reading matter, maps and illustrations, well printed and substantially bound.

AS A development of experiments, conducted by the citrus by-products laboratory of the bureau of chemistry, Los Angeles, Calif., cull oranges, lemons and grapefruit, estimated at three per cent of the crop of the state, are now salvaged.

Blueberry Improvement.

In response to the offer of Miss Elizabeth C. White, New Lisbon, N. J., who has for several years been working to produce new and better varieties of blueberries by cross-breeding with wild plants, to pay $50 for especially fine plants with very large berries and smaller amounts in proportion, which offer appeared in THE AMERICAN FLORIST, May 24, 1919, page 932, over 100 samples of blueberries were sent, nearly all of which were smaller than those produced on plants already tried and discarded. No berries of the required size were received, but one plant was purchased from the province of Quebec, Can., for $25 which had berries over five-eighths of an inch in diameter. It was of a northern species, not likely to be of value in New Jersey, but was wanted for the breeding work of the United States department of agriculture.

The offer of $50 for a blueberry or huckleberry bush with berries as large as a cent (¾ inch across) is continued this summer. Plants with berries of this size are needed to cross with such plants already found in New Jersey. If they can be located in states north or south, they will make possible the development of fine blueberries with a greater range of adaptability to climate. Samples of berries smaller than ⅝ inch in diameter should not be sent as several thousand plants producing berries from ⅝ to ¾ inch in diameter have already been raised from cuttings. Those interested in locating the needed plants can obtain directions and packages for mailing samples by addressing Miss Elizabeth C. White, New Lisbon, N. J.

Garden Bordered With Box-Barberry.
Electros of this illustration with each order for 1000 or more if requested.

Have you seen a garden bordered with

Box-Barberry

this spring? Every plant bright and green—not a dead one. A strong contrast to the northern Buxus bordered garden, now either dead or sadly winter injured, brown and dejected looking

Mr. Siebrecht, the veteran plantsman, on seeing the garden the other day shown in accompanying illustration, exclaimed with his characteristic enthusiasm, "Magnifiicent. There is a fortune in it for the nurserymen."

We offer you well rooted dormant summer frame cuttings ready to set out direct into the nursery without further expense to you at $65.00 per 1000; all sold out of larger sizes.

Many of the leading catalogue firms have already contracted with us for their supply for the ensuing season, and others are buying these frame grown plants for their own planting, preparing for the enormous demand which is sure to follow.

It is a safe statement that BOX-BARBERRY will soon be the plantsman's best seller.

Window Boxes and Plant Baskets.

Their Popularity Constantly Increasing.

Among the most ornamental features of the dwelling, are boxes of choice foliage and flowering plants and vines. These receptacles, of a construction selected to be in keeping with the architecture of the buildings they decorate, are, when in luxurious growth, objects of great beauty, adding immeasureably to the appearance of the property. In material and manner of construction of such flower boxes, there is great variety. The simplest and most inexpensive are those made of wood, painted to preserve the material and fit in with the color scheme of the building; or they can be white or green, either color of which will contrast well with the contents of the box. Cork, cedar or oak bark, or slabs of the same, can also be used to give a rustic finish instead of the paint.

There are a number of patterns of iron receptacles, which bolted together, and kept painted, make an ornamental and lasting box that will find favor with many. They are quite heavy, and require stronger supports than are necessary for those made of wood.

Terra cotta has come to the front in the last few years in the construction of buildings, and many beautiful designs in window boxes are now to be had in this material. They are also made of cement, which is quite ornamental as well as very durable. Both the terra cotta and cement patterns are extremely heavy, and should be made in units of two feet in length, where the space is over 36 inches. These, when placed together, appear as one piece of the desired length. They will require a very stable foundation, so as to avoid all possible danger from falling.

Pine boxes of over four feet in length, should be made in units of two and a half to three feet, as full lengths in one piece are, when filled, very heavy, awkward to handle and difficult to place in position.

Galvanized iron brackets or supports, made to fit for each particular location, with a half-inch turnup at the point, to prevent the slipping of the box, are durable, lasting a long time. In some locations, to hold these in place, strong screws in the wooden sills, will be found adequate, but in others, it will be necessary to have a brace or foot, pressing against the wall beneath, to prevent sagging, and keep them to a level, which is very necessary. Wooden or iron boxes should never be placed directly on the sill, but should rest on cleats to insure an air space beneath.

If the ledge is of sufficient width to hold the wooden box, small knee-irons should be screwed into the back and also into the sill, which will keep it in position.

In the in-lying residence districts, where the street window ledges are the only places for such ornamentation, and where the residents close their houses early and go out of town for the summer, the most must be made of the spring months and early June. The first filling, the last of March, should be with pansies and Bellis daisies, followed later, about May 1, with geraniums, marguerites and other flowering plants and vines. An ornamental feature in all such boxes is an end trellis, which rising at either side of the window, and to which are attached upright growing vines, adds much to their effectiveness.

In the suburban districts, where porches and small lawns are a feature of the home surroundings, boxes for the edges of the verandas, on top of gate posts, and vases of plants for vantage points of the lawn, are popular and very decorative. Porch boxes are nearly always of wood, which when in place, rest on cleats that are screwed into the floor at the edge of the structure and project outside the railing. When watered, the overflow then drops on the ground. Such plant holders are generally larger than those of the window ledges, containing more soil and allowing more room for root growth, so that the plants will last the entire season.

For the shady locations, ferns of all kinds, Pandanus Veitchii, various dracaenas and small palms make good centers, with fancy-leaved begonias, fuchsias and plumbagoes giving variety in foliage and flower. Variegated vincas, ivies, tradescantias, nasturtiums, sweet alyssum and lobelias make a good front border finish. Much the same will do in the bright sunshine, substituting geraniums and crotons for the dracaenas, palms and begonias and adding petunias and verbenas.

WINDOW BOXES FOR SUMMER.
Variegated Foliage Plants and Vines.

Well filled hanging baskets are an ornamental feature to the veranda that is well worth while. These suspended plant holders are offered in great variety, the commonest form being the galvanized wire of standard pattern. This is lined with sheet moss that holds the soil, which in a short time after planting, becomes a mass of roots.

The rustic, root-covered box, with bent branch handles, is popular. There are also those of stamped, galvanized sheet iron, in graceful lines with jack-chain handles. A line of terra cotta designs, some turned, others moulded, some patterned after logs of wood, and painted true to nature, are much used for inside as well as outdoor decoration.

Willow basket manufacturers or florist supply dealers also have a line made of willow, rattan and other materials that are very shapely and ornamental. These contain liners, which obviates drip, so they can be used on porches or in sun parlors, etc., where water drip would be objectionable.

When filled, baskets are heavy to handle in watering. An easy plan is in placing, to suspend them in pairs, each at the end of a strong window cord, running over pulleys in the ceiling. When one basket is pushed up, the other comes down, is watered in or over a bucket, and it can then be raised and suspended a few minutes to catch drip, then elevated so the other can receive the same attention.

There is no question as to the beauty and ornamental features of window and veranda boxes, hanging baskets, etc., but their use is far, very far, from being universal. Like everything that is not an absolute necessity, they require to be shown and featured, their use in the ornamentation of the home, club, hotel, store or other building explained and demonstrated. Many retailers could take up this asset to their business, and working in conjunction with growers, create a wonderful trade along this line.

The filling of these boxes for the winter season, which commences with the first sign of frost, is an important item. Nurserymen grow large lines of evergreen, such as American arbor vitaes, hemlocks, retinosporas, pines, junipers, etc., which, now that the importation of the boxwood is prohibited, will be more generally used than ever. The use of this winter material in all the large cities could, and would, become much more general if retail florists, in the decoration of their own stores, would show its possibilities. Handled in a business way, it would be found to be one of the most profitable items of their trade.

Memorial Day Sprays and Designs.

In all holiday work, and in fact, in the regular order of store routine, it is preparedness that is the greatest factor. Making use of spare time to keep up all kinds of standard stock, puts the establishment in trim for almost any kind of an emergency. The great majority of customers do their buying on the last day. They come to the store, and expect to find the stock in large assortment, ready for their selection. In the nature of things, business rarely falls off; as a rule, each holiday trade exceeds that of the year before. With this in mind, the florist takes no chance in preparing in his various lines, at least as much stock as was handled the year previous and is, in fact, warranted in laying in a little more.

Memorial day designs are, for the most part, for the decoration of the cemetery, nearly all of which can be prepared weeks or even months ahead. This greatly relieves the strain during the rush of the final days. Prepared magnolia and oak leaf wreaths in various sizes, some crescent and others full round, should be ready in such quantities as will be sure to meet the demand and still leave some on hand, as they are useful in their various forms of possible decoration the year round.

Many will prefer wreaths given a patriotic touch of color, with red, white and blue immortelles, cape flowers or grasses. Small palm leaves can be worked in with good effect. A little tricolor ribbon and a miniature flag will give a good finish. Such pieces are effective and bring good money. In some localities, wreaths and cycas sprays, with the waxed flower decorations and prepared adiantum for green, meet with a good demand. Enterprising florists have worked up quite a mail order business for this class of stock through newspaper advertising in country districts. Shipments are by parcel post. With the stock on hand, boxed ready for instant dispatch, only an addressed tag is necessary to finish the order.

The made-up prepared magnolia and oak leaf wreaths can be decorated with all kinds of cut flowers, preferably at this time, with outside blossoms, such as snowballs, weigelias, dentzias, spiræas and peony flowers. These should not be stuck in all over, but arranged to give a cluster-like appearance, full at one side, or with a tapering spray on a crescent form, falling away toward the narrow part of the design. In all cases, at least half of the prepared foliage should show to give a good contrast to the flowers. On the already prepared surface, it takes but a few minutes to finish a very showy design. A number of tricolor bows, made up and wired to sticks, can be placed in a moment, and add a patriotic touch and finish that will not only give character but at little cost, considerably enhance the price.

WINDOW BOXES FOR SUMMER.
Foliage Plants, Vines and Geraniums.

Cycas leaves are splendid stock at this time as a background for all kinds of sprays. At comparatively little cost, they give a finish, and furnish support. Peonies show to good advantage on palms, as do Easter lilies. A small bunch of red, white and blue immortelles or fresh flowers of these colors, tied in with a tricolor ribbon bow at the finish, is sure to prove attractive.

Small vase baskets, filled with outdoor or any seasonable flowers, with a knot of tricolor ribbon or miniature flags on the handle, will be found attractive and salable.

The peony is the Memorial day flower, and quantities are sold loose to be laid separately on the grave. These should be on hand and kept in jars of water overnight, in a cool place, so as to get well filled up. They should be protected from drafts, as they wilt quickly, their heavy foliage evaporating the moisture almost faster than it is taken up.

Red, white and blue Japanese chenille wreaths, with a tricolor ribbon bow, are good sellers. They, also, can be made more effective if laid on palm leaves. Their lasting qualities will appeal to many. Miniature, tricolor chenille wreaths can also be used with good effect on a spray of snowballs or white peonies.

When the rush comes, it is well to be prepared with bunches of outside blossoms, in several values, ready to hand out. These, prepared the night before, save a lot of handling and much valuable time.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The coming period is the first of the June wedding season, the culmination of months of preparation in many households. With all nature bursting into bloom, it is the most beautiful month of the year, and these social events could not be held under more auspicious surroundings. As flowers play such a part in the decorative features of the wedding, the florist should make the most of the opportunities afforded. Window decorations in bridal effects, displaying particularly the latest and most novel effects in bouquets, baskets, hats, staffs, etc., for the bride and her maids and flower girls are sure to attract attention. A decorated kneeling stool makes a good center, with floor vases either side filled with long-stemmed white roses.

Roses are now plentiful and cheap, and can be used to advantage in all kinds of work. This is a situation, of which the entire trade of the store should be kept fully informed.

The 20 per cent discount wave, which originated with John Wanamaker, is just now sweeping the country, and the retail florists should, in their greatly reduced prices, get all the publicity possible out of the better values they are able to give at this time. This could be made the theme of a circular letter to the store's customers and prospects which would have the effect of keeping the firm in mind as up-to-date merchants who are alive to the spirit of the times.

Special week-end sales of either roses, carnations or snapdragons, will be found good drawing cards at this time. At least one-fourth of the people will say "yes" to any reasonable bargain opportunity, and if it is only the means of getting them into the store, it is a good business move.

Many of the craft conduct these sales whenever the conditions of the market enable them to get stock in quantity at a reduction. One must take a chance, as there should be enough flowers to make it worth while to advertise and otherwise promote sales. When these become a feature of the store's business they are a great factor in drawing new trade—and holding the old.

As the mainstay of the business is the demand for funeral flowers, there should always be well-made wreaths of prepared magnolia, oak leaves or galax to show to prospective customers. These can, in a few moments, be decorated with a quickly gathered spray or handful of flowers, and the addition of a bow of ribbon, all loosely laid on, which gives a much better idea of color and size than can be shown by photographs. Many, who are not accustomed to buying flowers and who are just shopping about to see where they could do the best, will be won over by seeing just what they are getting for their money.

This is commencement time, and it is well to feature for the next week or two, baskets and bouquets and boxes of flowers, labeled, "For the Graduate," or "Commencement Flowers." Such a display will bring to the mind a friend for whom a gift of this kind is required.

Do not forget the delinquents, Catch them before they get out of town. A dollar in the bank, is better than one that goes summering and may never return. You lose the trade, also, as they go elsewhere and pay cash, while their little bill, still owing, is a barrier to your store.

There are still opportunities for sales of window and porch boxes, which trade, however, needs to be pushed to get the best results. Many would order if the decorative advantages in their particular case was pointed out to them.

Always have some feature to call attention or remind the public of the advantages of your membership in the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. Every order secured for out-of-town delivery, is a cash proposition showing 20 per cent velvet. You cannot do better than push this instantaneous and long distance delivery of flowers all the time. It is splendid publicity.

HANGING BASKET.
Up-to-Date Wicker Kind With Liner and Braided Handle.

In another week or two, spend some time in looking over the business of the year, and plan out the summer's work. This resting period can be made to carry itself nicely and turn in a revenue if the store force are kept busy with preparatory work in wreaths and other stock for the coming winter season.

German and Austrian Florists Relief Fund

We have received the following from Albert Pochelon, of the L. Bemb Floral Co., Detroit, Mich., under date of May 20:

Dear Brother and Sister Florists:

Through personal correspondence with brother florists in Europe, I have come to the conclusion that some of our brother florists in this country, with whom I have had business dealings, feel perhaps the same as I do.

We all have contributed to the Red Cross, the Patriotic fund, the Y. M. C. A., and Belgian and French baby relief fund, etc. The fact and matter before my mind for some time has been, can we, or would be, willing to help our German and Austrian florist brothers, who seem to have a lot of hardship piled on them. If we ever intend to enlist them some day, and get them to join and work with us in spreading the gospel of F. T. D. A. and "Say it with Flowers" to the world, no grander and better spirit and confidence could be created than by showing that we are willing to help lessen the burden for them. Of course, you realize that this is an absolutely voluntary affair, and you must let your feelings judge for yourself.

We are fast getting along on the road of better understandings with our brother florists of England and France, and our foreign membership in the F. T. D. A. is growing slowly, but surely. Are you willing to help and send a small contribution to our German and Austrian brother florists?

I have corresponded and heard from Max Huebner, the president of the German Retail Florists. They have also established a florist telegraph delivery system, and he, as president, would surely make a just and honest distribution of anything in the line of funds that would be sent to my address and forwarded to them. One half of your contribution will go to Austrian, and one-half to German brother florists.

Please let your florists' hearts, replace with true co-operation and wholehearted interest in your profession the past few years, where was planted a good deal of the seed that produced hatred.

Enclosed please find slip, sign same and send with your check, no matter how small, and oblige.

ALBERT POCHELON.

Yours for more F. T. D. A. co-operation.

Telegraph Orders' Creative Value.

Have you felt the importance of delivering a telegraph order to the patron in your city? If you arrange it with a bit of personal attention, you have the possibility, at least, of creating a new customer permanently.

Do you appreciate also that a department store figures every customer that enters it doors, costs them in the neighborhood of $3.12 just to get them in. Now, here is another channel of new business that not only gives you entre, but also gives you a possible customer.

Give your telegraph orders, as well as your regular orders, every attention possible. It pays. PENN, THE FLORIST.

National Botanic Garden.

Plans for the removal of the botanic garden from its present site at the foot of Capitol Hill, Washington, D. C., to a site where there will be ample room for its future expansion were discussed before the joint congressional committee on the library at a hearing held May 21. A number of horticulturists, nurserymen, landscape gardeners and citizens of Washington were present at the hearing.

The acquisition of the 400 acres at Fifteenth and H streets, northeast, known as the Mount Hamilton tract, was urged upon the committee. This was the only site discussed, although in the past, recommendations have been made for removal of the garden to Rock Creek park. It was declared that this was the most favorable place in the city for the garden, even though it lays in the oposite direction from most of the artistic development of Washington. It was stated that by locating the garden at this point, the city would be given a beautiful approach on the east, which is now very unsightly.

Efforts to stir up sentiment toward making the botanic garden an adjunct to the department of agriculture met with no encouragement from Senator Brandegee of Connecticut, chairman of the committee, who declared that he believed it should be kept separate from the department. It was pointed out by supporters of this plan that the garden, if transferred to the department, could be used by the bureau of plant industry for experimental work in the development of various plants and foods, but the senator replied that if the bureau desired to engage in this work, there was plenty of farm land in the vicinity available for the purpose.

CONVENTION INFORMATION.

With regard to the coming peony exhibition to be held at the Berkshire hotel, Reading, Pa., June 10-11, the following information from B. H. Farr will be of interest to intending exhibitors and to visitors generally:

"As hotels are, and will continue to be, very much crowded, it is of vital importance that visitors who contemplate staying over night, should make reservations at the Berkshire hotel in advance. I have already received some notices of reservations to be made, and shall be very glad to attend to this personally for anyone who wishes, or they can address directly Peter Kline, proprietor of the Berkshire hotel. The rates for rooms are from $2.50 up.

"In the second place, flowers for exhibition, sent from a distance, can be addressed to B. H. Farr, American Peony Society, Berkshire hotel, Reading, Pa. Exhibitors whose blooms open in advance of the date of the show, can send them here five to 10 days before the show, and we will place them in cold storage, which can be done at the nominal charge of 25 cents a package of any size or length of time. That is the way I have had to handle most of the flowers I have sent to previous exhibitions. Our storage plant here is dry storage, and an exceptionally good one, and flowers can be kept in perfect condition for some time.

"The clerical work of the show is being taken care of by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, which is furnishing all the entry cards, will have charge of the entry books, and make out the exhibitors' cards during the show. David Rust, secretary of the society, will be here with an assistant during the show for that purpose.

FORT WORTH, TEX.—The Fort Worth Florists' Club has been re-organized with the election of the following officers: V. J. Davis, president; Henry Clabole, vice-president; Elmer Eastwoll, secretary-treasurer.

GERANIUM PAN FOR MEMORIAL DAY.
Geraniums, Flags and Tricolor Ribbon.

Washington, D. C., Rose Test Garden.

The annual field meeting of the American Rose Society will be held in the national rose test garden at Arlington experiment farm, Washington, D. C., June 2. Visitors will register at the store of Gude Bros. Co., 1214 F street, N. W., before 10 a. m., from which point they will be taken to the garden.

On Sundays, June 6 and 20, the garden will be open to the public from 2 p. m. until 6 p. m. The hybrid tea and other cut flower roses will probably be at their best on the first named date, and the climbing roses on June 20.

Arlington experiment farm lies between Arlington cemetery and the river. It may be reached by automobile from the Georgetown and Alexandria turnpike at a point opposite the Sheridan gate of the cemetery, or from the military road from Long Bridge to Alexandria, just after passing under the railroad. Sunday service on the nearest street car line has been discontinued to the farm, and it must now be reached by walking from the south end of the Highway bridge or "Long bridge"; from Clark station on the Falls Church trolley from 12th and Pennsylvania avenue, or by crossing Arlington cemetery from Fort Myer.

National Publicity for Flowers.

Every day now gives further proof of the efficacy of our campaign. The beneficial results are indescribable almost, in so many directions does our slogan work. There is one way in which florists themselves can give the slogan tremendous publicity, at the same time calling attenion to their own establishments — the installation on their own grounds of the official billboard sign provided by our publicity committee. These signs are furnished at $50 each, direct from the factory in Indiana, and if they were to be purchased singly, they would cost today considerably over $100 each—the material alone would eat up the $50 asked for them. If ever the time should come when a purchaser felt he had no use for the slogan, he would still have the sign, adaptable to any other purpose—and it's a good sign, too. Just think of it, a sign 20 feet long, 7½ feet wide, constructed of galvanized iron on a wood frame, and weighing about 300 pounds. The slogan is painted in the official colors, three coats of paint being used to insure permanency. It is very easily set up, and once installed, shouts for business day in and day out, moonlight nights included. We can take care of quite a number of orders for immediate shipment; in fact, our shipments can be affected only by railroad troubles, such as have hampered deliveries for some weeks, but which are gradually disappearing. At one time, we had 30 or more signs awaiting the lifting of an embargo, but we believe all are moving to their destinations as fast as their routings become clear. Any florist who wants to do a good turn to himself, and, incidentally add to publicity for the slogan, should get a billboard sign. In appearance it is handsome, and, unlike most such signs, conveys a message rather than an exploitation. Now is the time to install one, when everybody who can get upon four wheels is enjoying the great outdoors.

The time is also opportune for increased support of our campaign fund.

MEMORIAL DAY SPRAY.
Red and White Peonies and Iris on Cycas Leaves with Tricolor Ribbon.

With advertising contracts already entered into covering the summer months, a season when florists must continue in business just as at other times, our committee is busy planning for the months to come after September, and without the necessary funds, they can accomplish very little. If we are to get space in the more prominent magazines next fall, contracts must be made months ahead, therefore we must depend upon contributions to the fund which the committee rightly expects should be coming in now. Why put off longer sending in your subscription? Your help just now could not be better timed. We want it, we hope for it.

The following subscriptions have been received and are in addition to those previously reported, annually for four years unless otherwise stated:

DEMAND SLUMPS AND PRICES FALL.

A dull period struck the market during the past week, and prices have taken a tumble. Dark weather, however, during the past few days, has helped to hold stock back, and it is hoped the Memorial day demand will bring conditions to a better stand, and give the grower a fair return for his work. The advance demand for Memorial day was never better, and this year will doubtless prove greater than for some time. All branches of the trade report more and larger orders.

NOTES.

Wm. Nicholson, of Framingham, is cutting fine candytuft, feverfews, gladioli, sweet peas and carnations. His orders this year for May are far in advance of 1919.

Neil Doyle, of Malden, is cutting good Ophelia, Killarney Queen and Stanley roses.

GOOD BUSINESS AND PRICES STEADY.

Business during the past week has been very satisfactory, with supply equal to requirements. The activity in bedding plant sales has been very good. The cut flower offerings now seen in the market cover about the same variety which has met purchasers for some time and prices remain practically unchanged. There is an excellent supply of roses and carnations and some lilies of very good quality. Peonies have had quite a run and have been used for every occasion, especially in the decorative line. There are many weddings and a number of social events. The approach of Memorial day finds the outdoor crop and early spring flowers nearly depleted. There is still a good supply of peonies but another week may see their end. The later varieties of iris are now in and syringas are in full flower, also coreopsis, snapdragons, hydrangeas and a plentiful crop of geraniums, all of which will be used in Memorial day decorations. June 3 is the second Memorial day, the occasion for honoring the Confederate dead, but this brings little activity as the trade contributes its quota of flowers, money and other material required for the observance of the day. The first touch of real summer has arrived and it is hoped the cold weather is now a thing of the past. Outdoor sweet peas have begun to make their appearance.

GENEROUS SUPPLY AND ACTIVE DEMAND.

Reports from all quarters seem to indicate that trade is in good shape. While there is a generous supply of nearly all items, there seems to be little, if any, surplus. Shipping trade has been unusually good, and this has had a very beneficial effect on the market, tending to keep it clear of surplus stock. We are receiving a fine supply of roses in every variety. The quality is excellent. Peonies are becoming more plentiful. Orchids are very scarce and bring $18.00 per dozen. Lily of the valley is also on the short list. Carnations are plentiful and cheap. Sweet peas are now at their best, and it would be a difficult matter to surpass some of the Spencers that are now coming in. All colors are represented. The first Gladiolus America of the season appeared this week. A good red variety is also arriving. This stock brings fine prices. Gladioli Peach Blossom and Bride are also on the market. From present indications, there will be a large supply of the above varieties for Memorial day. Delphiniums are being largely featured by all the stores, and are proving very popular. In pot plants, we have rambler roses, hydrangeas and calceolarias, the latter being excellent and selling quickly.

NOTES.

Permission from the superior court of Humboldt county has been granted the receiver of the property of Chas. W. Ward, to sell the dairy farm at Carlotta. It is believed that enough can be realized from the sale of this choice property to clear up the claims against the bulb nursery at Eden. If this can be done, the bulb industry started at Eureka by Mr. Ward may be restored to a healthy basis.

The Art Floral Company is receiving shipments of strelitzias from the south. These curious flowers, commonly known as the "Bird of Paradise" flower, prove ready sellers at $24.00 per dozen. It is a decided novelty in the cut flower line, and owing to its keeping qualities, may become very popular.

The Chinese growers along the peninsula are now supplying this market with an extra fine quality of Spencer sweet peas. This is the first year that they have produced the type in quantity, they having been very slow in discarding the old grandifloras.

Fred Grohe, the pioneer florist of Santa Rosa, is supplying this market with the greater part of its peony stock. This has been one of Mr. Grohe's specialities, and he produces a large quantity for the wholesale market.

Frank Pelicano is devoting much of his spare time of late to his dahlia farm. He has a lot of new seedlings this year, of which a great deal is expected. He will be a large exhibitor at the dahlia show next September.

V. Matroni has left the employ of the Art Floral Company to become superintendent of the greenhouses and nursery of G. Podesta. He will continue to act in this capacity until Mr. Podesta recovers his health.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is sending in a heavy cut of well grown Spanish iris at present, for which they find a ready market. They are also in with heavy cuts of roses in all varieties.

J. A. Axell is receiving fine shipments of gladioli from his Santa Cruz growers. He says shipping trade is strong, and is keeping up much longer than was expected.

Nat Rolleri, who specializes in outdoor bulbous stock, has secured the entire cut of many large growers of gladioli for Memorial day business.

A meeting of the Powell street florists will be held this week to determine the advisability of Sunday closing.

G. Nispoli is sending in an excellent cut of Adiantum Williamsii.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

Horticultural Society of New York.

The Horticultural Society of New York staged an exhibition, largely of lilac and other flowering shrubs and trees, in the Museum building, Bronx park, May 22-23. There was no regular schedule, but the society and the authorities of the botanical garden had provided a fund to award premiums to meritorious exhibits.

A noteworthy display was from the Cedar Hill Nursery, Glen Head, N. Y., consisting of many named sorts of lilac, some of them new. Pasteur, Viderot, Pres. Viger and Velette, dark varieties, were attractive. Vestale and Madam Perrier were fine specimens of white. Descartes, of the lighter lilac shade, was also attractive.

Mrs. E. Iselin, New Rochelle, N. Y., (Duncan McIntyre, Gr.), had an interesting and attractive exhibit of lilac and other flowering shrubs and trees, noteworthy being diervilla and weigela.

The botanical garden staged a good variety of shrubs and herbaceous stock. Of the latter, tulips and irises were prominent.

Mrs. E. Dixon, Elkins Park, Philadelphia, Pa., (James Goodier, Gr.), sent a fine plant of laelia-cattleya, named Elmer Dixon, which was awarded a prize.

A. F. F.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the above society was held at Glen Cove, N. Y., May 12, with President Thomas Twigg in the chair. Five new members were admitted and two applications filed. The judges for the monthly exhibits, Jesse Thompson, Thomas Scott and Charles Parr, made the following awards: Twelve Darwin tulips, pink, Wm. Churchill, first; 12 Darwin tulips, mauve, and 12 mixed, Edward Harris, first. A cultural certificate was awarded to Joseph Wusock for a fine plant of calceolaria. An interesting feature of the meeting was an open discussion on the damage done to trees and shrubs during the past winter. Mr. Reed, a visitor from New York, also gave an interesting talk.

Exhibits for the next meeting, June 9, will be 12 H. T. roses, three heads of lettuce and 12 mushrooms and Mr. Popp's special for the best decorated basket of flowers arranged by assistant gardeners.

The tulip show of the society will be held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, on the evening of May 26.

GENERAL CLEANUP IN ALL LINES.

Practically all kinds of cut flowers are being cleaned up as fast as they are brought in. The increase in the number of social functions has augmented the sales in table pieces and fancy baskets. Although the weather has been fine, and has had a good effect on the development of outside stock, the demand for greenhouse offerings has been so great that there has never been enough. The supply of roses is better than last week, but they are still hard to get, and all that are brought in find a ready market. The quality is steadily improving with the advancing season, and Mrs. Chas. Russell is already well up to standard. Columbia and Ophelia, though of good color and shape, are still a trifle woody. Bedding stock is having a great run. The greenhouses are unable to supply the demand, although the price is the highest it has been in the history of the florist trade in this locality. Geraniums are bringing from $3 to $4 per dozen, and pansies, calceolarias and others are in proportion. Tulips are very satisfactory in all colors, the Darwins being the leaders in demand. Local peonies are on the market, and vie with the California stock in popularity. It is felt that the local supply will hardly be sufficient to take care of the trade until after Memorial day. The local cut of sweet peas has reached a place where it can compete successfully with the deliveries from Yakima. Though somewhat short of stem, the color makes them a very satisfactory article. A few callas are being offered but their popularity in this section is practically over. Pot hydrangeas are beginning to lose out, but calceolarias, marigolds and tulips have more than filled their place. Carnations are showing up well with rich color and gratifying length of stem. Narcissi are available in great abundance and are being offered very extensively by dealers to eke out their depleted stocks of other cut flowers. Some very attractive outside grown lily of the valley is being shown, while lilacs are rapidly approaching the point of diminishing returns, due to the fact that there are so many home grown products coming on.

NOTES.

The Hollywood Gardens are showing a fine lot of gladioli in an apricot shade. They are bright in color, and have long strong stems, some of them reaching a length of six and a half feet. They are attractively arranged in large silver baskets with trumpet shaped tops. The combination with yellow irises and snapdragons is very effective. The gladioli are from the firm's greenhouses.

The Woodlawn Florist Shop is having an unusual sale of baskets of spring flowers. A number of fresh combinations are shown in their windows, featuring their appropriateness as greetings at this season. Miss Josephine Peterson, of this firm, is now taking her vacation.

In spite of the high prices current on bedding stock, the Fremont Floral Co. reports that it is impossible to keep up with the demand for geraniums, pansies and calceolarias.

Kenney's Home of Flowers is showing Mrs. Chas. Russell and Ophelia roses, which would do credit to a much further advanced season, and they are rapidly cleaned out.

The University Flower Shop has been enjoying a brisk trade in bedding stock and seeds. The university district is full of residents who have ample space for flower beds.

Fred Rowe, of McCoy's, reports a gratifying sale of outside stock, including lily of the valley, violets and lilacs.

Felix Rosaia has been handling a large quantity of Laddie carnations from Spokane.

The Orpheum Flower Shop is showing a very attractive collection of corsages composed of dark red tulips with maidenhair fern.

Lancaster County Florists' Association

Twenty gentlemen and three ladys members of the association met May 20 at the Chamber of Commerce rooms for the ninety-fourth regular meeting of the organization. Elmer Weaver, B. F. Barr, Lemon Landis and Mrs. A. M. Herr were appointed a committee to arrange for the entertainment of the Chester County Florists' Association sometime during the summer. The secretary, Albert M. Herr, made a short address, advocating the amalgamation of this body with the National Flower Growers' Association. This will be taken up for action at the June meeting if sufficient data reaches us to properly consider the matter. Mrs. A. M. Herr thanked the members for the flowers donated for the sale held by the Hospital drive which netted about $450.

M. J. Brinton, of Christiana, read a paper, urging the florists to take an inventory about July 1, both of their business and themselves: of their business, to see where they could improve the quality of their output and eliminate their losses in order that their present area of glass could be made to produce up to its full capacity; of themselves, to see where they fell down as citizens, and to get out of the alarmist class, helping by our own composure, and the support of organized society (even if not in full sympathy with it) to put a stop to the present unrest and continual fault finding that is so much in evidence today. D. J. Keohane made a few remarks on the business situation, all of them optimistic.

Edward Reid, Philadelphia, Pa., gave an instructive talk to the growers on production, packing and grading of cut flowers, based on some of his experiences with the express companies, and the need of a growers' association, all of them practical and well worth hearing by everyone who grows cut flowers. H. K. Rohrer and Elmer Weaver exhibited some fine sweet peas, and A. F. Strickler had some extra fine lily of the valley from outdoors.

The Late Patrick O'Mara.

OBITUARY.

Patrick O'Mara.

John Young telegraphs from New York, as we go to press, advising of the death of Patrick O'Mara, former president of the Society of American Florists and the New York Florists' Club, at his home in Jersey City, N. J., May 25, having been in ill health many months.

Mr. O'Mara was identified with the firm of Peter Henderson & Co., New York, nearly all his life, attaining the position of business manager and treasurer. He was born in Ireland in 1858, coming to this country with his parents in 1867.

E. W. Reid.

As we go to press, news comes to hand of the death of E. W. Reid, vice-president of the Holm & Olson Co., St. Paul, Minn., May 26, after one week's illness.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Galley Bros., it is reported, are to give up their store at 161 Genesee street.

DECATUR, ILL.—J. M. Bommersbach, Sr., left for France, May 26, on the first visit to his native land in 50 years.

BALTIMORE, MD.—The Park Florist Co. is looking for new quarters, the building at present occupied by the firm having been sold.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Wm. Patterson will erect two houses during the summer on land recently purchased adjoining his property on Brady street.

SEATTLE, WASH.—The exhibition to be held by the Seattle Rose Society, the provisional dates being June 18-19, is expected to bring out 75,000 blooms.

PASSAIC, N. J.—Ben Gruber is now sole proprietor of the Hundertmark Flower Shop, 589 Main avenue, having bought the interest of J. Braunstein.

BOSTON, MASS.—The flower shop of J. M. Petros at 240 Huntington avenue has been purchased by M. M. Saunders and Samuel Einstein, both well known in the trade here.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—H. Kenney Sons, 1801 Dean street, have incorporated, with a capital stock of $11,000, to deal in florist supplies. The officers are S., W. and H. Kenney.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Silver cups, instead of ribbons, as in former years, will be given prize winners at the annual flower show to be held at the Hotel Muehlebach, June 12.

EXETER, N. H.—The New England Rose Conservatories have incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000, the directors being William A. and George F. McAlpine and Ella V. Walsh.

BEAVER DAM, WIS.—The Beaver Dam Floral Co. has dissolved but the business will be continued under the same name by Jacob Kolb, C. Britt retiring from the partnership.

ASHTABULA, O.—The Ashtabula Floral Co. has been chartered with an authorized capital of $25,000 by E. E. Tong, T. W. Squires, F. E. Andrews, E. L. King and H. M. Brown, to conduct a retail florist business.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The Missouri State Florists' Association, at its meeting in this city, May 14, elected officers as follows: S. A. Archias, Sedalia, president; W. A. Rowe, Kirkwood, vice-president; J. J. Beneke, St. Louis, secretary; P. A. Manson, St. Louis, treasurer.

CLARKIAS in their double forms are very useful for many kinds of floral work. Grow them in flats, using rather a poor soil.

A REPORT is current in banking circles that the federal reserve board will request banks, trust companies, etc., not to call old loans secured by Liberty bonds.

THE annual meeting and the first exhibition of the eastern section of the American Iris Society will be held in University hall, Wanamaker's store, Philadelphia, Pa., June 1-2.

ANTHRACITE coal is in very short supply in New England, with dealers close to bare bins, and the whole trade living from hand to mouth. Deliveries by water are New England's salvation.

THE government is sending out some important school garden literature. Those interested should write for it, addressing the Board of Education, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C.

AT the annual meeting of the Cunard Steamship Company, Sir Alfred A. Booth, chairman, said the company was quite prepared for a slump in freight rates, which he hoped would result in a definite break in the "vicious circle of rising wages and rising prices."

A PRICE-CUTTING wave of considerable proportions is developing throughout the country, and in some cities, is resulting in very sensible reductions of cost of living. Freight congestion and tight money are cited in some places as reasons for the movement, while in some other instances, it is stated that public buying has slackened.

American Rose Society.

The rose garden days planned this year by the American Rose Society promise to bring rosarians of the different sections of the United States together for "feasts of beauty." The Washington, D. C., rose test garden day will be the first of the season. June 2, the society will hold an all day session in Washington, visiting the rose test garden, and Mrs. Bell's garden at Twin Oaks. The site of a national rose show garden, on the banks of the Potomac, will be dedicated in the afternoon. The business session of the society will follow a luncheon, probably at the Ebbit house about 1:30 p. m. It is hoped that there may be a large attendance of members at this meeting. The executive committee will hold a business session at the Ebbit house on the evening of June 1 at 7:30 p. m.

Other rose garden days are scheduled as follows: Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., June 24; Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., June 24; Portland, Ore., June 25; Minneapolis, Minn., July 3. The local committees of the rose test gardens are arranging the programmes for each of these days, and the members of the American Rose Society in the vicinity of each should attend.

The Members' Handbook of the society for 1920 is just being mailed from the secretary's office. Besides the alphabetical list of members, it contains a geographical list, so that members may know of "kindred minds" in their vicinity. The activities of the society during 1919 are also recorded in the Handbook, as are the rules and regulations governing exhibitions of roses, and the purposes for which the society's medals are awarded.

A committee which promises to be of much service to the members of the society has recently been appointed by President Pyle. This is a committee of consulting and advising rosarians, and is composed of the following: Dr. W. Van Fleet, Washington, D. C.; Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; A. W. Greeley, Williamsport, Pa.; John Dunbar, Rochester, N. Y.; W. C. Egan, Highland Park, Ill.; Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis, Minn.; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa.; Professor E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y.; Jesse A. Currey, Portland, Ore.; George H. Peterson, Fairlawn, N. J.; Fred M. Howard, Los Angeles, Calif.; John Cook, Baltimore, Md.; Alexander Cumming, Cromwell, Conn. Diseases—Dr. L. M. Massey, Ithaca, N. Y. Insects—C. R. Crosby, Ithaca, N. Y.; C. A. Weigel, Washington, D. C.; Professor G. J. Sanders, Harrisburg, Pa. These rosarians have agreed as a service of rose love to reply to courteous inquiries when such inquiries are accompanied by a self addressed and stamped return envelope, and when the inquirer definitely states that he or she is a paid-up member of the American Rose Society.

National Flower Growers' Association.

BY-LAWS CORRECTION.

With reference to the proposed constitution and by-laws of the National Flower Growers' Association, which appeared in our issue of May 22, page 939. Secretary J. F. Ammann of the association sends the following:

"My attention has just been called to a gross error in the printing of Article 5, Section 1, of the proposed by-laws for the growers' association. The local printer got the words all in, but has the paragraph so twisted, that it reads very unintelligently. Article 5 should read as follows:

"The presiding officer at any meeting of this association, or this board of directors, shall only vote in case of a tie; except that if his own office is not involved, he may vote on the question of the removal of an officer by the board of directors."

Advertising--

—IS BUILDING THE FLOWER INDUSTRY.
It has passed the mark of expense a long time ago and should be and is now recognized as a safe, sound and practical business investment. Consider what the S. A. F. National Publicity Campaign alone has accomplished in popularizing the famous slogan "Say it With Flowers."

The Allied Florists' Ass'n of Illinois recommends and urges co-operative advertising to all florists and communities in the United States and Canada. The so-called percentage plan has been in operation with them only a few months, but it has proven so successful and equitable for all that it merits widespread encouragement and adoption by every community—the real basis of co-operative advertising is found in

EQUITABLE ASSESSMENT

BRISK MEMORIAL DAY DEMAND.

The demand is very brisk for Memorial day, and while there is a large quantity of stock of all kinds in the market, it is possible that it will clean up nicely at good returns before the rush is over. Peonies are not as plentiful as they were last year, and should sell out completely at the advertised quotations, considering that there are only about 35 per cent of the number that were offered last Memorial day. Roses are plentiful, but are in strong demand considering the general market conditions, and it would not be at all surprising if they cleaned up in all items before the rush is over, notwithstanding the fact that this appears doubtful at this writing. American Beauty roses are moving nicely, and there is a heavy call for Premier, Mrs. Charles Russell and Columbia. The other varieties of roses are having a fair movement. Carnations are in good demand and should clean up fairly well, if a lot of pickled stock is not dumped in at the last minute. Lilies and callas are in fair supply. Lilac is more plentiful and is having a good sale. Gladioli are quite a factor in the market this week, with Halley, Pendleton and America the principal offerings. Sweet peas are in exceptionally heavy supply and are being sold in large lots at exceedingly low figures. The average on sweet peas last week was disappointing to the growers, for many were sold in the wholesale market as low as five cents per bunch, and fairly good stock at that. Snapdragons are being sacrificed at low figures this week. Orchids are having a good call, and lily of the valley is holding its own. Daisies, tulips, narcissi, gardenias, calendulas, candytuft, stocks, feverfew, pansies, and other miscellaneous seasonable stock is to be had. Green goods are very scarce, especially fancy ferns.

NOTES.

George Wienhoeber had a very pretty window display of sweet peas, May 22, that attracted considerable attention.

The Antoinette Floral Shop is enjoying a splendid business at 934 East Forty-seventh street, and has a very pretty place which looks better as the finishing touches are being added. Henry M. Hirsch, president and manager, is ably assisted by Louis Ancrola.

Allie Zech says that the Memorial day demand for stock at Zech & Mann's store is exceedingly heavy, with the total sales, so far, comparing most favorably with those of last year.

N. J. Wietor, wife and son, Leo, made an auto trip to Milwaukee, Wis., May 20, returning home the same evening. Mr. Wietor's son, Harry, is attending St. Francis' college.

O Leary has had a number of attractive signs placed on his windows at his store at Forty-seventh street and Grand boulevard, including "Say it With Flowers."

C. L. Washburn says that the demand is very strong for roses for Memorial day at Bassett & Washburn's store, with a heavy call from out-of-town points.

The Weiland-Risch Co. has received unusually high prices for the Pendleton gladioli it is cutting, some of the spikes bringing as high as $6 per dozen, wholesale.

Miller & Musser are doing a land-office business in bedding stock at their North State street store, with a surprisingly heavy transient demand.

H. B. Kennicott says that Kennicott Bros. Co.'s supply of peonies for Memorial day this year is about one-third of that of the same period of 1919.

William Kotsonis, who underwent an operation at the Mercy hospital last week, is doing nicely, and an early recovery is looked for.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report a brisk demand for stock for Memorial day, with a heavy call for peonies, roses and carnations.

Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., and A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., both have new Cadillacs.

T. E. Waters, president of the Florists' Club, addressed the West Ravenswood Improvement Association at Waters school, May 21, at 8 o'clock, his subject being "School Gardens." George Poehlmann, who is a member of the association, distributed 2,000 roses to those present.

The Greenhouse Supply Co., 30 East Randolph street, is the name of the new concern that will cater to the grower. It will handle everything for the greenhouse, including pecky cypress and coal, on which prompt delivery can be made. John Glerum is the manager.

The fund for decorating the graves of American soldiers, in France, raised by the Chicago Tribune and associated newspapers in various parts of the country, amounted to $34,934.65, which was cabled to France, May 25.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a fine supply of roses, which are in brisk demand for Memorial day. Orchids are in demand, and have been good property all season.

J. A. Budlong Co. is pleased with its Memorial day business, especially from out-of-town points, the demand for roses and carnations being exceptionally heavy.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is handling a good supply of indoor grown gladioli, in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable stock.

Peter Reinberg is having a good call for stock for Memorial day, especially roses and carnations, which are cleaning up every day at this establishment.

The South Park canna beds were planted May 24, a normal seasonable temperature of about 70 degrees prevailing.

The Joseph Foerster Co. moved a large quantity of lilac this week in addition to its regular supply of stock.

Vaughan's Seed Store is doing a wholesale business in vegetable plants as well as in canna plants.

Albert Koehler, of the American Bulb Co., has now reached London, Eng., on the homeward journey.

Visitors: Mrs. Tierney, of the Bills Floral Co., Davenport, Ia.; Frank Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, Mo.; B. E. Anderson, Hancock, Mich.; James Aldous, Iowa City, Ia.; E. I. Curtis, Webster City, Ia.; M. Phillips, Wausau, Wis.

LIGHT DEMAND WITH HEAVY SUPPLY.

Business was rather dull the past week, with an extra heavy supply of flowers of all kinds arriving daily, which made it hard for the wholesale houses to realize anywhere near what the stock is worth, and Saturday found the street boys in all their glory with a larger variety than they have had at any time this season. American Beauties in the longer grades are in short supply and sell readily, but the shorts are very poor in quality and are hard to move. Of the tea roses, Premier and Russell seem to stand shipping and the warm temperature best. Columbia is beginning to show the effects of the warmer weather and does not ship well. Ophelia, Sunburst, Hilda, Ward and Pink and White Killarney are in oversupply, and at times are hard to dispose of. Lily of the valley is more plentiful and moves freely. Easter lilies and callas are in short supply and sell readily. Snapdragon still continues to be a big factor in this market. Sweet peas are arriving in poor condition, due to the warm weather. Peonies have not made an appearance yet, and it looks as though there would not be many for Memorial day. The supply of ferns is small and poor, while southern plumosus is arriving in large quantities.

NOTES.

Local firms are all busy now on their landscape work. James Ford, who is in charge of this work for the A. W. Smith Flower Stores Co., informs us that at present he has a force of 42 men at work on different jobs, and could use as many more if it were possible to get them.

E. J. McCallum and family are on a motor trip in the east, Mr. McCallum will visit the firm's peony growers and superintend the cutting and shipping of the Memorial day cut. From there they will motor to Atlantic City, where they will spend several days.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Company reports a heavy cut of roses and carnations for Memorial day, but their peonies will not be in bloom for the big event.

Miss E. A. Williams has been featuring a window of Darwin tulips and snapdragon.

M.

Salt Lake City.

MEMORIAL DAY SUPPLY APPEARS LIMITED.

The supply is holding its own at this writing, but will have to improve to meet the demand for Memorial day. Carnations and roses will be the leading factors with a few sweet peas included in the offerings. As to peonies, it is going to be a hard matter to meet requirements without the assistance of California shipments.

NOTES.

The Miller Floral Co.'s store is preparing quantities of magnolia wreaths with clusters of prepared grasses and statice to help overcome the anticipated shortage of flowers.

Miss Childs of the B. C. Morris Floral Co. says it is useless to plan for special events at the last moment. The delivery problem is often a "joy-killer."

Bailey & Sons are having a heavy call for bedding stock, the supply cleaning up daily.

TRADE IN GENERAL IS GOOD.

Trade has been rather brisk during the past week, with business running largely to loose flowers. There have been some social functions which have taken a number of corsages and bouquets. Graduation exercises are also at hand, and this has stimulated trade among the local florists. Weddings are becoming more numerous, and quite a few are scheduled for the first week in June. Funerals have been about as usual, and that has afforded an outlet for some surplus stock. Generally speaking, business has been satisfactory with rather good prospects for the coming week. Active preparations have been made for Memorial day, and there is considerable buying in the form of advance orders. Local florists never reap a heavy harvest on that day, as the great bulk of the flowers used for the decoration of graves of veterans are donated, but others take advantage of the occasion to decorate graves of their relatives and friends, and this is reflected in a good demand for certain kinds of flowers. Carnations always sell well, and the same is true of roses. Both are on the market in good quantity, and the quality is generally satisfactory. Tulips are selling well at former levels. There is also a good demand for snapdragons, fancy sweet peas and narcissi. There will be no especial advance made in Memorial day prices.

NOTE.

The trouble over the time for collecting flowers for the decoration of the graves of veterans, has been solved by requesting the school children to bring in their flowers on Saturday previous to Memorial day. A special effort will be made to have a large number donated.

GOOD SUPPLY OF EXCELLENT QUALITY.

With the arrival of hot weather, the excellent quality of the stock that has been offered in this market will gradually deteriorate. Memorial day will use up quantities of flowers, and although the last big holiday of the season, June will usher in a brisk call for lily of the valley for bridal work and peonies, largely used in graduation decorations. Stock at present is showing remarkably good quality, with the possible exception of snapdragons, which are fast running out. Carnations are holding up well, and the same is true of roses. Outdoor lily of the valley is unusually fine and is offered at $2 to $4 per 100. Large quanities are being used at these prices. Peonies are not coming very fast, but should develop rapidly with the change in the weather, but not a great number of the local crop are expected for Memorial day.

NOTES.

All retailers, especially those having glass, are rushed with orders for outside window boxes for the progressive stores here. In this feature of store decoration, this city is one of the leaders.

A train carrying flowers for which the local commission houses rely for their daily supply, was wrecked 35 miles from this city, May 22, resulting in a loss of about 75 per cent of the shipments.

SPRING PLANTING ON WITH A RUSH.

Local florists who have greenhouses in connection with their stores, are busy as bees these days taking care of the biggest spring planting business on record. High prices of bedding stock and shrubbery do not seem to deter the buyers. Geraniums which used to bring five and 10 cents are retailing for 25 and 30 cents. Other stock is in proportion. Women's clubs of this city are conducting a city beautiful campaign this year which is a material aid to florists and should be encouraged by them. The weather has warmed up considerably, and stock prospects look good for Memorial day. Business since Mothers' day has not diminished, and there has been a good call for funeral work and also many wedding decorations.

NOTES.

Auditors are installing a new accounting system at Schramm Brothers, which will enable this progressive firm to keep accurate track of every detail of their large business. They are great believers in system. Frank Schramm reports a better-than-ever demand for bedding stock of which they are showing a large variety.

Miss Helen Patten had a large wedding decoration last week which called for all the artistic skill for which her organization is noted. Her Saturday sales of roses and other surplus stock are drawing many people into her store.

The large force at Mrs. E. N. Suder's Cherry street greenhouses is working overtime, supplying their patrons with spring planting needs. This pioneer florist is doing the largest business of her career.

Jake Helmer, of the Helmer Flower Shop, says advertising was the greatest factor in putting across their big Mothers' day trade. He believes that publicity would be helpful for all flower days.

Feniger's Flower Shop is showing a great variety of made-up wreaths for Memorial day and expects a big demand this year.

S. N. Peck, former treasurer of the florists' club, has returned from a long stay in the south, greatly improved in health.

SUPPLY HARD TO MOVE.

The past week has been one of strenuous effort to get rid of the stock. There has, however, been a fair amount of business for the season, but as is usual at this time, supply almost always exceeds the demand, and it takes progressive methods to clean up at satisfactory returns. Roses have been the most plentiful item, all varieties except American Beauties being offered in quantity lots at low figures; $15 to $20 per 1,000 buys stock that in 25 to 50 lots was quoted at six to eight cents. The same applies to carnations which were another quantity stock. These sold for $10 to $15 per 1,000, while $4 to $5 was the 100 price. Outdoor stock, such as shrubbery, irises, candytuft, feverfew, etc., is coming strong and hurts the greenhouse products. Callas and Easter lilies are plentiful and considering their quantity, hold up very well. Snapdragon is at its height, and quantities are sold at quick moving figures. As yet, not any of the great Memorial day flower, the peony, has been seen in the market. The past month has been below normal in temperature, and the season, according to Edward Reid, the sage of Ranstead street, who is weather-wise, particularly when it comes to peonies, is eight days behind. As he sizes up the situation, there will be very few, if any, local stocks ready in time, the compensation being that all other flowers will be benefited in increased demand and higher prices. The failure of this flower to make its appearance, May 27, or at the latest, May 28, the last shipping day, causes great inconvenience and loss, first to the grower, with out which great demand, his crop is a heavy loss and practically unsalable. The commission men, who find the peony a great factor in Memorial day trade, are greatly inconvenienced when the crop misses the day. On May 27 or the day following they are worth $60 per 1,000, while the arrivals of the 29th and 30th, which in favorable weather flood the market, hardly bring enough to pay transportation. The retailer, who has to depend on outside markets, is always in a quandry, and is never sure until the expressmen arrive with his boxes.

May 24.—The market opened with full shipments and an edging up of prices. Carnations were firm at $6 for average, and $8 for select grades. There were some shipments of peonies from southern Maryland and Virginia. These brought $12-$15. Roses were plentiful at last week's closing prices.

NEW FERNS ARRIVE.

New crop, hardy ferns are coming to this market from Virginia and find great demand, as the storage stocks are all done. There has been a great deal of loss in the past season's stored ferns. So many moulded and turned black, which required a great deal of sorting and hand-picking of a large number of the cases. The same is true of much of the galax stock, particularly the bronze. It would seem that much of this trouble could be avoided if cases of fresh stock, on arrival, were opened in a cold storage temperature, and the contents thoroughly chilled to the centers of the bunches before repacking. There would then be no latent heat to gather moisture, and an even low temperature, unfavorable to the growth of fungus.

FLORISTS' CLUB LADIES' NIGHT.

The June meeting of the club has had to be set forward one night, as the great demand on the hotel for meetings and banquets, at this time compelled a postponement to Wednesday, June 2. As this is the last scheduled meeting of the season, the exercises after the necessary routine business, will be a regular whirlwind of vaudeville. The gold room, the largest in the hotel, has been secured. The house committee, which has the entire programme in charge, promises to excel the splendid entertainment of last year, having secured some wonderful talent. After the performance, there will be a wonderful buffet lunch, which Chairman Klinger describes as a little bit out of the ordinary. It will be a fitting windup to a very successful season.

NOTES.

Florists generally should be greatly encouraged by the increased demand for plants and cut flowers as shown in the business of the holiday. People will buy and pay good prices for greenhouse products, when they want them, and retailers whose business it is to place them before the public, should by all means in their power keep up and foster the desire for plants and flowers. The local newspaper publicity has been of excellent quality, very well written, finely illustrated, and without doubt, has had some "influence" in helping to create the great Easter demand.

Charles Marbello, on the Niessen circuit, apropos of the recent lecture tour of Sir Oliver Lodge, offers this one: "Joe Smith, a florist of Mossy Corners, Pa., after a long and useful life, passed to the beyond. Reclining under the palms one day, listening to angel carols, he heard his name called several times by one of the heavenly pages. Answering, and assuring them that he was Joe Smith, of Mossy Corners, Pa., he was told that his wife wanted to speak to him on the Ouije board."

The newly organized American Iris Society will hold its first annual meeting and exhibition in Wanamaker's University hall, June 1-2. This society has made an auspicious start, having some 250 members. George Wister, Germantown, is president and F. C. Sturtevant, Wellesley, Mass., secretary. There are quite a number of iris enthusiasts in this city and the exhibition is expected to be quite extensive.

Berger Bros. had a bad scare May 22, when the building next door to them was gutted by fire, which for a time threatened to spread to their premises. They escaped, however, with only the breaking in of their back door.

At this writing, local peonies are practically given up. There will be none in time for shipment to out-of-town points, with even a few for local consumption Saturday, doubtful.

George Aeugele is on the sick list, and is trying the rest cure for a week.

HEAVY SUPPLY WITH SHORTENED DEMAND.

Not for many moons has the market been in such a sluggish condition as it is at this writing. There is a heavy supply of good stock, and it has simply outdistanced the demand. The past week brought warmer days, but the nights were cool, a favorable condition for an increased supply, while the demand slackened. A heavy supply of greenhouse stock was reenforced by peonies from the south, and by such an avalanche of lilac as was never before seen in this market, even by the "oldest inhabitant." And the lilac is good, so if fifty cents or a dollar will buy an armful of it, why should anyone spend two or three dollars for a paltry bunch of roses or carnations? We admit that from the greenhousemen's viewpoint, that is not sound reasoning, but it seems to be the popular idea with many of the people. The supply of roses, carnations, sweet peas and various other stocks has been heavy, with a great falling off in prices, as compared with previous weeks and months. In fact, possibly excepting in orchids, prices are about what the buyers make them, and the buyers in this market are not noted as philanthropists. It is hoped that a great Memorial day demand will show a silver lining to the cloud, but in the meantime—that is what the growers and wholesalers are thinking—that until Memorial day buying begins, it will be an all around mean time. But we will not worry just yet. If reports compiled by the Literary Digest are correct, and there is no reason to doubt them, there are big worries ahead. Here are some of them in perspective:

"Soon you will have to go to the farm to hear the dinner-bell ring," predicts Rufus J. Nelson, editor of Farm and Ranch, who agrees with many other witnesses in prophesying soaring prices for farm and live-stock products "because of increased cost of production and scarcity caused by decreased acreage." "There can be no question about the fact that we are approaching a great shortage of food," declares H. W. Collingwod, editor of The Rural New-Yorker, who warns us that "the average city man does not realize what is coming to him within the next year." Mr. Collingwood wonders "how the average city paper can content itself with discussing the ordinary topics of the day when this calamity is slowly but surely approaching." Of some of the factors in the situation he writes: "Next winter there will be less food in the country than at any time during the war, unless we have the most favorable season and better conditions for farming. Our reports here are all one way. Farmers are not hiring labor largely, because they are absolutely unable to obtain help. The average farmer is planning to do what he can with his own labor and with the labor of his family, and stop there. Not only do we face this trouble in the labor question, but we are unable to obtain our supplies.

May 24.—There is fair activity today but prices continue low.

NOTES.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held on the evening of June 14. It will be the last meeting before the vacation during July and August. There should be good exhibits. Chairman Harry O. May, of the exhibition committee, will make an effort to have something worthy of the occasion, and should receive the hearty co-operation of growers. There will be other interesting features, so "don't go to sleep at the switch."

Calling recently on Manager Hale, of T. F. Galvin, Inc., we found him making up a basket of rare orchids on an order for Miss Helen Frick, who sailed for Europe that day. The price of the basket was $100.

Max Richter, who for several years has conducted the "Oaks" greenhouses, Bayside, L. I., has bought the range at Bayside, for many years conducted by the late Joseph Bechamps.

The Dolansky-McDonald Co. has added to its sales force, William Wiebert, who is a well-known and popular young man in the wholesale trade.

Futterman Brothers have removed from 102 West 28th street, and are now located just across the street at No. 101.

I. Rosnosky, of the American Bulk Co., Chicago, was in the city May 24-25.

ONION acreage in California is 20 per cent less than last year, and condition 60 per cent normal, there being considerable mildew.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Frank G. Cuthbertson, of C. C. Morse & Co., says the firm's trials of new winter-flowering sweet peas at San Carlos are now at their best.

SEATTLE, WASH.—Mrs. Mathilda A. Aabling, wife of A. L. Aabling, of the Aabling Seed Farms, Inc., was accidentally asphyxiated in her home recently, while preparing dinner.—C. H. S.

THE department of agriculture is quoted as reporting a falling off in sales of vegetable and also garden seeds, but THE FLORIST has been unable to verify the statement so far as Chicago seedsmen are concerned.

G. C. ELDERING, Overveen, Holland, after an absence of eight years, is again calling on the American trade this season, having visited Chicago, Milwaukee and the Twin Cities this week. Mr. Eldering reports the season thus far, favorable to a good bulb crop.

NEW YORK.—A fund of $500,000 was pledged, May 25, by more than 2,000 business men at a luncheon of the Merchants' Association to finance an independent trucking corporation in an effort to relieve the tieup of freight in the city resulting from strikes of various labor organizations.

CURTIS NYE SMITH, American Seed Trade Association counsel, 19 Congress street, Boston, Mass., announces completion of the compilation of the federal and state seed laws of the United States, full particulars of which, and subscription terms, may be had on application to Mr. Smith at the above address.

BRITISH dealers are deferring the placing of Dutch bulb orders until June 1, when a further meeting is to be held in the hope of securing lower prices and better terms. In America, this year's prices are considered too high to justify placing as large business as usual either by the jobber or the florist grower.

ONION SET specialists in the Chicago district report an increased acreage, the stand averaging good.

L. D. WALLER, of the L. D. Waller Seed Co., Guadaloupe, Calif., and wife, stopped off at Chicago last week, enroute east. Mr. Waller is making his first trade trip, stopping at only a few places so as to return in time for the important work to be done on his firm's 30 acres of trial grounds. On the return trip, he will, however, attend the Milwaukee convention, and hopes to meet his many friends there.

American Seed Trade Association,

MILWAUKEE CONVENTION PROGRAMME.

The thirty-eighth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, with headquarters at the Hotel Pfister. Early room reservations are urged, the rates being as follows: Single room, without bath, $2.50-$3.50; with bath, $3.-$7. Double room, without bath, $3.50-$4.50; with bath, $4.-$8. For each extra person in room, $1 additional.

Included in the business of the meeting, is the consideration of the following proposed amendments to the by-laws:

That the dues and initiation fee be increased.

That appropriations be referred to the executive committee.

That provision be made to admit seed trade associations to membership.

The following programme has been arranged, its briefness permitting time for the consideration of other topics of a business nature: "Seed Testing Experiences", by A. L. Stone, state department of agriculture, Madison, Wis.; "Nomenclature", J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa.; "Fine Turf Grasses, with Special Reference to the Seed Supply," R. A. Oakley, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.; "Trade Ethics and Trade Practices", Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.

Badges with the name of the wearer are being provided again this year, and will also bear the name of the firm the wearer represents. To make this feature a success, Secretary Kendel urges the co-operation of members in that cards sent out for that purpose be returned not later than June 10.

Vegetable Seed Crops.

The general condition of vegetable seed crops in the United States (exclusive of California), is below normal, according to the government report of May 15. The weather has been cold and otherwise unfavorable for the development of crops which have been planted. This factor, together with the uncertainty of labor, has also delayed the planting of late-sown crops.

Practically no seed crops have been planted in Connecticut, New Jersey, and other growing sections in the east except the relatively small acreage of biennials. These crops, which include beet, carrot, onion and turnip, are making a fair growth at this time. The growing condition of peppers for seed in Georgia is below normal because of excessive rains and continued cold weather.

Garden peas.—In the principal seed garden pea growing districts of the Pacific northwest, the crop is now being planted under fairly favorable conditions. Seeding as a whole will be completed later than in a normal season. The crop in California is not so promising as earlier in the season because of the abnormally heavy rainfall during March and late frosts which followed. The damage is estimated to be 25 to 30 per cent, and reports indicate that the satisfactory yield which was expected will not be obtained.

Vine crops.—Growers in Colorado are 15 to 30 days late in planting their vine crops, but the soil is in excellent condition and there is plenty of water for irrigation. Reports are conflicting as to the labor situation, but on the whole there seems to be no great shortage. The prices being paid, however, are higher than last year, and some growers are inclined to reduce the acreage of those crops which require the most hand labor. The condition of the watermelon seed crop in Florida is reported about 90 per cent of last year and 85 per cent of normal because of excessive rains and cold weather.

Cabbage.—The unusually small percentage of the cabbage seed crop in the Puget Sound district that survived the winter has made fairly satisfactory progress this spring, but is not in as good condition as at this time last year. The crop on Long Island has made slow growth since transplanted.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; John Watson, 400 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

Forty-fifth annual convention will be held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, June 23-25, 1920.

MADISON, WIS.—As part of the plan in the city beautiful movement, shrubs have been set out on the corners of one of the downtown streets, property owners co-operating in the expense of the movement. Curb flower gardens will also be planted.

American Association of Nurserymen.

Copies of the announcement regarding arrangements for the forty-fifth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, to be held at the Congress hotel, Chicago, June 23-24, have been mailed to all members, the business sessions to be preceded by a "get-acquainted" dinner at the same hotel on the evening of June 22.

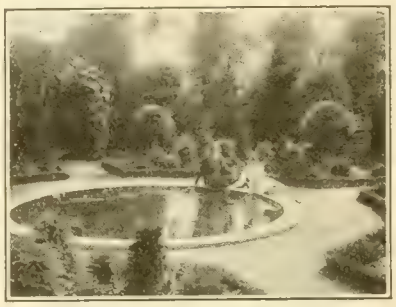
As the association has grown into a business organization, it is the wish of the officers, and presumably of all members, to make this year's meeting a business one. In order to insure this, no formal programme of prepared papers and addresses has been arranged. Somehow, it never seemed exactly the right thing to parcel out the time of the convention in advance. On the other hand, to bring up each subject in turn, with the floor free to every member, with ample opportunity to discuss each subject presented, and to introduce other subjects, seems a very direct way of securing the participation of all members in the work of the convention. The whole idea of this plan is to see that every member has the fullest opportunity to bring forward any subject of interest to him or of possible interest to the trade and the association; to see that ample opportunity is afforded for full discussion and mature deliberation before acting on any matter affecting the policy and activities of the association. That we shall have some programme to discuss is rather eloquently indicated by the following list of subjects that the association has on hand right now.

Market development.
Publicity.
Costs.
Seedlings and raw materials.
Inspection and quarantine.
The lansscape gardener.
Standardization of plant names.
The planter's viewpoint.
Business ethics.
Advertising.
Credits and collections.
Surpluses and shortages.
Relations with professional landscape architects.
Co-operation with seedsmen and florists.
Standardization of grades.
The agricultural and horticultural press.
Co-operation with pomological and horticultural societies.
Nursery training in agricultural colleges.
Legislation.
Packing.
Tariff.
Federal and state competition.
Compensation by the government for stock destroyed as a precautionary measure.
Provision for plantings around federal buildings.
Transportation.
Express weight limits.
Arbitration.
Storage.
Any other subject that any member wishes to introduce.

Letters received already indicate that members have enjoyed a busy and prosperous season and that they intend to use some of their well-earned profits in attending the convention. Nurserymen will be on hand who have not been at a convention in five years. It will unquestionably be the largest turnout we have ever had.

JOHN WATSON, Sec'y.

Princeton, N. J., May 24, 1920.



Garden Bordered With Box-Barberry.
Electros of this illustration with each order for 1000 or more if requested.

Have you seen a garden bordered with this spring? Every plant bright and green—not a dead one. A strong contrast to the northern Buxus bordered garden, now either dead or sadly winter injured, brown and dejected looking.

Box-Barberry

Mr. Siebrecht, the veteran plantsman, on seeing the garden the other day shown in accompanying illustration, exclaimed with his characteristic enthusiasm, "Magnifiicent. There is a fortune in it for the nurserymen."

We offer you well rooted dormant summer frame cuttings ready to set out direct into the nursery without further expense to you at $65.00 per 1000; all sold out of larger sizes.

Many of the leading catalogue firms have already contracted with us for their supply for the ensuing season, and others are buying these frame grown plants for their own planting, preparing for the enormous demand which is sure to follow.

It is a safe statement that BOX-BARBERRY will soon be the plantsman's best seller.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

"NEW POMPON ANNABEL."

A sport from Mrs. E. D. Godfrey: is a sturdier grower with exceptionally good foliage. Has long stiff stems, well branched, with an unusual number of flowers about 3½-in. across. Excellent keeper, in bench, or cut. Color, a beautiful cerise, tending toward lavender. Flowers of anemone type, with several rows of petals, and yellow center. Season of blooming, Thanksgiving to Christmas. Past season, I cut the first on Dec. 2nd and the last Jan. 10th. It is far better than parent, or any other Pompon and will bring more money.

Sold under agreement that you permit no other person to obtain stock untl 1922. Prcies, 2¼-in. pots, $3.00 per dozen; $20.00 per hundred. Rooted cuttings, $15.00 per 100. Sold out to about May 15. After that will have about 5,000 a week. Can be benched as late as Aug. 15 for good crop.

Union Hill, N. J.

It may be that the post office department is partial to old names, just as it is—or seems to be—partial to old horses and mail wagons. However, that may be, the post office in the above mentioned borough is about the only place where the name "Weehawken" is to be found. The business men date their letters from Union Hill, and the public service corporations route their street cars for Union Hill. It is a thriving place, and has a number of retail flower stores that would be creditable to a larger city.

The "Fernery," 426 Hackensack plank road, has been for some time conducted by Miss Frances M. Steinhoff. It is unnecessary to state that Herman C. Steinhoff's children are wise to the florist business.

A. Daggetts, 294 Bergenline avenue, has been so prosperous that, in addition to his retail business, he has bought part of the McMillan range, located at North Hudson Heights.

The large store, formerly the flower department of the Neelser undertaking establishment, has recently been taken over by C. G. Cosmas, who is doing a good business.

All the stores called upon reported a good Mothers' day business and best of all, it was stated that the trade was far from being confined to carnations.

Durso & Fox, two clever young men, who graduated from the wholesale district of New York, recently opened a good store at 149 Fourth street.

Rey, Woolsey & Berglund have two "Flower Shops," one at Fourth street and Bergenline avenue, the other at 223 Bergenline avenue.

The "Margaret Florist Co." 12 Bergenline avenue, is conducted by young men who show taste in floral arrangement.

UNUSUALLY STRONG DEMAND FOR PLANTS.

There has been a shortage of plants and cut flowers since Mothers' day, the former being in greater demand this year than ever before, taking the place of flowers to a considerable extent, which is an encouragement to plant growers as to the future. Carnations have been none too good in quality and the supply decreased during the past week. Roses of all kinds are excellent. The warm weather has caused quite a spurt in bedding stock sales and good business in filling veranda boxes, urns, etc.

CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the florists' association was held May 14. John Dunbar was to speak on "Some Facts About the History and Development of Garden Roses" but was prevented from being present by a severe cold. As president of the Rochester Rose Society he is in a position to handle this subject most interestingly, and his talk will be awaited with interest.

NOTES.

The H. E. Wilson Co. recently purchased the former chamber of commerce building on Main street, the consideration said to have been $630,000. The building has about 175 offices with a large store on the ground floor.

C. W. Curtis has returned from a trip to Atlantic City, N. J. He is now supplying the local trade with excellent Nutt geraniums.

George T. Boucher is now doing a rushing business in bedding stock. He also is well supplied with excellent Easter lilies.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Cleaning Up.

The bedding season is over, the year's work is practically finished, the young stock for another year in preparation, and now is the time to clean house. Do not leave a lot of worthless stock scattered around the houses that takes a man's time to water, but what it is desired to save block up all together where it can be watered in a short time, and, above all things, throw out anything that has passed its usefulness. How often have we seen plants that would never have been of any value left standing in the greenhouses until fall planting; neglected, yet taking more or less room, to be thrown out at last, and the houses never thoroughly made ready for the coming crop. Get the plants that need care and attention all together, and clean up the other houses. If the stock is grown in benches, these will need repairing, and if badly decayed take them down and rebuild. Those who have cement benches are fortunate, for they will only need repairs. Throw out all the old soil and clean up under the benches and in all the corners, and throw out any old, rotting boards or pieces of crocks, and thus get rid of the vermin that invariably infest greenhouses. After the benches are cleaned out, give them a good, thick coat of whitewash in which sulphur was mixed while the lime was slacking. The advantage of this is too little appreciated by many growers. It costs but little and the prevention from fungus will often amount to a great deal. After the whitewash has dried throw a few ashes or a mulch of some kind on the benches to protect them from the hot rays of the sun. Give the inside of the house a good coat of white paint; this should be done at least every other year, for the difference in the amount of light in a clean white house and in a dirty one during the dark short days is material, and the increased quality and quantity of stock will more than repay for the expense and labor. Any repairs that the heating system needs should be made at once and the boilers cleaned up ready for fall. Too often the boiler is never thoroughly cleaned out after the last firing, and ashes and clinkers are left lying around in a moist condition, rusting the boilers. The steam boilers should either be emptied or filled, for if the water is left standing, rust will form inside just above the water line and rapidly eat into the iron. These are all necessary details to be looked after at the earliest possible moment.

Canterbury Bells.

There is always a demand in the spring for something different than the flowers which the buyers have seen all through the winter, and many growers have a call for some of the forced perennials. Canterbury bells are grown for this purpose, and if well grown find a ready sale. Seeds sown now and grown on in pots, being shifted into larger sizes as may be required, will bloom next spring and help furnish the grower with a variety of stock. They should be grown cool during the early winter, a violet house or one of a similar temperature being about right, and then brought into a warmer house with a temperature of 50° degrees in late winter, where they will produce fine blooms for early spring. By bringing a few at a time into the warmer house, a succession of blooms may be had.

Ardisia Crenulata.

The seeds of ardisia may be sown at any time during spring and, as it will take until another year to grow plants that will fruit, it is not material at which particular time they are sown. The seeds are a little slow in germinating, and it is better to sow them in the the manner of sowing cyclamen, about half an inch apart. In early summer they should be potted in 2½-inch pots, and are better grown in a frame than in the greenhouse. In the fall, when brought into the houses, they should again be potted in 3 or 4-inch pots and grown in a temperature of 50°. The plants are of a woody nature and grow slowly, and should not be potted into too large pots, for it is far better to allow the roots to fill the pots before shifting. The following spring they will bloom and should then be potted in 6-inch pots and given a cool location in the houses. After the fruit has formed and grown to good size the plants should be given a good, sunny position, that they may take on a bright color by Christmas. If the plants are grown too warm the foliage will be thin and lack the substance and luster which make them so much admired in the cooler grown plants, and the warmer grown stock gets chilled very easily, when the berries will drop off. The only insect which infests this plant is the brown scale, which, if not destroyed, will cover the plant stem completely. These should be carefully removed and continually guarded against. If there are any old plants that have dropped their lower leaves, the tops of these can be rooted in a similar manner to rooting rubbers, that is, by cutting into the stem and mossing the cut and, after the roots have appeared in the moss, the tops cut off below the moss and potted.

Calceolarias.

A plant that always attracts attention and is as decorative as cineraria or other plants of that kind, and yet but little grown, is the calceolaria. The culture is very similar to that of the cineraria, and is fully as easy. The seeds should be sown at once and shaded until they have produced one or two leaves, when the shade should be made lighter. As soon as large enough they should be potted into small pots and shifted along into larger sizes as fast as required. They should, as soon as well established, be given a light, airy location, not shady enough for them to become drawn, but if in the full sunlight they will have to be watched closely that they do not get dry. They will require cool quarters during the winter, if nice, stocky plants are desired, and under this treatment fine 6-inch pot plants may be had in bloom in early spring that will surely attract attention. For the last potting a good, rich soil will be required, and when they begin to bloom, watering with liquid manure will be beneficial. Like the cineraria, they are quickly ruined by aphis, and constant fumigation will be necessary. Many growers stand the plants on tobacco stems, which are renewed as the strength is lost.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—A floral concern, to be known as the Richmond Gardens, Inc., has been organized in this city as a private corporation with a capital stock of $15,000.—C. H. S.

NEWCASTLE, IND.—It is reported the South Park Floral Co. has sold four of its larger greenhouses to a Tennessee firm, and that the others will be torn down to make room for residences.—W. B. C.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—A severe hail storm visited this section May 21, breaking all the glass in Charles Burroughs' greenhouses, the plants, however, escaping serious injury. The cotton crop suffered considerable damage.

The June Wedding.

The first two weeks of this early summer month is the greatest wedding period of the year. There are house weddings, church weddings, and weddings on the lawn. As many as a dozen or more fashionable events of this character will take place in a day at this season in all large communities. At most of these functions, the decorations will be quite elaborate, while even the most modest nuptials, will not be considered complete without something in flowers.

At important affairs of this character, all the various details are planned, and orders given for the main features several months before the event. At times, the florist is given six months' notice, so that he may engage and secure the necessary material well in advance. At far too many weddings, however, the florist is called in after all other details are settled and appropriations have nearly run out and a lot is expected for very little. Again, a perfectly good wedding order will come along on the same day, for which others are already booked that about engage the capacity of the store. This necessitates extra equipment and a realignment of the force and other preparations so that all may be managed satisfactorily.

A good stock of accessories, such as pedestals, pot covers, floor vases, several kneeling stools, standards and staffs, wall brackets, half baskets, vase baskets, with and without handles, folding lattice screens, wedding rope, etc., are essentials that quicken and allow for artistic arrangement and conservation of stock, that would be impossible without them. A low, flat iron stand or foot, that can be placed on any pedestal, which supports a tilting adjustable clasp or holder that will keep a cibotium or palm at any angle, is a most effective decorative device. Folding lattice screens, five to six feet high, are almost indispensable, as they can, with a little decoration, be made to take the place of a lot of plants in screening a doorway or an orchestra, or be used as a background, and at times, are useful in dividing or partitioning off a portion of a large room,

Skeleton wicker wall-brackets, with liners, when filled with flowers and vines, very effective in the decoration of blank wall spaces. They can be hung from the picture moulding without defacing the wall in any way. Half-baskets with handles, also with liners, when filled with flowers, and hung along the walls or in the center of a large mirror, will make an artistic display.

Shepherd's crooks or staffs can be used to good advantage when set into a foot or flat, round wooden base. They can then be placed at regular intervals and used to support a wedding rope either side of an aisle, in a large room through which the wedding party is to pass to the altar. A loose bunch of flowers tied to each staff with a ribbon, streamers of which connect the various standards, can be used in this way to take the place of the rope.

At all house weddings, decorations over doorways, windows, mirrors and picture frames are most effective. Southern smilax or its equivalent in oak leaves or hemlock boughs or laurel in blossom, can be used with wonderful effect. The bannister and railing to the second floor, or even higher, can be trimmed with the same material.

In the grouping of palms or cibotiums at the place of the ceremony or reception, hydrangeas or marguerite daisies can be used to give color and relieve the somber green. Tall floor vases, filled with long stemmed roses, Easter lilies or snapdragons, are used when the decorations are more elaborate.

For all home weddings, the indispensable kneeling stool, placed in front of the palms, marks the place of the ceremony. Behind this, the clergyman stands and awaits the happy couple. After the nuptials, this is pushed back against the plants, and makes an attractive background for the wedding party during the reception.

HOME WEDDING DECORATION.

AT THE CHURCH.

The decorations of the church for the spring wedding should be bright and gay, as full of color as the garden outside. There are always quantities of shrubbery or tree blossoms, which at comparatively small expense, can be used to give quite an elaborate and artistic effect. Peonies are at their best the first two weeks in June; these, arranged in floor vases, and in bracket baskets to attach to the side of columns or wall spaces, are very decorative. The flowers should be kept in deep jars of water over night before using. Snowballs and other shrubbery and long sprays of rambler roses, the latter trained as if growing, will give to the interior a beautiful garden effect. A very useful device for the decorator, by which can be placed long stemmed flowers or branches of blossoms in almost any position, is a round tin tube, 12 inches in length by 2 in diameter, with a stout wire hook soldered to the top at one side. This will hold sufficient water to keep flowers fresh over night, or at least, for six to eight hours. These can be hooked on the edges of pot covers, on the leaves of stout palms, or tied to stakes in the pots. Stout twine, wound around a pillar, will support the hooks, affording a means for beautiful effects in a very short time. Being of the same color, the tubes are easily concealed with foliage.

The vantage points in the church are, first, the chancel or platform. In Episcopal churches, or others where the choir pews face the center aisle back of the rood-screen, the grouping of palms, ferns and also cut flower decorations in the chancel, should be high. The ends of the choir pews, facing the body of the church, can be banked with low palms and plants in flower, but not allowed to come above the pews, so as to avoid obstructing the view.

The main aisle is next in importance. Clusters of peonies, shrub blossoms, long roses, or other quantity flowers can be attached to each pew end, with or without a bow of ribbon or chiffon. This will give a very decorative effect. Standards that support baskets or bouquets of flowers at the top, six feet above the floor, is another form of decoration that is very showy. These can be placed at every second to fifth pew, making a more or less elaborate arrangement. Banking the windows with flowers and foliage, either flowering plants or jars of foliage, gives a generous finish or setting to the entire decoration. Where the raised platform and pulpit come out close to the front pew line, this affords space for a liberal banking of foliage and flowering plants. Frequently, some of the front pews have to be removed and a platform built, a foot above the floor, to make space for the bridal party. Here again, the kneeling stool is necessary, being placed at the head of the main aisle in the center of the raised platform, marking the place of the ceremony.

THE WEDDING ON THE LAWN.

When it is decided to have the wedding take place on the lawn, as is often the case in beautiful home surroundings, a spot should be selected in an open space, with a good background of trees or shrubbery. A floral setting, or altar, can take one of a number of forms. A canopy of shrubbery or of rambler roses, or an arch of the same, will be effective. A white latticed background, decorated with rambler roses, will make an appropriate setting. The kneeling stool will be found here to be an important feature.

The path or walk, leading from the dwelling to this improvised altar, should be outlined and bordered with a garlanding of flower-decked wreathing, suspended from short posts driven into the ground. Where a canopy or tent-like structure is erected to cover the chairs of the guests, this should also be festooned with wreathing and flowers. The house decoration consists mostly of vases of cut flowers, placed at vantage points, and colors that will fit into the decorative scheme of the various rooms.

BOUQUETS AND BASKETS.

One of the most important features of the wedding are the flowers carried by the bride and her attendants. From the formal colonial, compact bouquet, with the silk lace fringe finish, to the loosely arranged, elaborate shower bunch, there is great latitude and variety in the flowers for the bride. With the long shower, the short shower, the cluster bunch, without any such festoons, the arm bouquet, the all lily of the valley bunch or just white lilacs or white roses, the variations are innumerable and all not forgetting the decorated prayer book, beautiful and suitable.

The maid of honor's bunch, is a large bouquet, generally of a color different from the bridesmaids, which as a rule, are all of one shade. These vary greatly in form, clusters of roses, snapdragons, sweet peas, daisies, hats or baskets of the same or many other flowers. By way of variety, they carry shepherd's crooks or staffs, each decorated with a bunch of flowers and ribbon, which latter is an important feature of all wedding flowers. The little flower girls carry small baskets in keeping with their size or of larger open design, from which they strew the path in front of the bride with short stemmed flowers. The ushers are all provided with boutonnieres of gardenias, lily of the valley or pompons of white carnations. The mothers and other ladies of the bridal families should be furnished with suitable corsages.

COAL

To get your supply of coal for next winter it will be necessary to write your representatives in congress at once requesting them to use every possible means to stop our enormous exports of coal to England.

Write your representatives in congress today or it may be too late to save the coal.

National Publicity for Flowers.

The publicity fund is augmented this week by a cheque from the St Louis florists' publicity committee for $434.70, equivalent to a further contribution of 25 per cent of money collected by the committee for publicity purposes. Altogether, this makes $1,205.70 contributed to the campaign this year by the St. Louis florists. Secretary J. J. Beneke writes that the committee is looking for a big increase to their fund this fall, which means further support to the national campaign. There are very many more communities which could give combined aid to our fund. Some of these are, of course, small in so far as the number of florists is concerned, but if only half a dozen florists would get together and make a joint subscription, it would be quite satisfactory and show a good feeling toward a movement designed only to benefit the trade.

The good results forthcoming from our campaign have excited the jealousy of other trades. A particular instance of this is found in the Keystone for May, a trade paper in the jewelry industry. In this number, occupying a full page, is a poetic effusion under the heading, 'Say it with Jewelry," and illustrated with a picture supposedly showing the advantage of jewelry as a gift that is permanent over one of flowers, quickly perishable. These jealous interests may pervert our slogan, as they will, but "Say it with Flowers" was well conceived, and it cannot suffer as long as we keep on exploiting it. There has always been a "language of flowers," and flowers speak this language as nothing else in this world's goods can. Flowers are more than gifts; they are messengers entrusted with the sweetest messages possible of conveyance. In sickness, sorrow, and joy, they speak—could anything else supplant them?

It is this sentiment that our publicity has been promoting. Flowers were never considered in this light as they are now. Look over our beautiful advertisements, which have appeared in the national magazines, and it must be admitted that they touch the sentimental side of their readers; they place flowers in a different category to that in which they have ordinarily figured. They excite a desire to possess or use flowers under conditions not previously considered, and they remind readers of forgetfulness in the matter of many little courtesies which go to make up the spice of life.

This has all along been the prime object of the campaign—to induce a greater and more intelligent use of flowers. And it is for this purpose that the support of florists has been asked, support which should enable us to finance the cost of this very necessary publicity. There is no getting away from the fact that the campaign is exerting a wonderful influence for our good, and it should be the absolute duty of every florist, no matter where located, to contribute to the fund whatever amount he can. As we have so often said, such a contribution is an investment, pure and simple, and pays mighty good interest. Our committee is sorely in need of further funds to arrange for a vigorous continuance of the campaign, the best movement ever inaugurated in the florists' industry.

If you, reader, have not subscribed already, will you not favor the committee, and, incidentally yourself, by sending a cheque to the secretary forthwith? Do not worry about the amount—you can send more later if you wish to do so.

National Association of Gardeners.

CONVENTION, ST. LOUIS, SEPT. 14-16.

The date for the annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners has been set for September 14-16, at St. Louis, Mo. The Marquette hotel has been selected as the headquarters and meeting place and the following committee is in charge of the local arrangements: Programme, George H. Pring; reception, Hugo Schaff; entertainment, Ernst Strehle; decoration, John Moritz; publicity, Prof. H. C. Irish.

This year's convention of the national association will be the most important in its history, as several matters which will have much bearing on the future of the gardening profession will be presented to the convention for consideration. The subject of examination and classification for gardeners, which was referred by the Cleveland convention to the next convention, will be submitted for final action.

As the convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents will be held in Louisville, Ky., September 9-11, a good attendance is looked for at both conventions, as many members are affiliated with the two associations. The dates have been arranged so that members may attend both meetings.

The following country estate owners have recently subscribed as sustaining members of the National Association of Gardeners: W. R. Coe, Oyster Bay, N. Y.; J. Pierpont Morgan, Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, Glen Cove, N. Y.; E. H. Inman, Atlanta, Ga., F. M. Sackett, Louisville, Ky.; H. E. Converse, Marion, Mass.; Mrs. C. G. Rice, Ipswich, Mass.; Mrs. W. Stursberg, Great Neck, N. Y.; W. E. Kimball, Glen Cove, N. Y.; E. F. Price, Port Chester, N. Y.; A. C. Loring, Mound, Minn.

SHORT MEMORIAL DAY SUPPLY FELT.

At the beginning of the past week cloudy weather prevailed which had the effect of shortening the supply, especially in peonies. Sunshine came at the end, however, and helped to relieve the strain under which the wholesalers found themselves in their efforts to meet the demand. Lilies and carnations arrived in good numbers, as well as flowering shrubs, such as weigelia, spiraea, etc., which came in time to help considerably. Cornflowers are now in more plentiful supply and fitted in well for Memorial day. The trade for this occasion was very good, but unfortunately there were not enough flowers available to meet the requirements. Roses are still received in good condition and find a ready sale, due to graduations and weddings, which absorb the supply as fast as received. Carnations are now showing the effects of the spring sun and are very small and burnt. The best for Memorial day brought $8. Lilies appear to be at their best, the choice offerings moving freely at $12 per 100. With the passing of outdoor lily of the valley, indoor stock is moving well at $8 per 100. In general, the local trade seems to have had a very satisfactory Memorial day business.

NOTES.

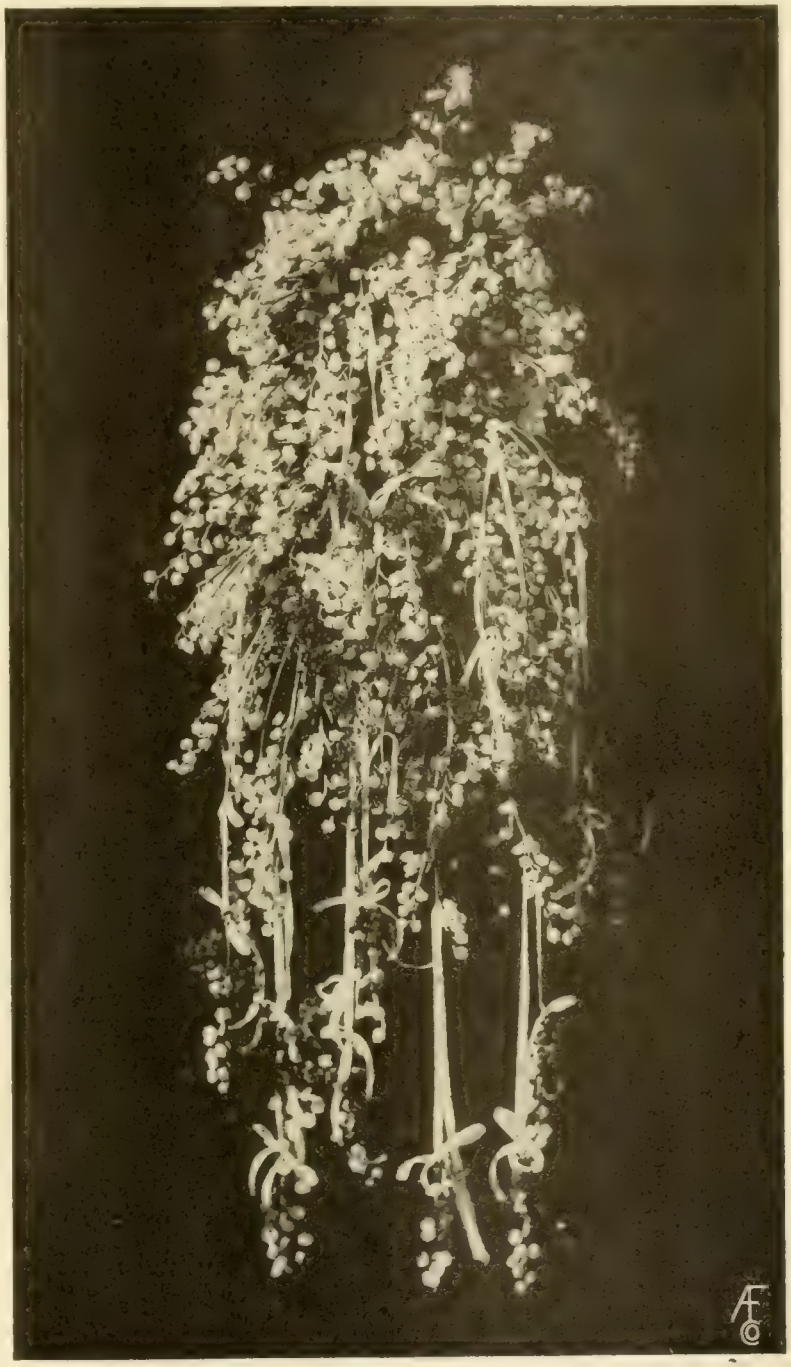
H. E. Klunder, of the H. W. Sheppard staff, has gone to Toledo, O., his old home, where he will engage in growing outdoor summer flowers. In his departure, this city has lost an excellent artist.

Frank Volz is finding a ready sale for fine Otaksa hydrangeas, which he is sending to this market.

The Wm. Murphy Co. continues to receive some excellent America and Pendleton gladioli.

Shuman & Whalers, of the Highlands, are showing some very good Boston ferns.

Visitor: Joseph H. Goldman, Middletown, O. G. K.



BRIDAL BOUQUET OF LILY OF THE VALLEY.

Richmond, Ind.

The E. G. Hill Co. reports business good, notwithstanding the many worries incident to shipping and coal supply.

Mrs. E. H. Mann is on the road to recovery after an extremely serious experience, following the breaking of her leg in January.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The growers' county association is discussing the organization of a local of the National Flower Growers' Association.

WINNIPEG, MAN.—A $250,000 plant to manufacture lignite briquettes, to help relieve the coal shortage, is to be erected at Bienfait, Sask. The product will be sold for $10.50 to $11.00 a ton, and, it is said, will equal the best American anthracite.

MEMORIAL DAY HOLDS ITS OWN.

The last big day in the florists' calender, Memorial day, for this season, held its own, like all the rest, and helped make this the largest season in the history of the business. Contrary to expectations, with the exception of peonies, stocks of all kinds were plentiful, and prices reasonable. Geraniums and bedding stock of all sorts were scarce and high May 29. Good geraniums, in full bloom, were quoted at 50 and 75 cents each, retail. The weather was warm, which made it hard on cut flowers, especially roses and carnations. Roses were in heavy supply, especially in the short and medium grades, which cleaned up early. The supply of carnations was about equal to the demand, and the quality was good, considering the lateness of the season. Snapdragons and sweet peas showed the effects of the warm weather. The local crop of peonies did not bloom in time, and the only ones to be had were shipped stock. The supply of ferns and greens proved sufficient to meet all needs.

May 31.—The market is flooded with stock that arrived too late; peonies are coming in heavy, good local stock which just missed it by about two or three days. The demand is light, as all the retail stores seem to have enough stock left over and do not buy until they clean up.

NOTES.

Last week, The A. W. Smith Flower Stores Company executed a large funeral order which gave them the opportunity to show their artistic ability. It took a special express car to take the flowers from this city to East Palestine, O.

The McCallum Company made a specialty of peonies, of which they handled many thousands. E. J. McCallum and family are making an automobile tour of the East.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Company had one of the finest cuts of roses this season, which they disposed of to advantage.

Randolph & McClements report many large wedding orders booked for the month of June.

All the retail stores report the largest business for Memorial day in their history. M.

San Francisco.

STOCK PLENTIFUL WITH GOOD MOVEMENT.

Stock is quite plentiful, with business moving along nicely. The rose situation is still unchanged. American Beauties are very plentiful and of a better grade than hitherto received. All other sorts are to be had in any quantity. Carnations are in large supply and cheap. Peonies are not in over-supply and sell quickly. Offerings of giganteums are very few these days. Sweet peas are coming in in all colors and of the finest possible quality. They are probably the most popular flower at present. Orchids continue very scarce. Lily of the valley is gradually becoming more plentiful again. Gardenias are on the short side of the market. Delphiniums are the leaders among outdoor stock, although some excellent snapdragons are offered. Gladioli America is now to be had in larger quantities. Peach Blossom is also a good seller. Red poppies, coreopsis and campanulas also add to the variety offered. Pot plant trade is reported slow with very little offered that is attractive in flowering stock. Green goods of every description are in heavy supply.

NOTES.

Leslie Doolittle, the dahlia specialist of Del Monte, has enlarged his nurseries by acquiring five adjoining acres which will be planted to dahlias this season. He has also secured a piece of property at Pacific Grove, and has established a branch dahlia garden there. He reports a splendid trade this season, the heavy demand for his novelties, necessitating the enlargement of his nursery.

B. M. Joseph had a busy week with steamer sailings, and sent many fine baskets to the docks for customers departing for the Orient. He has made steamer trade a specialty since opening his store here, and has developed a large business along this line.

Wm. Uremack, who acted as publicity man for the Dahlia Society of California in 1917 and 1918, has returned from Siberia, where he served with the Y. M. C. A. He will be in charge of publicity for the coming dahlia show in September.

The Late Patrick O'Mara.

The Menlo Park Horticultural Society will hold a spring exhibition next month. The show will be almost entirely devoted to sweet peas. This society is in a very flourishing condition, and all of the meetings are largely attended.

The many friends of Mrs. E. W. Lymbery, proprietor of the Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm at San Mateo, will be glad to learn that she has recovered from her recent illness which confined her to her bed for several weeks.

The firm of Albert O. Stein is kept busy these days on wedding decorations, for which they have a wide reputation for originality. Mr. Stein says the season, so far, has been a most satisfactory one.

According to J. A. Axell, the demand for gladioli for Memorial day was far in excess of the supply. He handled the cuts of some of the leading Santa Cruz growers, besides those from his regular growers.

Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has been appointed one of the captains in the war memorial drive, which is now taking place in this city. He will represent the Downtown Association.

F. C. Burns, the San Rafael grower, has erected a large greenhouse at his nursery. It will be used chiefly for propagating purposes and the raising of seedling dahlias, in which he specializes.

The Art Floral Company has received some elegant specimen Rhapis flabelliformis from the south. Many of the specimens are in 20-inch tubs, and all are perfect in shape.

OBITUARY.

The Late Patrick O'Mara.

The death of Patrick O'Mara, May 25, briefly noted in last week's issue, has brought out kindly expressions of regret from a host of friends in widely separated parts of the country. Failing health caused Mr. O'Mara to retire from business about 18 months ago, and though he had in the interim made at least one short visit to a health resort, and been at times up and about until a few days before his death, it appears he had been slowly but steadily sinking from a nervous breakdown.

Patrick O'Mara was born in Ireland 62 years ago and came to this country with his parents when a child. At an early age, the family home being in Jersey City, he found employment in the greenhouses of Peter Henderson, who at that time was an active and prominent man in the florist and seed trades. Later, he was transferred to the New York store. Under any circumstances, 50 years of service with one firm would be called an honorable record. In the case of Patrick O'Mara, it was preeminently so, for starting as a poor boy without influential friends, he rose by honesty, industry and ability, to what was the highest and most confidential position in the gift of the firm he served, that of treasurer and general manager. The writer's relations with Mr. O'Mara were largely social. We met at conventions, flower shows, the club and in his office, where he was seldom too busy to have a brief chat on current events and the news of the day. As a presiding officer, toastmaster or platform speaker contending for what he believed was right, he had no superior, and few equals, in any branch of the horticultural trade, his ready Irish wit carrying no sting. At a dinner given at the Hotel Astor, New York, on the occasion of the twenty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, he acted as toastmaster. He began by saying that he believed the duties of a toastmaster were to look pleasant and throw anyone out that created a disturbance. "Now," said he, "we are up here on the eighth floor, and if you are thrown out of here you will get hurt, unless you are from Philadelphia, in which case, you will fall slow." Similar anecdotes of him might be multiplied indefinitely. His wit and unfailing good humor usually carried his audience with him. He had written many clever articles for publication. A pamphlet written some 15 years ago, in which he took exception to some of the claims of discovery in plant breeding put forth by friends of Luther Burbank, had a wide circulation. Faithful to his friends, there are doubtless many who might say in the language of the poet:

Green be the turf above thee,
Friend of my better days!
None knew thee but to love thee,
Nor named thee but to praise.

Mr. O'Mara never married, and as a final tribute to his fine character, his devotion to his home and the members of his household, is worthy of mention. One brother, Daniel, and one sister, Miss Anna O'Mara, with whom he lived, survive him.

The funeral was held May 28, and many friends assembled at the home to take a last look on the peaceful face. Members of the trade noted in attendance included President Miller and Secretary Young of the Society of American Florists, Charles H. Totty, Robert Craig, of Philadelphia, Walter F. Sheridan, Charles B. Weathered, and many others. There were many beautiful floral tributes from Peter Henderson & Co. and their employes, from the Society of American Florists and the New York Florists' Club, members of the family and individual friends far and near. The remains were taken to St. Patrick's church, Jersey City, where a solemn requiem mass was offered. A. F. F.

APPRECIATION.

Looking back over 30 years of an enjoyable association with Patrick O'Mara in the many phases of the work of the New York Florists' Club, in which he was particularly interested, I am impressed with the great energy and influence he exerted in everything to which he lent his interest. In the councils of the club, he was a most wise counselor, gifted with a marvelous foresight, in which he ever had faith. No matter what the opposition ranged against his view, he could generally over-ride it, for his arguments were always based upon sound, common sense. He could unite factions, temper grievances, dispel forebodings and bring harmony into inharmonious situations as no other man in our circle could. Withal, he was most generous in his views, often refraining from an expression of them where they might be likely to destroy a project dear to a majority. He was an orator of no mean order, speaking at all times without embarrassment, and with a silver tongue. A deep student of human nature, he had a sense of humor which made him most companionable, and his fund of stories seemed inexhaustible. An excellent conversationalist, and unusually well-informed upon a generality of matters, he was the life of many a gathering, which, without him, would have been dull. In his death, our organization has suffered a distinct loss, and our work a distinguished enthusiast.

Personally, I feel that I have lost a friend and co-worker whose passing will be materially felt, and whose genial companionship will be greatly missed. JOHN YOUNG.

Patrick O'Mara was not only a great man and a great horticulturist. He was also a wit, an orator and a statesman, and a glorious old fighter for liberty and truth at the drop of the hat. One of the finest examples of his fighting qualities, to my mind, was when he went to California single handed, and ventilated Burbank. Keeley, and his Keeley motor, had nothing on Burbank. We all knew it; but he had the press of the country hypnotized, and it took the genius of Patrick O'Mara to wake them from their pipe dream. If he had never done another thing, his fame for that alone would remain with us in fadeless brilliance. But he was a grand and a glorious man for countless other things, and his memory will endure with us to the end of time.

GEORGE C. WATSON.

I am truly sorry to note that Patrick O'Mara has passed on, our friendship having been of long standing. I first met him in 1880 when that grand old man, Peter Henderson, gave me a place in his greenhouses on Jersey Heights. Mr. O'Mara and the writer soon became fast friends and remained so until the end. He was a brilliant man, and I was delighted in seeing him climb the ladder rung by rung until he reached the top. He has passed to the great beyond where he will be fully rewarded for the good done here below. Horticulture has sustained a great loss. I have had his photo in my office for years, and will ever treasure it in loving remembrance of a true friend.

SAMUEL MURRAY.

In the death of Patrick O'Mara, the trade has met with a severe loss, and we, his brother florists, will miss him greatly. He was one of the brightest lights in our profession and a hard worker all his life for its advancement. He was indeed a true friend to horticulture. Those who have known him intimately as I have for many years, will miss him for his genial personality, and his steadfast, helpful spirit. He was a man true to the core, and we all loved him.

JOHN WESTCOTT.

Edward W. Reid.

Edward W. Reid, vice-president of Holm & Olson, Inc., St. Paul, Minn., passed away May 26 after a week's illness. His death came as a great shock to his business associates and to his many friends who had seen him so recently, apparently in his usual vigorous healthy condition.

The Late E. W. Reid

Mr. Reid was born at Bridgeport, O., 56 years ago. In his early life, he was associated with his father in conducting a fruit farm near that city. Later on, the growing of small fruit plants was started, and this later developed into a general line of nursery stock. Some 30 years ago, a mail order business was added and successfully conducted for about 12 years, the last catalogue appearing about 1901. Many of the older members of the nursery trade will remember the Upland Nurseries under which name the business was conducted.

Seeing a wider field for activity in the growing northwest, Mr. Reid went to St. Paul in the spring of 1902, associating himself with L. L. May & Co., as manager of the nursery and landscape departments. In the summer of 1910, he severed his connection with May & Co. and went with Holm & Olson, Inc., to establish a landscape department, of which he became manager. A few years later he was made vice-president of the company, which office he held at his death. The Park Nurseries, a branch of Holm & Olson, Inc., was established, and a mail order business of large proportions built up under his management. Many of the finest homes in the city, and throughout the northwest, bear silent tribute to his artistic ability in planning and executing plantings. Parks, cemeteries, golf links, schools, public buildings and boulevards in scores of towns and cities in the northwest were planned and planted under his directions. His knowledge of varieties suited to the needs of this section was probably not surpassed by anyone in the business, and landscape architecture has suffered a great loss in his death.

Mr. Reid possessed to a rare degree, a genial and winning personality. His nature was sympathetic, and he was ever ready to help a person in distress. Funeral services, which were attended by several hundred friends and associates, were held from the residence, May 28, interment being made in the beautiful Roselawn cemetery, adjoining the city on the north.

Mr. Reid was married about 30 years ago to Laura Speer, who survives. He had two children, Harold S., who was associated with his father in the business, and Lois A., teacher in the public schools. S. D. D.

Maurice Fuld.

Maurice Fuld, well known in the seed trade of New York and other cities, was found dead in a furnished room, which he occupied at 106 West 73d street, New York, on the evening of May 27. The body was found by the housekeeper, who had been unable to enter the room during the day. She finally looked through a window across the air shaft and saw Fuld, dressed in pajamas, lying on the floor. A doctor, called from Knickerbocker hospital, said that death was from natural causes.

Maurice Fuld, who was probably about 45 years old, has been in the past 20 years, with different seed trade firms. For some time he had been in business for himself, and at the time of his death had an office at 7 West Forty-fifth street, New York. His relatives live in Baltimore, Md., and a sister went to New York and took the body home for interment. A. F. F.

Dr. Frederick K. Ravn.

Dr. Frederick Kolpin Ravn died May 25 at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Josephine L. Munn, East Orange, N. J. His death followed a short illness from blood poisoning that started from a slight cut on one of his fingers. Dr. Ravn was born in Denmark in 1873 and received the liberal education available under the enlightened government of that country. In time, he became connected with the Royal Agricultural College in Copenhagen, with an international reputation as an authority on the diseases of plants. He had paid several visits to this country to deliver lectures on his chosen theme, having delivered a short course at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., this spring. He was the author of several standard works on plant pathology. His wife, Mrs. Margaret Munn Ravn, survives him.

EAST MILTON, MASS.—The Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club will hold its annual outing here, July 22.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Wm. E. McKissick, of the Leo Niessen Co. is rapidly recovering after a four-weeks' illness.

LONDON, ONT.—The London Plant Growers' Association has been formed with the following officers: Harry A. Taylor, president; J. Pawlurkii, vice-president; Thomas J. Hill, secretary.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—The first iris show ever held in this city will be staged in the Northwestern National Bank lobby, in June, under the auspices of the American Iris Society and the Northwestern Peony and Iris Society.

COAL.—The startling announcement comes from Wahington this week that our industries are compelled to close down all over the land for lack of fuel, while enormous supplies of coal are being shipped regularly to England from Atlantic ports. If our readers desire to secure any supply of coal for the coming winter, it will be necessary to write their representatives in congress, at once, urging the immediate stoppage of this export business in coal.

Personal.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., sailed on the S. S. Megantic, from Montreal, for Liverpool, May 29.

Adam Graham, and daughters, of Cleveland, O., returned from the Orient, May 31.

Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., expects to sail for England, June 6.

Eelworm and Daffodils.

To cure narcissus bulbs attacked by eelworm it is necessary to immerse the bulbs in water brought to a temperature of 110 degrees Fahrenheit for three hours, after which immersion both the eels and what is even more important, the eggs, are destroyed.—British Horticultural Trade Journal.

FROM 400,000 to 500,000 imported laborers are needed in the devastated regions of France, according to the council of labor of that country. The pre-war force of 1,100,000 workers, it is estimated, has been reduced to 650,000 by war casualties and the application of the eight-hour law.

Railroad Congestion.

The number of freight cars tied up in traffic or congested on sidings has been reduced from the peak of 286,000 on April 15, to approximately 190,000.

Railroad congestion at Chicago is easing somewhat, switching being reported 60 per cent to 75 per cent of normal.

Memorial Day Trade.

Notwithstanding the disappointment resulting from the failure of the peony crop in most sections to fill its wonted place, due to the backward season, the Memorial day trade this year, from general reports, seems to have been quite satisfactory, showing on an average an increase in sales over previous years. The movement of cut flowers, benefitted by the peony shortage, was very good, and in most instances, there was an adequate supply of good quality. Plants also moved freely and wreaths proved as popular as ever. Moderate prices prevailed and added to the usually satisfactory conditions.

Coal Going to England.

THAT'S WHY YOU CANNOT GET IT.

The high prices and restricted supply of coal in this country are due almost entirely to the fact that exports of American coal have risen 100 per cent in the last two or three months, according to Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, who has introduced in congress a resolution calling upon the interstate commerce commission to investigate the situation with a view to determining whether an embargo should be placed upon further exports.

While Great Britain is taking drastic steps to conserve her supply for her own industries, declared the senator, coal producers in this country are shipping coal out of the United States with a lavish hand, the result being that industrial plants in New England have been forced to close down on account of the fuel shortage, while manufacturers in the northwest, are today facing a coal famine.

British buyers are securing all the American coal possible, and are using it in barter for sugar from Cuba, and raw materials from European countries which are in need of fuel. Thus England is well supplied with coal and raw materials, while the United States is paying big prices for sugar and is suffering from a lack of fuel.

"During the month of April," declared Senator Walsh, "while New England industries were left to face suspension and paralysis on account of the lack of fuel, due to the car shortage, there was a 25,000 car movement, carrying coal from the mines to the seaboard. The New England all-rail gateways are blocked with loaded cars, New England industries are closed. The whole country is facing a car shortage and a coal shortage, and we complacently permit foreign agents to buy our coal at fabulous prices, and transport it to vessels in American ports with the facilities which we need for the transportation of our own merchandise and our own coal."

LARGEST MEMORIAL DAY TRADE IN YEARS.

Memorial day business in this city was the best in a period covering many years, the strong demand being for magnolia wreaths, laurel, ivy and galax, with flowers on the side. The call for small plants exceeded the supply. Myosotis, geraniums, hydrangeas, etc., were entirely sold out early in the week. Rose bushes, calceolarias and spiraeas moved slowly. Cut roses, carnations, sweet peas, feverfew and candytuft sold well with supply about equal to requirements. Artificial flowers were in greater demand than ever.

NOTES.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. report the largest business in their history. Their establishment worked a double shift during the past month to meet the demand.

John J. Cassidy was unusually busy with orders for fraternal organizations and a large amount of funeral work.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

The demand for stock for Memorial day was exceptionally heavy, especially from out-of-town points. The city trade was fairly good, but not near as large as was expected, although the sales for the entire week were encouraging. Peonies had a heavy call and cleaned up completely, including what stock was in storage, at practically the advertised quotations. Some sales were made in quantity lots at low figures, but these consisted mostly of inferior blooms that the dealers were glad to get rid of at any price. Roses were in good demand and sold well considering the general market conditions and the large quantity of outdoor stock that was offered in this market. Carnations sold surprisingly well, and good, fresh stock, especially red and pink, brought satisfactory returns, but white could have moved better. Some of the growers held their carnations too long, consequently their average will be disappointing, for much of this stock had to be sacrificed to dispose of it. Lilac was in large supply and met with ready sale. Double White narcissus was to be had in quantity and sold well at fair prices. Sweet peas were in strong demand, and good, fresh stock cleaned up early at high figures. Calendulas, snapdragons, stocks, daisies, tulips, Ilies, callas, lupines, pansies and other miscellaneous stock, were in good supply, with some items cleaning up well at satisfactory prices. Greens were exceedingly scarce, especially good ferns at $6 per 1,000. Taking everything into consideration, the Memorial day demand this year was exceptionally heavy, and there probably was never so much stock moved before for this occasion, notwithstanding the reported shortage of peonies. There is

MEMORIAL DAY IN RETAIL STORES.

The Memorial day trade was very good this year, according to many of the florists, but there was not very much doing as far as the loop stores were concerned, one dealer saying that his sales for this occasion were the smallest in the history of his firm. Others say it was good, and even better than last year, but the majority agree that it was not up to expectations. The florists on the outskirts did a big business, and experienced a heavy call for plants which sold out early. Peonies were in strong demand, and there was a good call for carnations. Roses sold well. Made-up wreaths of magnolia leaves and other prepared goods, moved nicely. Miscellaneous cut flowers at medium prices sold quickly. The weather was ideal for Memorial day, and while complaints have been heard in regard to poor business from some quarters, it is safe to say that the total Memorial day business of 1920 greatly exceeded that of any previous year.

NOTES.

The Juvenile Furniture Co., 902-904 South Morgan street, is manufacturing florists' novelties and toy furniture. It has a factory, 50x100 feet, consisting of three stories and a basement. James Michal is president, John Ziska, secretary, and Joseph Ziska treasurer. The company is incorporated for $10,000.

George Wienhoeber has a very appropriate window this week, which is right in keeping with the times. A large elephant, which occupies the center of the scene, tells the passerby at a glance that it has something to do with the republican convention.

William Kotsonis, proprietor of the store known as the White House Florist, has recovered sufficiently from his recent operation to be removed from the Mercy hospital to his home.

Walter Mott, formerly with Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y., is now with the W. W. Barnard Co., as traveling representative.

Joe Bieber, who has been with A. I. Simmons, 242 West Sixty-third street, for sometime, left this week for Toledo, O., to spend the summer.

A. E. Turner, of Mosinee, Wis., called on the wholesale trade here this week. He is now in the fern picking business for himself.

William Langhout, of the American Bulb Co., returned this week from a successful western business trip.

The Florists' Club will meet at the Hotel Randolph, next Thursday evening, June 10, at 8 o'clock.

Chas. W. Potuznik, 3706 West Twenty-sixth street, has purchased a new Chalmers touring car.

Peter Morgan, who arrived here recently from California, has purchased a half interest in Doctor A. J. Knapp's peony farms near Evansville, Ind., and will make his future home there. Mr. Morgan was formerly employed as a grower in this vicinity, having at one time been with Wietor Bros. and several other large local concerns.

F. D. Hepke's new double snapdragon was on display at several of the wholesale stores here this week and attracted much favorable attention. The stock came from his greenhouses at Marshfield, Wis., and the flowers shown were cut from a third crop. The color is a beautiful pink.

Bassett & Washburn are very well satisfied with their Memorial day business, and were sold out so early that they kept their store closed for two days, May 30-31. Mrs. Charles Russell roses of splendid quality are seen in quantity at this house.

The J. A. Budlong Co. had a large Memorial day business with a heavy call from out-of-town points. Lily of the valley and Nesbit roses are arriving in good supply at this store, and are in good demand for wedding work.

The Joseph Foerster Co. received several large shipments of peonies in time to take care of the heavy late demand for their Memorial day trade and disposed of all they had to offer as quickly as they were unpacked.

Zech & Mann had a splendid Memorial day business, with the total sales showing a wonderful increase over those of 1919. Their shipping trade was particularly heavy and the city demand surprisingly good.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. had a heavy Memorial day business, with an extra heavy call for stock from out-of-town points. The supply department is dressing up for the Elks' convention to be held here shortly.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. were pleased with their Memorial day business and cleaned up early in peonies and carnations. Double White narcissus are now arriving at their establishment in good sized quantities.

Kennicott Bros. Co. sold out completely in peonies for Memorial day, including what were in storage. This house is more than pleased with the total sales which were much larger than expected.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association has no complaint to make in regard to its Memorial day business which was the best ever, and kept the boys on the jump every minute to take care of it.

Wietor Bros. are cutting a fine supply of roses, particularly Mrs. Charles Russell, Premier and Columbia. This firm's Memorial day business was very good, with an extra heavy call for carnations.

Peter Reinberg cleaned up nicely in everything for Memorial day, according to Herbert Hansen, who reports the total sales as very satisfactory.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. had about all it could do to handle its Memorial day business, which was very heavy and the best ever as far as this house was concerned.

The E. C. Amling Co. had a big Memorial day trade and moved an exceptionally large supply of stock, including a large cut of peonies.

Vaughan's Seed Store is finding demand strong from both the trade and consumers for insecticides, sprayers and like stocks.

The John Kruchten Co. had its share of the Memorial day business and cleaned up a nice supply of stock for this occasion.

Percy Jones, Inc., cleaned up a large supply of carnations for Memorial day, in addition to all the other regular offerings.

Erne & Company are more than pleased with their Memorial day business, which was the best in the history of the firm.

Visitors: Sam Seligman, with the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.; A. J. Knapp, Evansville, Ind.; C. Gould, Onarga; Geo. Franks, Champaign.

Evansville, Ind.

The peony growers, in this city and vicinity, report a splendid Memorial day business in these flowers, the crop being just right for the holiday, while north of the city, they were too late. George H. Blackman, of the William Blackman Floral Co., says the peony growers here have a good crop about once in three years. This is one of the bountiful seasons. Last year, this crop was almost a failure with the local growers.

The William Blackman Floral Co. had a great variety of stock for the holiday and report an excellent business in both plants and cut flowers.

At Niednagel's, they were strong on peonies, roses and carnations, all of which sold well at prices about the same as last year.

MEMORIAL DAY WELL OBSERVED.

Memorial day was quite generally observed in this city and thousands of persons visited the national cemetery where lie buried 17,000 soldier dead, every grave having been decorated with flowers and a flag. Contrary to expectations stock was plentiful, especially crimson rambler and Dorothy Perkins roses, both of which bloomed with greater profusion than in any previous year. Other outdoor flowers were used to help in the decoration. Many beautiful roses are now being received and numerous weddings and social events are helping to hold business up to the mark, the volume being quite satisfactory.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE DISAPPOINTMENT.

Memorial day business in this city was to many a disappointment. At no time has the event been looked upon with special interest here, but this year, many were led to believe that it would take on greater commercial importance, and prepared accordingly. Florists adjacent to cemeteries, who arranged for big stocks, had all they could handle in the plant line, while cut flower sales with them, as with all others, had no special impetus due to the day. Prices on all items in the cut flower list ruled somewhat lower than usual, and there was little surplus when the stores closed for the day, May 31. There was a call for cemetery wreaths of artificial flowers, and with some arranged with fresh stock, formed a considerable volume of the trade done. There was no co-operative advertising, although some of the stores used individual space in the daily papers.

NOTES.

MEMORIAL DAY SUPPLY SHORT.

Adverse weather conditions have been a big factor this year resulting in a short supply for Memorial day although the growers worked hard to meet the demand. Carnations are still on the list at 10 cents and Laddie is in limited supply at 15 cents. Roses are in fair crop and for Memorial day brought 10 to 25 cents. A few summer-flowering sweet peas met with good sales at two cents. With the exception of a few Boston and Whitmani ferns, the pot plant offerings are not worth mentioning.

The Miller Floral Co. has received a large shipment of palms from California consisting of cocos, pheonix, kentia and some very fine rhapis. Some of the plants are 15 feet high, with a spread of 25 feet. Paul Richmond, of the above firm celebrated his twenty-eighth birthday, May 25.

The Intermountain Greenhouses, of Murray, have just finished a large order for one of this city's largest apartment buildings. With their carnation cut about done for, when the bedding needs are supplied, fishing time will be at hand.

Bailey & Sons have found the bedding stock demand a big factor of the past month's business. They prepared for a big Memorial day demand, and were not disappointed with results.

E. C. Lambourne, of the Lambourne Floral Co., is planning to attend the Rotarian convention in the east this month. Good business during the month is anticipated by this firm.

The Sugar House Floral Co. is cutting some very fine Spencer sweet peas which clean up quickly. This firm's carnation cuttings are planted outdoors and have a fine appearance.

E. C. Morris & Co. took time by the forelock and placed orders for large quantities of peonies well in advance for Memorial day requirements.

PEONY FAILURE HELPS GENERAL SALES.

Owing to the fact that peonies failed to appear Memorial day, local florists reported a much larger business than usual. In this city it is the custom to use peonies largely for the decoration of graves, and since they were a few days late, those who desired to follow the practice, applied to florists for flowers. As a result, business among the down-town shops was exceedingly brisk in every way. The principal flowers used were sweet peas, carnations, roses, snapdragons, irises and snowballs. Prices were not advanced, and the result was that stocks were pretty well cleaned up. There was also a good demand for magnolia wreaths, which were used profusely. Plants were also taken to a large extent, and the supply was rather plentiful. There was probably more decoration of private graves than was ever known, and Saturday and Sunday were the days used for that purpose. Weddings are now fairly numerous, and all florists are having an increasing demand as a result. Party work, especially that having to do with graduation ceremonies, is also brisk. There is a fair amount of funeral work. On the whole, the market is in good shape, as the supply about balances the demand.

NOTES.

All of the local florists made liberal donations of flowers to the committee which had charge of collecting flowers for the decoration of the graves of the fallen heroes of all wars. This has been a custom for years, and the offerings this year were somewhat larger than usual.

MEMORIAL DAY BUSINESS VERY GOOD.

The business of the past week hinged on the Memorial day trade and the peony situation. There was a normal demand for the season the first three days of the week, there being a number of weddings and other social events. Carnations held firm at from two to three cents over the prices of the week previous. Thursday they jumped to eight cents, and Friday and Saturday the market cleaned up at eight to 12 cents, the latter for pink, while Laddie brought 15 cents. Roses, Friday and Saturday, were plentiful, and in good demand at an advance of about 20 per cent over early week figures. There were quantities of sweet peas of very good quality for so late in the season. They ranged from 50 cents to $2. Callas and Easter lilies, considering the quantity, held up well. There was an abundance of southern iris, stock jillys, candytuft, feverfew and outside shrubbery. The demand was general, every item in the list going strong. Flowers most favored, were those with color, as pink snapdragons, pink or red roses, sweet peas in all colors, and bright pink and red carnations. It was a banner Memorial week business, the best ever experienced in this market. Never have carnations sold at such high prices for this event. One hundred bright pink in five hundred other colors, mostly white, was the rule. The splendid market conditions are attributed, not so much to an extra demand, but to the continued, cool weather which kept the greenhouse stock in good condition and held back the peony competition. In short, there were no local peonies, just a few from the southern markets of Richmond, Washington and lower Maryland, but as these were quoted at $12 to $15 and not very numerous at that, they were scarcely a factor, which enabled the local greenhouse stocks to make their great cleanup at record prices. This is the first time that the local peony crop failed entirely; oftimes it has been in doubt, but favorable weather conditions generally set in, and enabled the growers to cut from 25 to 33 per cent of their total. In commenting on the situation and its benefit to the greenhouse men, one of the large wholesalers thought it would be a good move for these indoor growers to get together and buy up or boycott the peonies in the spring, and also the dahlias in the fall. Of course, the farmers or field growers of these products, will have to be heard from. The lot of the peony men this year is certainly not an enviable one, as when they lose the Memorial day sales, the supply is so large and the demand so light that returns are hardly sufficient to pay for gathering and marketing.

NOTES.

A grower who has kept close track of events, particularly in greenhouse building in this neighborhood, and the amount of glass now being operated, both for plants and cut flowers, claims that there has been very little gain in glass area in the past 10 years, taking into consideration Graham, Mackey, Uber, Coles, Smith, George Anderson, the large range of greenhouses at Edgeley, to which is to be added Robert Craig Co.'s 49th street range, now or soon to be dismantled ,and a number of others who were obliged to close due to war conditions. Very little glass has been erected during this time, as in the early part of this period, there seemed to be great danger of over production. Then came the war, when all building was at a standstill. With the conflict settled, prices of all kinds of greenhouse material and labor rose to such a height that most growers have made the best of their present facilities, and decided to wait. One dollar per square foot of ground covered was roughly estimated as the cost of a good greenhouse five years ago, while the present price is about $2.25 per square foot. From his standpoint, he is convinced that the grower who will work his glass intelligently, and to the limit, intensively, will enjoy better returns for the next year or two, than for any previous period.

The coal situation is giving growers great concern at this time. Quotations last week were $7 for a good grade of bituminous at the mines. This week it has been raised to $8, which, with freight and other charges, makes it figure $11.25 per ton at the greenhouse. This, with the increased costs of labor, pots and everything else that enters into the production of plants and cut-flowers, makes the question of profits for the coming season a problem.

The entire trade learned with sorrow of the death of Patrick O'Mara. He was a speaker a number of times at the florists' club and a frequent visitor to this city. He was held in the highest esteem by all who knew him. J. Otto Thilow enjoyed a life long acquaintance and friendship, as they were apprentices together at Peter Henderson's in the early seventies.

The class in floriculture at the State College, Pa., under the direction of Prof. Wilde, spent May 27 among the rose growers in Chestnut Hill, visiting the Alfred and George Burton establishments and also that of Myers & Samtman. They also inspected the Joseph Heacock Co.'s rose houses and dairy farm at Roelofs.

J. A. Peterson and wife, of Cincinnati, O., visited this city the past week. They both looked very well. Mr. Peterson is becoming, in fact, is now, a factor in the cyclamen seed industry of this country. His crop the coming season will be over 1,500,000 seeds, all raised in his greenhouses in Cincinnati.

The eleventh annual spring flower show of the Landsdowne Flower Show Association, will be held June 5, 4 to 10 p. m. This is an exceptionally good community flower show, there being 156 different classes, for which prizes are awarded

Robert Craig returned May 27 from his visit to Porto Rico, which trip did him a world of good. He is very enthusiastic as to the opportunities for the raising of palms and other tropical plants in this warm clime. He attended the funeral of his friend, Patrick O'Mara, May 29.

The new house at Roelofs is being planted with young stock in which the varieties Pilgrim, Crusador and Frank H. Dunlop will be given prominence.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange increased their delivery force the past week with a new Ford truck.

The Leo Niessen Co. put a Reo delivery car on the street the past week to replace the one-ton Ford that was destroyed by fire a week ago.

MEMORIAL DAY SHOWS LITTLE ACTIVITY.

The first part of last week was quiet in the wholesale district, with more activity toward the last. Quite a heavy supply of stock went out, but there was no great advance in prices. Memorial day business has little effect on first-class stock, such as orchids, American Beauties and other roses of special grade. In the large retail stores in the heart of the city, business was quiet, May 29. The fact that Memorial day followed Sunday, took great numbers of people out of the city. Reports from the cemetery florists indicated that their business was good. Again referring to the wholesale trade, considering that the native peonies were not in, there was quite enough stock without them. Carnations were slow at the best, it being hard to move them at $6 per 100. There were heavy sales of lilac, stocks and various other cheap flowers. A considerable quantity of southern peonies were on the market. To sum up, it appeared that the trade was about the same in general as last year. The cool weather and the absence of native peonies prevented a glut such as sometimes occurred in previous years.

May 31.—In the wholesale district the memorial day business has not been up to expectations. The word "shipping" must now be used advisedly on account of the uncertainty of a shipment reaching its destination on time. There has been some business this morning, principally in stock left over from May 29.

NOTES.

In the report of the hearing given by the joint congressional committee on the removal of the national botanic garden, Washington, D. C., Senator Brandage, the chairman of the committee, is stated to have opposed making the garden "an adjunct to the department of agriculture," and to have said that if the bureau of plant industry desired to engage in such work, there was plenty of available farm land in the vicinity. One might believe that from the number of "scientists" that are employed in the department of agriculture, and from the number of pamphlets they send out, that they already have commodious quarters. Perhaps they want room for a bureau of quarantine. Senator Brandage is to be commended for his opposition to such a proposal. If the department of agriculture ever gets its nose into the botanic garden, it will be another case like the camel in the Arab's tent.

The latest addition to the geneological line of Dards, is Douglas Dards Perry, born May 23, son of H. G. and Mrs. Perry. Mrs. Perry is the only daughter of Charles A. Dards, for many years a leading florist of this city. Mr. Dards has been on an extended trip through South America, but is expected home at an early date. He will doubtless be pleased with his grandson, as the other two Perry children are daughters.

Mrs. Margaret Surgent, 94 years old, died at her home in West New York, N. J., a suburb of Weehawken, May 27. She was born in Belgium and came to this country when 15 years old, was married in this city, and lived for a time in California. Her husband, Louis, who died in 1888, is said to have been among the first florists of San Francisco.

The Fifth Avenue Flower Shop, 1 West 47th street, is a small conservatory, well located and stocked. The Mountain Community and the Matthews Garden Craft, whose products have been seen at the flower shows, are located next door. The Flower Shop is conducted by Sakas Brothers, who have another store, the Gramercy Florist, at Third avenue and 21st street.

J. J. Coan, in the 18th street market, received heavy shipments of southern peonies. In a number of boxes, the stock had heated from being packed too close with layers of paper. This was, of course, worthless on arrival. Where the packing was merely strips of wood they arrived in good condition.

Louis F. Schreiber and wife, son-in-law and daughter of the late Mrs. Theodore Braun, whose death was reported in our issue of May 22, will continue the business at 149 Third avenue.

The Burnside Florist is an attractive store recently opened by Farekas & Vassillia at 2020 Jerome avenue, near New York University. They report good business.

Leo Klein, who has an attractive store at Lexington avenue and 60th street, furnished many flowers for a church celebration, May 23.

J. K. Allen had a considerable stock of southern peonies, but, May 30, he said that they were moving slowly.

Harry Ramm is now well settled in his new store, 412 Madison avenue, corner of 48th street.

Alfred Kottmiller has recently had good business in decorations at the Ritz-Carlton hotel.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, 216 Prospect Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

THE price of bags at Chicago, June 2, was $65.

RED CLOVER in Ohio is threatened with serious injury by weevils.

C. W. SCOTT, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., New York, is making a western trip.

THE death of Maurice Fuld, New York, is recorded in our obituary column this week.

THE French embargo on exportation of clover seed, in effect since March 23, 1920, was removed May 21.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—Frank S. Platt, of The Frank S. Platt Co., is planning to retire, after 54 years in business.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Chicago, says the steady cool weather of the closing season has made it one of the best for the retail seed trade in his long experience.

BOSTON, MASS.—There is still great delay in delivery of farm machinery, fertilizers and seeds to an extent which has already caused serious loss in spring farming.

FEDERAL control of wheat and wheat products ended June 1. This means the passing of the government guarantee of $2.20 a bushel for wheat, established during the war.

VISITED CHICAGO: David Burpee and George W. Kerr, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Phiadelphia, Pa., enroute to California; Wilbur Brotherton, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Detroit, Mich.

DUTCH BULBS.—Mail advices from Holland, May 15, say crop conditions are uncertain and bankers' financial credits difficult. Narcissus vary in quality and good Darwins are in demand.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—Christ Graf, 91 years old, father of Henry, Louis J. and Philip C. Graf, proprietors of the Ohio Valley Seed Co., died at his home in this city last month, after an illness of a few days. He was one of the early settlers of southern Indiana.—W. B. C.

NEW YORK.—Charles P. Guelf, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., who has been busy recently fixing things up at his summer home in Hamlin, N. Y., called on the trade here last week and expects to meet his many friends at the Milwaukee convention, June 22-24.

BOSTON, ENG.—W. W. Johnson & Son, Ltd., have just completed a new flower seed building, 48 x 110 feet, to accommodate their rapidly increasing business in this department. Work has been begun on an extension of the firm's general offices, which, when completed, will be double their present size.

Iowa Seed Dealers' Association.

At the annual meeting of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association, held at Des Moines, June 1, officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: C. G. Ouren, of the Ouren Seed Co., Council Bluffs, president; H. W. Talbott, of the Talbott Seed Co., Osceola, vice-president; A. M. Eldridge, of the Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, secretary; Hon. John T. Hamilton, of the Hamilton Seed Co., Cedar Rapids, treasurer. There was a good attendance, a large part of the meeting being devoted to an interesting discussion of seed legislation.

Onion Sets at Chicago.

An onion set expert who has just completed a tour of the Chicago south side district, says the crops looks a little backward, but believes this is not really true, the cool weather having favored root action rather than top growth. The acreage is about one-third larger than that of last year. One or two growers have dropped out, but others have taken their places, the low prices of seed and the generally good market for the crop of 1919, having probably prompted extensions of the acreage. The stand and general condition are excellent, with a noteworthy absence of weeds, the light rains of the present week coming just at the right time to suit the most critical growers.

British Seed Exports Increase.

The exportation of vegetable and flower seeds from the Nottingham district to the United States has been steadily on the increase for the past four or five years, according to Commerce Reports. The principal varieties of vegetable seeds exported are beet, cabbage, cress, cauliflower, spinach, carrot, parsley onion, turnip and rutabaga. Prices have increased 200 to 300 per cent within the past four years, and the high prices prevailing have given a great impetus to the industry. Many farmers are entering into contracts with dealers at guaranteed prices, and are converting their entire farms into the growing of seeds for the export trade. If the present level of high prices is maintained for any considerable time, seed growing will become one of the most important industries in this district. The seeds exported from the Nottingham district to the United States in 1919 were valued at $422,792, as against $202,713 for the previous year, representing a gain of $220,079.

Free Seed Situation.

A reduction from $239,000 to $75,000 is proposed by the senate in the amount to be appropriated for the distribution of government seed. It is also proposed to discontinue the practice of sending out the seed through members of congress, and limiting the distribution to persons who write in for seeds.

The original appropriation of $239,000 for the annual congressional distribution, passed by the house of representatives, was stricken out when the measure was approved by the senate. The bill was sent to conference for adjustment, and while the conferees agreed upon all other differences, they found it impossible to compromise the seed item, the house conferees standing out for an appropriation, while the senate refused to make one.

The senate finally suggested the $75,000 fund for this purpose, and provided that applications for free seed would be filled by the department of agriculture. The house refused to agree to either the appropriation or the discontinuance of the free advertising by means of seeds, and the matter now seems to be at a deadlock, as both houses have instructed their conferees not to retreat an inch from their present position.

B. F. L.

[This would appear to be a good time for seedsmen to telegraph their representatives in congress, requesting them to do everything possible to kill off the free seed appropriation.—ED.]

Polish Sugar Beet Seed.

In the season 1919-20, after providing for its own wants, Poland exported 14,000 poods (1 pood = 16.38 kilos —36.1128 pounds) of sugar-beet seeds produced on its own plantations. In 1919, about 8,000 hundred weight of sugar-beet seed of home production was exported. In the current year, the production of sugar-beet seed will be much greater, although last autumn, frosts did much damage to the seed plants.

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., President; Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids Mich., Treas. Next annual convention September 1920.

HIGH prices for seeds, labor shortage and unstable markets are reasons given for a five per cent reduction in potato planting under 1919, with bean acreage showing a 29 per cent decrease.

THE department of agriculture states that with the use of improved machinery and more intelligent agriculture a farmer has been able to produce 57 bushels of potatoes with one average day's labor.

DIAMOND SPRINGS, KY.—Citizens in this district are urged to raise good crops of watermelons and cantaloupes this season and to assist each other in the work. A melon fair and contest will be held here August 14.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 2.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $2.50 to $3.50; celery, Florida, crate, $5.50 to $7.00; leaf lettuce, per tomato box, 15 to 25 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $2.50; tomatoes, per crate, six baskets, $7.00 to $9.00.

New York, May 29.—Celery, per crate, $1.00 to $12.00; cucumbers, per dozen, 75 cents to $1.00; mushrooms, 50 cents to $2.25 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 40 cents; lettuce, per package, 50 cents to $4.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.00.

Nova Scotia Strawberry Growers Organize.

An organization to develop the small-fruit business in the Annapolis valley was organized, April 22, 1920, at Berwick, Nova Scotia, according to Consul J. C. Watson, Yarmouth, N. S. From information which has just been received, the name of this organization is the Berwick Strawberry Exchange. There are about 20 members at the present time, but if the organization is successful, it is thought that many more strawberry growers will join. Besides marketing the berries grown by the members, it is the intention of the exchange to classify the berries, the different grades to be sold on their merits. This is an innovation in berry selling in this district. In 1918, 2,460 crates of berries were shipped from Berwick, and 2,594 crates in 1919. It is believed that there will be an increase in this year's shipments of at least 10 per cent over those of last year. The Berwick exchange expects to control 80 per cent of the local shipments, and intends to sell its berries f. o. b. Berwick, and will ship to the United States if market conditions warrant it.

J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; John Watson, 400 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

Forty-fifth annual convention will be held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, June 23-25, 1920.

WE must plan now for pulpwood which will mature in 50 years, according to Charles L. Pack, of the American Forestry Association.

UNDER the title, "About Roses," the agricultural extension service of the Ohio State University, Columbus, has isued Bulletin No. 5, by Professor Alfred C. Hottes. The pamphlet contains 16 interesting pages and is well illustrated.

THE STORRS & HARRISON CO., Painesville, O., say the season started off with the finest business prospects they have ever had, but in early April, when the spring rush was at its height, they were embargoed over two weeks on both freight and express shipments, which greatly disturbed their business. The cool weather has greatly favored operations since the embargoes were lifted, and it is hoped the final showing will be well up to the average. But for the embargoes on shipping, the season would probably have been the best on record, notwithstanding the labor and other troubles which have affected all lines of trade.

Early Lilacs.

The white-flowered Syringa affinis, which is usually the first lilac to bloom in the Arboretum, has no flowers this year. This is unusual, for this plant rarely fails to produce an abundant crop of flowers. The earliness and the delightful fragrance of the flowers give this plant value for the spring garden. The variety with mauve-colored fragrant flowers (var. Giraldii) is blooming as usual: it is a tall, unsightly shrub, and except when in flower, of no decorative value. The flower buds of the Arboretum plant of Syringa oblata, another north China early flowering species, have been killed, but in other gardens near Boston, they are uninjured. This is one of the handsomest of the species, and no other lilac has such thick and lustrous leaves, which in the autumn, assume brilliant shades of orange and red. The flower-buds, however, are too often injured in this climate, although the plant itself is perfectly hardy. By crossing this plant with a double-flowered form of Syringa vulgaris, the plant known as S. hyancinthifloria was obtained in Europe many years ago. It is a large, shapely bush, with good foliage and small clusters of double, bluish lilac flowers as fragrant as those of S. oblata. This hybrid is now in bloom. A Chinese lilac discovered by Wilson, S. pinnatifolia, is also in flower. The pinnate leaves of this plant make it interesting among lilacs, but the small white flowers in short clusters are without ornamental value. The flowers of another rare Chinese species, S. Meyeri, will soon open; and generally, all the hybrid lilacs, and all the species, are well covered with flower-buds.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, May 24, 1920.

Garden Bordered With Box-Barberry.
Electros of this illustration with each order for 1000 or more if requested.

Have you seen a garden bordered with

Box-Barberry

this spring? Every plant bright and green—not a dead one. A strong contrast to the northern Buxus bordered garden, now either dead or sadly winter injured, brown and dejected looking

Mr. Siebrecht, the veteran plantsman, on seeing the garden the other day shown in accompanying illustration, exclaimed with his characteristic enthusiasm, "Magnifiicent. There is a fortune in it for the nurserymen."

We offer you well rooted dormant summer frame cuttings ready to set out direct into the nursery without further expense to you at $65.00 per 1000; all sold out of larger sizes.

Many of the leading catalogue firms have already contracted with us for their supply for the ensuing season, and others are buying these frame grown plants for their own planting, preparing for the enormous demand which is sure to follow.

It is a safe statement that BOX-BARBERRY will soon be the plantsman's best seller.

STEADY DEMAND AND GOOD PRICES.

The market has been fairly steady for the past week. Prices on all lines are holding well with the exception of a few outdoor items which are becoming rather common. Lily of the valley is the lowest it has been in six months, but that was to be expected as it is in full production. Baskets of spring flowers are being shown in great profusion. Combinations with flowers from bedding plants are being used extensively, because the high price of stock has made movement in these lines somewhat slow. There is the normal cut of roses at the local greenhouses, with the quality gradually improving. Ophelia is of gratifying shape and color, while Ward and Columbia are showing well. Some very fine Cecile Brunner and White Killarney are coming in from California. Narcissi, both in single and double, are very plentiful. Gardenias from the local greenhouses are arriving in greater quantities. Some good Parrot tulips are offered, but the supply of Darwins is about gone. A very few exceptional orchids are being shown. Snapdragons and sweet pea are holding up well and meet with a steady demand in basket combinations. The growers report heavy planting of carnations, although the present supply is not large. The quality is fine in all respects. The sale of corsages has been brisk. Lavender and yellow irises are being used in these combinations instead of orchids. This enhances the distinction of the Spanish variety, which has every indication of being scarce this season. Rhododendron, the state flower, has attracted some attention this week. There have been some shipments from nearby points to local shops, who displayed them largely as a novelty. In general, the shipments from outside markets have not been heavy; consignments from California points, especially those of roses, have not stood the trip as well as might have been expected.

Take All The Time You Need, But-- don't just "put it off."

Buying a greenhouse is a matter of importance. It deserves your careful investigation. Don't let anyone "rush" you. But don't just "put it off" or let it "drift along."

July, August and September will soon be here—and gone again. Ask us now to estimate on your requirements.

Put it up to us to prove to you that Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses are what we say they are—the most economical to buy first, last and all the time. Get ready for the big year ahead.

blooms in both pink and white. This firm also reports a heavy sale of fancy pot plants for hanging baskets.

Some exceptionally choice orchids, both pot and cut, are being shown in the windows of the Hollywood Gardens, also another cutting of the apricot-colored Halley gladioli. Both of these flowers are products of the firm's greenhouses.

The Thomas Floral Co. is delivering some of the finest pot calceolarias and primroses shown here this season. In addition to these offerings, they are producing a fine quality of gardenias and orchids.

Fred H. Rowe, of McCoy's Flower Shop, has improved the front of his store on Second avenue by putting up a snappy new awning.

Kenney's Home of Flowers has been doing a very good business in pot geraniums and fuschias, the latter being new arrivals.

The Beal Greenhouses are delivering a good supply of gardenias to the local dealers. The strength and lustre are very fine.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY

Washington Summer Meeting.

The visit of the American Rose Society to Washington, D. C., to attend the opening and inspection of the national rose test garden at Arlington, which took place, June 2, was one of the most enjoyable of these annual events. The weather, upon which so much depends for all outdoor gatherings was delightful. The visitors met at Gude Bros. store, 1214 F Street, where there was a half hour of friendly greetings. At 10:30, the company, consisting of over 60 out-of-town members and their Washington hosts, set out for the garden in autos. Here there was an hour and a half inspection of the many wonderful classes of roses, which in extent and variety, cannot be duplicated anywhere else in this country. They had made a wonderful growth the past year; the ramblers, rugosas, hybrids and many of the hybrid teas were very vigorous and strong. While it was just right in point of time for the hybrids, teas and baby rambler types, also the rugosas, it was too early for most of the ramblers, which were profusely loaded with buds, but scarcely any of which were in flower. The Dr. Van Fleet in the arbor entirely covers this frame work, and will be a sight in about 10 days, as will all the others of its class.

The most conspicuous rose in the garden was Paul's Scarlet Climber. It is wonderfully brilliant in color, is semi-double and as large in flower as many of the hybrid teas. J. Horace McFarland believes it to be the reddest of all. Several plants cut back were profusely covered with bloom. Paul's Scarlet Pillar was also seen in a fine plant six feet in height, full of intensely red, single blossoms about three inches in diameter. Sheily Wilson is another of this type, the single flowers, three and a half inches in diameter, color, deep brilliant pink, being very profuse. Zepherin Droughin is a very free, large flowered, double pink, very profuse, now in full flower.

Dr. Van Fleet's hybrid rugosas, in pinks, reds and whites, were covered with bloom. They are the most valuable of dooryard roses, being extremely hardy. There were a number of the small flowered, single and semi-double ramblers, fairly well covered with bloom, while the dwarf baby ramblers were masses of color. The hybrid classes were at their best, and the most showy among them was a row of General Jacqueminot, which for perfect form, color and profusion of flowers, has not yet been surpassed. The hybrid teas were also at their best. A plant of Climbing Caroline Testout carried a number of superb flowers. Two group photos were taken, one before the pagoda, and another with the baby ramblers as a foreground.

With the noon hour, a start was made for Twin Oaks, the route lying through beautiful Arlington cemetery, where a stop was made to inspect the superb marble auditorium which had been used for the first time on Memorial day. It is a splendid structure. At Twin Oaks, the visitors were graciously welcomed by the hostess, Mrs. Charles J. Bell, W. F. Gude introducing the members individually. Light refreshments were served, after which Mr. Gude introduced President Robert Pyle, who, referring to the great pleasure it had been for the society to accept the annual invitations to visit Twin Oaks and admire its beautiful rose garden, and for the great interest that Mrs. Bell had taken in their favorite flower, the society had unanimously elected Mrs. Bell an honorary life member of the society, which the fair hostess accepted, saying she greatly appreciated the honor.

The roses here appeared in splendid condition, although the ramblers were not at their best, only one of the famous arches showing color, this being the single pink, Luchstearn. The hybrids and teas were, however, in full flower and made a great show. Another group picture was taken under one of the twin oaks, which included Mrs. Bell and the children, and pets of the family.

Another delightful ride brought the party to the Ebbit House, where the tor came to pass through the great gates, his name would admit him at once. He voiced the appreciation of the society to its friends in Washington for the very cordial welcome and service that is always so freely given.

Peter Bissett told of the great range and varieties of climate in the United States, and how Dr. Van Fleet in his work was providing roses, which in society luncheon was held. After a substantial repast, William F. Gude, who acted as toastmaster, called on Professor Corbett, as the father of the rose test garden, to tell of its progress, but he was excused as he could hardly speak because of a cold. J. Horace McFarland was introduced as a member and hard worker of the rose society who labored entirely for the love of his fellow man. Mr. McFarland replied that Mr. Gude loved roses as much as he did, and that the money he received, came incidentally. In speaking of roses and the great work of Dr. Van Fleet in the creation of dooryard varieties, he emphasized the usefulness of the Chinese species, Hugonis and others, which Dr. Van Fleet had greatly improved. The department of agriculture had added a great deal to the joy of life in its work along these lines, and in making roses more popular the country over. Dr. Van Fleet, he said, was the greatest blessing the lovers of roses in America ever had. Robert Pyle said the unique character of the department's rose test garden had made America famous in Europe, so that France has come to the United States for judges for its elaborate rose shows and gardens. He spoke of the show rose garden about to be arranged for in Washington, which would show the possibilities of such an attractive spot to all other communities. Dr. Van Fleet, he said, in his raising of new and hardy varieties of dooryard roses, his rugosas and others suitable for hedges, was doing a great work. He said great roses should be named after great men, and no man could be honored more than to enjoy such distinction. As much as $10,000 had been spent to advertise one rose. He felt sure they would have Dr. Van Fleet's roses in heaven, and that when the doctheir different characteristics, would fit into, and do well, some in the cold north, others in the mild south, some in arid regions. California had its varieties, as had also the prairies. This great country had many men engaged in the business, and they should do all they could to further the interest of the rose and this great society.

Inspiration from attending such meetings as these, and seeing the work done here, was S. S. Pennock's theme. The society was growing rapidly, increasing from 300 members five years ago to 2,200 at present, and soon he hoped to see its list rise to 5,000. Every commercial rose grower should be a member. New forcing roses were sure to come out of the hybridizing work done here. He greatly appreciated what the Gudes and other Washington members of the trade had done in their free hospitality.

Dr. Galloway, as one of a committee of four, had inspected 407 varieties in the test garden, and of these, 103 stood out prominently. Forty-three of these were double stars, 22 single stars and 22 without stars, but select. To him, the most conspicuous was Paul's Scarlet Pillar, Paul's Scarlet Climber and Sheily Wilson. The immediate future of the world looked dangerous as a result of the great war, he said. We should cultivate three things, service, love of beauty and morality. We cannot conceive of any harm coming from men who love roses. He made a great plea for the rose society, to the size of whose membership there should be no limit. He proposed a new slogan, "Plant a Rose and Bury a Bolshevic.

Professor Beale of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., thought that while test gardens were doing a great work, only a few good ones were necessary, but that every community of 5,000 or over should have its public show or rose demonstration garden. One hundred of the best varieties would be ample to show people the great beauty of growing roses in decorative effects, featuring only sorts that are of undoubted merit, from which people could come and make selection for their own yards by writing down the names and getting the stock through commercial channels.

Here the party again took the autos and were soon on the ground of the new show garden, which is a tract of six acres, situated on the Potomac drive, encircled by the road from the river drive, which leads to the trolley and road traffic bridge over the river. It is a beautiful spot, at present being used as a tree nursery for fancy evergreens. Frederick Law Olmsted, the noted landscape architect, is preparing the plans of what will soon be, in its season, the most attractive spot in Washington.

Faces that were missed at this meeting were Wallace R. Pierson, E. G. Hill and Benjamin Hammond. Mr. Hill was to have received the Hubbard medal, but could not arrange to make the trip at this time.

On Tuesday evening, there was a meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society, which took up important matters, one of which was getting into trade, the new varieties raised by Dr. Van Fleet. A number of plans have been offered, but as yet nothing definite decided upon. It appears to be getting into the catagory as one of the things that is going to be done "next year."

The following were among those who registered:

Nitrate Industry in Chile.

Chile is the only country in the world known to contain commercially important deposits of nitrate of soda, according to Circular No. 67, prepared by the Latin-American division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, 75 per cent of the production being of the ordinary grade which is used for fertilizer purposes. There is a great deal of speculation concerning the probable duration of the beds, but expert estimates indicate the explored deposits contain 240,000,000 metric tons with unexplored regions twice as large. According to these figures it would require 240 years to exhaust the supply at the present rate of production. The raw product, caliche, differs in composition and appearance in various zones. It usually contains, beside nitrate of soda, sodium chloride, sodium sulphate, potassium nitrate, sulphates of lime and magnesia, sodium iodate and sodium biborate. The sodium nitrate content varies from less than 10 per cent to over 70 per cent, the average extracted in 1917 being about 17.88 per cent.

According to the best authorities, the waste of nitrate in mining now amounts to not less than 40 per cent of the total nitrate content of the caliche extracted. In 1884 the caliche refined averaged as high as 51 per cent nitrate content, but now that the average is only 17 or 18 per cent, chemical engineers are experimenting in methods of mining and refining and this has already resulted in reduced production costs in some cases.

The mining of caliche is very simple. A small shaft is sunk through the surface strata and through the caliche layer; a charge of powder or dynamite is inserted and exploded; and the lumps of caliche are sorted by hand from the resulting debris and loaded on carts. Arrived at the refining plant the caliche is first crushed and then boiled in a huge tank of water. This boiling dissolves the nitrate and other salts and leaves the sand and similar refuse on the bottom of the tank. The dissolving process completed, the nitrate solution is drawn off into a large shallow vat and cooled sufficiently to precipitate the sodium chloride. After this precipitation, the solution is again drawn off and cooled to a point at which the sodium nitrate crystallizes. When the nitrate has crystallized on the bottom and sides of the vats, the remaining liquor is pumped off and the nitrate crystals thoroughly dried and packed for shipment.

Apparently a relatively small proportion of the nitrate imported into the United States is used for fertilizer purposes. The department of agriculture reports that 564,000 tons were brought into this country during 1914, of which amount 162,000 tons were for fertilizing purposes. About 80 per cent of the nitrate imported into Europe is ordinarily used for fertilizer. It is said that there was an active demand last year, but government restrictions, accentuated by the lack of shipping space, greatly restricted sales. Great Britain contracted for 680,000 tons of nitrate shortly before the signing of the armistice, practically all of which became available for ordinary market uses, and import restrictions were not removed until the major part of these government stocks had been disposed of. Germany has been unable to import nitrate because of the continuance of the blockade, but it seems unlikely that it would have been able to do so anyway, as at the present depreciated value of the mark, the selling price of nitrate fertilizers would be prohibitively high. The reduction of acreage under cultivation in France and Belgium has somewhat curtailed the demand for nitrate fertilizers, but it is stated that consumption would have been nearly double what it was during the first half of the year had it not been for the congestion at the ports, the disintegration of the interior transport service and government restrictions.

During the recent crisis, an association of nitrate producers was formed, the object being to allow only as much nitrate to be exported as the consuming markets can absorb at a price high enough to afford reasonable profits to the producers. According to the representatives of the association abroad the prospective demand for nitrate fertilizers for use on next year's crop is excellent. The largest problem is that of ocean transportation; indeed, so serious is this one factor, that the sales for some time to come will probably be limited by the available shipping space and the prevailing freight rates. Uncertain exchange and disturbed political and economic conditions in Europe will tend indirectly to reduce consumption also. The association reports the present outlook decidedly encouraging, although no spectacular recovery is anticipated. It is estimated that exports for the present nitrate year (July 1, 1919, to June 30, 1920) will not exceed 30,000,000 Spanish quintals.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The demand for flowers the coming week will be mainly for funerals, weddings and school commencements. The funerals come first, as in the constantly changing order of things, the passing of those to the beyond, averages much the same with each recurring season, and a certain amount of such work can almost surely be depended upon.

The cool season has been very favorable for holding back greenhouse stock, and with the peonies and other outside flowers, which are in at last, the market is better supplied than ever before at this season. The man lucky enough to get large orders for funeral flowers at this time, should, with the great variety of choice stock now available, be able to please his customers and fatten his bank account as well. Roses of all kinds, snapdragons, carnations, lilies, sweet peas, gladioli, and in addition the outdoor stock, peonies, candytuft, feverfew, sweet peas and shrubbery, will give latitude for combinations of every conceivable kind. Never let a piece go out of the shop until it has a finish that will compare favorably with similar arrangements of the same value.

Weddings and commencements often crowd one another uncomfortably at this time, but it is their season, and one has just to buckle down and make the most of the opportunities. Preparedness is a big advantage; the man who is all the time planning and ready, can meet these emergencies and get much more out of them in profit and new trade than his weaker competitor, who cannot find the time or the material, and has to decline much of the business.

This is the great season of the street men, who handle all kinds of flowers by the thousand when timid storekeepers are afraid to risk 50 of a kind. One merchant goes after the business by putting his stock before the people, while the more conservative waits for the customers to look him up. Flowers can be moved in large quantities whenever they are plentiful enough to be shown in such a way as to attract the attention of the multitude. Every storekeeper has a list of customers and prospects, all flower buyers, which could and should be worked to the limit when conditions in the market favor such sales. Every flower lover brought into the store at such times, feels he or she has been favored, and will be almost sure to come again when anything is wanted, or another such sale is on.

As a business booster for the whole trade, nothing could exceed a "Wear a Flower Campaign." It should be pushed everywhere by all the trade. Never let a gentleman go out of the store without a flower in his coat. It is the custom in many shops to always see that lady customers or visitors are given something to wear, and a flower for the accompanying child. If the men were trained to it, and every florist saw that no gentleman left his shop without a flower in his coat, the custom could and would soon become universal, and a wonderful demand would soon spring up for this personal decoration. One great advantage would be the frequent visits to the store, which would, of course, be made the most of by all wide-awake merchants.

Water lilies are now plentiful and an acceptable addition to the stock. The large, full double white varieties are wonderfully effective in early morning work for funerals. One or two choice specimens set off a box of cut flowers beautifully.

Are you planning to go to the Cleveland convention? It is none too soon to consider its great opportunities for the retail florist. The trade exhibition is always the opening gun of the fall campaign, when all the supply dealers put their best foot forward with their latest creations and ideas. The Cleveland retailers are an up-to-date bunch, and much can be learned by a look into their beautiful stores.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY AT ARLINGTON TEST GARDEN, WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 2.

Faulty Store Management.

When anything is the matter with the quality of the plants, flowers, or floral arrangements that have been delivered to customers, it is the house, or those at the head, that must stand the brunt and make good. The employes actually at fault may be called to account later by the proprietor, but the blame for the poor service rests on him or the manager, whose business it is to see that the public are well served and get full value for their money.

Interest in one's own business must never flag for a moment; if it does something is sure to happen. Just a little slip that does not matter much, but a repetition of which is easier next time, and then comes, "Oh well, that's good enough." After a while, business gets to a standstill, "It is not like it used to be; prices are too high and we cannot expect much business until they get lower." About this time, a dry rot sets in, the stock is kept low to meet the limited demand, the customer is met with the word that "we've just sold the last dozen, but we have more coming in," or "if you leave the order, we will get them for you." Such conditions are nearly always coupled with a lax keeping of accounts, a failure to send out bills regularly and at least once a month, and to run on without taking the trouble to find out, week by week, just how the business is going.

The man in this condition, after he wakes up to the fact that something is wrong, as a rule tries to lay the blame everywhere but in the right place, that is, himself. If he will take the matter up seriously, or will call in a friend, a real friend, one who is not afraid to tell him the truth, he will hear something that will open his eyes.

Growers and dealers frequently see customers, store keepers, doing things which they know are not best for their business. They talk about it among themselves, but are always careful not to let the man who should know have an inkling of it. It is not their business, it is up to him. Many a firm that has gone into the bankruptcy court, could have been saved, if, in a diplomatic way, a committee or perhaps only one of the interests involved, had in confidence gone over the business, pointed out the glaring mistakes, and opened the eyes of the storekeeper to the fact that his decline was due entirely to his own inefficiency and lax business methods.

The man to succeed in business, must be enthusiastic and a hustler, not only at first, but all the time. The people who are interested in and love plants and flowers, who feel the necessity for them, will patronize the dealers who carry the fullest and most complete stocks, whose stores are tastefully arranged and who, by their good service, have won the envious name of leader in the trade. Such firms never lack for business, being sure of a hand in everything that calls for a display of flowers.

The retailer who finds things going slow with him, can rest assured that the fault lies within himself, that it is due to his lack of aggressiveness. That when business lets up, it is because he has not made sufficient bid for it. He must put more enthusiasm into his work, make his place more attractive, carry better stock, so that when buyers call they will feel they are in the right place and need look no further.

Time drags to a man that's waiting, but flies for the hustler who finds the days too short for his ever increasing activities.

"Say It With Flowers.

When Major O'Keefe penned this wonderful slogan, he did not realize that he had also written a motto that contained a truth of vital importance to all the trade, which should be framed and hung up in every establishment where plants and flowers are grown, handled or arranged and offered for sale.

Success crowns the efforts of those who succeed; the nearer they attain the goal of perfection, the greater their reward. The grower, who after the many obstacles incident to his business are overcome, can truly "Say It With Flowers" when there is a market for them. Real quality flowers that speak for themselves, will, when the returns come in, find encouragement and incentive for even greater achievement.

Many, in their endeavor to carry out the words of the motto, fail from a number of causes. There is, first, a lack of knowledge, or perhaps diligence, or if they are letter perfect in the production, they, as is far too often the case, fall down badly in the packing. To work from three to six months to be able to "Say It With Flowers" when the call comes, and then in a careless hour or two, undo the season's fine work, is to turn the fine motto to the wall.

For the grower, "Say It With Flowers" is an every day continuing proposition in which all processes, from the sowing of seed, until the finished stock is safely in the hands of his agent or customer, must be safeguarded.

To the busy city agent, to be able to "Say It With Flowers" is his greatest ambition. He is most energetic in securing his sources of supply, and greater still, in his best efforts for its distribution. He prides himself in being able at all times to "Say It With Flowers," and give satisfaction to all those who rely on him.

"Say It With Flowers" should be the retail florist's ideal every minute of the day. His occupation is that of selling flowers; he sees, he feels, he smells, he thinks flowers constantly—all the time. He plans and looks ahead, anticipates the various seasons, features this or that event or anniversary, and in every way, provides, in order that to any or all calls, he will be able to "Say It With Flowers." In the decoration of his windows and store interior, he must need to carry out the injunction of the motto. His stock in his ice box or counter arrangement must be full and varied. In short, his entire display should, in its great perfection, so appeal to customers or visitors that in this attractive shop they would feel they could safely "Say It With Flowers."

The Fern Dish.

Making a specialty of filling fern dishes and keeping an ample stock of the several varieties on hand is a good feature of the retail business. Quite a number of ferns are suitable for this work, but the following are considered standard: Pteris nobilis, P. Mayii, Asplenium Ptussimense and Cytromium falcatum. Cocos Weddeliana and small plants of Kentia Forsteriana make good centers.

A book in which a record of every dish filled, with the date, showing the number and varieties of ferns used, should be kept at the potting bench. This tells at a glance the plants used before and the number. In the fall when stock is large and bushy, fewer ferns are required than later on when the plants are generally smaller. Careful housekeepers watch bills closely and cannot see why the same dish should cost more one time than another. When orders come in it is best to set a lump sum rather than by the number of ferns.

Frequently all one variety is the order, as it then seems more symmetrical. Cyrotomium is a favorite on account of its hardiness. In dishes of good size, all kentias, with a cyrtonium border, make a bold effect. All hardy ivy is another favorite filling. Stock grown short for the purpose makes a very neat centerpiece.

It is well to follow up the work by calling once in a season to see how the dish is doing and where it is kept between meals. Such attention is appreciated. In filling, great care should be taken to make the work symmetrical, have the fronds and dish very clean and remove every dead or deformed portion. The dish when on the table is always in full view and any imperfection is sure to be seen.

PLANT NOTES.

Dracaena Indivisa.

The seedlings of Dracæna indivisa should now be taken from the flats and potted in small pots and placed in a good moist location that they may make a good growth before the fall. A palm or fern house or one with a similar temperature is the best for the small stock. The four-inch stock that was not disposed of during the spring sales can be either plunged outside or planted in a frame, where they will not demand the close attention necessary in the greenhouse. If planted out, they should be potted up early, at least by September 1, when the roots are active and will quickly obtain a foothold in the new soil. They should be heavily shaded for a few days after potting or some loss of the plants may result. Any old plants that have outgrown their usefulness may be propagated, the stems cut up into small pieces and laid in a propagating bed with bottom heat, where the eyes will open and young plants quickly form.

Oleanders.

A plant that does not receive the attention that it should is the oleander. While there probably would not be a large demand for this plant, yet it is an old time favorite, and well-grown specimens in bloom are a valuable addition to a porch or lawn. They are too often so sadly neglected that they get unshapely and far from being an ornament, but a little attention to trimming them into shape after they get through blooming will keep them in good condition. They can be wintered in any cool quarters, and if brought into the heat and light in early spring will be full of bloom in June and July and a valuable decorative plant. The cuttings root easily and at any time when the plant is in growth, and grow very rapidly for a hard-wooded plant. Any florist carrying a line of assorted stock should include a few of these in the variety which he cultivates. The only insect which troubles them is the mealy bug, but a good frequent hard syringing will soon dislodge them.

Freesias.

A crop of freesias, or a few plants in pots in bloom, at Christmas is a valuable asset on that holiday. In order to have them in bloom at that time the bulbs should be planted by July 1. Select the large, strong bulbs and by careful inspections many will be found on which the root eyes are beginning to swell. These will make the earliest blooming plants, and this selecting will produce plants that will all bloom at the same time. The bulbs should be planted in a good soil enriched with well rotted manure, but no fresh manure; it is a well understood principle that bulbs of all kinds do not grow well in soil full of fresh manure. Eight to 10 large bulbs in a 6-inch pot will give the best results. The pots should be well watered, and set in a dark, cool place until the shoots appear above the ground, when they should be given a light location. As soon as the growths get tall enough they should be staked and tied. By continual early selection of the bulbs and keeping the earliest separate, an early strain can be assured.

Nephrolepis.

Probably no plant that the florist grows gives more returns for the labor spent in its culture or the space that it occupies than the Boston fern and its various sports. The old Boston is still, however, the easiest to handle and grow. The plants should be repotted every year, and with good treatment are sure of making nice plants. Any plants that are in poor condition can be divided and with the young stock planted in a bench of good rich soil. The house should be shaded enough to assure of good color on the foliage, but not heavy enough to prevent the house being maintained at a good high temperature. During the day the house should stand at about 80 degrees with a little ventilation, which should be closed down before the sun leaves the houses. The plants can be set six inches apart and the soil should be two parts loam, one part leaf mould, and one part rotted manure. The house should be frequently syringed to keep a moist atmosphere. Under these conditions fine plants can be produced from young stock in three months. In September they should be lifted and placed in 6-inch pots, if single specimens are desired, or three or four plants can be placed in a 9-inch or 10-inch pot if larger plants are wanted. In lifting the plants they can be cut around about two inches from the crown, and lifted with a trowel, leaving the runners in the bench if the place they occupy is not wanted at once. The runners will immediately break into small plants which can be placed in flats for young stock for the next season. The finer varieties of this fern, such as Whitmani, do not submit to the lifting and potting as well as the old Boston, and better plants can be obtained by potting along into larger pots as may be required. The only insects that trouble these ferns are the brown scale, and the plants should be kept clean from these by washing or spraying with aphine or a weak nicotine solution.

Poinsettias.

The propagation of poinsettias should be pushed to the utmost at this time, for it is the plants that are rooted early in July that make the best single specimens at Christmas. Those that are rooted later in July and during August will make fine plants for pans, placing four to eight plants in a 6-inch of 8-inch pan, for they will be much shorter than those rooted early in July. The plants that were rooted earlier should now be growing nicely and should be shifted into larger pots as soon as they require it; under no circumstances allow them to become pot-bound until the bracts begin to set in November. They should be placed in the bright sun as soon as strong enough to endure it, that the growth may be short and sturdy and the leaves as close together as is possible. A long drawn plant grown in the shade, with the leaves far apart, is not the typical plant for the holidays and does not meet with approval.

Gloxinias.

The gloxinias that were started in late winter should now be beginning to flower. After the flower beds have set they can be placed in a little shadier location and the danger of burning the foliage be obviated to a great degree. The plants should be spaced far enough apart that they do not touch and a proper circulation of air produced around the plant. If the flowers are to be used in floral work they should be cut as soon as fully open and placed in water away from draughts, and they will keep very well. These flowers are very fragile and should be handled carefully. If there are any particularly beautiful flowers that it is desired to propagate, the leaves can be rooted in the propagating bench by placing the base of the leaf in the sand to the depth of about an inch. The seedlings should be potted along for later blooming.

FREESIA SPRAY.

Cape Jasmine Asks Official Recognition.

A Texas advertising men "said it with flowers" at the annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World at Indianapolis, Ind., June 6-10. The hundreds of ad men who attended the big meeting, were pleasantly surprised when, as they entered the convention hall, they were presented with a cape jasmine, to which was attached a card reading: "I am the cape jasmine from Texas, and Texas is proud of me. I am the most advertised among flowers on account of my over-abundance of fragrance. I appeal to the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World to adopt me as their convention flower. What could be sweeter?"

The A. A. C. has not yet taken the hint and adopted the cape jasmine as its official flower. It is possible, however, that this step will be taken in the near future, as the impression made by the white bloom was undeniable.

During the progress of the advertising convention, Indianapolis was celebrating its centennial anniversary. The feature was a pageant on the night of June 7. Flower stores of the Hoosier capital were cleaned out of stock by the demand incidental to the parade. All of the floats utilized flowers in large numbers and varieties, and the pageant in this respect compared favorably to the Mardi Gras parades which made New Orleans famous.

M. E. C.

National Publicity for Flowers.

With Memorial day business behind us, publicity work will be devoted largely in the summer months to keeping our slogan, "Say It With Flowers," constantly before the public. It has been the policy of our committee since the inauguration of the campaign, to make our advertising purely national, so that every section of the country would get its share of publicity. No matter how small a community, nowadays, it is plentifully sprinkled with magazine readers, and our advertising plans have covered the more prominent magazines, having the largest circulation. While the committee has many times been asked to consider some of the large metropolitan dailies as advertising mediums, it was not felt that any departure from the adopted policy could be made, and practically the whole of the fund available has been spent in the magazines. Magazines, too, are "alive" longer than other mediums, their very large paid circulations, on which the advertising rates are based, being in reality only about one-sixth of the aggregate of readers.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY UNDER ONE OF THE TWIN OAKS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Mrs. Bell Is the Lady in White.

Our promotion bureau is daily in receipt of inquiries for the booklet, which was distributed at the outset of the campaign, and which has for two years been out of print, all such inquiries carrying the "keys" of our very first advertisements, thus proving that a large portion of our publicity is exceedingly tenacious of life.

Very many florists have used their local newspapers to link up with the campaign advertising, and this has been a very wise move on their part. It is realized that this local advertising has become an important part of the campaign; certainly, never has the florists' trade figured in the columns of local newspapers to such an extent as now. The slogan line electrotype has been lavishly used, and wherever seen, it forms a link with the magazine publicity. It cannot be used too much. Do not let it be used too little.

Some grand publicity is being given to the slogan through the big billboard which is being supplied by our promotion bureau for installation at florists' establishments which present opportunities for outdoor publicity. These billboards are 20 feet long and 7½ feet wide, are of iron construction and handsomely painted. The price at which they are furnished, $50, is but half their actual cost at today's prices of material. One of these signs should be part of every establishment publicly located.

Our committee continues to be urgently in need of more funds. Contracts for our next season's advertising must be placed without delay, and the amount of publicity to be obtained necessarily depends upon the funds to be collected. With the most splendid results which have so far rewarded our efforts, it would be nothing less than a calamity to curtail our work. It is not fair to the members of the committee to expect them to incur liabilities to meet which they must place dependence upon collections to be made later. Many hundreds of florists doubtless intend to subscribe something to the campaign fund, and why not do it now, thus rendering an assistance which is sorely needed. Keep the wheels moving, and advance is easy. More people are using flowers in these days than was ever before the case, and our campaign has accomplished this result. This benefit can be doubled if we get the support we deserve, and this should not be a serious problem. Help us to help you—let us hear from you now as to what you will give, and when you will give it.

The following subscriptions have been received, and are in addition to those previously announced, annually for four years, unless otherwise stated:

SPLENDID MEMORIAL DAY TRADE.

The trade here enjoyed a splendid Memorial day business. There was a fine supply of all stock, due largely to the ideal weather. There was a good offering of roses. American Beauty was quite plentiful, and of much better quality than we have had for some time. Russells were plentiful and cleaned up completely. Columbia, Ophelia and Ulrich Brunner were excellent property. Carnations enjoyed a fine sale, and stock cleaned up in good shape. Good prices were realized for nearly all offerings. Gladioli were one of the best sellers. The sweet pea was greatly to the fore among buyers. All offerings were eagerly bought up. The quality was excellent. More peonies were handled this Memorial day than ever before. The public seemed to favor this flower, and light colors brought fine prices. Cut hydrangeas were largely handled. Giganteums came in freely for several days previous and sold well. Large quantities were shipped out of the city. Orchids were scarce, as was lily of the valley. Gardenias moved slowly. There was quite a brisk demand for plants for cemetery work, and florists handling this stock, report a splendid trade. The wholesalers and commission houses are united in saying that trade this year was much in excess of other years.

NOTES.

The rhododendrons in Golden Gate park have attracted many plant lovers during the past few weeks. The large shipment last year has turned out much better than was anticipated, as much of the stock was in poor condition upon arrival. Much credit is due John Atkinson for the fine results obtained this year.

Despite the apparent shortage of orchids, the Art Floral Company were fortunate in receiving 150 cattleyas on Saturday morning, which were badly needed for their trade. The decorations at this store for Memorial day were quite elaborate.

The Six Mile Nursery, at Colma, is supplying a large part of the outdoor perennials which are being handled here this season. This firm has a large acreage planted to this class of stock, all of which is used for cutting and is sold locally.

Martin Poss, proprietor of the Floral City Greenhouses, San Mateo, was a caller during the week. He is a large grower of cut flowers for his own trade, but owing to heavy business, he placed large orders here for Memorial day.

The Chas. C. Navlet Co. did a large plant trade at their Market street store. This firm says trade at their stores in San Jose and Oakland was excellent, they being taxed at times to keep up an adequate supply.

Carlo Matraia, of the Art Floral Company, has let the contract for a building on Mason street on the property he recently purchased. It will be devoted to stores and offices.

J. A. Axell says that the demand for stocks for Memorial day was ahead of expectations. The shipping trade was very heavy and a great quantity of stock was cleaned up.

Frank Pelicano has had a good demand for his new dahlias this spring. Dr. Tevis and Virginia, he says, are meeting with great favor from dahlia enthusiasts.

S. Gaggero, whose stores at the cemeteries are so splendidly situated to cater to this class of trade, did a record-breaking business.

Samuel Newson has been discharged from the army, and is again associated with the Jesse Seal Dahlia Gardens.

The C. Kooyman Co. experienced a strong shipping demand, and sold out on many lines, particularly gladioli.

Podesta & Baldocchi handled a lot of high grade gladioli, which were very popular with their customers.

CLUB MEETING UNUSUALLY INTERESTING.

Members of the florists' club journeyed to Font Grove, about nine miles from the city, to attend the June meeting at the establishment of Fred Goldring, a former president and local grower. One of the subjects discussed was the use of the question box at the meetings. Some of the members laid emphasis upon their belief that the box is one of the best features of the monthly gatherings and should by all means be maintained, even at the cost of some effort. The discussion brought forth an inquiry from Albert Jenkins, a gardener at an estate at Menands, who wanted to know why his snapdragons, planted out of doors, this season were badly affected with rust. One of the members of the club, who had conducted state investigations in the past in many counties hereabout, replied that the rust is a constitutional malady, and that nothing in the line of treatment will work a cure. Plants that have been poorly developed, are liable to the rust; those of strength and vigor, combat it and live. If the rust were a form of mildew, it could be killed with Bordeaux mixture or some such fungicide, but as the malady is carried through the sap of the plant, sprays can have no effect. The remedy seems to be in growing vigorous stock.

The secretary read a letter from the National Flower Growers' Association, stating that at the convention of the S. A. F. at Cleveland, O., August 17-19, an organization of the growers of cut flowers and plants of the country will be effected. In the meantime, an effort is to be made to organize the state of New York into three divisions, or sections, of a state body to be affiliated with the national organization. The co-operation of the local club was asked in the matter of organizing the growers in the territory from Poughkeepsie to Syracuse. Albany is about in the center of this district.

President Edward P. Tracey announced it is time for the club to have a drive for members. Many other organizations have held drives, and have greatly increased their memberships; the florists can do the same. The president said that at the November meeting, he would present a $5 gold piece to the member who brings in the most applications accepted between the June meeting and the time of the award.

A list of dates and places for the meetings through the summer and fall were announced by the secretary. The next meeting will be held on Saturday,

The Late Geo. H. Cooke.

July 10, at the establishment of James Snyder, violet grower, at Rhinebeck. The journey from this city will be made in automobiles.

Three new members were elected: George Reese, St. Johnsville; Harry Wollager, Johnstown, and James Coates, Fonda.

The reports on Memorial day business made by the local trade are good. There was a big demand for magnolia wreaths and roses. Stock was reported plentiful and of excellent quality.

The large sign, "Say It With Flowers," ordered some time ago by the club from the national publicity committee of the S. A. F. has arrived, and been installed. The sign was placed by an expert, an employe of the local bill posting corporation, on a small knoll on the nursery of Fred A. Danker, near Stop 34 on the Schenectady road. The sign is so placed that it can readily be seen by all automobilists traveling the 14-mile stretch of superb state road between Schenectady and Albany, and makes a most favorable impression. It will be seen through the summer by thousands of tourists who visit this part of the country. The suggestions of the expert in regard to the location and position of the sign were found to be most valuable, and have much enhanced the value of the medium.

NORWALK, O.—The Norwalk Rose Gardens has purchased four greenhouses at Elyria and will add them to their range here.

OBITUARY.

Ernest Albert Michel.

Ernest Albert Michel, founder of the oldest floral establishment in St. Louis, Mo., which began business more than 50 years ago under the name of Michel Bros. & Kern, and later succeeded by the Michel Plant & Bulb Co., died at his home in Kirkwod, Mo., May 26, age 75 years. His death resulted from an attack of influenza, which he suffered last fall and from which he never fully recovered. Following his retirement from the business in St. Louis, now the Bourdet Floral Co., Mr. Michel moved to Kirkwood, where he established a nursery and engaged in growing outdoor flowers for the local market. He was a pioneer member of the St. Louis Florists' Club, having joined that organization 34 years, was widely known in the trade and highly respected by all who knew him. He is survived by his widow, two sons, Eugene H., associated with his father in business for some time, and now superintendent of the range of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Riverton, N. Y., and Frederick Michel, also four daughters.

George H. Cooke.

The trade of Washington, D. C., was sadly shocked, June 3, to learn of the sudden death of George H. Cooke, who, overcome by illuminating gas, was found dead in bed at his home. Surprised at the failure of her husband to appear at his regular time for breakfast, Mrs. Cooke went to his room to call him, finding him dead.

Mr. Cooke was born in Ireland, but located in Washington about 36 years ago, shortly after his arrival in the United States. He established a florist business which became very successful and was conducted by him at the time of his death. He was very popular in fraternal and business circles, and was a member of several Masonic bodies. He was also prominent in the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., of which organization he was a past president. Surviving are his widow and one daughter.

B. F. L.

Charles W. Crossman.

Charles W. Crossman, president of the Crossman Bros. Co., seedsmen, Rochester, N. Y., died at his home in that city, June 4, age 73 years. He was well known as a seedsman throughout the state, having, with his brother, George F. Crossman, carried on the business after the death of their father, Charles F. Crossman.

The deceased was born in Rochester, and received his education in the public schools in that city. He aided materially in the development of the community's interests, and took great pride in its advancement. He was much interested in agricultural and horticultural affairs, and was a member of the American Seed Trade Association and the Western New York Horticultural Society. Surviving are his widow, two daughters and two brothers, George F. and Daniel Crossman.

CHESTER.

SANTA BARBARA, CALIF.—The Santa Barbara Horticultural Society will hold a dahlia show in the chamber of commerce building in August.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO. — C. E. Mealy, proprietor of the Mealy Floral Co., is planning to erect 15,000 square feet of glass this summer on land acquired for the purpose on Fontanero street. The present range will be torn down.

COAL dealers should be followed up closely until the full greenhouse supply is delivered.

PLAN now to attend the great annual meeting of the Society of American Florists to be held at Cleveland, O., August 17-19, 1920.

IT is reported vandals desecrated the mausoleum of the German poets, Schiller and Goethe, at Weimar, stealing gold and silver wreaths from their coffins.

MERCHANTS in New York who are warring on the truckmen's union will declare an open shop and insist that merchants have a right to hire union or non-union truckmen. They will also insist that piece-workers handle all goods impartially, whether from union or non-union shops.

IN every port in France you will see thousands of tons of merchandise out of doors, subject to transportation delays. It would pay American concerns to look carefully to see if their insurance policies stipulate payment for loss by exposure. Many shipments have been noted under conditions that border on total loss.

Plant Quarantine Reform.

An important meeting of horticulturists, and others interested, will be held at New York, next week, June 15, to consider plans for the modification of Plant Quarantine No. 37, and it is urged that all local horticultural organizations, also florists, nurserymen and seedsmen, be well represented at this meeting. Those who are unable to attend, should mail their views in writing to Wm. P. Rich, Secretary, Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass.

President Wm. C. Endicott, of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society has issued the following to members of the trade and others interested:

"To make forceful the convention of horticulturists and horticultural societies, called for June 15, at New York, to protest against the drastic provisions of the Federal Horticultural Board Quarantine No. 37, governing plant importations, this society earnestly urges each society and individual represented at the convention to furnish the temporary chairman of the convention, a brief typewritten statement of about 500 words, covering the particular objections to the existing regulations, and the particular definite changes desired.

"We believe that only in this way will the convention be considered truly representative of the wide interests affected, and enabled through its officers and committees, to do effective and constructive work.

"We believe that if strong action is taken, reasonable modifications may be obtained. Please mail answer."

Society of American Florists.

CONVENTION HALL.

In regard to a report that the Ninth Garage, in which the Society of American Florists' convention and trade exhibition is to be held in Cleveland, August 17-19 next, might not be ready in time for occupancy, Vice-President F. C. W. Brown and Herman P. Knoble, acting for our executive board, give assurance that the building, at least the floor we are to occupy, will be ready in ample time for our purpose. The only problem now before the advisory board in charge of convention arrangements, is one looking to a re-arrangement of the floor plan which will provide more exhibition space. It is expected that by reducing the width of the aisles, additional space can be secured to accommodate a few more exhibits, without material change in the location of those already provided for. The largest trade exhibition in the history of the society is now more than a possibility.

CLEVELAND TRADE EXHIBITION.

Almost every foot of available space set out on the original plan covering the trade exhibition has been reserved, and an exhibition of high order is assured. Every endeavor now is being made to accommodate late comers, and it is hoped that by an extension of the floor area, a few more exhibitors may be accommodated. Never before were reservations so numerous at this early date as to take up all the space set out on the official plan. The list of exhibitors so far is as follows:

Washington D. C.

The "Capital City," always beautiful, is at its best in early June, when the shrubbery, peonies, and its wonderful rose gardens carry their clouds of gorgeous blossoms. Its great wealth of trees, which line its streets and avenues, cannot be duplicated elsewhere in this country. The representatives of the trade here are live, progressive men, whose stores are well situated and commodious, which in their attractive, well stocked interiors and showy windows are constantly bidding for business.

Gude Brothers Co.'s store, one of the largest in the country, is always beautiful with its great stock of everything in flowers, almost all of their own production. Mock roses, Red and Pink Radiance, and their new pink carnation, Democracy, were prominent features of their line of cut flowers. An order for 113 shower bouquets of lavender and white sweet peas for a school commencement, and 130 decorated galax wreaths for one Memorial day order, were features of the last week in May.

Nearly all the retailers have connected up with the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, and find the association a great business adjunct, as the orders received from out-of-town, together with those originating in their own stores, is their greatest single source of income or largest customer.

The Dupont Flower Shop, with its great show window space, which always contains a choice array of plants, was closing a very successful season. Manager Moberry said they were still very busy. A large flag of immortelles on a magnolia covered panel was an attractive window piece.

The Louise Flower Shop was conspicuous with its 75 running feet of pavement plant boxes, which are placed under the show windows. Memorial day business was very good, and they were busy with weddings and school commencements.

Manager Hetherington, of the Washington Floral Co., stated Memorial day business had been fine. They were handling a great crop of peonies. The season had been very satisfactory. A splendid line of specimen pot ferns was a feature.

The wholesale houses, the S. S. Pennock Co., and the Leo. Niessen Co. branches of their Philadelphia establishments, are important factors to the business of the city, carrying a full line of seasonable flowers.

George C. Shaffer's store, with its fine show windows, in which there is always displayed a wealth of plants and cut flowers, had enjoyed a splendid Memorial day trade. Mr. Schaffer was much pleased with his business of the year.

Z. D. Blackistone was trying to recover from a record Memorial day business. A wedding decoration, with kewpie figures as the bridal party, made a good window setting. Business had been very good here the entire season.

J. H. Small & Sons' beautiful store is one of the most famous in the capital and enjoys a high class trade. A number of June weddings, with other seasonable demands, was keeping them very busy.

There are a number of retail establishments and stands in the market, who handle and make up quantities of flowers, all of whom are reported to be well satisfied with their season's business.

Marche & Co.'s conspicuous corner store, with its always well decorated windows and exterior, was very attractive. Commencements and weddings kept things moving lively at this time.

F. H. Kramer's busy shop, displayed a great line of bedding stock. Memorial day business had been fine. Funeral work is a specialty, it being a large part of the daily business.

George H. Cooke's force had a busy season, and is now engaged in considerable landscape work, which has become an important adjunct of the business. K.

COLUMBUS, O.—To overcome the farm labor shortage and insure harvest hands to farmers near this city, approximately 2,000 business and professional men here have agreed to give one day's service each week to farmers needing their assistance.

GREENWICH, CONN.—Alexander Mead & Son, the oldest business concern in this city, have been forced out of their quarters, and will discontinue business because of the sale of the building in which the firm has its headquarters. They have conducted a florist establishment for 60 years.

MARKET CONDITIONS IMPROVED.

Market conditions during the past week showed great improvement with stock more plentiful and moving at fair prices. Sweet peas are the only item not up to standard, but this is to be expected following the wet weather of a week ago, and the bright sunny days of the present. Peonies were never better; in fact, there were enough for all, and then some, causing the price to weaken a little. Harrisii lilies and callas are finding a ready market and clean up easily at $12 to $15 per 100. Carnations have seen better days and are now small and inferior, showing the effects of the sun. Some very good larkspur has been coming in and moves well at $8 per 100. Gladioli are at their best with free movement at $2.50 per 100. Snapdragons have about passed out with a few small ones hanging over, which are used to fill in. June weddings and commencements have caused a slight shortage in smilax and many florists are substituting plumosus and Sprengeri.

NOTES.

T. J. Hardesty has had several excellent window arrangements with pleasing showings of good plants and cut stock.

C. J. Jones is producing so much good stock that it requires three machines to care for the deliveries.

Fred Gear is a daily market visitor, which indicates that he is not wanting for business.

W. Ray Murphy has been receiving some very good lily of the valley and Spanish iris.

Peter Weiland has been getting in some choice Festiva Maxima peonies.

C. E. Critchell reports very good business at his establishment.

STOCK IS VERY PLENTIFUL.

Stock is very plentiful at this writing, and there is more than enough to go around in almost all items. Business was very good, however, the past week when the call was extra heavy for wedding and commencement flowers. Orchids are exceedingly scarce, and it is impossible to fill anywhere near the demand. Lily of the valley appears to be in good supply, owing to the shipments of outdoor stock, but is cleaning up regularly at satisfactory prices. American Beauty roses are arriving in splendid condition and now command high figures. Roses in general are in large supply with fancy stock obtainable in Mrs. Chas. Russell, Columbia and Premier. White roses are scarce and are disposed of quickly. Ophelia, Ward, Sunburst, Killarney Brilliant, Champ Weiland, My Maryland, Mrs. George Shawyer and the other varieties grown for this market are to be had in good supply. Lilies are to be had at a few of the stores in fair sized quantities, and are in good demand. Peonies are in heavy supply and are having a brisk call. Carnations are to be had in quantity. Sweet peas have been good property the past week with fancy stock bringing high prices, especially white. Gardenias are scarce. Lupines, daisies, snapdragons, calendulas, narcissi and other miscellaneous seasonable stock is included in the daily shipments. Greens are scarce, especially ferns, notwithstanding the shipments that are arriving from Wisconsin points. Taking everything into consideration, business was very good last week, and no complaint is being heard on any side, although the dealers would like to dispose of the surplus. Department stores have been conducting special sales on roses, peonies and carnations the past week.

which is having a tendency to strengthen the market to a certain extent, and at the same time giving some of the houses an opportunity to move stock that would otherwise have to be dumped.

NOTES.

Bert Cole, of the E. C. Amling Co., returned to his duties, June 7, after an illness of six weeks. He had a strenuous time of it in the hospital with pneumonia, and his recovery was due largely to the special care of his wife, who is a practical nurse. Mr. Cole has asked THE AMERICAN FLORIST to thank his many friends for the kind remembrances that were sent to the hospital while he was ill.

Pintozzi Brothers will open a retail store on Van Buren street near Wabash avenue in the new building now being erected there. A rental of $18,000 will be paid for a 10-year term, starting September 1, when the new building is expected to be ready. Business will be conducted under the firm name of the Van Buren Florist.

The south park commissioners, in a bulletin, have urged the spraying of trees and shrubs with a solution of 15 pounds of dry lime-sulphur to 50 gallons of water to stop the ravages of the oyster shell scale which is doing considerable damage throughout the city.

The Excell Laboratories, 4535 Ravenswood avenue, are more than pleased with the amount of business they have done with the trade the past year. The demand at present is strong with them for Zenke's compound plant insecticide.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is handling its usual large supply of peonies, which are moving nicely this season at very satisfactory prices.

Frank Johnson and Eric Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., made an auto trip to Traverse City, Mich., with their families, last week.

William Wolf took his second degree in Masonry at the Lakeside Lodge, June 3.

Zech & Mann are strong on peonies, and report a good demand for them the past week.

Vaughan's Nursery will cut a fine crop of peonies the next 10 days.

The Commercial Flower Growers will hold their annual meeting and stag banquet at the Randolph hotel, next Thursday evening, June 17, at 7 o'clock. The special business of the evening will consist of the election of officers and receiving annual reports. The meeting is open to all growers, and their gentlemen friends and employes. Paul E. Weiss, chairman of the entertainment committee, has arranged a splendid programme of high class vaudeville. Mr. Weiss is a good judge of just what kind of amusement the men in the trade will like, so arrange to get your banquet tickets early at any of the wholesale houses or at the meeting. The banquet will be held in the Blue Bird room, and will only cost $2.50 per plate.

C. Frauenfelder had the order for the Merle wedding, June 8, at Mt. Carmel church, which was one of the largest this firm was ever called upon to fill. The decorations were along the order of the Vanderbilt wedding, and attracted much favorable attention. In addition to the bridal bouquet of lily of the valley, orchids and Cecile Brunner roses, there was one for the maid-of-honor, consisting of orchids and marguerites, while the 10 attendants each carried a basket of spring flowers. The church and home were both beautifully decorated for the event.

At Tonner's, the peonies are arriving in large supply, including the special red variety, which made such a hit with the trade last season. This particular variety, which is obtainable only at this house, is one of the best reds, according to the retailers who have used it.

The J. A. Budlong Co. is handling a fine supply of roses, especially Mrs. Charles Russell, Columbia and Premier. Some fine Nesbit are attracting the attention of the buyers at this establishment.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is starting to cut gladioli in quantity, and will have at least 25,000 this season to supply its customers. Some exceptionally well-grown Pendleton are included in the shipments this week.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report business brisk so far this month, with the shipping trade especially so. Peonies are in strong demand, and there is good call for roses.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are well pleased with business, especially from out-of-town points, and have also no complaint to make in regard to local demand.

Bassett & Washburn report that new ferns are arriving regularly from Massachusetts, which is relieving the shortage considerably.

A. Lange is back on the job after being on the sick list. He reports a very busy week, with a large number of wedding orders.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association received a shipment of gladioli from August Jurgens, from his farm in Mississippi, this week.

The clock will be pushed ahead one hour, Sunday, June 13. This change will not affect standard train time.

Peter Reinberg is cutting a fine supply of roses, especially Mrs. Charles Russell and Premier.

Chicago raw sheep manure just now is a scarce item, owing to freight troubles.

N. J. Wietor, of Wietor Bros., attended the republican convention this week.

Guy French is one of the sergeant-at-arms at the republican convention.

The Joseph Forester Co. is supplying its trade with fancy lilies.

I. Rosnosky, of the American Bulb Co., is back from an out-of-town trip.

TRADE ACTIVE IN ALL LINES.

The flower business in this city during the past week has been active in every way. All florists report a good call for the general lines, and supplies have been just about up to the demand. There is quite a good assortment of flowers on the market, and the quality is excellent as a rule. One of the best features is the unusually large number of weddings. June events of this character have always been numerous, but this year, there appears to be more than usual, and flowers are in good demand as a result. Graduation exercises and the social functions incidental are also reasons for the activity. Funeral work has been rather quiet. The principal flowers on the market are carnations, roses, sweet peas, peonies and yellow daisies. Prices are about the same as have prevailed during the past few weeks. Plants are selling well. Greenhouses which handle them have had a larger demand than ever before. Householders are getting their plants for lawn decorations and for houses and porches.

NOTES.

T. J. Ludwig, a retail florist, on North High street, has purchased from M. Y. Maxwell, a 10-acre tract of land, improved with a greenhouse covering 20,000 square feet. The property is located a mile north of Clintonville, a suburb. Mr. Ludwig will operate the greenhouse in the future.

The Ohio Horticultural Society met at the country home of Oscar Lear, on the Dublin pike, recently for an outing and picnic. The society has made arrangements to hold the annual rose show at the Ohio State University, June 12-13. J. W. L.

LENOX, MASS.—The fall show of the Lenox Horticultural Society may not be held this year, owing to labor shortage, with greenhouses on many of the large estates practically closed.

MEMORIAL DAY BUSINESS GOOD.

Because the demand for Memorial day flowers was spread over three days, neither one of them was lively enough to tax the facilities of the local trade. This does not hold good with the cemetery and other florists who are located out of the downtown district, and they report a bigger than ever demand for flowers, plants and wreaths. The day was probably more generally observed here than ever before, because of the participation of the American Legion. An altar was erected in courthouse square, where many wreaths were placed in memory of soldiers who lost their lives in the world war. The parade was the largest in years. The weather was perfect, and as a result, stock of a seasonable nature was quite plentiful. Some florists report great difficulty in securing sufficient peonies, while others had plenty. They retailed at from $2 to $4 per dozen. Carnations, roses, sweet peas, feverfew and candytuft were in good supply and sold at moderate prices. Wreaths of magnolia, with either artificial or natural flowers, had a good call and many were sold. Geraniums and other bedding stock had a big sale. Florists' Telegraph Delivery orders were numerous.

NOTES.

Schramm Brothers had a big Memorial day, in which they cleaned up a big stock of peonies, which they were fortunate enough to secure. This firm is experiencing a heavy call for plants. They are extensively advertising this feature, and are cooperating with the city beautiful campaign, now being conducted by the women's clubs here. May was the biggest month ever enjoyed by this hustling flower shop.

The florists' club met at Max Spanner's to take up the matter of community advertising, and after some debate, in which the majority favored a fund collected according to a certain percentage from grower and retailer, it was decided to inaugurate a campaign this fall. Miss Helen Patten presided at the meeting, and said that florists in this city would benefit from more cooperation.

The problem of getting coal for next winter is more acute than ever, as coal dealers here will not even take orders. Every year, conditions are getting harder to do business. It is high time business men took more interest in their government.

The Western Avenue Greenhouse is conducting a clean-up sale of all geraniums and bedding stock, in which all stock remaining is offered at the bargain price of 10 cents per pot to those who pay cash and carry their purchases home.

Nathan Goodman, for some months designer for Max Spanner, has quit the flower business, and is now selling auto accessories. He was a clever artist, and will be missed. Spanner reports a fine Memorial day trade.

A. C. K.

Boston.

WEDDINGS BIG FACTOR IN TRADE.

Business has been rather quiet, a few weddings using up the surplus stock, and backward weather has kept the bedding plant trade far below normal. Roses, carnations, sweet peas and snapdragons are plentiful, with few buyers. Peonies have just commenced to make their appearance and command $8 to $12.

NOTES.

Houghton & Gorney are busy, as usual, with weddings, commencements and funeral orders. It is intended to incorporate the business this fall, taking in some of the employees.

Penn, the Florist, has been unusually busy during the past month. Funeral and cut flower orders were never more numerous, and Memorial day business set a new record.

Edward Bingham has replaced his violets and sweet peas with tomato plants, the growing of which he conducts on an extensive scale.

Wm. McAlpine is cutting an excellent crop of roses at his Exeter range, and is also having success with tomatoes and sweet peas.

Harry Stewart, gardener at the Warren estate, has had good success this season, and is showing a large variety of calceolarias.

Henry Comley's store on Park street has enjoyed a busy season with several large landscape orders adding to the total.

Chas. E. Evans is planning a two weeks' auto and fishing trip in Maine.

LARGE SUPPLY MOVES SLOWLY.

The past week staged about everything to help the business, except demand, which all through the period was very light indeed. In the first place, there were flowers galore, giving the wholesalers a very trying time. One of the leaders stated that they had received more flowers the past week than for any like period this season. The delayed peony crop came in all at once. There was simply no handling them. One of the wholesalers called up his growers, and advised leaving them on the plants, as he would not be able to get express charges out of them. Select stock, in small lots, sold from four to five cents, but an order for 1,000 received very low quotations. The quality is very good, in fact, they have never arrived in better condition, but as they missed their day of great demand, it will be a case of "wait until next year" for the peony grower. There has been a wonderful stock of everything from the greenhouses. For Memorial day business, carnations cleaned up at from $10 to $12 per hundred, and there was a very good stock. The past week, they sold for less by the thousand, $7.50 to $10.00 being the joblot price. The street men loaded them up in wagon loads, and handed them out at the street corners for 50 cents for a bunch of 25, and some even less. Most of the stock was in very fair condition. Roses were also sold very low in quantity lots. Reds were in demand, particularly for commencements. They were very plentiful and of good quality. Easter lilies and callas held fairly well. Sweet peas are still in good form, but sold very cheap. In fact, everything sold off except cattleyas, which maintained last week's figures. Outdoor gladioli are now in, but will not stand much chance until the peonies are out of the way. There is a little inside lily of the valley, which meets with demand for brides' bouquets. Larkspur is commencing, and is in favor.

NOTES.

The closing meeting and entertainment of the florists' club, June 2, was a gala affair. It was held in the gold room of the Hotel Adelphia. There was an attendance of over 250, many of them ladies, who were all immensely pleased with the programme of refined vaudeville we presented. E. P. Klinger, chairman of the house committee, was master of ceremonies, and succeeded admirably in keeping things on the go. Charles H. Grakelow, an added number, told a lot of good stories in his inimical manner, which were much enjoyed. He also made a strong plea for the local advertising fund. There was a fine collation, to which all did ample justice, after which dancing was indulged in by the younger set.

One of the wholesalers, in speaking of the week's business, said nothing matters but supply and demand. When flowers are scarce, business is good, and it is almost impossible to clean up at any kind of right prices when they are plentiful. It is a business of extremes. Carnations last week, were scarce at $10 to $12 per hundred, while this week, they would not bring that much per thousand. He added that, of course, the weather was a great factor.

The Joseph Heacock Co. is much handicapped in the planting of their new house from labor troubles; laborers not accustomed to working inside give up on account of the heat. Concrete borders, 24 inches high, are being built for all the rose beds, four inches at the bottom and about two and a half at the top. There will be a good depth of cinders in these beds, it taking five carloads for this purpose.

There were some 50,000 flowers sent from this market to Washington, D. C., for the recent opening of the Piggly-Wiggly chain of grocery stores in the capital city. One hundred and twenty-five thousand flowers, mostly carnations and roses, were given away in the 28 different stores on the opening week. The price for all was $4 per hundred.

Coal is still a serious problem. Latest advices say that the principal difficulty is shortage of cars, the Pennsylvania railroad not running above 30 per cent of their usual quota of bituminous coal cars. Prices at the mines are quoted, $8.00 per ton, with dealers indifferent as to orders, as delivery at present is so uncertain.

George Burton places his forcing tea roses as follows: Mrs. Russell, Columbia, Ophelia and Premier. He thinks Columbia has made good, as has Premier, but not to the same extent. He is discarding Maryland, which has been a great producer, but Columbia has passed and will succeed it.

Vacation trips are now commencing. Mark Mills and wife and Frank M. Ross and wife, left June 5, for a two weeks' trip to the Poconos, to fish for trout. T. Nelson Geiger is spending a three-weeks vacation starting June 5, for a fishing trip in the wilds of Maine.

The trade was greatly shocked to hear of the sudden death of George H. Cooke, Washington, D. C., which occurred June 3. Mr. Cooke was at times a large buyer of plants and flowers in this market, and was popular with all who knew him.

The Leo Niessen Co. has handled an enormous quantity of flowers the past week. Every line was full, while the peonies spread over like an avalanche in Switzerland. Cattleyas, choice roses and carnations were a few of the other features.

The sudden death of Maurice Fuld was a great shock to his many friends here. He had a very pleasing address, and was a great exponent of the planting of flowers for the adornment of the home.

They have a new clock at W. J. Baker's. It hangs on the east wall. It was placed by Wm. Crawford, who can do most anything when it comes to having a "good time."

Berger Bros. are much pleased with their new store since the alterations are completed. They handled quantities of peonies, carnations and roses the past week.

MARKET CONDITIONS AT THEIR WORST.

The florists are urging us to say it with flowers, but some days when we read the political news, we would prefer to say it with poison ivy.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Even if the provocation is great, we trust in the interest of public welfare as well as the florist business. No large number of people are in the state of mind of the bilious individual who wrote the above. Nevertheless, in this city during the past week there seemed to be many people that were not "saying it with flowers." On May 31, there was some activity in stocking up after the Memorial day business, but for the remainder of the week, market conditions were about as bad as could be imagined—unless the buyers should go on a strike to have all the stock given to them. The truth of the old saying that "troubles never come singly," seemed to be verified. A tremendous —that's the word—stock of peonies came pouring into the markets, and also a heavy supply of all the other leading features, as roses, carnations, lilies, sweet peas and the general run of minor offerings usually seen at this time of year. There was not such an immense supply of orchids, but the great surplus of other stocks caused them to lag. Excepting in orchids, there was no such feature as prices, as the term is generally understood. Although the best peonies could be bought at from 40 to 50 cents per dozen, and many were sold, the effect on the stacks of them in some of the wholesale stores was scarcely noticeable. Carnations went begging at $10 per 100, and thousands of roses went out at ridiculously low figures, others being lost. Not for a long time had American Beauties and other good roses been so slow and cheap. An experienced wholesaler gave it as his opinion that present conditions will continue for two weeks, as thousands of peonies are being put in cold storage.

June 7.—The market is fairly active this morning. The weather is cool, and in good roses, there seems to be a reaction for the better. The outdoor lily of the valley is finished, and the greenhouse stock has moved up in price. In peonies and various other stock, the movement is slow.

DINNER IN HONOR OF CHAS. H. TOTTY.

About 30 of the friends of Charles H. Totty assembled at Moquin's restaurant, Sixth avenue and Twenty-eighth street, on the evening of June 5, taking Mr. Totty with them as the guest of honor. A most excellent menu was served and every one present had something eulogistic to say of the well known and popular guest, he being, as usual, eloquent and appreciative in response. In opening the speaking programme, John Young handed Mr. Totty a large and handsome leather cigar case as a present from his admirers, and then designated J. H. Pepper as toastmaster, and "Pep" was a very creditable actor in his part. The committee of arrangements consisted of Jos. S. Fenrich, Philip F. Kessler, John Young and J. H. Pepper. The tables were handsomely decorated with roses by Joseph S. Fenrich and George Hildenbrand. In addition to the above named, other hosts were W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., James Stewart, F. R. Pierson, Frank H. Traendly, A. L. Miller, Walter F. Sheridan, Chas. B. Weathered, Fred L. Atkins, John Canning, John Donaldson, Leonard Barron, Eugene Dailledouze, A. M. Henshaw, Joseph A. Manda, Charles Schenck, Arthur Herrington, Clifford Lowther, L. J. Reuter, A. F. Faulkner of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, B. Hammond Tracy, John Miesem, Geo. Hildenbrand, Charles Weber and Henry Weston. Mr. and Mrs. Totty were to have sailed for France, June 9, to visit their daughter, who is a student in a Paris college, but the derangement of the steamship line schedules by strikes delayed their sailing. They hope to get away at an early date. All will wish them a prosperous voyage and a safe return. We believe that our French friends will honor this distinguished citizen of ours, and if he should grow weary of public dinners and wish to return to the simple life, we here offer a suggestion:

A street there is in Paris famous,
For which no rhyme our language yields,
Rue Neuve des Petits Champs its name is—
The New Street of the Little Fields.
And here's an inn, not rich and splendid,
But still in comfortable case;
The which, in youth, I oft attended,
To eat a bowl of bouillabaisse.
This bouillabaisse a noble dish is—
A sort of soup or broth, or brew,—
Or hotchpotch of all sorts of fishes,
That Greenwich never could out do.
Green herbs, red peppers, mussels, saffern,
Soles, onions, garlic, rice and dace:
All these you eat at Terre's tavern,
In that one dish of bouillabaisse.

Indeed ,a rich and savory stew 'tis;
And true philosophers, methinks,
Who love all sorts of natural beauties,
Should love good victuals and good drinks,
And cordelier or benedictine
Might gladly, sure, his lot embrace
Nor find a fast-day too afflicting
Which served him up a bouillabaisse.
—Thackeray.

NOTES.

Under the headline of "Oddities Found in the News," the Evening Mail recently published the following: "Because house-wrecking crews wanted too much for the job, the Duke of Devonshire used 300 pounds of dynamite in getting rid of the giant greenhouse on his ancestral estate near London. The glass palace covered hundreds of acres and contained more than 40,000 panes of glass. The estate was recently sold for $375,000." That "the glass palace covered hundreds of acres" seems like the boy's story of "a thousand cats in our barn." Perhaps some of our English friends can enlighten us.

On June 3, N. Christatos, of Sixth avenue and 58th street, arranged a fine funeral piece, the floral emblem of the aviation corps. It was a star three feet in diameter, the center being red, and the points, white carnations, on a field of blue cornflowers.

W. H. Long, the Columbus avenue retailer, furnished flowers for an unusual Memorial day ceremony. The survivors of the S. S. Lincoln, torpedoed during the war, took flowers to sea, and cast them on the waters in memory of their lost shipmates.

DOCK laborers in Rotterdam returned to work after two months' strike at seven florins per day, being one-half florin below their former wage.

CORN prices dropped recently on an apparently baseless report that the switchmen's strike was ended. July delivery fell 6¼ cents from $1.62 per bushel.

INDICATIONS now point to a large attendance at the Milwaukee convention of the American Seed Trade Association, to be held at the Hotel Pfister, June 22-24.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, June 9, were as follows: Timothy, $9.00 to $11.00 per 100 pounds. Red clover $25.00 to $32.00.

THE senate commerce committee has ordered a favorable report on the Poindexter bill, which makes interruption of interstate commerce by strike of railway employes a felony.

TRAFFIC men around New York say the car situation is greatly improved, car congestion now somewhat below 160,000, against 184,987 a week earlier, and 269,000 at peak April 21.

VISITED CHICAGO: H. Suzuki and C. W. Scott, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., the former en route to Japan; George C. Thomson, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., en route east.

THE French government has requisitioned the entire beet sugar crop for 1920-21 at a price of approximately 400 francs per 100 kilos. This is approximately 36 cents a pound at normal exchange.

THE department of agriculture forecast of June 1 says the spring wheat crop is 68,000,000 bushels greater than that of last year, while prospects for winter wheat during May improved 19,000,000 bushels.

LONGSHOREMEN on strike at New York since March 12 voted to remain out until demands for increased wages are allowed. They refuse Governor Smith's offer of mediation conditional on immediate return.

THOMAS HUNTER of the International Seed Co., Chicago, has purchased a bungalow in Western Springs, Ill. Leonard H. Vaughan and Carl Cropp, of Vaughan's Seed Store, and John Leonard, of the Leonard Seed Co., are also residents of that suburb.

A REPORT from Washington, D. C., says the interstate commerce commission could not finish its investigation of railroad needs before September, and therefore, no rate advance could be granted before that time. The increase, when it does come, will probably average 30 per cent for the entire country.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—John C. Bodger, of John Bodger & Sons Co., whose health has greatly improved recently, will not attend the seed trade convention this year on account of pressure of work. Recent visitors included David Burpee and George W. Kerr, of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

PAINESVILLE, O.—Carl Barto, who succeeded W. F. Therkildson, in charge of the Storrs & Harrison Co.'s seed department, has resigned to become manager of the seed business of Stark Bros., Louisiana, Mo., a new departure of this firm. Mr. Barto began his career in the seed trade here under W. H. Nichols, and is a nephew of Robert George, general manager of the firm, also nephew of J. E. Barto, of the shipping department. Mr. Barto's many friends wish him every success in his new field.

Brown Seed Co. Expands.

The Alfred J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., has purchased the Hopson building, a modern, four-story brick structure, with 66 feet frontage, which, with a storage warehouse to be erected on property adjoining, and ready for occupancy about October 1, will permit of expansion and handling of the firm's business with increased expediency. The offices have already been removed to the Hopson building, and the retail department will be discontinued, having been taken over by the Jones Seed Store, under which name it will be conducted, at least for the present.

Onion Sets at Chicago.

Onion sets in the Chicago north side district are reported in the same generally excellent condition as those of the south side, noted in last week's issue, and probably a little farther advanced. The stand is good, the crop being unusually free of weeds and clean in other respects. The acreage is fully up to that of last year, if not slightly larger.

Southern Seedsmen's Association.

SECOND ANNUAL CONVENTION.

The second annual convention of the Southern Seedsmen's Association, which was held at Jacksonville, Fla., June 7-9, proved very successful, both in point of interest and attendance, 70 members of the organization being present. Twelve voting, and six associate members were added to the roll. At the opening session, following the welcome to the city by Mayor Martin, which was graciously responded to by Dick O'Bannon, of Claremore, Okla., President E. A. Martin, of Jacksonville, delivered his annual address, and the reports of Secretary-Treasurer Frank S. Love, Montgomery, Ala., were received. The session closed with an interesting address on "The Advantage of Illustrations in Catalogues." This proved most instructive in the capable hands of L. B. Reuter, of New Orleans, La. In the afternoon, a trip to Atlantic Beach was thoroughly enjoyed.

The second day had among its programme features an address by A. W. Cockrell, Jr., president of the Chamber of Commerce, and D. R. Mayo, Knoxville, Tenn., had for his subject, "The Benefits of Our Association," followed by John M. Scott, vice-director of the Florida experiment station, whose topic was "Forage Crops." Secretary-Treasurer Love gave an interesting talk on "Growers' Contracts." In the afternoon there was a barbecue at Roseland Farms, and a boat trip on the St. Johns river.

The business session on the third day was taken up with an executive meeting, the election of officers, committee reports and general talks on benefits of association.

Free Seed Distribution Finally Retained.

The agricultural appropriation bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1920, carries approximately $6,000,000 less than the department's estimates as to its needs, and $2,185,000 less than the amount provided in the appropriation act for the current year. Furthermore, the purchasing power of the dollar has decreased considerably, and the same amount of money cannot be made to do as much work as formerly, according to Secretary Meredith. Much important work on crops, marketing, forestry, etc., must be eliminated or curtailed.

Notwithstanding the recommendation of the department that the appropriation of $239,000 for congressional seed distribution be eliminated, and the money diverted to necessary and important activities having a direct bearing on agricultural production, this item, although dropped by the senate, has been finally retained in the bill.

Field Seed Co. to Increase Capital Stock.

The Henry Field Seed Company, Shenandoah, Ia., is being reorganized for $1,000,000. The capital stock outstanding at the present time is $125,000, but there are assets of the company amounting to $500,000, so that under the reorganization plan three new shares will be issued as dividends for each share outstanding, making $500,000 of common stock. In addition to this, $250,000 of new preferred stock will be issued, bearing 7 per cent interest and will be sold to citizens who desire it. Another $250,000 of common stock will be authorized, but not sold at the present time.

MAY CLOSES WITH SPLENDID RECORD.

May was crowded with business in all departments. There was a good trade in bedding stock. Added to this was a heavy cemetery demand during the last two weeks, ending with a record Memorial day. The stock available in most cases was ample and of good quality, weather conditions were good, and the buyers responded to the limit of the florists' ability to care for the business. Consequently, there is a good cleanup of bedding stocks, and the June orders will be as near velvet as a florist usually gets. Cut-flower stocks for the Memorial day trade were generally adequate, carnations showing a short supply, due largely to their reputation for sleepiness, causing the stores to buy sparingly. Retail prices were practically unchanged from the usual everyday figures; roses $2 to $6 per dozen, peonies, $3 and $4, and lilies, $5 per dozen. Cape Jessamine was fine, and the three grades sold for 50 cents, 75 cents and $1.00 per dozen. Magnolia wreaths, plain or trimmed, went well; also a moderate demand for the dyed lycopodium wreaths. Business so far for June, is holding up very well.

NOTES.

Otto Kuechenmeister, who has operated the F. Kuechenmeister greenhouses the past year, has decided to discontinue them, and the range is offered for sale, either with the land, or separated, to be wrecked.

Frank Mueller, for several years in charge of the order department for Chas. P. Mueller, has resigned his position, and will look after his two big wheat fields; occupation later not definitely decided.

The greenhouse men are busy now trying to catch up with their work, and at the same time, get their chrysanthemums planted on schedule. About the usual quantities will be put out.

Rolla Mueller, formerly in the store of his uncle, Chas. P. Mueller, has bought the W. M. Shanks greenhouses, at Wellington, Kan., and will operate them henceforth.

Frank Cluff is offering his place for lease.

C.

Salt Lake City.

SCANTY SUPPLY MOVES QUICKLY.

The market is practically cleaned up. Carnations are disappearing rapidly, although roses are in fair supply and peonies are now coming fast, but three weeks behind their appointed usual time. There is, however, a ready sale for them. Plants are all gone with the exception of a few calceolarias, which seem to be quite a novelty.

NOTES.

Manager Uno, of Bailey & Sons, says weddings and decorations are proving a blessing and he has many orders booked for the early part of the present month.

The Miller Floral Co. arranged a very pretty window for the Elks' convention, with quite an elaborate showing of calceolarias.

Memorial day business in this city was much better than anticipated, with the supply about half equaling the demand.

SPLENDID MEMORIAL DAY SALES.

The local market seems to be well supplied with stock, and this condition also prevailed for Memorial day, with the exception of peonies, which were late. The business for the occasion, extending as it did over three days, gave the florists added opportunities for business, and from all reports, trade was very satisfactory, although still offering room for improvement. Business in the downtown stores centered principally on wreaths and large plants, the cut flower orders going largely to greenhouses and stores near the cemeteries. Here, there also seemed to be an increased call for urns and cemetery pots of geraniums. The bedding plant stock offered in this market this season is unusually good.

NOTES.

S. A. Anderson is remodelling his establishment, and will come forth about September 1 in a new dress. Genesee street is to be complimented on having such fine flower stores. Charles Netsch, William Sievers and Galley Bros. all have fine establishments on this thoroughfare.

Outdoor lily of the valley has shown unusually good quality in this market this season.

We regret to report the serious illness of Charles Sandiford.

The Colonial Flower Shop has moved to its new quarters. BISON.

Providence, R. I.

BIG MEMORIAL DAY BUSINESS.

Memorial day this year proved very satisfactory, with a good stock moving freely. Geraniums were of fine quality and plentiful. The cut flower supply was ample, but the demand was not as brisk as in former years, the slow movement attributed to the great influx of artificial wreaths and bouquets with which confectionaries, department stores, groceries, etc., were overloaded. Legitimate florists' sales did not seem to suffer greatly, however.

NOTES.

Macnair has nearly finished his store improvements, which will make his establishment one of the largest in this section.

The Hogan Greenhouses produced some of the finest geraniums seen here this year, the supply cleaning up entirely.

John Burke, of Burke & Burns, will leave shortly for several months' visit in Denver, Colo.

Olney Williams had a great stock at his range at Pocasset, but sold large quantities.

The Lowell Avenue Greenhouses did a big business in geraniums and wax wreaths.

M. Iannotti had a good supply of excellent plants, which moved quickly.

Macrea, of Smith street, is now cutting excellent Lilium giganteum.

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., President; Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids Mich., Treas. Next annual convention September 1920.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—More than 600 garden plots have been laid out in East Potomac park this year, available to persons who wish to grow their own vegetables.

PRICES for new and old potatoes at Chicago continued to advance, June 7, under limited arrivals and a brisk demand. Old potatoes were 50 to 65 cents higher per 100 pounds, and new potatoes advanced $1.00, selling at a new high of $12.00.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 9.—Cucumbers, 2-doz. box, $2.00 to $3.00; celery, Florida, crate, $5.50 to $6.50; leaf lettuce, per tomato box, 17½ cents; radisnes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $2.50; tomatoes, per crate, six baskets, $8.00 to $9.50.

New York, June 7.—Celery, per crate, $1.00 to $12.00; cucumbers, per dozen, 75 cents to $1.00; mushrooms, 50 cents to $2.25 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 40 cents; lettuce, per package, 50 cents to $4.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.00.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports to the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, covering the period, May 30-June 5, show lighter movement in many lines, with old potatoes stronger and the supply of new stock increasing. In the latter, the market has been active at South Carolina shipping points, but heavy haulings lowered prices slightly to a range of $11-$12 for No. 1 Irish Cobblers in cloth top slat barrels, carloads, fob. Eastern markets ranged generally $12-$15.50. Early sales of No. 1 Spaulding Rose in double head barrels were $11-$12, carloads, fob., at Florida shipping points. Prices of No. 1 Spaulding Rose in eastern cities were $12-$15, and in middle-western, $13-$18. Irish Cobblers in cloth top slat barrels ranged $10.50-$11.50 carloads fob. with demand good. The same stock brought $11-$13 in Philadelphia. Louisiana and Texas Bliss Triumphs ranged $9.50-$11 in St. Louis and Kansas City, per 100 pounds, sacked. Old stock has been quite firm, and light supplies have caused a considerable advance in prices. Round white potatoes at Minnesota shipping points ranged $7.65-$8.40 per 100 pounds, sacked, carloads fob. Prices in St. Louis and Kansas City were $8.50-$9. Carlots in Chicago gained about $1.25 per 100 pounds, reaching $9.25 sacked. Maine Green Mountains did not advance so strongly in eastern cities, ranging $7-$8 in Philadelphia and Boston, and $6.65-$7.25 in New York.

Onion consuming centers have been heavily supplied by the new crop and the markets have become dull, with movement slow. Prices of No. 1 and 2 yellow Bermudas, per standard crate, are $1-$2. Demand was also poor at California shipping points, yellow Bermudas selling at 85 cents to $1 per standard crate, carloads, fob. cash track, and ranging $1-$1.25 in consuming markets. It has been reported that some Texas growers are storing onions under sheds, on account of present market conditions. Shipments showed a sharp decrease of nearly 450 cars in one week. The greatest portion of this decrease was caused by the lighter movement of Texas onions, the California shipments falling off more moderately.

The new crop of tomatoes is beginning to move from Mississippi and Texas. Carloads of fours, pink, unwrapped, were in moderate demand at Texas shipping points at $2.35 fob. Prices in Chicago ranged $3-$4. Green tomatoes, wrapped, were in good demand at Mississippi shipping points at $2.50 per 4-basket flat, carloads, fob. cash track. Prices in Chicago were $2.50-$3.50. Florida tomatoes in eastern markets sold generally between $7-$8 for fancy Globes in six-basket carriers. Repacked stock in Chicago sold early at $11-$12, closing $9-$10. The heaviest movement is still from Florida, Texas and Mississippi, aiding in a moderate total increase.

Kansas City, Mo.

PLANT SALES MAKE HIGH RECORD.

With the spring bedding season about finished, all reports indicate that it was the best in many years. In many cases, more stock could have been disposed of had it been available. Petunias, especially in the purple varieties, took a strong lead over everything else, and were practically sold out before the end of May. Vinca vines also ran short of requirements. Memorial day business was far better than in former years, and stock, with the exception of peonies, was plentiful. Roses were in fine form for the occasion, while carnations, as usual at this time, were not plentiful, and affected to a great extent by the severe hailstorm of the previous week. June wedding orders are far greater than any other year, and many are booked well ahead for the month, and with the school commencements will keep the trade busy.

NOTES.

T. J. Noll & Co. have opened for business, but until improvements are installed the establishment is not really in full swing. It will very soon, however, be one of the largest and most complete wholesale establishments in this section.

H. Kusik & Co., while short of peonies, were well prepared to take care of the big business with a large supply of excellent roses, carnations and other offerings. Wreaths and artificial material were in strong demand here.

W. J. Barnes enjoyed his best Memorial day trade, selling completely out in cut flowers, with heavy sales of wreaths and sprays of artificial material. His spring plant supply is about depleted.

Miss Hayden reports the most active call for decorations in the history of Samuel Murray's always busy establishment. There appears to be no letup to the call for wedding and funeral orders.

The Kansas City Cut Flower Co. is more than pleased with the large volume of its first Memorial day business. Made-up wreaths were in unusually strong demand.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. reports increased demand for decorations, compared with other seasons, with the call favoring flowers of the better grades.

M. E. Chandler made one of the largest cuts of peonies and poppies in his history, and never before was compelled to turn down so many orders.

A. F. Barbe reports his cemetery trade was the best ever experienced, and when the rush was over, a chance to rest was appreciated.

Arthur Newell is more than pleased with his trade in decorations, and is also very busy with wedding orders.

August Luther reports an immense business in spring plants and is nearly sold out.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; John Watson, 400 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

Forty-fifth annual convention will be held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, June 23-25, 1920.

ROME, N. Y.—E. J. Byam, for many years a large grower in this city, has been appointed superintendent of parks.

THE next annual meeting of the American Association of Park Superintendents will be held at Louisville, Ky., September 9-11.

ROSEVILLE, CALIF.—Alexander Bros., formerly of Plattsmouth, Neb., are establishing a nursery at Citrus Heights, near this city.

SAMUEL ADAMS, of Virginia, editor of the American Fruit Grower, is a candidate for vice-president at the republican convention in Chicago this week.

THE many friends of James McHutchison, of McHutchison & Co., New York, will be pleased to learn that he is back at his desk again after an absence of seven weeks on account of illness.

THE annual covention of the American Association of Nurserymen will be held at the Congress hotel, Chicago, June 23-24, but the get-together dinner of the association will take place the evening of June 22, preceding the opening day, at 7 o'clock.

PAINESVILLE, O.—Charles Hacker, upwards of 30 years with the Storrs & Harrison Co., specialist in roses and ornamental shrubs, has resigned to become general manager of the establishment of Henry Kohankie & Son. Mr. Hacker started with the Storrs & Harrison Co. as a boy of 16, and has the best wishes of a host of friends for success in his new position.

Cherry Losses in Wisconsin.

A loss of $275,000, because their cherries drop off the trees before they are ripe, is a rather heavy loss for the growers of Door county, yet that is the conservative estimate for last year.

In order to try and find a solution, R. H. Roberts of the horticultural department of the University of Wisconsin, will spend May and June in visiting the orchards, and studying the situation. He is co-operating with the growers, who are anxious to see if there is not some way in which the loss could be checked. Cross pollination, self pollination, the relation of insects to pollination, the influence of wind pollination, blossom fertilization and the development of the seed in relation to setting and dropping, are some of the things which he will observe and study. Cultural practices will also be noticed in their relation to fruiting.

Massachusetts State Forests Urged.

The Massachusetts Forestry Association says over two-thirds of the lumber used in the state is imported at a cost of over $40,000,000 annually, and most of it could be grown there with local labor at less cost than the transportation alone from the Pacific coast. One-fifth of the state is now idle, while other property is taxed to build roads over it and protect it from fire. In 10 years, at the present rate, more than $400,000,000 for lumber, or $100 per capita, will be sent out of the state. To buy and reforest 250,000 acres in that time would cost about $8,000,000, or $2 per capita. This number of acres under forest would furnish permanent employment to over 5,000 men in growing, lumbering and the manufacture of product.

MEMORIAL DAY BRINGS RECORD TRADE.

Florists here are more than gratified with the volume of Memorial day business, which was observed more generally than ever before. The graves of departed heroes were profusely decorated with wreaths, cut flowers and pot plants, and brought the local dealers a rush of business such as has never been seen here on Memorial day before. As was foreseen early in the week, the supply was not nearly equal to the demand. Peonies from California, although not as choice as those from the local and Bellingham greenhouses, were eagerly snapped up. Roses were more plentiful than was expected; in fact, the cut has increased to such an entent during the past week that it is expected that before long the entire demand can be supplied locally. Ophelia and Premier are in good form, both in color and shape. The chief deliveries from the south have been early summer novelties, among which is baby gladioli in both pink and white, pyrethrums, lupines and sweet sultans. They find a good market in basket combinations with local snapdragons and marguerites. Other spring flowers, such as iris, sweet william, violas and out-door lily of the valley are being supplied very satisfactorily by the local growers. Among the notable features in the market are some extra large tulips of very lustrous bloom and vivid color. They measure nearly six inches in circumference and come in lavender, pink and red. Bedding stock moves somewhat slowly, due to the high prices. While there is a good demand for geraniums there are few reorders on other lines. Pansies rank next in popularity. Social entertainments for visitors prominent in public life, and the opening of the wedding season, have stimulated the sale of cut flowers of the more expensive varieties. Sweet peas are coming in from the local greenhouses, strong, sturdy and colorful, and in sufficient supply to make importations unnecessary. Carnations are bringing a good price, and dealers find it very hard to keep the stock on hand, since local growers are experiencing a slight falling off in production. Practically all that can be secured from Spokane find a ready market here, especially the Laddie in pink and white. The demand for boxes and hanging baskets continues fairly strong, pot fuschias being especially popular for the latter.

NOTES.

The Hollywood Gardens showed a window of Memorial day wreaths. In the back, and to the right was a large wreath about five feet high, decorated with palm leaves and American flags. Grouped about it were smaller wreaths arranged very artistically with white flowers. This firm is now showing some bright spring baskets filled with combinations of Parrot tulips, marguerites, snapdragons and roses.

Fred Rowe, of McCoy's Flower Shop, presented a very appropriate Memorial day window, consisting of a background of large American flags, surmounted by huge bouquets of snowballs and callas, wreaths of magnolia leaves trimmed with white roses and maidenhair fern, and in the foreground a group of stacked rifles and sabre, tied with red, white and blue ribbon.

Some of the best gardenias, as well as Butterfly and Cordelia roses are being shown by Rosaia Bros. this week. The orchids from the firm's greenhouse are also attracting favorable comment, especially those of the cattleya variety, which form an elaborate bouquet in a bridal window display at one of the local department stores.

H. P. Anderson, of the University Flower Shop, found that pot lily of the valley was a strong seller for grave decoration among those who were especially anxious for something very choice. The price, compared with other pot plants of its size, however, kept it from dominating the market.

Harry Day, of the Orpheum Floral Co., reports the best Memorial day business in the history of local trade. All stock imported for the purpose was cleaned up by Saturday night, and the passing of the holiday found his floors bare.

One of the features of the Ranier club banquet to former President Taft, which elicited comment from the local papers, was the elaborate table decoration furnished by Kenney's Home of Flowers.

The Washington Florists are showing some fine pot petunias in their retail store. These, with a fine supply of Boston and Holly ferns, will soon be ready for delivery in substantial quantities.

The Woodlawn Florist Shop has some of the best local Brunner roses on the market. They are large and strong, and of a deep rich color.

Anna F. Burns, of the Burns Floral Co., has returned from a short visit with relatives in Oregon.

AMERICAN PEONY SOCIETY.

Seventeenth Annual Meeting and Exhibition.
Reading, Pa., June 10-11, 1920.

Live Meeting and Splendid Exhibition.

Weather conditions are a great factor in the selection of correct dates for the peony show. The committee this year could scarcely have chosen a more suitable time for the section of country within 100 miles of Reading, Pa., and also to suit Ohio growers, who were able to stage many of their best varieties. It was a little too early for some of the fine late favorites, but take them as a whole, the growers were in a position to select from at least three-fourths of their best kinds.

The exhibition arrangements were perfect. The largest room on the main floor of the Berkeley hotel, together with another, half the size, were turned over to the society. There was ample table space, with good, wide aisles for free movement of the visitors. The placing of the tables, the entries, assignment of the various exhibitors' spaces, etc., was in charge of Secretary David Rust of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, who managed to find room for every exhibit, and whose systematic work enabled the exhibition to be opened on time. He also followed up the judges, placing premiums awarded, as soon as the decisions were announced.

While peonies are peonies, and one show is, in general appearance, much like another, yet the peony enthusiast is sure to see a wonderful difference year after year. The first exhibit that caught the eye in this show was the superb collection of 100 varieties staged by the Movilla Gardens of James Boyd, Haverford, Pa. All the experts agreed that this was by far the best display ever made at an exhibition of the society. It contained the cream of all the popular varieties and many choice but little grown kinds that seldom see the display tables. The quality of all the flowers was superb. Visitors and members of the society were continually hovering about this exhibit with their note books, taking the names of fancied varieties.

Bertrand H. Farr, Reading, staged a number of vases containing splendid flowers in two and three-dozen lots, but not for competition, as he maintained, that on account of his being on the ground, it would not be fair to those who had to bring their flowers from a distance. His vases, with such a wealth of bloom, were very attractive and a splendid addition to the exhibition.

There were three varieties, which on account of their great size and perfect form, always stand out in a peony show. Le Cygne, Therese and Jubilee are the three graces that are in a class by themselves. In the single flower competition, and three and six of a kind classes, they are sure winners. The flowers of Le Cygne staged by Movilla Gardens were superb, as were the Jubilee of Lee R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O. Movilla Gardens won in the classes for single flower and threes with Le Cygne, while Lee R. Bonnewitz was awarded first for six Jubilee. Movilla Gardens won first for 10 varieties, three blooms of each. E. M. Buechly, Greenville, O., was second.

There were several entries of single varieties. The Cottage Gardens Company staging a collection of one of a kind, and vases containing 25, which were much admired. A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., exhibited a number of singles and semi-doubles, which attracted great attention. The Cottage Gardens Company had several vases containing 20 flowers each, which were very showy. E. M. Buechly also exhibited in this class. His flowers showed splendid quality, as did those which won second for the best six blooms.

The advanced amateur and novice amateur classes were staged in the grill room, where placed rather closer together, they made a harlequin of color. The quality of the stock here was about as good as found in a number of the commercial collections. In the novice amateur classes, there were some choice flowers. Alice Bonnewitz, daughter of the president of the society, won several prizes in these classes.

The Movilla Gardens collection, 10 vases, double, three of a kind, contained the following varieties: Marguerite Gerard, Felix Crousse, Jubilee, Le Cygne, Festiva Maxima, Jules Elie, Therese, Mme. Emil Lemoine, Mme. Calot, and Mons. Martin Cahuzac. The varieties in B. H. Farr's large vases were Jules Elie, Candidissima, Grandiflora Rosea, James Kelway, Festiva Maxima, Adolph Rosseau, Mayor Loder and Labolas.

President Bonnewitz had entries in a number of classes, all blooms being of fine quality. His best flowers were carried from Van Wert, O., by hand in galvanized tins, filled with water, with wire guards to protect the blooms from being crushed in contact with the outside wrapper.

The Babcock Gardens, Jamestown, N. Y., staged a number of flowers of officinalis early-flowering types, for which they won first prize. The Mohican Peony Gardens, Reading, displayed a number of vases of 25 flowers each, all fine varieties. This exhibit was very attractive and not entered in competition.

In the amateur classes, the prominent exhibitors were E. K. Shultz, Longhorne; A. H. Chambers, Reading, and Lee R. Bonnewitz, they winning the principal prizes.

A few of the well-known members, described the show as follows:

James Boyd.—"Very pretty show, indeed. More separate entries than ever before."

President Bonnewitz.—"The wonderful collection of 100 varieties of Movilla Gardens was the best ever exhibited by our society; some not often seen. A very fine show, take it all in all."

R. T. Brown.—"The commercial classes were superior to any we have ever had. The 100 blooms staged by James Boyd is much the best exhibit of such a number ever shown in this country. While not all new, some are very rare and seldom seen. The amateur classes are larger in entries than ever before. A very successful exhibition."

Business Meeting.

The annual meeting was called to order by President Bonnewitz at 9:15, p. m. with 40 members in attendance. The enthusiasm and interest in the proceedings was most marked, as not one person left the room until adjournment at 12:05 a. m. President Bonnewitz, in his address, spoke of the great strides the society had made in the past year, and extended thanks to the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society for its assistance in the present show. The reports of the various committees and directors' meetings, as they had appeared in the bulletins sent out by Secretary Saunders through the year, were adopted. Secretary Young, of the Society of American Florists, had asked if the society desired to affiliate with the national organization, but no action was taken.

A revision, and more accurate description of the 50 to 100 newer varieties, using the French color charts as guides, was advised, and will to some extent be carried out the coming year.

It was suggested that publicity of the work of the society, and peony news in general, might be obtained through a column in the various trade papers.

A. H. Scott, treasurer, reported the net worth of the society was $2,022.20; last year, it was $1,743.10, a gain of $279.10. The total membership of the society is now 604, which at $3 dues, was just about nip and tuck in meeting expenses. He urged that the campaign for new members be kept going intensively.

The secretary then read the awards, as reported by the judges, which were approved. New prizes offered by the Skinner System of Irrigation, Troy, O., and one of $25, by A. M. Cook, Clinton, Iowa, were accepted. W. A. Sisson, Ripon, Wis., offered $100 for a peony of light blue shade, he to be allowed to name the variety.

In a general discussion on seedling varieties, it was stated that no flowers should be judged, except from plants large enough to be divided. A. M. Brand had four seedlings, flower the second year after germination, which was considered remarkable. Only exceptional seedlings should be selected, and none sent out that did not show superiority in some respect. Seedlings do not deteriorate; once a good peony, always a good peony. He said there were altogether too many new catalogue varieties, as very few of these showed merit. Sending old varieties out under new names was condemned, and catalogue men who transgressed would soon hear from the society in no uncertain way.

In awarding prizes or medals to seedlings, it was decided the honor and prize was to go to the hybridizer or raiser of the variety. All new varieties must be judged as they appear on the exhibition table, as it was not deemed practical to follow up their various traits in the field. The scale of points to be used in judging, as worked out by the directors at the meeting last April, was adopted. It is as follows: Color, 25; form, 15; size, 15; distinctiveness, 15; substance, 10; stem, 10; odor, 10. Peonies without fragrance should be given 5 for odor, those with a disagreeable odor that amounts to a defect, being marked 0.

The secretary was voted $500 for the expense of the quarterly bulletins for the ensuing year.

A. S. Parker, Detroit, Mich., urged newspaper publicity in interesting the public at the various exhibitions. There should be correct and detailed reports of all the various shows, irises, peonies, roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, etc., which would give them great educational value. The ladies of the city of Reading and B. H. Farr, he said, had done good work in this respect here, which greatly helped in the fine attendance. The directors were instructed to provide for this publicity in future exhibitions.

At the invitation of H. A. Norton, Boston, Mass., was unanimously selected as the city for the meeting and exhibition of 1921.

Election of Officers.

The present officers were re-elected for the ensuing year as follows: Lee R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O., president, A. H. Fewkes, Newton Highlands, Mass., vice-president; A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., secretary; A. H. Scott, Chester, Pa., treasurer; C. W. Ward, Eureka, Calif., was chosen honorary president. The board of directors will consist of the president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, ex officio: B. H. Farr, Reading, Pa.; R. T. Brown, Queens, N. Y., and James Boyd, Haverford, Pa., the latter succeeding T. A. Havemeyer. Regional vice-presidents were re-elected as follows: For the northwest, A. M. Brand; east, A. H. Fewkes; middle states, S. Prentiss Baldwin; west J. F. Rosenfield; southwest, C. M. Wild; Canada, W. E. Saunders.

Lee R. Bonnewitz, Van Vert, O.
President American Peony Society.

The secretary read a report of the increase in membership of the society since it was founded, in 1902, with a charter list of 23. There were very few additions worth while, until the past five years, when the growth was very encouraging. The list of new names read, and which were unanimously elected members, amounted to 84, more than twice that of any previous year. This interest was largely created from invitations sent out in the various catalogues of peony growers, to have their customers join the society. Treasurer Scott stated that most new names came through these channels. A discussion on soils and fertilizers, best suited to peonies, was interesting. James Boyd had found deep and constant cultivation as essential as manures. President Bonnewitz stated that clumps divided and replanted in the same place would not thrive, which was the experience of others. Rotation and new soil were considered necessary. George C. Thurlow stated that muck retained moisture, but there must be three essentials in fertilizers—nitrogen for top growth, potash for the roots, and acid phosphate to develop seed. There must be a good root action to pump up water, or there will be no luxuriant growth. Weak stems show the soil needs potash.

The opinion was expressed that through symposium, or voting as to the merits of the numerous varieties, it would be possible to determine those suited and more reliable if the country was divided into four sections, north, south, east and west, as the conditions in the various divisions are different.

The meeting then adjourned.

President Bonnewitz's Address.

The annual meeting of the American Peony Society is always an enjoyable event in the lives of those of us who attend all of its exhibitions. We look forward to these meetings with fond anticipations, and we look back upon them with pleasant recollections. Each year we expect to be thrilled with the discovery of some new peony or the wonderful development of some old favorite and I have never attended a single peony show from which I did not return with plenty of new enthusiasm for my peony garden, and a new stock of peony stories for other enthusiasts.

The past year has been a prosperous one for the American Peony Society. We have received more new members than in any prvious 12 months, and thanks to the co-operation of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, we have been able to offer a much larger premium list than ever before. The bills for printing and postage have been much larger than in previous years, because your president has taken it upon himself to send out four general letters to every member of the society upon matters which he thought would interest the individual member. He does not know whether this additional expense is approved by the society, but he does know that members of the society, who for one reason or another, cannot attend this show, are very anxious that a letter be mailed to them very soon, telling them all about this exhibition and the varieties which have deserved special recognition.

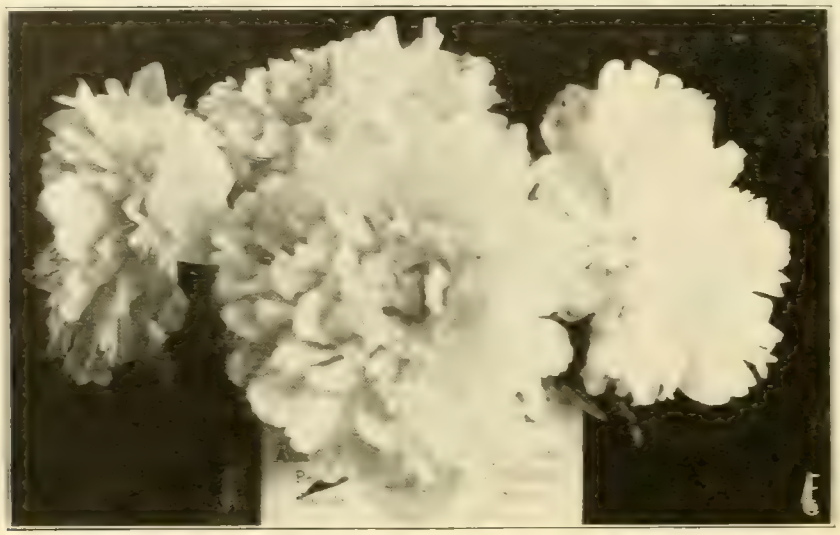
We are all gratified that America is producing some extraordinary new peonies, and we congratulate A. M. Brand upon his wonderful Martha Bulloch, Mrs. Pleas upon her lovely Jubilee, Mr. Shaylor upon his magnificent, Mrs. Harding, Mr. Rosenfield upon his brilliant Karl Rosenfield, Messrs. Thurlow & Sons upon their successful landscape variety, Cherry Hill, and our worthy secretary, A. P. Saunders, upon his dainty Grace Loomis. I have no doubt but that each peony enthusiast in this meeting is looking forward to the time when he can surprise the peony world with some new seedling from his garden. I am growing them by the thousands, but I have not yet found one which I think has merit enough to bring to this show.

As there are so many of us interested in growing seedlings, and as the price of a root of a new seedling varies from $25 to $100, it might be well for the introducers of new varieties, to limit the number to one new variety each year, better still, only one every [illegible] and to be sure that the seedling not only [illegible] but that it is sufficiently distinct from any existing variety, to demand a place of its own in the peony garden. Richardson pro-

[illegible] titude of new varieties, and I believe not more than two of them are held in much esteem at this time. Of the two men, Richardson performed a great service to the peony world. Terry did not. I am hoping that the American peony originators of today, will follow Richardson's example, rather than Terry's.



AMERICAN PEONY SOCIETY EXHIBITION, READING, PA., JUNE 10 11.

Vase of Jubilee Exhibited by Lee R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert O.

The Banquet.

On Thursday evening there was a banquet at the Berkeley hotel, given under the auspices of the Reading chamber of commerce. About 150 sat at the various tables. After the repast, a most cordial welcome was extended to the members by the president of the chamber of commerce, who wanted them back next year. He then turned the meeting over to President Bonnewitz, who acted as toastmaster. He congratulated the members on the splendid show, the great interest taken in the meeting by the people of Reading, and the great work of B. H. Farr. James M. Boyd then told how simple and easy it was to grow peonies; that all large collections have small beginnings, but increase rapidly with the interest taken. Deep cultivation, he said, was the secret in cultural methods. The Pennsylvania Horticultural society, of which he is president, stands ready with money prizes, and a helping hand generally, to all such horticultural events.

President Bonnewitz told how his interest grew from the purchases of peonies, 40 for $10, until he had paid as much as $100 for one plant, which had been a better investment than any he had ever made. B. H. Farr described his entry with the peony world, and working up to 100 varieties, when people thought he was crazy. Now he has over 700, and still adding. The love of flowers, and enthusiasm for them, makes you forget you are getting old, he said. A. M. Cook, Clinton, Ia., came more than 1,000 miles to attend the meeting, and felt amply repaid. He was proud to say that B. H. Farr was an Iowa boy. The love of flowers was a great business asset, as such people, he found, always paid their bills.

John Wister, president of the newly founded American Iris Society, emphasized the great good the American Peony Society had done in straightening out the nomenclature of the flower. Secretary A. P. Saunders was introduced as the best secretary in the whole world. He said lovers of flowers, and peonies in particular, were the salt of the earth. That he could not exhibit more of his blooms was a great sorrow to him. The beauty of the flowers created enthusiasm and love for the work. A. M. Brand, the great hybridizer of peonies, was called on to stand up, which he did, but was too modest to talk.

George Thurlow urged all present to sign up as members of the society, and hoped that soon it would tax the largest halls to hold their exhibitions. Carloads of peonies could be sent safely to California, or any other distant place. He hoped that new varieties would not come out too fast, or most of the enthusiasts would go broke. A. F. Little said he had received his first inspiration from B. H. Farr's catalogue, and ordered a small collection. Now he has over 250 varieties. He was proud that the great favorite, Jubilee, came from his own state, Indiana. H. A. Norton saw great growth in peony enthusiasm all over the land.

Leonard Barron said he was a member of all the various flower societies, the latest being the American Iris Society, and the number is increasing so fast that it made him dizzy, but he took a great delight in all of them. Competitive exhibitions kept up the standard of all flowers, as the poorer varieties were soon dropped. The last speaker, A. H. Scott, the treasurer, said that one who loves a garden was always a good credit risk. If every man and woman could be made to love flowers, all would be well.

President Bonnewitz then announced that the annual meeting of the society would convene at 9 p. m. in the same room.

A pleasing feature of the entertainment programme arranged by the chamber of commerce was an automobile ride which included a tour of Mount Penn, with its beautiful view over the city, thence through pretty suburbs and the fine tree lined avenues of the Nolde estate, and a stop at the nurseries of B. H. Farr.

Among the visitors, prominent in the society, were the following:

Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y.
Lee R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O.
James Boyd, Philadelphia, Pa.
A. M. Brand, Faribault, Minn.

F. T. D. Banking Facilities.

Sometime ago the F. T. D. office established a bank account in Canada, at the same time offering its members facilities for saving the discount rates prevailing. We are pleased with the results obtained. But we find many of our American members are not reciprocal. They do not pay their Canadian accounts through this office, thereby taking advantage of discount rates, and the result is that our cash balance in our Canadian branch is far in excess of our American balance. We feel in justice to the courtesy extended that all Canadian accounts should be paid through this office and therefore ask your co-operation by sending checks for Canadian members to this office.

Yours for more and better F. T. D. co-operation.

Say it with Flowers at Indianapolis.

Two speakers at the sixteenth annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, at Indianapolis, Ind., June 6-10, lauded the flower trade and its success in putting over its slogan, "Say It With Flowers." Don Francisco, advertising manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, of Los Angeles, referred to the flower campaign in warm terms. "We are trying to do in the fruit business, what the florists accomplished in their field," said Mr. Francisco. "The slogan of the flower industry, which is nothing short of the work of genius, represents almost perfection in co-operative advertising. In the same way, we are trying to sell lemons and other fruits to the public."

The other speaker who referred to the slogan was Mrs. Christine Frederick, founder of the Applecroft Experiment Station, at Greenlawn, L. I., N. Y., who spoke on "What Women Owe to the Home-Making Influence of Advertising." The flower campaign, she said, while making for success to the men back of it, was even more far-reaching. The publicity awakened men to the fact that they owed something to their women, and married men who had ceased to woo their wives after the ceremony, began to buy flowers. Single men, won over by the advertising, used flowers in their courting, so that the campaign made many new homes, and kept old ones happy.

Extracts from other addresses delivered at the convention follow:

G. R. Lowe, Neosho, Mo.—"The Neosho plan requires that retailers band together for the purpose of making a specific offering in the way of bargains, on one particular day of the month; that the announcement of this bargain shall go out in company with as many as are offered by the different merchants of the city; that there shall be no conflicting offerings nor any 'so-called' bargains; they must be bona fide bargains, and there is a committee to see that they are. It is a checkerboard arrangement of ads with no preferred space. This circular is a direct-by-mail appeal, going into every home in the territory the town wishes to reach."

Frank A. Black, Filene's Department Store, Boston—"Newspapers seem to provide an ideal vehicle for up-to-date store advertising. In form, elasticity, frequency and cost, the daily newspaper undoubtedly ranks first among media for retailers. We use 'elasticity' as a handy name for the quality that enables you to present to your friends each day the story of your store, long or short, illustrated or otherwise, exactly as you may decide, only 24 hours in advance. Nothing else provides this quality in so marked degree. As to cost, consider this: A one-cent post card, mailed to 400,000 families, costs $4,000 plus the cost of printing and addressing. We have in Boston, a morning newspaper that will carry your post-card message to 40,000 breakfast tables, and more, for the insignificant cost of $26.

A famous merchant said that of all forms of publicity used by his store, the show window is the most important. He bases this statement on the fact that the window gets in its work when the customer is on the spot, ready and able to purchase, with least inertia to overcome. The study of lighting, of color combinations, and of backgrounds, is worthy of the highest intelligence. It is the function of the display windows to present the desired picture, to supplement and emphasize the store's other publicity, and to pick the store's share of customers from the passing thouands by sheer force."

Frank Stockdale, advertising agent, Chicago—"The reason the average retailer does not have time to advertise, is because he has failed to organize his business, which means that he has failed to organize his own time. The average retailer gets lost in his job. Most of the people who are amazed at the things the retailer neglects to do, would also be amazed, I believe, at the things he does do, if they could have the experience of running a retail store."

Trade visitors at the convention included Henry Penn and wife, Boston, Mass.; Vincent Gorly, St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, Cleveland, O. M. E. C.

Cape Jasmine Resolution.

Following the presentation of a cape jasmine to the members of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World in convention at Indianapolis, Ind., June 6-10, by one of their number from Texas, who asked the adoption of the cape jasmine as the organization's convention flower, reported in our issue of June 12, page 1087, Vincent Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, well known florists of St. Louis, Mo., a member of the delegation from that city, suggested the adoption of the following resolution:

Whereas, It is fitting and becoming that beauty in all its forms be encouraged, and

Whereas, The advertising fraternity has recognized that messages of the heart are often conveyed in their most sacred relation by an appeal through the love of flowers, and

Whereas, Nature has been a most efficient advertiser, long before the human mind conceived the idea, by providing flowers with a fragrance which carries their message beyond human vision, and

Whereas, There is one flower particularly suited for use by the Advertising Clubs of the World, because of its abundance and particularly pleasant, fragrant appeal at this season, when the ad men's convention is in session, and only at this time, be it

Resolved, That the A. A. C. of W. in convention assembled, hereby adopt the sweet, fragrant cape jasmine, as the official convention flower of this association.

National Publicity for Flowers.

August F. Poehlmann, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, whose growing establishment at Morton Grove, Ill., is the largest in the country, says: "Summing up the results obtained by collective advertising, thus far, I feel encouraged to go on with it, and I hope to see every retailer, wholesaler and grower tied up with this advertising campaign."

In this summary is voiced the opinion generally of those who have made this movement possible. It ought to have some effect on the minds of those to whom we look for assistance in the continuance of the campaign. August Poehlmann, perhaps more than anyone else, is in position to observe the beneficial results we have obtained, and that is why he recommends its continuance and extension.

Last year our publicity committee set the goal for $100,000, the fund which it was believed should be spent for publicity. Their belief was based upon the immense amount of profitable publicity we had obtained in the previous year for less than half that sum. Their expectations, however, only materialized to the extent of nearly 60 per cent, but again we secured publicity sufficient to swell the prestige obtained in the previous year, and to increase the demand for flowers very perceptibly. This year, the same goal was set, as our committee reasoned that, surely, now the florists would perceive the importance and profit in a vigorous prosecution of the campaign. Up to this writing, however, less than one-half of the required amount is collected.

It cannot be said that the florists are too poor to provide the amount required. Nor can we believe that they are not anxious to increase the business they are doing. Then what is the reason for this holding back? Is it that they are content to let their more generous brother florist shoulder the burden of expense, content to reap a share of the harvest he provides, without a trifling aid from their own pockets? There may be some who have this idea, but in the main it is not one characteristic of the florist as we know him, always ready and anxious to pay his way. Is it because they have not faith in the efficacy of the campaign? In this case, they have Mr. Poehlmann's views to ponder upon. He knows, and so do all our other supporters, especially those whose subscriptions run to large amounts. How many of those who have not yet tied up with us, realize that some of their florist brethren are paying into the fund as much as $25 to $50 per month. They certainly have faith in the work, and are not merely taking chances.

As soon as we get the required support, we can double the benefit now being received. Our committee is prepared to take immediate action, as the money received meets the stages planned. Do not let our slogan rust—rather add to its lustre through greater use. "Say It With Flowers," as a slogan, is the best asset our industry has ever had. The more we use it, the better for our business. Help it along, please, by sending in bankable evidence of your support right away.

American Iris Society.

The American Iris Society which was organized at a meeting in New York, January 29, 1920, with an initial membership of 250 representing many sections of the United States and numerous lines of iris development, met in University hall of Wanamaker's store, Philadelphia, Pa., June 1-2 for its first annual meeting and eastern exhibition. The membership of the society now numbers about 400 and the attendance was very gratifying. The flowers made a fine showing, their arrangement against a background of silk screens being most effective, and while the awards were numerous, several, including a silver cup offered by Mrs. H. G. Lloyd, were withheld, the society preferring to take such action rather than bestow it where blooms did not accord with the high standard prescribed.

Among the principal winners were the Moville Gardens, of Haverford, Pa., with a splendid display of the newest foreign introductions as well as many fine American varieties. This entry was notable for its unique specimens of Bliss seedlings from abroad and was honored with the society's silver medal. Mrs. H. G. Lloyd won many prizes and the Wyomissing Nursery Co. and Twin Larches, of Westchester were strong contenders in the commercial classes. A feature of the show was the fine displays staged by outside growers. In addition to those above mentioned prize-winning entries were made by A. H. Scott, Miss H. Glenn and Mrs. H. F. Harris, Philadelphia; Miss Florence E. Beck, Haverford, Pa.; Mrs. M. W. Jacobs, Harrisburg, Pa.; Mrs. John Love and Mrs. Ernest Dinning, of Maryland.

At the business session, officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: John C. Wister, Philadelphia, Pa., president; Wm. A. Peterson, Chicago, vice-president; R. S. Sturtevant, Wellesley Farms, Mass., secretary; Frank H. Presby, Montclair, N. J., treasurer. Directors: I. S. Hendrickson, Flowerfield, N. Y.; Edwin C. Shaw, Akron, Ohio; James Boyd, Philadelphia, Pa.; B. H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa.; Dr. H. A. Gleason, New York; Harry A. Norton, Quebec, Can. Regional vice-presidents: Eastern district, B. Y. Morrison, Washington, D. C.; Central district, Mrs. Samuel H. Taft, Cincinnati, O.; Northwestern district, T. A. Kenning, Minneapolis, Minn.; Southern district, Floyd Brallior, Nashville, Tenn.; Pacific district, Sydeny B. Mitchell, Berkeley, Calif.; Canadian district, Dr. F. E. Bennett, St. Thomas, Ont.

Honorary membership was conferred upon R. W. Wallace, A. J. Bliss, W. R. Dykes, R. I. Lynch, all of England, and upon M. Mottet, Ferdinand Denis, and M. Millet, famous iris authorities of France. H. C. T.

New York Florists' Club.

The New York Florists' Club met in its hall in the Engineering building, on the night of June 14. There will be a vacation during July and August, and the next meeting will be on the night of September 13. President Henshaw occupied the chair. The feature of the evening was the lecture of J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, Pa., on, "A Trip to the Antipodes and the Pacific Islands." The lecture was illustrated with many fine stereopticon views of horticultural and home life scenes in Hawaii, the Sandwich Islands and Australia. Noteworthy were the avenues lined with tall palms, the acacias, crotons, bougainvilleas, and other luxuriant growths of those far off islands. The pineapple fields, and the harvesting of the fruit, were also shown. Delphiniums of Australia made a fine showing. Mr. Thilow was warmly applauded, and given a standing vote of thanks. In opening his lecture, he made feeling reference to the late Patrick O'Mara, whose face he missed.

There was a fine exhibit of peonies and irises. I. S. Hendrickson representing John Lewis Childs, Inc., Flowerfield, N. Y., made an excellent display of large flowered peonies. Among the varieties were Festiva Maxima, Philomele, Madame Cabot, Venus, Duchess de Nemours, Lady Bramwell, Engenie Verdier and Golden Harvest. In irises, he had a good collection. T. A. Havemeyer, Glen Head, N. Y., also exhibited good collections of peonies and irises. The committee did not care to pass on peonies, owing to lateness of the season.

The committee on transportation to the Cleveland convention is preparing an eight page booklet to mail to all members of the club, which will give full particulars as to fare, etc.

The following were elected to membership: Lawrence C. Knapp, East Orange, N. J.; Carl Donhauser, Astoria, L. I.; Richard F. Nause, Staten Island, N. Y.; George I. Okkerse, New York; William Farrell, New York; Louis Bacos, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Richard W. Young, Clifton, N. J.; A. Lehman and Paul A. Winter, New York. Of those, Carl Donhauser and George I. Okkerse were present and introduced.

Suitable resolutions on the death of Patrick O'Mara and Maurice Fuld were read and adopted, the members standing during the reading.

The preliminary schedules for the flower show, to be held March 14-20, 1921, were distributed. The president will appoint a committee of five to attend the session of the national growers when it is held in Cleveland.

An appeal from the Salvation Army, to help in its drive, was read and $65 was subscribed in a few minutes. Further subscriptions will be received and duly acknowledged by Secretary Young. A. F. F.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Henrietta Suder.

Mrs. Henrietta Suder, one of the best beloved and best known business women in Toledo, O., died June 8, at her home, 2941 Cherry street. She had been ailing slightly for three weeks, having broken her arm, but her death came unexpectedly.

Mrs. Suder was the pioneer among Toledo florists, and was the first woman to engage in the business in that city. For years, her greenhouses on Cherry street have been the mecca for flower lovers. Some years ago, a fine conservatory was built, which was annually visited by thousands of people. Mrs. Suder was never happier than when showing visitors the flowers and plants which had matured under her watchful care. She was known and loved by people in all the different walks of life, her wonderful artistry with flowers, and her skill as a decorator, giving her a wide acquaintance all over the city and county. Visitors always received a few flowers, and went away with a deeper love for them, and a greater appreciation of the wonderful character of Mrs. Suder. Although she had arrived at an age when most have retired from active business life, she never lost her energy nor relaxed in her efforts to make others happy in the companionship of flowers. Throughout her long career in the florist business, Mrs. Suder made and retained the friendship of hundreds in the various branches of the trade, and at the time of her death, was a national figure, known from coast to coast. Her innate love of flowers, her generosity, and her beautiful simplicity of character won her the instant friendship of all with whom she came into contact. Many beautiful floral offerings from local florists, and from all over the country, revealed the esteem in which she was held.

Mrs. Suder was born in Buderstadt, Germany, 77 years ago, and came to Toledo in 1868. She was the widow of Ewald Suder, and is survived by a son, Armin, and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Galloway, who inherited her mother's exquisite taste and love of flowers, and who had been her faithful assistant for years. She also leaves five grandchildren, Arthur, James and Eleanor Suder and Henrietta and Joseph Galloway, Jr. A. C. K.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Hanna & Son are reported to have sold their greenhouses.

DAYTON, O.—It is reported Warren G. Matthews has sold his greenhouses and store business to Rölf Zetlitz.

WHEATON, ILL.—D. F. Hawkes has the sympathy of many friends in the death of his wife, who died June 5.

EVANSTON, ILL.—Florists of this city have joined the Sunday closing movement and no deliveries will be made on that day.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Due to the late season, the June exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society has been postponed until June 22.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Joseph Witek, well known florist, at 4748 McPherson avenue, has purchased 51 feet of ground on that thoroughfare and will erect a store and apartment building.

DES MOINES, IA.—H. E. Lozier, trustee of The Rosary, reports a settlement made with the majority of the creditors for 25 cents on the dollar. The Rosary has been sold to raise the money, and the business discontinued.

GLADIOLI and other bulb crops are looking well on Long Island, the weather being favorable thus far.

DUN'S reports 178 failures in the United States for the week ending June 12, 101 for the previous week, and 99 last year.

CAREFUL investigation shows that only three things warrant the big reductions in prices in some department stores: Too large profits in the first place, with fear of investigation; desire to get ready cash; and desire to force sales on account of temporary bad weather conditions.

THE federal grand jury at New York has indicted 48 men on a blanket charge of conspiracy in connection with the theft of $1,121,000 worth of merchandise in transit between states, and between this and foreign countries. The authorities state the depredations of the gang are at least $4,000,000 more than the figure named in the indictment; it is said 50 more arrests are impending.

ADDITIONAL TRADE EXHIBITORS.

The following have reserved space in the trade exhibition to be held in connection with the society's convention at Cleveland, August 17-19. These names are in addition to those published in the previous list: Ralph E. Huntington, Mentor, O.; A. Henderson & Co., Chicago; Lion & Co., New York; United Bulb Co., Mt. Clemens, Mich.; Wertheimer Bros., New York.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

WE are in receipt of the preliminary schedule of the New York flower show, March 14-20, 1921. Copies may be had on application to Secretary John Young, 43 West 18th street, New York.

Coal Going Abroad.

OUR GREENHOUSE PRODUCTS MUST PERISH.

Figures concerning our foreign trade in coal, and the effect upon domestic industries of heavy shipments abroad, are to be gathered during the summer by the interstate commerce commission, as a result of the passage by the senate, shortly before adjournment, of a resolution introduced by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts. In a recent statement, the senator pointed out that New England factories were closing down, and that industries in the middle west were facing a coal famine, while train after train of loaded coal cars made its way to the seaboard with fuel for foreign countries. In the resolution calling upon the interstate commerce commission to investigate this situation, the senate would learn what the effect of this great foreign trade, which has increased steadily during the past few months, is upon the industries of this country.

COAL EXPORT EMBARGO.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—An embargo on coal exports as a means of relieving serious fuel shortages in various sections of the country, notably in New England, was taken up for consideration today by several departments of the government.

Plant Quarantine Reform.

A meeting of horticulturists and others interested in plans for the modification of Plant Quarantine No. 37, advance announcement of which was made in our issue of June 12, page 1090, was held at New York, June 15, the session being called to order by T. A. Havemeyer, of Glen Head. J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., was appointed chairman and Wm. P. Rich, secretary of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Boston, acted as secretary. The programme included a number of excellent addresses and papers by E. R. Burridge, Boston, Mass.; Judge Hoitt, Nashua, N. H.; F. W. Kelsey, New York; John E. Lager, Summit, N. J.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.; Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., and S. S. Pennock and J. C. Wister, Philadelphia, Pa.

An executive committee was appointed which will confer and report back to a general committee, which will in turn take up the work with the various horticultural organizations of the United States. The executive committee includes the following: J. Horace McFarland, Wm. P. Rich, E. P. Burridge, Mrs. Francis King, Alma, Mich.; E. C. Vick, New York, J. C. Wister and Frederick Cranefield, president of the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society, Madison.

In addition to the above named, the following were in attendance: Wm. C. Endicott, president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, and Thomas Roland, Boston, Mass.; F. L. Atkins, Julius Roehrs and Edward Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J.; George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I.; Joseph A. Manda, West Orange, N. J.; Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; George Baldwin and James Stewart, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.; J. H. Fiesser, North Bergen, N. J.; Leonard Barron, Garden City, N. Y.; A. T. De La Mare, A. F. Faulkner, E. A. Hartland, A. L. Miller, F. R. Newbold, J. H. Pepper, John Scheepers, Max Schling, and W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., New York.

Plant Publicity Free.

The Commercial Club of Davenport, Ia., "made the whole town bloom," according to the Ladies' Home Journal for May, and more than one mile of window boxes were put in place on business houses and residences.

J. C. Vaughan reminds the editor that this is in line with, and a part of, the wider publicity open to the Society of American Florists, for which he has urged co-operation ever since the St. Louis world's fair.

When the business men of a wealthy community like Davenport feel called upon to boost the plant trade to this extent, and the Ladies' Home Journal feels disposed to give it free publicity worth thousands of dollars, if paid for at the rate the S. A. F. publicity committee is now paying for its advertising, it is surely time for the retail plantsmen of the country to revive the news publicity campaign formerly carried on by the National Council of Horticulture, the entire propaganda of which was carried forward at the sole cost of writing the articles.

Since writing the above, the Allied Florists' Association, printed, June 2, a 100-line paid advertiement in the Chicago Tribune, showing window box effect, which should, although two weeks late, be of value to the local trade.

Carnations Infested with Thrips.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Will you kindly inform me what is the matter with the carnations enclosed herewith? I do not believe they are affected by thrips. They are fresh cut, and I have many more in the same condition.

E. M. H.

The carnations are badly infested with thrips. When the flowers were pulled apart, they were found to be alive with this pest. With plants as badly infested as these, my advice would be to throw them out. The season of their usefulness is at an end, and to carry them along, will only harbor the thrips for the plants to be housed the coming season. I would also suggest as a good plan to fight the pest, that you spray the field plants regularly throughout the summer with nicotine preparation.

MARKET TAKES ON STRONGER TONE.

The changeable weather conditions during the past month have made the flower market very uncertain, but after a season of varying climatic conditions the sun is on duty again, and local greenhouses are beginning to bring out stock in good quantities. Roses have increased remarkably. The local Brunners which made their first appearance last week are now in top form, in many cases rivaling American Beauties in popularity. Ophelias and Columbias are also being suplied in exquisite color and gratifying length of stem. Among the spring and summer novelties, there are found some dainty specimens of centaureas, forget-me-nots and columbines; also, some especially attractive mignonette. Oriental poppies are making their appearance in the show windows. They are not being featured very strongly as a commercial article, but they produce a striking effect arranged in large baskets. Pot plants are hard to get. Primroses are practically a minus quantity. The few geraniums that come onto the market are disposed of at record prices. A few callas and Easter lilies are seen here and there, but receive very little notice from the trade. Gardenias and orchids are coming in great shape from the local growers and there promises to be an abundant supply for the wedding season which is now approaching. Sweet peas are unaccountably lagging. Local growers report that the season is from a month to six weeks late. The local cut of carnations has at last reached its normal standard of size and quality. The color is rich, the stems long and the keeping qualities superb. They are proving one of the most pleasing offerings yet placed upon the market. Iris is now in top form. Russian statice is on the market, and because of its strength and lasting qualities, finds favor with some classes of buyers.

NOTES.

Rosais Bros.' display of orchids exclusively has attracted much attention by the novelty of its arrangement and the profusion of the blooms. On a lattice work covered by velvet draperies, are hung crystal wall vases containing the cut blooms. At the top is an immense basket containing a plant bearing five or six of the blooms. The center in front of the lattice is occupied by a stand draped with same material, upon which stands another basket of the flowers. All about the bottom are pots and vases of orchids. These blooms, which were grown at the firm's own greenhouses, are all that could be desired in shape, color and size.

Flower enthusiasts of this city are becoming very much interested in the plans for the rose show to be held here June 29-30. The warm weather during the past week is bringing out blooms on the 300 varieties of plants grown in the city. According to the present plans, there will be 61 classes in the entries. Although this contest is not open to professionals, the dealers feel that anything which stimulates public interest in flowers, will undoubtedly be beneficial to trade.

Fred Rowe, of McCoy's Flower Shop, is featuring a new electric, "Say It With Flowers," sign in his window. It stands on a pedestal draped with green velvet, while waves of vary-colored light, passing over its surface, call attention to the florists' slogan. At the foot of the pedestal is a serpentine shaped willow basket, filled with a great variety of sweet peas.

Harry Day, manager of the Orpheum Floral Co., has an attractive offering this week of baskets of Columbia and Ophelia roses; trimmed with chiffon and ribbon which match the color of the flowers. This firm also has some of the first Shasta daisies shown here this season.

One of the most striking features of the opening up of the local rose crop in full swing, was the showing made by the Hollywood Gardens. The cut from this firm's greenhouses contained some of the finest specimens of Cecile Brunner and Ophelia ever seen in this section.

Some of the finest carnations ever seen in this market are being received from the Sumner Greenhouses. Their long stems and rich color make them a great favorite with the trade, and all that are offered are quickly disposed of at a good price.

The Woodlawn Florist Shop, which has been making a specialty of early summer novelties this season, is in the market this week with some very dainty specimens of mignonette.

WEDDINGS MOVE MUCH CHOICE STOCK.

Since the opening of the present month, there has been a steady demand for flowers of the better grades for June weddings. While there is a large supply of stock of most staple flowers, the movement has kept prices steady. Funeral work is also satisfactory. There are some excellent American Beauties coming in now. The Russell crop is also good. Cecile Brunner roses are in great demand and large quantities are cleaned up daily. Lily of the valley is coming in more freely at present and is in brisk demand for wedding bouquets. Cattleyas are reported scarce, with a brisk call. Gardenias are in short supply. Gladioli are now to be had in all colors and the quality offered is of the finest. There is a heavy cut of sweet peas arriving. Prices have dropped somewhat owing to the large supply, but all of this stock cleans up without difficulty every morning. The demand for pot plants is reported as being slow. Some finely grown calceolarias are being featured at the various stores.

NOTES.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has appointed Louis Capuro, assistant manager of the Powell street store, succeeding Fred Bertrand. Mr. Capuro is particularly well qualified for this position, owing to his thorough knowledge of the florist business, and it is in recognition of these qualities that he has received the appointment.

Much favorable comment has been heard this spring over the splendid calceolarias in the conservatories at Golden Gate park. No finer stock has been seen than which is now on exhibition to the public and reflects the greatest credit upon the greenhouse department of the park.

Mrs. E. Lymberry, proprietor of the Bessie Boston Dahlia Gardens, at San Mateo, says the weather has been very favorable for the growth of dahlias, and her acreage is in fine shape. She has a large number of seedlings, whose behavior she is watching with great interest.

Fred Bertrand, for several years manager of the floral department of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., has purchased the branch store in the Palace hotel. He is well known in the trade here, all of whom wish him every success in his new venture.

Almond Wheeler, of the Ruehl-Wheeler Nursery, of San Jose, says the past season was the most successful his firm has ever had. Despite the large acreage devoted to roses and fruit trees, his firm was unable to supply all demands.

Milton Tonini, manager of the Bay County's Seed Co., has 2500 roses in pots in bloom at his nurseries. He reports a steady demand for pot grown stock in flower, and usually carries a supply at his Market street store.

Kenneth S. Murray, of Redwood City, has his greenhouses looking in the best of condition. He has been sending in a steady cut of roses all season. He says his retail trade has been good this spring.

Ferrari Bros. are in with a fine crop of lily of the valley, which is much sought for these days. Victor Ferrari expects to have a steady cut all summer of this old favorite.

P. Conchi, of Colma, has been supplying this market with a fine lot of Ulrich Brunner roses. He has several acres of this fine variety, which he grows unusually well.

Shibuya & Tchida are now busy planting out chrysanthemums. They have a large stock again this year, which no doubt, will come up to their usual high standard.

Richard Diener has a splendid showing of giant delphiniums now in bloom at his nuresries in Kentfield. They are his own hybrids and all show wonderful size and coloring.

Arnold Belli, of the Art Floral Company, has purchased a Nash touring car and will spend his vacation in the northern part of the state.

The C. Kooyman Co. is receiving steady shipments of gladioli from its growers. They report a good shipping demand for this stock.

Charles Stappenbeck, who conducts the American Florist Shop on Polk street, says trade is good, particularly wedding decorations.

J. A. Axell says the shipping demand for Cecile Brunner roses and lily of the valley has increased greatly during the past week.

The Francis Floral Co. has been quite busy with decorative work, having supplied the flowers at several prominent weddings. JAMES T. LYNCH.

Nashville, Tenn.

BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

The supply of coal for next winter's requirements is now engaging the attention of the growers, who are meeting with more or less success in securing the desired commodity. While coal dealers are disinclined to make contracts for specified delivery, they seem willing to make concessions to a certain extent, and most of the florists are placing contracts, or rather securing promises of supplies by the carload at the mines at prices ranging from $2.50 to $4, and pay for their own hauling. Business in the flower shops has been quite good, with funeral work the greatest factor. There are also a number of weddings and other social events which hold the demand up to a satisfactory level. The supply has been good, and many excellent roses are now being received, among the leaders, Columbia, Russell, Ophelia and Premier. Carnations are also good but the supply is not large. Sweet peas are in great abundance, both in the stores and on the street. Plant trade continues to hold up well, although it is getting rather late for bedding. Prices, however, are holding up well.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Co. is progressing nicely with its range of five new houses, which will be ready at the opening of the coming season. This firm is now cutting some unusually fine roses and carnations. The Chattanooga branch has about equaled the main store in volume of sales.

Geny Bros. are cutting fine roses, especially Columbia and Russell, also carnations and sweet peas in great abundance. They have had a phenominal trade in bedding stock, filling many out of town orders.

The McIntyre Floral Co is now cutting a fine supply of orchids daily which meet with ready sale. They also have plenty of roses and carnations to meet the demand, as well as some late peonies. M. C. D.

BAKERSTOWN, PA.—The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is reconstructing its range here.

LAKE FOREST, ILL.—The North Shore Horticultural Society and the Garden Club of Illinois will hold a peony and iris show here, June 19-20.

SPOKANE, WASH.—Alexander Lowe, for 10 years florist of the city park system, has resigned and purchased a range of glass at Petaluma, Calif.

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

Business is good at this writing, and while there is considerable room for improvement, the total sales so far this month compare most favorably with those of the same period of last year. Peonies are in good supply and there are quite a number in storage, which means that several of the wholesale houses will have stock to supply their trade with at least for a couple of weeks or longer. The hot weather last week brought the crop in so fast that some of the dealers had all they could do to keep placing it in storage as fast as it arrived. Some stock intended for storage was so far advanced that it had to be placed on sale immediately. Roses are in good supply and are cleaning up well at good prices, especially Mrs. Chas. Russell, Premier and Columbia. American Beauty roses are in good demand. Ward are having a good call and the receipts of My Maryland and Mrs. George Shawyer clean up readily. The other varieties grown for this market are moving fairly well, although they have been sacrified at times during the past week when quantity lots were disposed of at extremely low prices. Gladioli are quite a factor in the market at this writing and some fancy stock is obtainable at attractive figures. Lilies are to be had in limited supply and the same holds true for callas. Sweet peas are about done and a few more days will about finish the carnations. Lily of the valley is not as plentiful as it has been, owing to the finish of the outdoor stock, which was unusually fine this season. Orchids are scarce. Miscellaneous stock is to be had in limited supply, such as daisies, candytuft, pansies, lupines, candidum, etc. Greens are still in short supply, especially adiantum and good ferns. New ferns are now arriving from Wisconsin, Massachusetts and other sections, which is relieving the shortage somewhat. Huckleberry is in strong demand here.

NOTES.

W. C. Johnson, of Memphis, Tenn., was here on business last week connected with the new store he is about to open there. He says that he is so confident that there will be continued business prosperity after the next democratic president is elected this fall, that he is making every effort to meet it. The A. L. Randall Co. is furnishing the entire set of store fixtures for his new place.

Miss Rose Kennicott, daughter of the late Hiram Kennicott, an early resident of this city, died at the home of her niece, Mrs. L. W. Comstock, of Ula, Colo. She had lived in Colorado for nearly 40 years. She was born in 1845 at "The Folly," the Kennicott homestead near Arlington Heights, and was the eldest of 12 sons and daughters.

AN iris and peony show will be held by the North Shore Horticultural Society, associated with the Garden Club of Illinois, at the Groton school, Lake Forest, Saturday, June 19, from 11 a. m. to 10 p. m., and Sunday, June 20, from 1 p. m. to 10 p. m.

Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, Cleveland, O., was in the city last week en route to California to visit her daughter. Mrs. Wilson expects to return in time for the annual convention of the Society of American Florists in her home city next August.

Miss Mary Grantion and Jim Mandes, of the Washington Flower Market, will be married the latter part of this month. The wedding will be held at the home of the bride's parents in Wisconsin.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. will install a new ice-box in the near future. This firm's sales for June, so far, have been extra heavy.

The J. A. Budlong Co. is cutting a fine supply of lily of the valley, which is good property at this writing.

Charles Kroeschell, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., recently celebrated his seventy-second birthday.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., left June 15 for California on a 10-day business trip.

Retail sales of bedding and vegetable plants continue good.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting heavily in gladioli, which are in strong demand. A good summer crop of roses at Morton Grove will enable the firm to take care of all of its customers during the hot weather months.

The John Kruchten Co. reports a strong demand for adiantum, which it is receiving in good supply regularly. Henry Kruchten will assist his father again this year in the greenhouses.

Vaughan's Seed Store reports good demand for cold storage bulbs and many inquiries for French and Dutch prices. Freesias are reported due in 10 days.

Peter Reinberg is moving a large supply of summer roses, which are in good demand considering the hot weather and the general market conditions.

Wietor Bros. have had a good call all season for plant stock, and are having no trouble whatever to move what they have to offer in double-quick time.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association has had a big June business so far, and the sales for last month established a new record.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, are cutting heavily in roses, which are moving nicely, especially Russell and Columbia.

Zech & Mann are moving a large supply of peonies this season, in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable stock.

Joe Pfeffer, with the Weiland-Risch Co., is enjoying a two weeks' vacation, part of which will be spent at Cleveland, O.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are strong on peonies and will have plenty to supply their trade with for several more weeks.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is having a brisk call for adiantum, which is a leader with this house.

Reid, 180 North Wabash avenue, was nominated for membership.

The New York Central railroad has been chosen for the trip of members and friends to the annual convention of the Society of American Florists, at Cleveland, O., August 17-19. Florists and others in the trade, with their friends, going to the convention via this city, are invited to join the party. Train schedules and fares will be announced later. President Waters has appointed every member of the club a booster for this convention party. Each member will act as a reception committee to all convention visitors.

A. J. Zech has been instructed to make arrangements for a bowling team. At the coming convention, our bowlers are again expected to capture the championship, as at the Detroit convention last year.

In the absence of Chairman James Morton, of the garden committee, President Waters reported the progress being made in the distribution of gardening literature, showing that much good work has been done.

The regular meetings of the club will be discontinued during July, August and September, but a liberal appropriation has been made the good-of-the-club committee to prepare an attractive programme for the October meeting.

SOCIAL EVENTS ADD TO GOOD BUSINESS.

There has been brisk business during the past week stimulated by June weddings, commencements and musicales, which have kept the florists busy with basket and bouquet orders. Stock is very plentiful with roses arriving in increased numbers. Carnations are getting smaller daily, and while sweet peas are about done for, a few are now being cut from outdoors. Peonies are coming in and meet with ready sale, although red is about the only color offered at present. Gladioli are selling fast.

BUSINESS HOLDS UP VERY WELL.

Business during the past week was very brisk, due to the numerous weddings, graduation exercises and funeral work, with the supply in proportion. The exceptionally hot weather, however, reduced the quality of stock in short order, causing many mildewed and small roses, sweet peas, very poor, and carnations nearing their end. With the closing of the public and high schools, we can clearly see the end of the successful season of 1919-20.

NOTES.

The postponed club meeting, June 12, was not well attended, due no doubt to the fact that all the boys are still very busy, and, as it was a hot day, decided to rest up. In view of the small attendance, not much of great importance was transacted. It was suggested to have our annual picnic at the same time and place as that of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association at Sheboygan, in July, date not yet set.

"Cony," as he was best known by that name, who had been a faithful employe of the A. F. Kellner Co., ever since its inception, died June 4, after an operation for appendicitis. It was also found that he had cancer of the stomach. His death was a hard blow for the Kellner Co., especially at this busy time, and the scarcity of help.

Mrs. Seaman, of Anderton & Seaman, who is residing in Chicago temporarily, paid us a visit a few days ago. We are more than pleased to report that she is rapidly recovering after her six months of severe illness.

Fred H. Holton, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., together with Mrs. Holton and their daughter, Ruth, left June 14, to attend the Shriners' convention at Portland, Ore. They expect to be gone about four weeks.

Herman Arndt, Jr., of Wauwatosa, who opened a retail flower store in that village in October 1919, discontinued that branch entirely, June 1, and is now doing landscape work.

Mrs. John G. Heitman left, June 7, for Cedar Lake, to be gone for about two weeks. We are pleased to report that she can again walk about unaided.

After a severe siege of dryness, which lasted for about four weeks and did considerable damage, the heavy rainfall, June 13, was more than welcome.

The state fair committee intends to do all the planting of beds and boxes at the fair grounds next week.

Henry Welke, head of the E. Welke Co., attended the republican convention at Chicago, June 8.

Gust Rusch & Co., report the arrival of the first locally grown peonies last week.

WEEK OF EXCELLENT BUSINESS.

The past week has been an active one for the florists of the Buckeye capital. Trade has been especially good because of the large number of graduation ceremonies and the attending social affairs. All of the florists have shared in this business, which will last for a week longer, covering the commencement exercises of the Ohio State University. This demand has tended largely towards corsages. Funerals have been quite numerous during the past week which also aided in the brisk demand. Parties and weddings are also one of the best sources of business. The leading flowers on the market at this time are roses, carnations, sweet peas, lilies and peonies. The latter were so numerous that they were a glut on the market and prices were extremely low. Roses are of good quality. Carnations are still excellent. Easter lilies are plentiful and find a ready sale. Plants are selling quite briskly. Householders are getting their lawn and porch decorations in shape, and as a result, all greenhouse proprietors report an extra good demand for geraniums, and trailing and clinging plants.

NOTE.

Many varieties of roses were shown at the annual rose exhibit held at the archæological museum at the Ohio State University, June 11-12. The display was under the auspices of the Columbus Horticultural Society. Prizes were offered for the best collection of roses, for the best individual rose, for the best Frau Karl Druschki rose, best three tea roses, best three hybrid tea, best five hybrid perpetual, best rambler spray, etc. Competitors were required to grow all flowers displayed and must not grow flowers for sale. Alfred C. Hottes, of the department of horticulture, of the Ohio State University, was in charge of the display.

JUNE BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

Trade during the past two weeks has been excellent, quickened by weddings, commencements and funeral orders. Bedding plants and seedlings of all kinds are much in demand. Sweet peas are excellent, while the rose supply has diminished. Peonies are arriving in small quantities.

CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the florists' association was held at the Osborne house, June 11, the feature of the evening being a most interesting lecture, illustrated with colored views by John Dunbar, on "Flowering Trees and Shrubs of North America and Northern Asia." The picnic committee reported that this event will be held the first week in August, the exact date to be announced later. The following were appointed chairmen of committees to arrange for their respective parts of the programme: Charles Vick, prizes; J. M. Keller and E. P. Wilson, sports.

MARKET GREATLY OVERSUPPLIED.

The market is still greatly overstocked, there being three times as many flowers as are urgently needed, twice as many as are required for the demand, which is very good for the season, and this leaves a lot of good, bad and indifferent stock that has to go into the wagon-load clean-ups on Friday and Saturday, at prices that bring tears to the eyes of the growers. The quality of the various lines is particularly good for the season. At no time in the experience of the oldest grower has there been a spring so favorable to greenhouse flowers. The past week, the inside stock has had to face the competition of the peonies, which were never better, or more plentiful. It is almost impossible to move any but the highest grades, and even these are sold very low. Roses are in crop with all the growers, there being a great surplus of short stemmed stock, which has to be jobbed off to the street men. There are still very good carnations, and plenty of them. Outside shrubbery, candytuft, feverfew, etc., together with southern gladioli, are a combination that hurts the greenhouse products. There are a lot of sweet peas that are able to hold their own in the race. There is a good out-of-town demand, which is a great factor in this market. Comparatively few growers appreciate the worth or volume of business created by first-class commission houses. These enterprising firms extend the market hundreds, yes thousands, of miles, and have built up an important and profitable trade that, but for their efforts, would have gone elsewhere.

NOTES.

There have been some very good community flower shows the past week or 10 days. The Lansdowne show was particularly good, there being excellent exhibits of roses, as well as herbaceous flowers. The quality of this exhibition is increasing every year. The Main Line show, in connection with the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, contained a wonderful lot of choice roses and all kinds of garden flowers. J. Otto Thilow, one of the judges, stated the quality of the various exhibits were the best he had ever seen of garden grown flowers. The Moorestown, N. J., local rose and flower exhibition, held in the town hall, was a gem. The hall had been beautifully decorated, and all the tables covered to the floor with white cloth, which made an admirable setting for the really fine display.

A wholesaler, who on a busy morning, was grading roses sent in by a careless or hurried grower, said it was singular how men, intelligent enough to grow good stock, paid so little attention to preparing it for market, which, if anything, had more to do with satisfactory returns than its quality. This grower has worked for months to produce this good stock, and then he fails to grade or pack it properly, and it only brings 50 per cent of what it is worth. He loses more in one hour than he gained in three months. "I wish some of these fellows," he added, "would come to town once in a while and see when their boxes arrive, how they open up, and compare their bunching and packing with others. It would do them a world of good.

Wm. K. Harris has taken up the lowly tradescantia, and finds ready sale for three-inch pot stock by the thousand. There is no greenhouse plant stock that is turned over as quickly as this. From a border on the floor of the house, under the edge of the center bench, good strong cuttings are always available. Six to eight of these into a pot of good soil, are rooted in a week, and another seven days, are a finished product, a luxurious, little plant that immediately finds favor with store patrons. A druggist, who has as a feature of his business an annual gift week, found this stock admirable for his purpose and used 1,000 in gifts to his customers.

Walter Davis thinks that the Society of American Florists should have a set of special-pattern glass vases, made and stamped with the famous slogan, "Say It With Flowers." These should be purchased by the various local florists' clubs and donated to hospitals, very few of which are provided with proper receptacles for the flowers that are so often sent to their patients.

A. B. Cartledge, Jr., Wilmington, Del., has bought out the business of the Biester Flower Shop, 1410 Susquehanna avenue, which he will run in addition to his Wilmington store. This is a good location. The business will be conducted along modern, up-to-date lines, handling flowers in quantity at popular prices.

The Frank M. Ross flower shops are each a perfect unit, but so systematised that they almost conduct themselves. They are three links of a chain that may soon have more added, for there is room in a number of busy residence centers of the city for just such enterprising cut flower stores.

There is a rumor that the baseball fever is breaking out again in the commission houses. The florists' club should have a picnic about the middle of July, with a good ball game as one of the features.

J. G. Styer, Concordville, who has 25 acres of peonies, stated that although he missed Memorial day, this was likely to be his best year, as he had found a great demand from northern markets.

MARKET SUFFERS FROM PEONY GLUT.

The past week has been a trying time for the wholesalers, but a top notcher for the street peddlers. It is generally blamed on the glut of peonies, for as one wholesaler has said: "If it were not for those peonies, we might be getting $5 per 100 for carnations; but the peonies have taken the carnations down with them. On many available street corners, from express wagons, and at the bridge and subway entrances, carnations have been retailing at 25 cents per bunch of 25, and peonies at about what was offered, never very much. Of course, in both stocks there was always a quantity of the best that brought fair prices for summer time, but the large surplus had to be sacrificed or lost, and much of it was lost. There is now some fine, native peony stock on the market, the trouble being that there is too much of it. All this has had an unfavorable effect on the market in general, though good roses, orchids and lily of the valley are least affected. Orchids are not over plentiful and are holding their own. Lily of the valley of good quality is up to $20 per 100. In all roses there is a wide range of prices, depending on quality, for what is the use of a retailer buying poor stock, when the best is cheap? In the minor offerings, such as cornflowers, stocks and daisies, it is hard to clean up. The weather turned hot, July 10, which has aggravated the situation.

June 14.—After three warm days, the weather turned much cooler, June 13, and there is a more cheerful feeling in the market this morning, but heavy supplies of roses are arriving, and with peonies and much other stock, it will be a problem to clean up. A number of weddings are reported for this week, but such decorations make little impression on an overstocked market.

NOTES.

Joseph Trepel, the Brooklyn retailer, June 12-13, filled an order from the Zionist Society for 4,000 boxes of flowers, containing a total, it is said, of 200,000 blooms, largely carnations and roses. The flowers were sold on the streets, June 13, by boys and girls for the benefit of the Zionist fund. Mr. Trepel, his brother, Adam, and several of the staff, spent all night of the 12th, and the greater part of the 13th, preparing the boxes and sending them out. For the work, William P. Ford, the wholesaler, accorded them the privilege of his store.

On June 12, Manager Hale, of the T. F. Galvin Co., arranged a $500 casket cross of gigas, and numerous other pieces for the funeral of W. P. Pressinger, late president of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. On June 25, this firm will arrange an elaborate decoration for the wedding of Mary Elizabeth Evens, to Henry G. Sharpe, of Providence, R. I. "Mary Elizabeth" is the girl that has acquired considerable fame through her candy kitchens.

We have recently had occasion to note the activities of N. Denis and S. Danas, who have a good store known as the "Subway Arcade Florist" at St. Nicholas avenue and 181st street. Only a few years ago, those boys were selling flowers on the street. In addition to the above mentioned store, they now have two others, one on 86th street the other on Lexington avenue.

M. Bommersbach, a retired florist of Decatur, Ill., was in this city during the past week. He is an old friend of the Chicago House of Vaughan, and visited Vaughan's Seed Store and other points of interest here. On June 12, he sailed on the S. S. Lapland for Antwerp, to visit his old Belgian home.

In addition to a great stock of novelties in cut flowers, a feature at the store of Geo. J. Polykranas, in the 18th street market, is a beautifully shaped rubber plant, 10 feet high and four inches in diameter at the base of the trunk.

Herman Kuhn and staff, of Sixth avenue and 50th street, arranged a handsome wedding decoration in the Lutheran church, 22d street and Eighth avenue, June 9. Many peonies and lilies were used, and there was a good display of palms and decorative green.

Messrs. Dolansky and McDonald, of Boston, Mass, were here, June 11, looking over their new quarters in the 18th street market, and returned home well pleased with Manager Sullivan's arrangements.

A. S. George, who has had large experience in the business, has recently taken a new and attractive store at 423 Richmond terrace, St. George, S. I.

Charles Hunt's Sons, Port Richmond, S. I., though growing a large stock of plants and cut flowers, continue a prosperous side line in vegatables.

Traendly & Schenck continue to receive a fine stock of roses from their Rowayton, Conn., greenhouses.

In addition to a large general stock, I. Goldstein, in the new market, is handling fine gladioli.

Exceptionally fine pink and red peonies are being handled by Wm. Mackie, in the new market.

G. E. M. Stumpp is now at Southampton, L. I., where he recently opened his summer store.

Gunther & Wantz, of Bellmore, L. I., are building another large house.

Charles H. Totty and wife now expect to sail for France, June 22.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, 216 Prospect Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

MUCH western corn is three to four weeks late.

SEED trade collections in general are considered good.

VISITED NEW YORK: Leonard H. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago.

FRENCH exchange at 13.20 is more favorable to the American buyer this week.

SEEDSMEN'S CONVENTION at the Hotel Pfister, Milwaukee, Wis., next week, June 22-24.

KENTUCKY weather on the whole has been very favorable to blue grass, although heavy rains have done some damage.

TRIMBLE MCCULLOUGH, of J. Chas. McCullough, Cincinnati, O., passed through Chicago, June 16, enroute to California.

DOWNERS GROVE, ILL.—Henry W Bruns, formerly with the Everette R. Peacock Co., Chicago, is now in business for himself here.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—F. P. Lilly, of the Chas. H. Lilly Co., Seattle, Wash., was a visitor this week on his way to the Milwaukee convention.

RAILROAD fares to California are quite low this season, and many others besides democratic conventionites are taking advantage of them.

IT is reported a number of retail and catalogue houses have arranged to advance the price of seed packets to 10 cents the coming season.

ONLY 107 members of the house of representatives, out of 311, are against free seeds, as shown by the roll call. How did your congressman vote?

GILROY, CALIF.—Roy Wheeler, brother of L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., will represent that firm at the seed trade convention this year.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district have had all the moisture needed for two or three weeks to come in the recent rains and their general condition is now most promising.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, June 16, were as follows: Timothy, $9.00 to $11.00 per 100 pounds. Red clover $25.00 to $32.00.

DAVENPORT, IA.—Mel L. Webster & Co. of Independence, have leased the first floor of a business block at Second and Ripley streets, into which it will move its local branch, October 1.

THE price of bags at Chicago, June 16, was $65. It is reported burlap bags in that market are selling below the basis on which they can be replaced by new stock at present Calcutta prices.

FRENCH advices of May 21 indicate a 10-15 per cent advance in the price of bulbs of Narcissus Grand Soleil d'Or, and at that time, from 30-40 per cent on Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora. 13 ctm.

SIOUX CITY, IA.—The receiver of the Alfalfa & Cereal Milling Co. reports the concern cannot continue in business, and that the court will in the near future probably order the receiver to dispose of the assets.

DAVID BURPEE and G. W. Kerr, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., who passed through Chicago, June 14, returning from the Pacific coast, say the California seed crop outlook is rather unfavorable on account of the drought.

MOST German seed growers are asking increased prices of 20 per cent and upward to cover cost of production, and some are planning to charge customers an additional 10 per cent, export duty, which it is expected the government will levy shortly.

VISITED CHICAGO: W. F. Therkildson and wife, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. Martin, of the Reynolds Commission Co., East St. Louis; Frank Leckenby, of the Chas. H. Lilly Co., Seattle, Wash.; George C. Thomson, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., returning from the west.

TOLEDO, O.—There was a fair trade in clover seed futures, June 14, several buying orders lifting October and December prices 25 cents. Cash was quoted at $25, October $25, and December, $24. Timothy, cash, 1919, was offered at $5.50. September, $5.97½, October, $5.85, December $5.85, March, $5.95.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—James Vick's Sons say the crops here need rain. This firm's aster acreage will be larger than last year's. There is a good stand of healthy plants and transplanting to the open fields is going forward satisfactorily. On account of the long, cold and dry weather, Phlox Drummondi will be a short crop. The stand of nearly all other flowers is fair to good.

CINCINNATI, O. — Charles Manthey, owner of Manthey's Seed Store, 208 East Fourth street, has acquired the property at that location on a perpetual lease basis. Mr. Manthey, who has occupied the property six years, bought it on a valuation of $35,000, the lot being 16x60 feet. The improvement is a five-story stone front. Numerous changes will be made in the building to provide larger quarters for Mr. Manthey's increasing business.

Peas and Beans.

The Alfred J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., wrote June 10, as follows:

"It is too early to give much of a report on pea and bean crops, which we are deeply interested in. The season is late both in Michigan and the west, and farmers are still planting beans and will probably continue until June 15 or possibly June 20. This same condition prevails in Idaho. Peas went into the ground rather late, and unless we have very favorable weather, with plenty of moisture, the crop is bound to be short. Our crop of peas in the Sacramento Valley, Calif., were badly damaged by frost in April. A few crops recovered, but many of them were so badly frosted they were plowed under.

"Farmers in Michigan, as well as the west, are curtailing their acreage for beans, either grown under contract or independent of contracts. The reason for this is the labor situation on the farm which is very bad. Therefore, the farmers are not able to undertake the acreage they would grow if conditions were different. Many contracts for beans have been cancelled, and many others have been reduced, and it has been difficult to re-write the contracts. Therefore, the acreage in Michigan as well as Idaho, will be curtailed to a considerable extent."

Nebraska Seed Crops.

Waterloo, June 10.—With a very cold and wet spring, seed crops have started out handicapped by being at least two weeks' late. However, this is not a condition to worry over, as it is believed there is ample time for the crops to mature properly. The stand of corn of all classes is very good, the acreage much less than usual, crops fairly clean, and weather at present very favorable to working. The reports from outlying districts are also encouraging, and no reason for any uneasiness about any of the crops is felt. We have tried to place a very conservative acreage on the orders booked. The general condition of finance, the sentiment of the public in regard to high prices, and the belief in the seed trade that lower prices will prevail (in which opinion we do not share) have all combined toward our planting a medium acreage.

R.

Fremont, June 10.—We have had a cold, backward spring, with many of the crops going into the ground from two to three weeks late. We believe, however, that most of the crops have shown a good stand, as we have not received many requests for replanting, but, on the other hand, we have not had reports as to crop conditions from any of our growers, the season not being sufficiently advanced. Our acreage, and we believe the acreage of most of the other growers, is considerable smaller than for the past several years, partly on account of the scarcity of high test seed sweet and field corn, but partly on account of the small and limited contract orders which have been placed by the seed trade. Under the existing conditions, we do not think the growers have felt it advisable to place a large acreage, and as we believe many of the large dealers have not placed contract orders, we look for a shortage of some varieties next season.

The weather conditions are now, and have been for the last two days, more favorable, but we will soon need rain.

E.

Connecticut Seed Crops.

Watson S. Woodruff, of S. D. Woodruff & Sons, Orange, Conn., writes as follows, June 11:

"With an almost unprecedented backward spring, as evidenced by the fact that considerable acreage of sweet corn is still being planted this week, although such planting should have been completed 10 days or two weeks ago, we cannot report a very satisfactory outlook in general. What biennial crops of onion, beet, turnip, etc., are planted, are looking well, but the acreage has been cut to probably less than one-third of normal.

Wholesale Price List for Florists and Market Gardeners.

"With prices of potato seed and fertilizer high, acreage has probably been reduced 20 per cent, so, as never before, "corn is king" in this state. I would not have it understood that this means that there is an abnormal acreage of corn, which is not the case, but a very much smaller acreage of sweet corn seed than for the past two or three years. However, in comparison with other crops, the corn acreage is probably greater in proportion, although it must be borne in mind that there is possibly a general reduction of not less than 25, and possibly 33 per cent in the number of acres of cultivated crops, generally speaking. Thousands of acres have been seeded down either with grass or grains, and with hay selling at from $50 to $60 per ton, it would appear like good judgment for farmers to give their land and themselves a long needed rest after the intensive cultivation of seed crops which has been going on during the war.

"For some years past, we have experience nothing in the way of a labor shortage compared with the conditions existing in 1920. What little help is available, we are paying $3.50 and $4 per day and with prices of everything entering into the production of a crop ranging from 25 to 50 per cent above any normal we have known in the past five years, if anyone can show where beet seed at 40 cents per pound, turnip at 25, onion at $1.25 to $1.75 per pound and sweet corn at $5 per bushel, will ever show the seed grower a profit in Connecticut, he will have to know more about the business than the writer. There is a strong feeling among growers that prices of seeds have "scraped bottom" for several months, and the swing must go back the other way, otherwise the inevitable must happen, namely, seeds will not be produced.

Washington Seed Crops.

J. E. Currey, seed specialist to the state of Washington, says: "Crop prospects for vegetable seed in the state are indeed somewhat discouraging, when compared to the wonderful yields of last year. The year 1918 ran over $5,000,000 to the producer, and for 1919, considerably more. In the Skagit valley, where practically all of the seed is grown, the crops are just about ruined. The turnips and rutabagas are a total loss. A careful estimate placed the cabbage crop at 20,000 pounds, as compared to 1,200,000 pounds in 1919. Beets and mangels are also a total loss, and it is doubtful if any spinach will be grown."

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., President; Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids Mich., Treas. Next annual convention September 1920.

STANDARD grades for Wisconsin potatoes have been in effect since April 7, according to the state division of markets and the state authorities have taken steps to see that the grades as established are strictly adhered to.

WISCONSIN will produce this year 150,000 bushels of certified seed potatoes on 20,000 selected acres, an increase of 25,000 bushels over 1919 production, according to the state inspection bureau. Rural New Yorker and Irish Cobbler are the varieties most commonly grown.

CANTALOUPE shipments from Brawley, Calif., according to the United States bureau of markets to June 6 were about 1,800 cars, compared with 1,600 cars last year. Owing to limited refrigerator equipment, shipments beginning June 7 were limited to 250 cars daily, pro-rating cars, basing allotments on acreage.

THE first car of tomatoes in the Crystal Springs, Miss., district, a solid shipment of Bonny Best, destined for Montreal, Que., was loaded May 31 about 10 days later than last year. The price was $2.65 per four-basket crate, f. o. b., cash, track. Cars of Globe or Detroit, sold on wire orders were expected to move soon after at $3 per crate.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 16.—Cucumbers, 2-doz. box, $2.00 to $3.00; celery, Florida, crate, $5.50 to $6.50; leaf lettuce, per tomato box, 15 to 17½ cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00; tomatoes, per crate, six baskets, $7.00 to $8.50.

New York, June 13.—Celery, per crate, $2.00 to $14.00; cucumbers, per dozen, $1.00 to $1.50; mushrooms, $1.50 to $3.50 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 20 to 40 cents; lettuce, per basket, 75 cents to $1.25; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.50.

Cucumbers in Wisconsin.

Cucumbers for pickles are an important cash crop in some sections of Wisconsin, where there are salting stations. They can be grown on a wide range of soils, says J. G. Moore, horticulturist at the University of Wisconsin, but gravelly or clay loams are preferred. Sandy soils are commonly used, but the crop is often smaller because of the difficulty with supplying the plants with sufficient water in July and August. The seed bed needs to be prepared early and well, he advises. A dust mulch should be maintained until planting time. This saves moisture, checks the weeds, and makes a better seed bed.

Well-rotted stable manure is the prize cucumber fertilizer. If enough is available, he advises broadcasting it before plowing. If the supply of manure is limited, it may be applied at planting time, either in the hill or in a dead furrow plowed where the row is to be Cucumber planting comes as soon as there is no danger of frost. In southern Wisconsin it begins about June 1, and it will be correspondingly later in the central and northern parts of the state.

Ten or 12 seeds are scattered over an area about a foot in diameter, the hills being about four to six feet apart. After danger from the cucumber beetles is past, the plants are thinned to four or six in a hill. Sowing cucumbers in drills has been gaining in popularity. The rows are about six feet apart, and the plants sown from two to four inches apart. They are thinned to from 12 to 18 inches apart.

Plant as late as possible to reduce the losses from the insect pests. Treat the seed, if disease is known to be present, and rotate the fields to avoid disease losses. Pick the cucumbers regularly and carefully to make the most of the crop. Shallow cultivation to control weeds and maintain a dust mulch is urged.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports to the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture for the period June 6-13, indicate produce values generally lower, with new potatoes slightly weaker and onion markets dull. Prices of new potato stock were slightly below those of the previous week. The movement of No. 1 Irish Cobblers was good at South Carolina shipping points at $11 f. o. b. for cloth top slat barrels. Eastern markets ranged $11-$13. North Carolina Cobblers ranged $10-$11 f. o. b. and $10.50-$13.50 in consuming markets. Double head barrels of Number 1 Spaulding Rose ranged $11-$14 in most eastern markets. Louisiana and Texas Bliss Triumphs ranged $9-$11.50 sacked per 100 pounds. Virginia cloth top slat barrels of No. 1 Irish Cobblers ranged $10.50-$14 in eastern markets. California and Texas onions held closely to last week's price ranges. The movement was quite slow in all markets, but those of the middle-west seemed to be the most unsettled. Texas Yellow Bermudas ranged $1-$1.50 per standard crate in eastern markets, and 75 cents to $1.50 in middlewestern cities. California Yellow Bermudas in standard crates ranged generally $1-$1.75 in consuming markets. Tomato haulings have been increasing at Mississippi shipping points, and fours, green, wrapped, declined to a closing range of $1.35-$1.45 f. o. b. cash track. The same stock ranged $2.25-$3.25 in Baltimore. Chicago closed $2.50-$2.75. The movement was moderate and the market unsettled at Texas shipping points. Closing prices of fours, pink, unwrapped, ranged $1.50-$1.80 f. o. b. Texas tomatoes in Chicago and Kansas City closed at $2.50-$2.65. Florida fancy Globes, in six basket carriers, ranged at the close, $4-$5.50 in eastern markets, and $6-$8 at middle-western points. Packed stock in Chicago ranged $8-$8.50. The rate of movement almost doubled.

Forty-fifth annual convention will be held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, June 23-25, 1920.

MICHIGAN will plant a victory highway from Port Huron to Chicago with apple trees.

NURSERYMEN'S CONVENTION at the Congress hotel, Chicago, next week, June 23-24, with get-together dinner the evening of June 22 at seven o'clock.

THE Missouri Botanical Garden Bulletin of May, 1920, gives a list of native flowering trees and shrubs suitable for Missouri and adjoining states.

FULL report of the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society, held at Reading, Pa., last week, will be found elsewhere in this issue, with numerous illustrations.

EVERETT, WASH.—More than 1,500 trees have been planted along the Pacific highway in memory of men from this vicinity who went into service. Further plantings will be made next year.

ELEVEN Wisconsin cities now have park board commissions, Appleton, Beloit, Manitowoc, Oshkosh and Madison operating under provisions of a special charter, while Wauwatosa, La Crosse, Superior, Cudahy, Rhinelander and Delavan have passed ordinances creating boards.

Apple Crop Prospects Good.

Reports to the United States department of agriculture, bureau of markets, indicate a normal or five-year average yield in the Hudson valley apple section of New York. In the western part of the state, as well as in Massachusetts and New England, conditions are generally favorable, except for the Baldwin variety, which does not show full bloom. Maryland sections indicate Ben Davis and Ganos, a full crop and 60 to 75 per cent for Grimes, Staman and York Imperial. The Ozark section of Missouri is estimated at 45 per cent of a full yield compared with 85 per cent last year, caused by freezes and cold weather. At Mesa Valley, Colo., 2,500 cars are anticipated. The forecast in the Wenatchee valley, Wash., is 11,850 cars, compared with 12,450 cars in 1919. Idaho expects 2,500 cars against 3,500 cars last season and the crop of Monterey and Santa Cruz counties in California are said to promise about 80 per cent from present appearances.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Pot Grown Roses.

The hybrid perpetual or rambler roses after blooming, if desired to force another year, in order to bloom them early should be grown in pots during the summer. They can be pruned back after blooming and lifted, or if in pots should be repotted. This will require a good, strong soil, composed of two-thirds loam and one-third manure. When potting be sure to give good drainage and pot firmly, ramming the soil down hard. It is impossible to grow roses successfully in a loose soil. The plants should be plunged to rim of the pot outside where they can be freely watered. Avoid, if possible, placing them against the greenhouse or other building or against a fence, but plant them where they will have a free circulation of air and can be sprayed from either side. If planted against a building or in close quarters, they frequently become infested with red spider during the hot weather and it is nearly impossible to get rid of them.

Cyclamens.

The plants of cyclamen should now be growing rapidly, especially those which were grown from seed sown last fall. These plants should now be in four or five-inch pots and the foliage growing full and strong. If the plants are plunged in a frame, they should be lifted out of the soil occasionally to see that the drainage is not stopped up. There is nothing that will ruin a young growing cyclamen more quickly than to have the drainage get closed and have the soil become sodden with water. Angle worms will often cause this and, if they are detected, should be removed. It is very easy to find whether they are in the pots. If the soil on the top of the pot is rolled into small lumps, it is a sure sign that there are worms in the soil. If there are but a few, the plants can be knocked out of the pots and the worms removed; if there are many, a watering of limewater will soon rid the soil of the worms. The plants that are in small pots should be potted up as fast as they require it, that they may be as large as possible for the holiday season, but do not go to the other extreme and pot in too large pots. As soon as the roots get around the side of the pot, shift them into the next size larger. If the plants are in the greenhouse, a close watch for thrips must be kept during the summer. If the foliage is twisted when the leaf begins to unfold, it is sure to be caused by insects, and the plants should be sprayed with a nicotine solution. To have good plants for the holidays in full bloom they must be constantly watched and well grown.

Mignonette.

To be able to cut fine spikes of mignonette in early winter will require an early start, and although it demands care and attention to germinate small seeds during hot weather, yet it will be necessary to sow seed early in July in order to have a cut in by the holiday season. A north propagating house is one of the best locations for the sowing of seeds in summer. Mignonette does not transplant from the seed flats successfully, so it is better to sow it in 2½-inch pots, five or six seeds to a pot, which can be thinned out to one to two plants as soon as they are large enough to select the strongest. Some growers prefer to sow the seed in hills in the bench, but to grow the large spikes of this flower requires a soil very heavily manured, and the constant watering often sours the soil before the plants have pushed out roots enough to absorb the water. As soon as the plants have attained a height of two or more inches the tip should be pinched or rubbed out, in order that the plant will branch, and again later these branches will have to be pinched off, until there are six or eight good strong shoots. The plants will grow in most any kind of good soil, but to get the best the compost should be about one-half partly decayed manure well mixed in the soil, and this will produce splendid spikes of bloom. After the plants begin to form their leaves, a careful watch must be kept for the cabbage worm; these worms are very fond of mignonette, are voracious eaters, and soon denude the plant. They are a little difficult to find, being of the same color as the leaf, but are generally found along the midrib of the leaf or on the stem. Growers who cultivate large quantities of this crop screen their ventilation with mosquito netting to keep out the moth which lays the eggs. The plants should be set about one foot apart in the bench and staked or tied in some suitable manner to keep the stems straight and erect.

Asparagus Plumosus and Sprengeri.

It is a good time now to plant, reset or renew the soil of asparagus beds, either plumosus or Sprengeri. If the beds are to be set out with young stock preparation should be started at once. Asparagus plumosus does better in solid beds, well drained, with a good rich compost about two feet deep. The plants should be set 12 to 15 inches apart and the shoots given strings upon which to climb as soon as they begin to grow. But little cutting should be done the first year, as it is necessary that the plants become well established. The old beds should be given a good mulch of half-decayed manure, and if possible, without injury to the roots, remove the top soil. Asparagus Sprengeri can be successfully grown in the bench, but also requires a good rich soil. The young stock the first year should be planted 10 to 12 inches apart, and will produce many stems that can be cut. The beds that have produced this year will require a renewal of the soil. It is better to replant them than to try to renew the soil in the bench. The plants are great feeders and the bench is generally full of roots after a year's growth, and it will be found difficult to keep the bench watered during the spring of the second year. If the plants are too close together, they can be given more space in resetting. Good large plants will do better if set about 15 inches apart. If a mulch is attempted, care should be taken to use no fresh manure, but manure that is well rotted. The ammonia that arises from fresh manure will affect the plants, turning the foliage light and in severe cases the foliage will become nearly white, making it worthless.

ALBANY, N. Y.—The florists' club of this city will hold its monthly meeting and annual outing at the establishment of James Snyder, Rhinebeck, N. Y., July 10, making the trip by auto.

WELLESLEY, MASS.—Mrs. Eliza Tailby, widow of the late Joseph Tailby, pioneer florist of this city, and mother of W. W. Tailby, prominent in the trade in this section, died recently, age 82 years.

BOSTON, MASS.—Filene's Department Store, occupying one of the finest buildings in this city, is made doubly attractive this year with more than 500 window boxes containing geraniums, fuchsias, hydrangeas, etc., with edgings of English ivy.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The coming period closes the first six months of the year, and is the opportune time to balance the books and see exactly what the harvest has been. In the retail store, it is the time for stock taking, which important matter is far too often neglected. Some put it off until they "get more time," or "there will be lots of opportunity before fall," etc. It looks like a big job, but in the majority of shops, it will not take long, and there is great satisfaction in having a list of just what is on hand and its value. A number of things are found that are shop worn or need repair. All such, after being valued, can be placed to one side, and at the first chance, fixed up to look as good as new. Do not keep junk; if any of the various items of stock need repair, and can be made good, set them aside for this purpose, if not, throw them away at once. It is very seldom that anything unsalable is ever retrieved when it is pushed into a clutter corner or bin, as it keeps getting worse all the time.

Gloxinia Imperialis.

All fancy basket and other stock for which there is but little demand at this time, should be put away and protected from dust and flies, so as to be presentable when the fall season opens.

The months of July and August, in the downtown stores particularly, show the lowest ebb in business, and in many such shops there is no profit, and generally, quite a heavy loss during this summer period. Such a condition can be avoided by keeping everybody busy on work for the fall and winter months. In the first place, there is an every day demand, month in and month out, for wreaths, which culminates at Christmas in a tremendous rush for all the various styles. Many put off the making up of these standard Christmas designs until late in the fall when the season is in full swing, and then there is great hustle and bustle, and frequently, a lot of night work, delays in getting stock and other difficulties to overcome.

By working up the hundreds of prepared magnolia wreaths in varied shapes and sizes that it is known will be required, stock of the most valuable kind, because of being ready, frees skilled labor for other work and is always at hand.

Very many of the fancy wreaths, made of Japanese chenille, prepared ruscus, green, white red, silvered and gilt, dyed lycopodium, statice and other grasses, cones, thistles, small palm or sago leaves, etc., are better made at this time. Much of this stock can be stemmed and packed away and worked into the fresh boxwood, pine, spruce and other Christmas greens when such stock is available. All the supply houses are glad to furnish such material at this time, as it is much easier to deliver than in the congested transportation period of the fall and near holiday seasons.

An inventory of two months' intensive work of this character would show a splendid balance on the right side of the ledger, and do away with all dull summer periods.

Rambler roses and Hydrangea arborescens, together with sweet peas, larkspur and other outside flowers, are now plentiful and should be used freely in store and window decoration. Impress upon customers that what they should have now is seasonable flowers and color effects. Larkspur and Dorothy Perkins roses work splendidly together in vase bunches. A large vase of Hydrangea arborescens in itself makes a very showy window piece.

Arrange the vacation schedule. It is very important to fix the various periods in advance, as then everyone has time to make reservations.

Get a good looking screen door for the front entrance. With the permanent door open, the summer screen keeps out the flies, and much of the dust, and has a cool, inviting look. A medium sized palm leaf fan or two should always be within reach to offer to customers on a hot day. They are greatly appreciated.

How is your Florists' Telegraph Delivery business? Keep it to the front all the time. It is sure, as Secretary Pochelon says, to become your biggest customer. Your greatest profit is in the business you create in your own store, so keep this "instant delivery to any distant point," always in sight. It will pay you.

Do not miss the S. A. F. meeting in Cleveland, August 17-19.

In the Store.

Waterproof, green crepe paper is one of the standard requisites of the store, of which the stock should never run out. At spare times it can be cut in the proper lengths for the various sized pots and kept laid flat in a drawer or box for the purpose. Each store has its own way of handling this paper. A good plan is to turn over about an inch of the edges, top and bottom, and by gathering and pulling an inch or so at a time, make a ruffle about an inch in depth on each edge. This presents a good finish when tied on the pot. The edges of the paper may be pinned to hold it to the pot, or it can be tied with silkaline. A bow of narrow ribbon the color of the flower of the plant in bloom, around the pot, makes a good finish.

Passe plants, or those that have outlived their usefulness, have gone out of bloom, or dropped a portion of their leaves, should be at once removed. They are not saleable and cast a doubt on good fresh stock with which they are apt to be in contact. Some dealers reduce the price on plants at once, as they begin to lose their flowers and freshness which, if it does not move them, is again lowered. This is on the principle that it is better to take a partial rather than a total loss. The store that never delivers anything but first class stock will throw the old plant out and charge the loss to advertising. We have known such management, however, to buy yesterday's violets for a funeral blanket, because they were good enough for the purpose. Truly a bad case of ethics.

Cleanliness is a great factor; where the business will warrant the employment of a porter, he will be found a most useful member of the organization. All the stock in the store should be dusted at least once a week, all the china, glass and pottery ware wiped clean and the shelves kept clear of dust and litter of all kinds. All mirrors and the glass of cases and refrigerators need constant attention. Where flowers are handled, the counters and tables should be kept mopped or wiped up, as lady customers often carry packages which are laid out of their hands and ruined by wet counters. A clean floor adds 50 per cent to the appearance of the store. Walnut stained and varnished floors soon look shabby; linoleums and oilcloths wear bear in spots in a year or less. The best floor is tile, or mastic, which latter is comparatively new, but appears very satisfactory, as it can be laid down on the boards without preparation.

Pulling Stones from Foundation.

George E. Roberts, vice-president of the National City Bank, New York, in a recent address delivered at a meeting of the Wisconsin Bankers' Association said: "There are authentic instances in Ohio of manufacturers sending agents through the farming districts to induce labor to leave the farms, which is a good deal like taking stones out of the foundation to put them in the superstructure. There is great danger in a situation like that."

KENOSHA, WIS.—An appropriation of $15,000 for the erection of a conservatory in Sheridan park has been authorized by the park board but some opposition to the action is anticipated.

Plant Quarantine No. 37.

NEW YORK CONFERENCE.

The conference held in the American Museum of Natural History, New York, June 15, to discuss plans for the modification of Plant Quarantine No. 37, was called by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. At the opening, Secretary Wm. P. Rich, of that society, who also acted as secretary of the meeting, read the call. A. C. Burrage, of Boston, Mass., who owns a noteworthy collection of orchids, read a statement in behalf of his society. It was able and forceful; not so much a protest against any and all quarantine as a plea that the enforcement be not arbitrary and sweeping. A very rational suggestion by Mrs. Burrage was that stock should be inspected, and if necessary, treated or even destroyed at the point of entry rather than at Washington or any one place that could only be reached from certain parts by long hauls. He advocated two inspection points on the Atlantic, two on the Pacific, and one in some southern port of entry. He read a letter from Professor Sargent, of the Arnold Arboretum, Boston, which stated that on account of complications involved through Plant Quarantine No. 37, the Arboretum had been compelled to give up the importation of trees and plants.

It may here be noted that this alone is a distinct loss to this country, as the Arnold Arboretum has long been noted as a most complete collection of noteworthy plants and trees. Judge Hoitt of Nashua, N. H., spoke on the legal aspects of the question. He quoted E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum, as favorable to plant inspection, and in certain cases, quarantine, but firmly opposed to arbitrary methods.

J. C. Wister spoke for the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society. With other arguments, he put forward one which about the time Plant Quarantine No. 37 went into effect, was advanced by F. R. Pierson, to-wit: That injurious insects might be imported in lumber, fruit and other material. F. W. Kelsey advised that no further attempts should be made to have the federal horticultural board modify the quarantine, but that the matter be taken up directly with the secretary of agriculture. It will be recalled that former Secretary Houston is now in the treasury, and that Mr. E. T. Meredith is now secretary of agriculture.

J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., president of the American Association of Nurserymen, expressed dissatisfaction with the composition of the federal horticultural board, but stated that as the annual convention of the association is near at hand, he could not say what its official attitude would be.

It was voted that a permanent organization be formed, consisting of one delegate from each organization represented at the conference. This permanent committee follows: E. C. Vick, American Dahlia Society; I. S. Hendrickson, American Gladiolus Society; S. S. Pennock, American Rose Society; F. R. Newbold, Garden Club of America; Mrs. Thomas Newhall, Garden Club of Philadelphia; J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston; T. A. Havemeyer, Horticultural Society of New York; W. C. Endicott, Massachusetts Horticultural Society; M. C. Ebel, National Association of Gardeners; Miss Hoyt, New Canaan, Conn., Garden Club; J. A. Dawson, of Olmsted Bros., Boston, Mass.; F. R. Pierson New York. Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, also of the Society of American Florists; Joseph A. Manda, New York Florists' Club; E. K. Thomas, Rhode Island Horticultural Society; F. Cranefield, Wisconsin Horticultural Society; Mrs. Frances King, Women's National Farm and Garden Association; F. W. Kelsey, American Forestry Association; Miss Peckham, New Rochelle, N. Y., Garden Club; R. Vincent, Jr., Baltimore Florists' Club; Miss Bell, Flushing, N. Y., Garden Club; Leonard H. Vaughan, Horticultural Society of Chicago; Mrs. Pendleton, Cincinnati Garden Club; H. Vaniseck, Newport, R. I., Horticultural Society; J. C. Wister, Pennsylvania Horticultural Society; Mr. Olmsted, American Association of Landscape Architects; J. Edward Moon, American Association of Nurserymen; Leonard Barron, Garden Magazine, New York; A. T. De La Mare, New York.

J. Horace McFariand, Harrisburg, Pa., was elected chairman, and Wm. P. Rich, secretary, of the permanent committee. An executive committee was then chosen as reported in our issue of June 19.

An offer of $400 each from the New York and Massachusetts Horticultural Societies, to defray immediate expenses, was accepted, and all other organizations represented in the conference are to be requested to promptly contribute for future needs. Secretary Rich was also designated as treasurer.

On motion of John E. Lager, a standing vote of thanks was tendered all the delegates attending, particularly those of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. On motion of Leonard Barron, a vote of thanks was tendered Professor Sargent for his able presentation of the situation. After the committees have conferred, if necessary, another conference will be called.

A. F. F.

Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago.

The annual meeting and stag banquet of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago was held at the Randolph hotel, June 17, and was well attended, about 100 being present. The banquet started shortly after seven o'clock, and the first sight that greeted those that entered the room was the beautifully decorated tables of roses and carnations. After the assemblage had posed for the photographer, and were comfortably seated, President Kohout appointed T. E. Waters, president of the Chicago Florists' Club, to officiate as toastmaster. The entertainment committee, headed by Paul E. Weiss, was certainly entitled to the vote of thanks that it received, for the vaudeville bill that was presented was excellent, and the best that any local trade organization ever witnessed at any of its meetings. Eddie Hunt sang several songs, assisted by the musical director.

The business meeting followed the banquet, and Hilmer V. Swenson, secretary of the Allied Florists' Association, gave an interesting talk on advertising, mentioning that about $10,000 had been spent during the past three months for space in the local dailies, featuring flowers for all occasions. He had a book of proofs of all the advertisements, so that the members could see how the money was being spent. Fred Lautenschlager and T. E. Waters also addressed the meeting and spoke on advertising, mentioning the good work that was being done by the local trade, and urging everyone to keep it up. There was considerable discussion in regard to the National Flower Growers' Association, to be organized at Cleveland, O., during the S. A. F. convention, in which August Poehlmann, Otto Amling, Peter Pearson, W. J. Keimel and others took a prominent part. A telegram was received from J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, congratulating the society on the splendid work it had accomplished during the past year.

Peter Pearson, Chicago, Vice-President.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Joseph Kohout, president; Peter Pearson, vice-president; Otto H. Amling, secretary, and N. J. Wietor, treasurer. R. J. Windler was elected chairman of the membership committee, and Walter A. Amberg to succeed himself as a member of the executive board. The other hold-over members of the executive board are Rudolph Ellworth and George J. Ball.

The meeting adjourned after the election of officers. Everyone present had a most enjoyable time; in fact, one of the best ever, and those who were unable to be present, missed one of the best meetings held since the organization was formed.

John Canning Gives a Dinner.

A writer of fiction might make it appear that the 20 or more gentlemen who journeyed from New York to Heather Dell Farm, Ardsley, N. Y., the estate of A. Lewisohn, June 19 went there to view the many natural beauties of the great estate, of which we shall have more to say. But a historian, as Mr. Gadgrind would have said, must deal in facts and the leading facts are that the aforesaid gentlemen made the pilgrimage to get a good dinner, a real home dinner, not served in "portions"—New York style—but in abundant quantity.

John Canning is superintendent of the Lewisohn estate, and he and his clever and estimable wife, gave the dinner in their own home on the estate in honor of Charles H. Totty, of Madison, New Jersey, who with Mrs. Totty, is about to make a trip to Paris. On the afternoon of June 19, the guests who went by train from New York, were met at the station by automobiles from the estate, and whisked off to the Canning home. In the dining room, was a long table that seated the whole company. And the dinner! None of the push-cart products concealed under foreign names, but real American food, prepared and served in the language of the United States. There can be no doubt that all who had the good fortune to be present, will long remember that dinner—and wish for another like it. Mr. Canning, a man of great versatility, and his pretty young daughter, were active in looking after the welfare of the guests.

F. R. Pierson, a veteran who has survived many hotel and restaurant dinners, sat at the head of the table with Mr. Totty. Before the activity of the dinner had started, Mr. Pierson, in gallant language, proposed that the real genius of the dinner arrangements, Mrs. Canning, be presented. She was escorted to the dining room by her husband and received an ovation, three cheers and a "tiger." Language fails to properly describe the culinary accomplishments displayed in the preparation of that dinner. Such chicken! Such quantities of potatoes, green peas and asparagus, ripe cherries and other home products, were wonders to the city men, but the surprise did not—as sometimes happens—in the least affect their appetites. After ample justice had been done to all those bounties, Mr. Pierson made appropriate and complimentary remarks relating to the host and hostess, and the dinner and called upon Mr. Totty, who was eloquent in a similar vein.

After the dinner, several hours were spent by the guests under the guidance of Mr. Canning, in viewing the many fine features of the estate. Those that had not previously visited it, had gained some knowledge of its products from its exhibits at the spring and fall flower shows, but to see it, is to see a model country estate. Hundreds of acres of beautiful rolling land, wide, and perfectly kept lawns, great forest trees that must have shaded the red men when they were the only inhabitants; fruit orchards; herds of cows, hiding their eyes in clover; great flocks of chickens. These are some of the features of this noble estate. The strictly horticultural and aboricultural features deserve more then passing mention. There are capacious conservatories, well stocked and perfectly cared for. The large gardens, where roses and practically all old and new varieties of flowering plants are grown, are arranged on the natural plan. Along the walks and drives are rows of trees and banks of beautiful shrubbery, much of it in flower at this time of year.

Those present were: Charles H. Totty, the guest of honor; F. R. Pierson, Frank H. Traendly, Max Schling, Fred W. Payne W. H. Siebrecht, Sr.; A. F. Faulkner, Charles Weber, Henry Weston, Julius Roehrs, A. M. Henshaw, Geo. Hildenbrand, J. H. Pepper, Arthur Herrington, W. H. Duckham, Phil. F. Kessler, Alex McKenzie, John Scheepers, Walter F. BELOIT, WIS.—The Beloit Nurseries staged an exhibition of peonies in 44 varieties, thousands of irises, daisies, lilies, roses, etc., June 12-13, which attracted hundreds of visitors.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—More than 1,000 persons attended the show of the Amateur Flower Growers at the Hotel Muehlebach, June 13. There were over 60 exhibitors in the 48 classes.

SHORT HILLS, N. J.—The Short Hills Garden Club staged an excellent exhibition, June 23, participated in by the garden clubs of Summit, Morristown and Bernardsville. Roses were the special feature.

THE ROSE.

Planting Suggestions.

June is the month that usually finds the rose grower with all of the young stock planted, and the small grower seldom has a chance to bench his young stock earlier than this time, as he depends on his June cut very often for the wedding and commencement business, and with only a few houses to cut from he cannot well afford to employ any of them much earlier, unless a bench or two here and there. However, we would advise any one that has any planting to do, to get at it and rush things along, so as to have nothing to be planted in July. Get the stock in some time during the month, and not later than the 20th, if possible.

To those that still have some planting to do, it may be a help to offer a few suggestions in reference to the planting, although there is nothing offered in these notes that is new or original, yet there is always someone that is going into indoor rose growing that a few timely hints may help, and for this reason we will repeat some of the planting methods that have been used for many years by our most successful growers.

First, if the stock is to be planted on raised benches, the benches should be well drained, spacing the boards at least three-quarters of an inch apart, and using bottom boards, six inches wide, placed crosswise of the bench, with the scantling nailing pieces about five inches from the ends of the boards. The sides should be of 1x6 cypress, resting on the bottom boards and held in place by nailing them from underneath. The joints can be reinforced by using pieces of board taken from glass boxes placed over the joints on the inside. This stiffens the joints, and will prevent warping.

When ready for the soil, the bottom of the bench should be covered lightly with straw or old hay of any kind, to prevent the soil from going through the drainage cracks. This is important. Next comes the filling. Fill the benches level full, but do not pack it at all at this stage. If the soil is a little rough, it will be all the better, and with a man on either side of the bench, the rough soil or coarser pieces of soil can be spread out ahead of the workers on the bottom of the bench and the fine soil left on top. Remember that it is important to have the soil thoroughly mixed, so all the plants will have an equal chance when planted. After filling the benches level full, without packing, we usually get right up on the bench and pack the soil firmly by walking on it, and making it as firm as possible with the feet. Then we go over it by hand and level up the uneven surface. This leaves a little less than five inches of soil to plant in. We are now ready for the plants, or will be as soon as the rows are laid off. This can best be accomplished by taking a strip about one inch square and measuring off the distance between the rows on this stick, driving a 12-penny nail through the stick at these marks, and when placed in the right position on the bed, a guide nail should be driven through the strip, bearing on the outside of the bench siding, with a man on each side of the bench to pull the "ship," and by keeping the guide nail against the outside board, the rows can be laid off absolutely accurate, and as fast as one can walk. Then mark off the second row the distance desired for the plants in the row, which we usually make from 14 to 16 inches apart; 14 inches is usually enough for any of the commercial varieties we now grow, and for American Beauty, 16 to 18 inches in the row. Plant with a trowel, and be sure that the plants are planted low enough. To determine this, plant several plants, then pack the soil firmly around the plants, leaving a saucer-like depression about six or eight inches in diameter. After making this depression, if the ball shows, the plants are planted too shallow, or if grafted plants are used, the union should just show above the saucer, then when the beds are finally leveled, the union will be under the surface an inch or so, which is right. The advantage of planting this way, is to give one a chance to water the plants individually, and to keep the greater amount of the soil in a fresh condition. A piece of window sash weight, about eight inches long, we have found an ideal tamper to pack the soil around the plants, its own weight being sufficient to pack the soil firmly by going around each plant three times, keeping away far enough so the ball of the plants will not be crushed. If packed too firmly, the packing will have a tendency to force the plant up, so go about the work carefully as this operation must not be done hurriedly or carelessly. After scooping the soil away from the plants, carefully leaving the saucer (as we call it) about eight inches in diameter, the plants are then ready for the water, and they should get a good soaking by filling up the saucer and moistening the soil between the plants to about an inch below the surface. Remember, it is only necessary to keep the soil between the plants wet on the surface, so as to keep the air humid at all times, the plants receiving the water, proper in the depressions. In about 15 days, or as soon as the weeds get growth enough to remove them without breaking them off, they should be carefully weeded and we have found that it pays to let the weeds get this start in order to remove them all at one weeding, then the soil can be leveled with the hand rakes or hand cultivators and the beds can then be given the regular watering. We prefer to give the growing plants a fairly good watering daily instead of slopping them one day, and letting them go several days before watering again. In good clear hot weather, they should be watered almost daily, and syringed early in the day and again near the noon hour or between one and two p. m. in extremely hot weather.

The grafts should be staked immediately after planting, otherwise many plants may be broken off at the splice when spraying, and no plants should be left without the stake supports very long, as lying around any old way soon gives the red spider a chance, and when they get a start, real work begins. A few don'ts will simplify things somewhat. Here are a few:

Don't let the plants be selected by anyone. See that the young stock is selected carefully when knocking them out.

Don't plant in wet soil.

Don't forget to loosen the raffia on the grafts before planting.

Don't be afraid to plant too deep.

Don't keep the plants in mud by sloppy watering.

Don't fail to keep the surface of the soil moist at all times, but not wet. This keeps it fresh.

Don't expect too much from the plants themselves. Remember they are depending on your skill to help them deliver the goods later, "so go to it."

The solid borders can be planted in practically the same way. The preparation differs somewhat if the plants are to be renewed. Then all of the old soil should be removed, and the sides of the beds (if wood sides are used) repaired. Then apply a liberal amount of good ground bone. This should be spread on the sub-soil, about 50 pounds to 400 square feet. Spade this under, then fill with the compost, or if the compost has not been prepared, the soil can be brought in and the amount of manure required placed over this and the whole bed gone over and thoroughly mixed, then firmly packed as directed for the benches. As for the watering, the solid borders will, of course, require somewhat less than the raised benches, but as stated above, get your planting done at the very earliest opportunity, or rather make this opportunity. Let nothing prevent their being planted this month, if you can help it. E.

National Publicity for Flowers.

Not all the plays upon "Say it With Flowers," made by a friendly press, come to the attention of our promotion bureau, but it is gratifying to realize that it is being used continuously, and in this way, we are helped in our efforts to perpetuate the best slogan ever created in the interest of an industry. It was even used by special writers in recording the doings of the recent republican convention, as the following taken from Neal R. O'Hara's columns, and published as syndicated matter in the New York Evening World, as well as many other newspapers: "The guys that framed the platform certainly "said it with flowers. There are plenty of bouquets for the G. O. P." The slogan was used the same week as a caption for a humorous illustration in "Life." In "The Youth's Companion" July Bulletin, a little monthly organ of the publishers widely circulated, a little squib suggests, "If you must protest against great wrongs and injustice on every side, why, "Say it With Flowers."

We are always pleased to note instances such as these, and we are sure all interested in our campaign share our pleasure. They prove beyond a doubt that our slogan has been accepted, and that our efforts to put it over have been successful. One of the clippings we have referred to was brought to us by a publicity expert of national reputation. "Your slogan is marvelous. Use it how you may, there is a suggestion of one of its many interpretations." He was right. Had our campaign no other result than the popularizing of this slogan, such result would have been worth all the hard work and expense entailed in accomplishing it.

Very many florists appreciate this success. Many more do not seem to realize our advantage, and are apathetic in their views regarding our campaign. Surely, the time has arrived for shaking off this indifference, and warming towards our work. Our committee has been able to do, in part, what they started out to do. They could have accomplished all, had they been given the support they had a right to expect. Instead of the good, deep scratch on the surface of the field of possibility now making itself apparent, the field might have been yielding a rich harvest for every florist laboring in it—and this harvest is yet within reach if the florists will but help. Instead of enjoying our benefits on the installment plan, we could have them in a more appreciable way. If the committee's plans for our fall publicity can be carried out to the full, we can, in the coming season, accomplish completely what, so far, we have only been able to do in part. Our fund at this time only amounts to less than half of what was required. If all those who have not yet subscribed, would render the little assistance asked of them, it would not take long to make up for lost headway, and we would proceed to our goal conscious of the fact that success would most assuredly be ours. In your own interests, Mr. Nonsubscriber, and in the interests of your industry, you should delay your support no longer. To make permanent the good effect of the campaign so plainly apparent, we must continue with our publicity work, and to do this we need money, your money, to help build up your business through the stimulation of a demand for flowers, which until our campaign started, was dormant indeed. Help us to help you.

WEDDINGS AND FUNERALS MAIN FACTORS.

Trade keeps moving along in a steady manner. The chief demand is for stock for weddings and funeral work. All the stores are displaying attractive baskets of spring flowers chiefly. The stock of roses is quite heavy with reasonable prices being obtained by the growers. Every variety is to be had in large quantities. Gladioli are being more prominently put forth than ever. America and Halley of the finest quality are being offered. The first dahlias are now coming in and enjoy a good market. All colors can now be seen. Some very good carnations are receiving attention, with steady prices. There is a great oversupply of poor grade stock, which is being peddled on the streets. Laddie is in brisk demand with not enough to go around. Cattleyas are scarce and bring from $1.50 to $2.00 each. Gardenias are few and high in price. We have a fine supply of sweet peas and the quality is much ahead of last season. Lily of the valley is in brisk demand for weddings. Delphinums are good sellers. Some nice rambler roses are still being shown at the various stores.

NOTES.

F. Gonzalez, at his nursery and greenhouses at Ocean View, has made very extensive plantings of ericas for next season. He has over 30,000 young ericas coming along, all of which are planted in nursery rows. Mr. Gonzalez is gradually retiring from active management of the business, leaving it to his two sons, who are experienced plantsmen.

That the past two or three years have been periods of much profit to the Japanese growers in this vicinity, is shown by the fact that over 12 different owners of growing establishments have engaged passage for Japan to spend the summer in their native country. With one exception, all will return to this country next fall.

Domoto Bros. are still supplying this market with large stocks of Lilium giganteum. They planted more of this lily than any other grower last season, and will have a heavy cut, right along throughout the season. Their rose houses are also furnishing a large cut at present.

Julius Epstein, the St. Francis hotel florist, has booked several large decorations for the week of the democratic national convention. Fred Bertrand, who recently acquired the MacRorie-McLaren store in the Palace hotel, has also quite a number of decorations for the week.

The Art Floral Company has received a large shipment of kentias from Santa Barbara. Manager P. V. Matraia has also purchased the entire stock of bay trees, held by one of the large nurseries. Business is said to be satisfactory at the Powell street store.

A state-wide gathering of horticultural interests, to be known as the state plant pathological congress, will be held in Porterville, June 25-26, for the purpose of acquainting all nurserymen and fruit growers with the cause and prevention of plant diseases.

The flower shop of A. Du Val Williams, at 503 Ellis street, has been removed to 1806 Polk street, where a much larger and commodious store has been leased to take care of the growing business.

F. Davis has resigned from the employ of the Art Floral Company to take a position with Elmer Bros. nursery at San Jose. He is a nurseryman of wide experience, and will be in the propagating department.

Paul W. A. Grallert, of Oakland, has his greenhouses in fine shape for his plant trade next season. He has a large stock of cyclamens, which give every promise of being fine specimens by next fall.

"Say it With Flowers" is being sung nightly at the Casino theater in this city, and is becoming very popular.

BAD WEATHER CAUSES LIGHT DECREASE.

Local growers are still laboring under the handicap of unfavorable weather. However, the trade demands have not been so insistent as during the past few weeks, and the balance between supply and demand is satisfactorily maintained. The wedding season is coming into full swing, and the business from commencements is proving encouraging. Funeral work has been a little heavier than usual. The late peonies arrived this week, and all the stores are well supplied. Though the quality is very good, and color attractive, the number grown in home gardens interfere with their value as a trade article. The Shasta daisy, which is now coming in with fair regularity, proves a good seller. Although there are more carnations this week, they are not as plentiful as was expected. Some very fine Enchantress are being shown, which, with the exception of deep color, which has suffered somewhat from lack of sunshine, are all that could be desired. The white varieties are closer to the ideal standard. Laddies are still being received from Spokane. Local gladioli are coming to the front nicely. Mrs. Francis King, although very widely used for display purposes, has not attracted a very large number of buyers. The sale of cut flowers has been helped very materially by the wedding and commencement trade. Of these, roses are the leaders in popularity. Ophelias have been strongly featured in wedding bouquets. A few baby roses are shown, but their popularity is impaired by their condition upon arrival from southern markets. There is some concern over the lateness of the outdoor sweet peas. Although there are a few arriving at present, there is not near the normal supply. Orchids are being offered in larger quantities than ever, and enjoy an unusual sale.

NOTES.

The Hollywood Gardens sent three very striking baskets this week to Yakima to be used in the opening of the new Liberty theatre. One is plain, filled with pink gladioli, while another is a big silver basket, with a handle in the form of a trapezoid, standing at least four feet high. It was filled with gladioli, roses and orchids.

Anna Burns, of the Burns Floral Co., is putting in a new background in the show windows of the James street store. The building, being on the west side of the street, the bright light-colored background will be a great help in relieving the contrast of the darker flowers.

Wm. Goldsbary, of Kenney's Home of Flowers, reports a very active business in funeral work during the last part of the week. Some of the largest pink peonies seen in the market form a very attractive background for his window display.

C. B. Clancy, retail florist of Salem, Ore., was here during the past week. He left an order with a local greenhouse for a large number of carnations, which he will use in decorating his float for the rose carnival at Portland.

Probably the largest single piece of funeral work produced in this market was prepared this week by Rosaia Bros. It was a basket, decorated and filled almost entirely with orchids, the value being about $250.

C. H. S.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

June 17 was an ideal June day, warm with an abundance of humidity in the air, the humidity developing into a rain storm about 5:30 p. m., the greatest downpour we have had for at least a year; result, a very slim attendance at the club meeting, as this is about the time the majority of our members have to start for the gathering.

The session was held at the home of Ira Landis, at City Mills, an ideal spot for a magnificent old-time country mansion. Mr. Landis has several acres of peonies in bloom, a good sized block of delphinums and about five acres of gladioli, everything in the pink of condition. In gladioli, he has all of the good commercial cut flower sorts in quantity, and the largest stock of (White Wonder or White Giant, which is it?) in the world. The greenhouse is filled with sweet peas in good crop at this date, and the balance of the farm to regular Lancaster county farm crops. The house deserves special mention, as it is a typical type of the old-style aristocratic mansion, with immense rooms, very high ceilings, and an open wood fireplace in every room, and built to last for generations.

The meeting was called to order about 8:15 by Elmer Weaver, a past president, as neither president nor vice-president were in attendance. The question of the forming of a unit of the National Flower Growers' Association was part of the programme, but on account of the small attendance, this was carried over for action at the picnic in July, when a short business session will be held for this purpose.

Final arrangements for the picnic were made, which will consist of a short visiting trip, and the regular picnic features, to be held at Rocky Springs, with a five o'clock dinner served as a get-together affair. Any one desiring full details, and wishing to join with us, can get full particulars by writing to the secretary, Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa., R. F. D. No. 8.

The paper of the evening was read by Mr. Giblin of Giblin boiler fame, Utica, N. Y. It was on heating greenhouses. The paper was highly appreciated, and many were the questions fired at Mr. Giblin for further information. In fact, there are two Mr. Giblins, father and son, and our only regret was that they arrived too late, and left too early next morning to give us an opportunity to show them this part of the world. They were given a vote of thanks by the club.

After adjournment, Mrs. Landis, assisted by her two daughters, served refreshments to what seemed to be a pretty hungry crowd, and about 10 p. m., a start was made for Lancaster in another downpour of rain, but none of us had any regrets for having turned out for the meeting.

National Flower Growers' Association.

Attention Western Growers:

I expect to be present at the all-day florists' outing to be held at the establishment of the Pinehurst Floral Co., Pleasant Hill, Mo., Monday, July 5. All growers desiring information regarding the proposed new national growers' association are kindly invited for a conference.

J. F. AMMANN,
Temporary Secretary.

Coal.

Public utility interests have sent a strong telegram to the president, urging that he take action at once to prevent the export of coal. The president will not act favorably on it at this time, his view being that American fuel is vitally necessary to the rehabilitation of Europe, and should be furnished, even though it involves some sacrifice.

[Every greenhouseman has his own views on this subject, and should write his representatives in congress now, stating them clearly.—ED.]

American Rose Society.

Theodore Wirth, superintendent of parks, Minneapolis, Minn., in a communication dated June 19, says:

"Members of the American Rose Society and in fact all rosarians and lovers of roses, are invited to visit the Minneapolis rose garden at Lyndale park, Monday, June 28, when it is expected that the garden will be at its best. The severe winter resulted in the loss of a good many plants, and the garden is not as attractive as in former years, but most of the plants are in good condition, and some of them are exceptionally good. The display is well worth a visit, and all visitors may be assured a hearty welcome by those in charge. The Minneapolis rose garden is one of the test gardens of the American Rose Society."

CORNELL TEST GARDEN VISIT POSTPONED.

It has been found necessary, because of the lateness of the season, to postpone the pilgrimage to the rose test garden at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., from June 25 to June 30, 1920. The college is to hold a series of farmers' field days from June 30 to July 2, inclusive. An interesting series of lectures and field trips have been arranged. The members of the American Rose Society will meet in the garden at 1:00 p. m., where talks on classification of roses, also on their culture will be given.

Tour of South by Florists Proposed.

Robert C. Kerr, well known florist of Houston, Tex., and one of the live wires in the trade in all that makes for the advancement of the profession, has sent the following communication to florists throughout the country under date of June 19:

"I have been thinking for sometime of inauguarating an excursion during the month of March, 1921, through Texas and other southern states. Before going too far into details, I would like to have expressions from the florists in the different sections who would be interested. The object of this excursion would be to familiarize the trade throughout the country who will make the trip through Texas and the south in general, and to let them know what we have in this section of the country, in order that you may thoroughly understand the wonderful possibilities of our great southland.

"While we have not gone into details, I have given some thought to the matter, and would suggest that we make up a special train leaving some central point, possibly Cleveland, which will be a better mobilizing point for the florists from the east, and also around Detroit and Chicago, and then be joined by the florists in St. Louis, and add to our party as we come down the line.

It strikes me that this would be a great opportunity for an excursion composed exclusively of florists and the allied trades to enjoy a wonderful trip during the months that affords great possibilities, and see the country at the time of the year when the florists can get away, and when the climatic conditions are ideal.

"I would suggest that we go as far south as the Brownsville country, and present the following itinerary: Cleveland to St. Louis, St. Louis to Kansas City, Kansas City to Oklahoma City, Oklahoma City to Dallas and Ft. Worth, Waco, Austin, San Antonio, Houston, Galveston Corpus Christi, and Brownsville, returning via New Orleans, and if arrangements justify, go as far east as Atlanta, Ga.

"This is a tentative proposition. Are you interested? Have you any suggestions to make? I would be pleased to hear from as many as possible by the time our Texas State Association meets in Ft. Worth, in July. This move will be sponsored by the state association, if sufficient interest is shown.

"We have nothing to sell you, and there is nothing behind this move except to show you our country. Going in a party, and as a train, the expenses would be materially reduced.

"Please let me hear from you at the earliest possible moment.

PITTSBURGH CUT FLOWER CO., 116-118 Seventh St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Reading, Pa.

This city, with its over 100,000 inhabitants, is a thriving wide-awake community which keeps the florists of this section "stepping lively" to supply the demand for their products. Giles, the Florist, 125 South Fifth street, J. S. Giles proprietor, who recently succeeded to the ownership on the death of his father who founded the business many years ago, has a very complete establishment. A wide store front, with two large show windows, a nicely fitted up store room opening into a greenhouse in the rear, gives excellent facilities for conducting their large retail trade. Mr. Giles reoorted a splendid business for the season just closing. Eighty bouquets of yellow daisies for the girls' high school had just been finished on the morning of our visit.

Harry C. Huesman, Schuylkill avenue and Greenwich street, whose greenhouses and newly erected store are in a residence district, has just purchased the property on which the houses are built. His stock looked very well, and business for the season was the best ever experienced. Mr. Huesman was recently elected president of the Reading Florists' Association.

J. C. Bauder, 848 North Tenth street, has a showy corner shop, with large garage in the rear, over which is a greenhouse. During the spring season, a series of flat boxes on high frames, fitted with wheels, are filled with bedding stock, and when ranged alongside the store, resemble a greenhouse bench. They are pushed into the garage at night.

Bertrand H. Farr's Wyomissing Nurseries with their extensive plantings of irises and peonies, contain perhaps the largest stock of these plants in this country. Members of the American Peony Company, which held its sessions here, June 10-11, were delighted visitors to the many acres of these flowers in full bloom.

Heck Bros., Wayne avenue, Wyomissing, who are situated in a high class suburban residential district, have quite an extensive range of houses and a well fitted up shop. Bedding plants as well as cut flowers are specialties. Their past season's business has been very satisfactory.

The Mohican Peony Gardens, in Wyomissing, are commercial growers who specialize in peonies. They had a very good collection which attracted attention and was much admired by members of the peony society.

F. D. Shearer, 712 Penn street, is right in the thick of things. He is making a specialty of ripe tomatoes, having a large crop grown among the carnations at his Wyomissing greenhouses.

Paul Blackman, Jr., 116 North Ninth street, on the edge of the retail district, has a nicely fitted up and well stocked store. He has enjoyed a very good season.

H. A. Beyler, 46 North Ninth street, has a good retail shop, and stated that he had all the business he could handle the past year. K.

Nashville, Tenn.

MODERATE DEMAND OVERCOMES SURPLUS.

Conditions in the flower market continue unchanged, and while the supply is generous, there is as a rule, a cleanup when the stores close for the day.

NOTE.

The McIntyre Floral Co. has been awarded $10,000 damages by the chancery court from the Prairie State Fertilizer Co. for the destruction of plants in the greenhouses as well as growing outside from phosphate dust and acid fumes attending the manufacture of the company's product in its factory nearby. Attention Mr. Johnson

Gentlemen: We bought one of your small electric fountains last December. We have used this fountain continuously on an average of 14 hours every day and it has given absolute satisfaction in every respect, not only as an asset in beautifying our store, but as a profitable investment for table decorations.

We find it very simple and very dependable and something that we can get numerous effects out of for various occasions.

We would like you to send us two more of the same style fountain at once.

Yours truly,

Muehlebach Flower Shop

Hugo R Neff

HRN:K

THE motor in the Randall Electric Fountain must be of the highest grade to drive the water continuously through the spray ring back into the splash pan and back into the spray ring again.

During the war the difficulty of obtaining a sufficient number of motors rugged enough to stand this wear made it advisable for us to discontinue the extensive production of electric fountains until such a time as we were able to insure our custom a high grade motor.

This time has now arrived and we are now installing in our fountains a motor even better and more powerful than the one used before the war.

The letter from the Muehlebach Flower Shop, shown above, is adequate proof of the ability of our fountain to stand up under hard service.

We suggest that you write us today for information and prices.

BUSINESS HAS BEEN GOOD THIS WEEK.

Business has been good this week, and the market cleaned up completely in all lines, June 19, when a large supply of stock that had accumulated all week was disposed of at fairly good figures. Good fresh cut stock brought very satisfactory summer prices and cleaned up quickly. Carnations have seen their best days, and while there are a few good flowers still obtainable in this item, they are not much of a factor in the market. Peonies are to be had in quantity at prices ranging from 50 cents, 75 cents and $1 per dozen, with extra fancy stock bringing a trifle more. Gladioli are more plentiful and are in strong demand at good prices, and there is no surplus to speak of when the stores close at night. Roses are in splendid demand and clean up right along, especially Mrs. Charles Russell, Columbia and Premier. A few American Beauty roses are included in the shipments, together with the other varieties grown for this market. A few Butterfly roses have made their appearance, and this variety, so far, has all the good features of a winner. Orchids are exceedingly scarce, and lily of the valley is hard to obtain at any price. The best lily of the valley is bringing $12 per 100. Sweet peas are about done. A few callas are seen and there is a fair supply of daisies, calendulas, lupines, stocks, snapdragons and other miscellaneous seasonable flowers to be had. The supply of greens is none too plentiful, although ferns are arriving in larger shipments. Adiantum is in strong demand, and there is a brisk call for smilax, plumosus and Sprengeri. Business for the month of June, so far, has been good with the total sales showing a great increase over those of the same period of 1919.

—UNANIMOUS—

OUR CONGRATULATIONS are extended upon the results achieved the FIRST YEAR by the COMMERCIAL FLOWER GROWERS of CHICAGO.

WHAT was once a desire—what was once mostly talk has become a REALITY—A PRACTICAL FACT. THE COMMERCIAL FLOWER GROWERS of CHICAGO have accomplished much in their TRADE ACTIVITIES and were the OPENING WEDGE to a NATIONAL GROWER'S ORGANIZATION.

WITH the FIRST ANNUAL MEETING to ELECT OFFICERS the UNANIMOUS ACTION RE-ELECTING their officers is proof that they have pleased the growers.

To MR. JOSEPH KOHOUT as President—his executive CO-WORKERS and their most capable and energetic Secretary, Mr. Otto Amling, because of them we owe our thanks for having made the CHICAGO MARKET BETTER.

NOTES.

William Moss Berry, the first superintendent of the South Park system, who died June 21 at the home of his son-in-law, J. N. Buchannan, 5555 Kenwood avenue, was buried June 23 at 2 p. m. Mr. Berry was 90 years old. He was the builder of Grand, Drexel and Oakwoods boulevards, and Washington park. He started Jackson park, the Midway and Garfield boulevard.

Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, had a big day June 22 when funeral orders were numerous, a dozen designs going to one place. His "duck window" is attracting so much attention that the police are often forced to disperse the crowds that block the traffic.

Manager John P. Degnan, of A. Henderson & Co., and long identified with the seed trade in this city, leaves this week for California and says he may locate there. Mr. Degnan has a warm spot, all his own, in the hearts of hosts of friends wherever he goes.

Leon Glow, of the A. L. Randall Co.'s cut flower department, joined the ranks of the benedicts June 22. His many friends in the trade join in wishing him success in his venture in matrimony.

F. S. Webb of the Wholesale Florists' Credit Association, will issue a rating book about October 1. Mr. Webb will be pleased to answer any question in regard to this book from any dealer in the trade.

Zech & Mann are handling a fine supply of peonies, which are in good demand this week. The shipping trade is exceptionally brisk, and the city demand is very good.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a good supply of summer roses, among which are included some well-grown blooms of the new variety, Butterfly.

Bassett & Washburn are growing the new roses, Crusader, Dunlop and Butterfly, and will be cutting quite heavily in these varieties in the near future.

The iris and peony show of the North Shore Horticultural Society and the Garden Club of Illinois at Lake Forest, June 19-20, was a great success.

A. T. Pyfer and family are spending their Sundays and spare moments in touring the surrounding country in a new Ford sedan.

J. D. Polites, of the Atlas Floral Co. leaves this week for northern Wisconsin on a fishing trip to the Manitowisch regions.

Chas. Erne says that Erne & Co.'s sales for June 19 were so good that they reminded him of a small holiday business.

Miss Charlotte Paradise, of A. L. Vaughan & Co., will leave June 26, for New York, where she will spend her vacation.

Joe Marks, with A. Henderson & Co., is the proud owner of a Buick. Simon Dernison of the same firm has a new Reo.

H. O. Brown, who is well-known to the local trade, is representing the A. L. Randall Co. at Detroit, Mich.

George Sykes, Sr. of Lord & Burnham Co., and wife are back from a pleasant visit to California.

Peter Reinberg left this week for San Francisco, Calif., to attend the democratic convention.

Vaughan's Seed Store reports unusual demand for both seeds and plants at this late date.

John A. Michal, 7045 Stony Island avenue, has invested in a new Wescott touring car.

D. E. Freres is again located at his old stand in room 218 in the Atlas building.

Fred Krell, 3021 Southport avenue, is the proud owner of a new Stutz car.

W. N. Rudd and P. J. Foley are fishing in Wisconsin this week.

Visitors: Mrs. Charles DeClerg and son, Green Bay, Wis.; Charles S. Heacock, manager for Mrs. T. S. Hillyer, Austin, Tex.; Miss Faulkner, of the Apollo Flower Shop, Kansas City Mo.

Texas State Florists' Association.

The annual meeting of the Texas State Florists' Association will be held at Fort Worth, July 20-22 and an unusually large attendance and fine trade exhibition is anticipated. The arrangements are in the capable hands of R. C. Kerr, of Houston, and W. M. Baker, V. P. Davis and L. J. Tackett, of Fort Worth. The programme promises to be an especially interesting one, and a number of prominent members of the Society of American Florists from northern states will be among the speakers. H. O. Hannah, of Sherman, president of the state association, says the trade in Texas has enjoyed a wonderfully successful year, and the meeting will reflect this condition.

SUPPLY KEPT WELL CLEANED UP.

Thus far, the month is showing a good volume of business. The spring rush generally ends with Memorial day, but this year, late orders are cleaning up many little blocks of surplus stock. This, with June weddings, and catching-up on neglected work, is giving little respite to the growers. Good stock continues to command excellent prices and the supply is none too plentiful. Some very hot weather with drying winds, has put the carnations on the down grade.

SUMMER BUSINESS ABOVE COMPLAINT.

With bright weather during the past week, market conditions have been quite brisk, and with numerous weddings and commencements there has been a good call for white stock. Roses and sweet peas in that color and lily of the valley are, therefore, cleaning up well, and there promises to be a slight scarcity in these lines. Lilies are in abundance; in fact, there is a glut in this offering, but choice stock moves fairly well. Roses are still holding on nicely and going good. Carnations do not amount to much as the hot sun is having its effect on them. Sweet peas are arriving in good numbers and have a good sale. Delphiniums are moving freely at $8 per 100. Gladioli are now at their best, with good demand at $8-$10 per 100.

NOTES.

C. A. Ohmer, of Florida, who motored to this city from his home at West Palm Beach, is visiting E. G. Gillett. He says business in his state is excellent.

Lynn Barnaby, of Columbus, Ind., who has been visiting his uncle, H. W. Sheppard, says trade in the Hoosier city is very good.

Mrs. Edward Schuman, recently operated upon for appendicitis, is reported improving rapidly.

The Wm. Murphy Co. is featuring some excellent phlox. This firm reports good business.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has among its offerings some good lily of the valley.

L. H. Kyrk is showing some fine Ward roses at his establishment.

There was a good demand for all kinds of flowers during the past week. All of the downtown shops reported a good volumne of trade, with bright prospects for the coming week. The big feature is the demand for weddings and social functions. Commencements are now about over, and that source of demand is stopped, but on the other hand, there is a good call for weddings and parties. Funeral work has also been active, and on the whole, trade has been generally satisfactory. Roses, carnations and sweet peas are the principal flowers in the local market. There is also a fair quality of Easter lilies and peonies, but the latter are rapidly disappearing. There is still a good demand for plants of all kinds, although some are now out of the market. Geraniums are selling fairly well, and there is also a good call for daisies.

NOTE.

Greenhouse proprietors in this vicinity and central Ohio are making strenuous efforts to get an adequate coal supply during the summer months in view of the expected acute shortage in the fall. Already some of the houses are well supplied for a part of the winter at least.

J. W. L.

Rochester, N. Y.

GOOD DEMAND BUT GREAT OVERSUPPLY.

There is a superabundance of all seasonable cut flowers in this market at present. Peonies are in oversupply and carnations are a drug. Commencements, weddings and like events have, however, made a great demand. Sweet peas are excellent and the supply strong. Roses are of fine quality and prices are well maintained. Outdoor lily of the valley is gone and the indoor product is scarce. Bedding plants and seedlings are still being disposed of in large numbers.

NOTES.

The New York State College of Agriculture, working in conjunction with the American Rose Society, the American Peony Society and the recently organized American Iris Society, will hold field days at Cornell University, Ithaca, June 30-July 2. Its collection of plants in the three groups are said to be among the best in the country. There will be an outdoor demonstration, June 30, of the value of perennials for home gardens. On the afternoon of the same day there will be a round table discussion of all phases of rose culture. All professional and amateur growers in the state are invited to attend these meetings.

H. E. Wilson is making a specialty of colonial bouquets for commencements, and weddings.

GOOD STOCK IN AMPLE SUPPLY.

The most gratifying feature of trade at the present time is the excellence of the stock being received at this season. American Beauty, Premier, Columbia and Ophelia roses are still of good quality, and with local peonies at their best, there is no lack of good material. Carnations and sweet peas show the effects of warm weather, but outdoor stock is coming along nicely. Cattleyas are fairly plentiful and move freely. Business is good, with many wedding orders and other decorations fairly well scattered through the various stores. Outdoor planting is about finished, and dealers in bedding stock report a good season.

NOTES.

The retail florists' club will hold its annual outing at Hanlon's Point this year and a general invitation is extended to all in the trade, which it is expected, will bring out a record attendance.

Box and bay trees have been in excellent demand this year, and although imported in large numbers, many more could have been sold.

Frank Duffort is making a big hit with his Helen Michell geraniums which are commanding the highest price.

Carl Grobba of Mimico has sold his north farm of 27 acres. The land will be laid out in a sub-division.

Thomas Manton has some hybrid cattleyas in bloom, of which he is justly proud.

Campbell Bros., of Simcoe, have been sending in choice poenies from their farm.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., June 9, President Thomas Twigg in the chair. Felix Wood and Angelo Faminletti were elected active members and two petitions for membership were received. Messrs. Macdonald, Lucking and Smith judged the exhibits and their awards were as follows: James McCarthy, first for 12 mixed roses; John Henderson, first for three heads of lettuce; William Popp, special; best decorated basket by assistant gardeners, Arnold Gatticar, first. Joseph Wimsock showed a fine vase of roses, which received honorable mention.

A letter of sympathy was sent to the relatives of the late Maurice Fuld.

President Twigg presented, on behalf of the members, a small gift to Joseph Adler, past president of the society.

Exhibits for the meeting to be held July 14 will include six varieties of sweet peas, 15 to a vase, 25 white, 25 pink and 25 any other color.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

There was an excellent exhibition, principally of peonies, open to both commercial and private growers in Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., June 19-20, under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. For collections of herbaceous peonies, 20 named varieties, double, one bloom of each, first prize went to George N. Smith, T. C. Thurlow's Sons, Inc., captured second honors. In the class for 10 named varieties, double, one bloom each, Arthur H. Fewkes, was first. George N. Smith also took first place for best specimen bloom, double with his entry of Mons. Jules Elie. Mrs. Percy G. Brown was second with Mme. Calot. For the class of 12 named varieties, single, one bloom of each, T. C. Thurlow's Sons were the winners, McKissock Gardens being second.

For the largest and best collection of peonies, T. C. Thurlow's Sons was awarded the American Peony Society's medal. J. T. Butterworth was given a gold medal for superior cultivation of Miltonia vexillaria varieties. A silver medal was awarded to A. C. Burrage for specimen plant of Cattleya Mossiæ.

In the miscellaneous flower classes the principal prize winners included Robert C. Morse, Miss Cornelia Warren and Mrs. Betty K. Farr.

A cultural certificate was given the Hillcrest Gardens for an excellent display of vegetables and fruit.

SUPPLY MORE THAN EQUALS DEMAND.

Weddings during the past week have been numerous, which together with anniversaries of former events of like character have maintained a good demand for flowers of all kinds. The supply, however, has been more than ample. Shipments of all kinds of outside stock, especially peonies have been heavy. The market was quite active Friday and Saturday with peonies about done for, and a general cleanup on everything except Easter lilies, which are a trifle too plentiful. Carnations are retrograding and will soon be past their day as they are fast losing in quality. Outdoor sweet peas are still good and there is plenty of larkspur, which is quite a factor. Indoor gladioli and a little of the first of the summer stock give good variety. Roses are said to be shortening up, although splendid stock of Russell and Columbia were offered June 19. Cattleyas are scarce and sell up close at top figures. Asparagus is now good stock, the southern shipments being very light, as it does not carry well in summer.

YEAR'S BUSINESS MOST PROSPEROUS.

While there are many extremes, both in the demand and supply of cut flowers in this market, there is no question that as the months roll by, each season's business reaches a higher level in quantity and quality of stock and remuneration. The reports from both growers and retailers are almost unanimous in declaring the past 12 months have been their most prosperous year. One crop may fail, and another strike the market when prices are low, but the average, when the plants and flowers have all been sold, is quite sure to be satisfactory.

NOTES.

There has been quite a demand for cut sprays, and more particularly, long branches of well-flowered rambler roses. Such stock is largely used for wedding decorations, splendid effects in artistic arrangement being possible with Dorothy Perkins and also White Dorothy. Delphinium belladona, with its light blue spikes, works in beautifully in color schemes with the pink sprays. Hydrangea arborescens alba, with its fine white heads on long, stiff stems, is another flower that has great decorative value. These are now in, and are being largely used in floor vases to lighten up the palm groups.

John Habermehl, of J. J. Habermehl's Sons, spent last week in Atlantic City superintending the taking down of the elaborate decorations of the car builders' exhibition and convention. This order takes carloads of accessories, together with large quantities of palms, ferns and planted boxes, which at the close, are sold at retail. This annual sale is now one of the features of the spring season at this resort, many of the hotels and large cottages relying on this opportunity for their plant supply.

Sydney Bayersdorfer has arrived home from a trip through the leading European sources of florists' supplies. He looks well, and says he experienced no difficulty in getting around in the various trade centers. Paul Berkowitz reports an unusual heavy June business in all kinds of wedding accessories. Florists who deal mostly with the middle classes, bought largely of this material, showing that their customers could afford, pay for and demanded something better.

The bituminous coal situation is becoming so acute that growers who have heretofore used soft coal, and whose boilers are only fitted for this kind of fuel, are considering changing their grates and stocking up with the finer grades of hard coal, which seems available and have advanced but little over last year's prices.

The following list shows that this city will, as usual, lead in trade ex-

The Rotarians, 10,000 strong are to hold their convention in Atlantic City the coming week, which many of the florists of the country, who are members of this body, will attend. It is expected that this convention will break the record in point of attendance for any single organization.

Berger Bros., who recently moved to 1609 Sansom street, a three-story building, have secured a good tenant for the upper floors. They are much pleased with the change in location, as trade is much livlier here. Easter lilies, gladioli and excellent roses are choice items of stock.

The Easter lily men who struck the peony season with good sized crops, are up against it. Cut lilies are not bringing more, or possibly, not as much as pre-war prices, while the bulbs cost at least double with all other costs higher in proportion.

What is the matter wih the bowlers? Where is the fighting spirit that used to stand firm against the best of them, and bring back the silver cups and the glory from each of the hard fought encounters. Wake up boys! Wake up!

George Aeugele is spending a few weeks with his family at Atlantic City, where it is hoped the bracing sea air will put him back in the running. He is anxious to get his name off the sick list as soon as possible.

Robert Bragg, of Edward Reid's force, reported a brisk demand and good cleanup, June 18-19. Extra choice gladioli are a feature here.

SURPLUS IN MOST LINES.

There has been no noteworthy change in the condition of business since our notes of June 19 were written. The flood of peonies has somewhat abated, and it is generally believed that another week will about finish them. The cool weather is keeping the carnations under glass in fair condition, though many of the blooms are now small and seem scarcely worth sending to market as such stock is merely food for the peddlers, usually able bodied men who should be doing something more useful. Heavy stocks of roses continued to arrive, and it is only a few of the best that can be said to be bringing good summer prices. Orchids and lily of the valley are the only stocks that are not in surplus. There are plenty of orchids to supply the demand, but prices continue fair. Good lily of the valley is rather scarce and wholesaled at $20 per 100, June 18. There is a superabundance of short stem sweet peas on the market, but few good ones. In seasonable outdoor stocks, besides peonies, gaillardias, sweet williams, poppies and other well known varieties are noted.

June 21.—Dark and wet weather, with great humidity continues, and does not tend to improve market conditions, but prices on good stock have an upward trend. Some of the carnation growers are already throwing out their old plants, and with so much dark weather, Ward and other good stock has advanced in price.

NOTES.

Although the name of George W. Perkins, who died in a sanitarium at Stamford, Conn., June 18, is well known to the public through his business and political activities it may not be so well known that he was a devoted patron of horticulture. His estate, Glyndon, at Riverdale, a suberb of this city, is one of the finest in this part of the country. In past years, he devoted much time to the project for the state Palisades park, which resulted in an agreement between the states of New York and New Jersey to establish this grand park for the people of the two states. He had been president of the New York state commission on the park for a number of years. Mr. Perkins was a fine type of the public spirited American citizen and had been active in many fields for the betterment of his fellow men.

At a time when the need for workers in farming and gardening pursuits is pressing, the demonstration garden that is conducted in Bryant park, 42d street side, under the direction of Park Commissioner Gallatin, is worthy of notice and encouragement. It covers several thousand square feet of ground, and is divided into sections. Nearly all the vegetables known in the commerce of this country are grown, and besides what can be seen, further directions are given, on application, for growing them. Every section is labeled and information given about the plant. Aside from the food plant sections, there are others for tobacco, hemp plants and a garden of "kitchen herbs," with general information about each. The garden is particularly attractive to the city children.

Charles A. Dards, the well known florist, reached home on the evening of June 17, after a winter spent in touring South America as member of a party. They are believed to have seen all the leading points of interest in that great continent, and as Mr. Dards is an observant man, we expect a good story from him when he gets settled down again. He returned in excellent health.

Joseph A. Millang, in the Coogan building, is having good success with his Francis Scott Key roses. Dark, cool and damp weather has had a bad effect on many of the roses, but the Scott Keys are holding out well. When some other varieties of equal or greater length of stem go begging at $6 and $8 per 100, the Scott Keys bring $40 per 100.

A. M. Westwood, the Pennsylvania terminal florist, has been confined to his home for the past two weeks as the result of an operation, but is said to be improving.

Fine designs were arranged by several of the retailers for the funeral of the late George W. Perkins, which was held at the Presbyterian church of Riverdale, June 20.

The marriage is announced of Jack Trepel, one of the Trepel family of florists. He had been a widower for two years.

A. F. F.

ELMIRA, N. Y.—Peter Papas and Gus Gurvin have opened a flower store on Lake street.

MOUNDSVILLE, WEST VA.—Bruce Jefferson has disposed of his range to Miller Bros., who will continue it in connection with the Miller Flower Shop on Jefferson avenue.

HARTFORD, CONN.—The Connecticut Horticultural Society will hold its fall flower and vegetable show in this city, September 22-23. An attractive schedule of prizes is being arranged. Communications regarding the exhibition should be addressed to Samual H. Deming, secretary, 333 Vine street, this city.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Thirty-Eighth Annual Convention, Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

The Opening Session.

The thirty-eighth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association opened with favorable weather, June 22, and a large attendance, the sessions being held in commodious quarters in the Hotel Pfister. Nearly 400 visitors had registered before the first session.

President Dungan called the meeting to order at 11 a. m., Tuesday. The hall on the seventh floor of the hotel was comfortably filled. After the address of welcome by a representative of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce, the president read his address. Seed trade legislation, he reported, had been quiescent during the year, the only new law passed, in New York state, being the uniform seed bill recommended by the association. The seedsmen had acquitted themselves of any charge of profiteering by their conduct during the year, but the president expressed the opinion that, with the high cost of living and the high cost of labor, which formed so large a part of the cost of doing business, it was becoming necessary for the trade to take thought of the necessity of getting a living wage for the seedsmen. He recommended consideration of this critical problem. Since congress had continued an appropriation of $239,000 for free seeds, after the senate had rejected it, and the secretary of agriculture recommended its abandonment, the president suggested that a resolution be adopted commending Secretary Meredith for his stand. He called attention to the contracts of sale now being presented by foreign houses with whom American seedsmen do business, which provide that in case of disagreement as to quality, the dispute shall be submitted to arbitration at the point of shipment, and the purchaser must accept every shipment, subject to whatever allowance may be made. He recommended that action be taken unitedly to insist that arbitration shall be had at some neutral point rather than the point of origin of the shipment. In view of the scarcity of labor, the convention was urged to consider the advsability of petitioning congress to admit Chinese labor to this country for a limited period.

The work undertaken by the National Garden Bureau, in promoting home gardening, was called to the convention's attention, and members were urged to inspect the exhibit made by the bureau in Room 10, Hotel Pfister.

The adoption of an amendment to the by-laws, which would permit of local and regional seedsmen's organizations becoming members of the association was urged by the president, upon the recommendation of Counsel Curtis Nye Smith, in order that a uniform policy upon seed trade legislation might be promoted in the trade. The president declared that under present conditions, the national body and local organizations did not work in harmony, as frequently their policies differed, or the local organizations had no policy, and this was very detrimental to the trade interests where new legislation was proposed.

Secretary-Treasurer C. E. Kendel reported that 14 new members had been added during the year, while three resigned, one died and two were sold. This gave a net gain of eight and left the membership: Active, 240; honorary, 2; total, 242. His financial statement showed the association to be in excellent condition. The total receipts for the year amounted to $6,402.50; the balance of hand last year, $1,196.25, showing a total of $7,598.85. The total disbursements for the year were $6,446.98, leaving a balance on hand of $1,151.87.

H. G. Hastings, chairman of the membership committee, reported that

E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.
President American Seed Trade Association.

10 applications for membership had been received, with several requests for changes in name, and membership. All were ordered posted for further consideration.

The secretary then presented recommendations from the executive committee for amendments to by-laws. The first was, that before an appropriation could be voted at the annual convention, it must first be referred to the executive committee for a report on funds available and a recommendation. This amendment, the secretary explained, had been rejected at the last convention, but he believed it was due to a misunderstanding. It was intended to prevent hasty action, voting money without regard to the funds on hand. Watson S. Woodruff opposed the amendment, declaring that it had the effect of making the executive committee superior to the convention. The amendment was lost.

A proposal to increase the dues to $40 a year, and to make the initiation fee $50 straight, instead of having this sum cover also the first year's dues as at present, was then presented. Mr. Woodruff opposed this, declaring that there was no emergency to warrant it, and if one arose, the money needed could be raised immediately from the trade. He declared that fixed expenses, including legal expense, had a way of keeping pace with the society's income, and that the growth of membership would be hampered by increased dues. Legislation had been quiescent during the year, he said, and there was no reason for increasing the expense of the legal organization. Secretary Kendel said the society was not living on its income, though the deficit was small. On a standing vote the motion was lost, and the amendment was rejected, J. Charles McCullough then moved that the membership be assessed $15 each, in order to restore the society's customary surplus to provide funds for any emergency which might arise. Secretary Kendel moved to amend, by authorizing the executive committee to levy the assessment whenever in its judgment there was need. The amendment was accepted and the motion prevailed.

The third proposal for an amendment to the by-laws, was that a new Section 3 be adopted to permit other seed trade associations to have membership in the American Seed Trade Association, in order to establish co-operation. H. G. Hastings supported this proposal, declaring that many sectional and local organizations were being formed, composed of firms that did not feel warranted in joining the national body as individuals, but who desired a link with the central organization through their local associations. President Dungan called attention to his recommendation that such co-operation was of great value on legislative matters. By unanimous vote, the membership committee was instructed to draw up a suitable amendment for presentation to the convention at a later session, putting the recommendation in effect.

Alexander Forbes, chairman of the committee on postal legislation, reported that few cases had arisen during the year. One was the result of the attempt of the late Maurice Fuld to mail catalogues containing loose inserts. The mail was held up, and Mr. Fuld was charged 1-cent extra on each book because these inserts had not been bound in or tipped in. Mr. Forbes recommended that seedsmen be careful to obtain rulings from their local postmasters before attempting to mail matter, regarding which there was any doubt. He advised that new regulations governing the return of fourth class matter, which proved to be undeliverable, be studied and made use of by the seedsmen.

On Tuesday evening, the members of the association were entertained at a stag dinner at the Milwaukee Athletic Club, while the lady visitors were guests at a dinner at the Hotel Pfister, followed by a theater party.

THE lack of rain, and the early disappearance of the snow on the mountains, are making the outlook for water in California during the coming dry season very serious.

FROM 25 to 30 new pea canning factories have been organized this year, estimates R. E. Vaughan, of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. Wisconsin canners, he adds, can more than half the nation's peas.

SEATTLE, WASH.—The Chas. H. Lilly Co., writing June 16, says: "Acreages of cabbage, beet, mangel and turnip in this section have been considerably reduced as compared with last year. We do not anticipate getting very much seed from many of them, owing to the exceedingly severe weather we experienced early in the year. Many of the crops were reported total failures."

SUPPLEMENTING our report of the annual convention of the Southern Seedsmen's Association in our issue of June 12, page 1112, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year at the closing session: R. B. Buchanan, Memphis, Tenn., president; J. Steckler, New Orleans, La., first vice-president; D. R. Mayo, Knoxville, Tenn., second vice-president; Frank S. Dutch Bulbs Decision of British.

At a conference of the Chamber of Horticulture, the Horticultural Trades' Association and the British Florists' Federation, held May 27, 1920, the following resolutions was passed:

"That this conference, having considered the unsatisfactory reply from the Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association to its communication of April 30, sees no reason to alter the decisions already arrived at, and strongly advises the British trade to abide by the following recommendations in making their purchases:

"(1) Not to buy on any terms except free on board Amsterdam or Rotterdam.

"(2) The cost of packages to be placed on invoices and not to be collected on delivery.

"We strongly advise the British trade, in their own interests, to follow the recommendations in the above resolutions."

Signed on behalf of the conference,
GEO. MONRO, JR., Chairman.

Small, of Evansville, in Difficulty.

An assignment petition was entered, June 17, in the Vanderburgh county superior court, Evansville, Ind. for W. H. Small & Co. by the Mercantile-Commercial bank as trustee. The petition requested permission to employ an expert accountant at a cost not to exceed $1,500, to audit the books of the company in order to obtain an accurate record of assets and liabilities. This was granted by Judge Robert J. Tracewell. The petition states that the firm executed a deed of general assignment for the benefit of creditors a few days before. The assets consist of seeds of an approximate value of $23,331.76, empty sacks, $10,976.72; Liberty bonds, par value, $33,600; war savings stamps, par value, $826.95; bills receivable, $6,800; accounts receivable, $340,258.82; stocks and bonds, $6,908.45; cash deposited on margin, $20,000; cash on hand and in banks, $93,644, and other personal property, making the total assets, exclusive of real estate, $1,856,045.77. The trustees petition that the business be temporarily continued in the best interests of the creditors and the firm. Carl Lauenstein is named as trustee officer. The case is the largest entered in the superior court in Vanderburgh county in several years.

Orchard Grass.

The total importation of orchard-grass seed into the United States since July 1, 1919, is 2,770,500 pounds. This amount is about 500,000 pounds more than the total quantity imported during the previous four years.

On June 30, 1919, the carry over in seedsmen's hands was only 240,729 pounds, compared with 1,066,230 pounds, and 1,390,361 pounds on June 30, 1918 and 1917 respectively. With this small carry over, and very small rate of imports at that time, a bullish feeling was created among the growers, and buyers were paying them $19 to $21 per 100 pounds for their 1919 crop seed during July and August. By the middle of October, however, the importations had become so heavy that many seedsmen stopped buying domestic seed and growers could not obtain offers of over $16 per 100 pounds.

The result of the heavy imports during recent months is that 25 to 33 1-3 per cent of the 1919 crop of domestic seed, which crop was estimated to be 3,000,000 pounds, is still in the hands of, or owned by seedsmen, shippers and growers. Practically all of the imported orchard-grass seed this year has come from Denmark where a large production of this seed was obtained in 1919.

The weather conditions this spring have been ideal for the production of good quality orchard-grass seed, according to government report of June 19. The acreage to be cut for seed, however, is below normal and about equal to that of last year. The yield of seed per acre probably will be 10 per cent less than in 1919, because of thin, spotted stands in many fields while the prospective total production is about 85 to 90 per cent of last year.

California Seed Crops.

L. W. Wheeler of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, writes as follows, June 12:

"Seed crops are showing the effect of lack of moisture in the soil caused by insufficient rainfall during the past winter. This is particularly noticeable in the annuals at this time. A good insight into crop prospects may be had from the fact that grain crops in this state will not average 50 per cent compared with last year, and a large percentage has been cut for gram. These crops mature in May or June, and if there is not sufficient moisture for them, it would appear as if garden seed, which do not mature until August and September, have a very poor chance. The acreage in garden seed is less than 25 per cent of last year.

"Onion is looking well and at this time is probably about the most promising of all crops and should produce close to a normal yield, unless injured by heat or drought later. The critical time is yet to come, the first week in July being the period when onion is usually subject to burn.

"Lettuce will hardly make half of a normal crop and radish is little, if any, better. Parsley and parsnip appear to be less than 60 per cent. Carrot is looking well on low lands and should produce a fair yield. The garden pea crop, which was damaged by frost last month, has suffered from heat, and there is apparently not over 25 per cent of an average in sight."

FLOWER SEEDS.

The L. D. Waller Seed Co., Guadalupe, writes June 12:

"The general condition of the flower seed crops is as good as could be expected in a dry season. The past winter, the Santa Maria valley did not receive over one-third of the usual rainfall. The rains came late in the season, and for this reason, good stands were secured, but the past two weeks have shown that there is insufficient moisture to sustain the crops throughout the growing season. At this time of the year the crops receive considerable benefit from the ocean fogs, which saturate the plants with moisture, during the morning hours. The fogs have been very light for the past 30 days, and for several days at a time there has not been any fog at all.

"The early sweet peas were fairly well, through blooming before the lack of moisture was in evidence, but the late sorts are drying up rapidly and the yield will probably be light. Nasturtium, stock, poppy and many of the smaller flowers are just coming into bloom. They are all ripening prematurely and a light yield is indicated. It is evident that those varieties which bloom later in the season will not be in any better condition. Fortunately, increased acreage will offset this loss to a certain extent. We are irrigating as rapidly as possible, and hope for favorable fogs the balance of the month. A great deal depends upon the climatic conditions during the next few weeks.

John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, write as follows, June 12:

"Sweet peas, as a consequence of scanty rainfall, are three months behind and cannot possibly make a normal crop. Named varieties of the Spencer type seem to be suffering the most. Spencers of the early-flowering type look better, but the demand is good and the yield will not more than fill orders. Prospects on sweet pea mixtures are better than on named varieties and from present conditions we expect to have a small surplus. The grandiflora crop will not be large. The acreage of tall and dwarf nasturtium is much smaller than in previous seasons but prospects indicate sufficient seed to meet all demands. With increased acreage of asters, we expect to have a full supply of all varieties and colors. A much larger acreage of zinnias has also been planted. These are making a good stand and showing fine condition. Liberal plantings have been made of stocks, Ten Weeks and other sorts, also a general line of flower seed which are showing a good stand and satisfactory crop prospects. A large portion of our small flower seed is being grown this season on sub-irrigated soil which was not affected by the long drought during the early part of the year."

Peas, Beans and Sugar Beets.

The John H. Allan Seed Co., Sheboygan, Wis., writes as follows, June 19:

"In a general way, crop conditions at the present time are good so far as peas are concerned. The worst feature is that the season is two to three weeks late, which leads us into extra hazard in the fall. We look for a fair crop of peas both east and west, except in California, where considerable damage has been done by adverse weather.

"Beans have just gone into the ground; in fact, are still going in, so that it is entirely too early for us to even guess as to them. Bean acreage has come with the greatest difficulty we have ever known. The farmers are up against the labor proposition as they never have been before and they simply will not plant crops that require very much personal effort on their part. It is a fortunate thing for the growers that bean acreage has been reduced, for it would be a practical impossibility to get as large an acreage as we used to seek some few years ago.

"Sugar beet companies have been up against this same situation with their beet acreage, to such an extent that last year's prices, which seemed to be high, have been almost doubled. In other words, last year they were paying farmers $12 per ton for beets, and now $20 per ton, and even with this advance, they are finding it difficult to cover the acreage needed to handle their plants."

VAUGHAN'S GIANT PANSIES

VAUGHAN'S INTERNATIONAL PANSIES

Vaughan's International Pansy Mixture was first offered by us in 1889. We import from all the best European sources. Each year has added to the quality of its flowers and variety of the colors. We buy every year novelties of known merit to improve the mixture; it is always complete, always the latest and always the best mixture. We add to all Pansy Mixtures which we now buy more than 50 per cent of the choicest named kinds obtainable, each in correct proportion. This is one of the Specialties that has established the reputation of Vaughan's Flower Seeds, and one which we maintain most carefully. Trade pkt., 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.50; ½ oz., $5.00; oz., $10.00.

Chicago Parks Bedding Mixture

This is a mixture made by ourselves from 20 different and distinct varieties of this type. While the flowers of this strain do not grow as large as those of the Giant Pansies, they excel them by a much greater number of flowers to a plant. Trade pkt., 25c; ¼ oz., 60c; oz., $1.80.

Vaughan's P. P. (Popular Price) Mixture of Pansies

This mixture like all "Vaughan" mixtures, is made up by ourselves from separate colors and strains of the Giant and Chicago Parks Bedding types, and will furnish a large variety of colors with a good proportion of giant flowers. Trade pkt., 25c; ⅛ oz., 50c; oz., $3.00.

Vaughan's Giant Pansy Mixture

Embraces, besides all the separate shades and colors, five special strains not listed elsewhere, and which can only be had in this and our International Mixture. This mixture includes the richest reds, coppers and bronzes, together with the most delicate rose and pink shadings, all the distinct colors of Trimardeau and the splendid Cassier strain. Trade pkt., 50c; ⅛ oz., 75c; oz., $5.00; ¼ lb., $18.00.

Vaughan's Cut Flower Mixture

This mixture is put up by ourselves and contains mostly light colored sorts. We have sold this mixture for several seasons to some of our Chicago cut flower growers, who have realized big returns from the sale of flowers. Pansies are as easily grown as violets, require less care and bring better results. Trade pkt., 25c; ⅛ oz., 60c; oz., $4.00.

New Early-Flowering Giant Pansies

The new strain produces its giant flowers about four weeks earlier than other known types. In March, when the old type pansies hardly show any buds, the plants of the new strain bore from 3 to 5 of their giant flowers. Early-Flowering Giant White, Yellow, Light Blue, Dark Blue and Mixed (Four Colors). Trade pkt. (500 seeds), 25c; ⅛ oz., 60c; oz., $4.00.

FRESNO, CALIF.—The tenth annual convention of the California Association of Nurserymen will be held in this city, November 11-13.

American Association of Nurserymen.

The forty-fifth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen opens at the Congress hotel, Chicago, as we go to press with this week's issue, continuing June 23-24. There is a goodly array of members on hand for the opening session, and a considerable number attended the get-together dinner the evening preceding the opening day, when President Moon very charmingly drew from some of the leading convention speakers, highly entertaining and instructive preludes to the rich feast to follow in the regular sessions. Heretofore, the dinner or banquet has usually followed our trade conventions, and the innovation of the nurserymen in first satisfying the stomach, has a practical aspect which may produce new wonders in the horticultural mind by inducing a more generous yield of its hoarded treasures.

At the opening session, Wednesday morning, June 23, President Moon in a very able address, called attention to the fact that nurserymen, during the past year, have had about all the business that could be handled with available labor. Plantings, due to this and other causes, have been reduced until an insufficient supply in many lines exists, which conditions indicate there should be no reduction in prices, and if reliable crop reports were available as a guide to future plantings, ruinous surpluses might be avoided. The traffic situation had also been a handicap, and this is a problem of large proportions. In speaking of the success in securing preferential movement of freight last spring, he said this was but another instance where association service was worth the amount of dues to any member, results that could not have been accomplished by any volunteer organization. Considerable stress was laid upon the subject of market development, which movement in the hands of a very capable committee, is being carried forward, the trade mark of the association in advertisements throughout the United States, reaching 6,000,000 people at an issue as a symbol of dependability to planters of trees, and has had the effect of quieting careless indictments of the press. Not the least of the nurserymen's problems during the year, have been legislative acts that threaten to destroy the interstate commerce of the trade: measures that put in jeopardy the capital invested in the business, and place legal burdens that add a heavy weight to operating costs. While there is need for pest control in this country, nurserymen should lend their assistance in framing the legislation under which they are to operate, and at the same time, see that adequate protection is afforded other horticultural and agricultural interests. The president called attention to several planks which would be presented for consideration at the convention, out of which it was hoped the association would construct with unanimity, a legislative platform, after which, it would be possible to go forth, and through the influence of the organization and the efforts of its members, have these features embodied into the laws of the states and the nation. In conclusion, President Moon said that membership in the association has always been necessary to the broad-minded, progressive nurseryman, desiring to assist in improving and promoting the industry. In recent years, it has rendered an increasing amount of definite, actual service, exclusively for members, that could not be dispensed with. And now, in addition to all these other advantages, the national advertising of the association makes membership in the organization the hall-mark of a trustworthy nurseryman.

David N. Mossesohn, executive director of the Dress Industries of America, addressed the meeting Wednesday morning.

R. H. Donnelly, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, will speak Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. Other speakers who will be heard on that day are Dr. Fred B. Covill, Dr. B. T. Galloway and Professor L. C. Call, of the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—The range of A. Hannah & Son, including four acres of land, which was sold recently to the Reed & Weiley Co., the consideration said to have been $40,000, is now planted with tomatoes from which ripe fruit is being picked. Growing vegetables under glass is the specialty of the new owners.

Strawberries Marketed by Aeroplane.

The first occasion when aviation was used for marketing early fruits took place March 18, 1920, when M. de la Celle, a grower in the Maritime Alps, shipped to Paris, a case of forced strawberries, which were auctioned off in the central market. Revue Horticole, in its account, does not state the financial return.

Staking Tomatoes.

Ohio is noted for the production of fancy tomatoes by what is known as the staking system. This means that each plant is pruned to one stem, and tied to one pole or stake. In the good old days, when labor was cheap and plentiful, this method was in its glory—stakes were obtained readily from people who made it a business to cut them in the woods in the winter months. Then these stakes or poles were set in place early in the spring before the plants are set out, the general method used being the plan of running furrows four feet apart, and then opening holes with a crowbar every two feet to receive the poles. When warm weather sets in, these tomato plants are planted one to each pole and tied at once. As soon as active growth starts, the side branches are pinched out and the tieing continued. This method is an intense one, as much labor is centered on a comparatively small piece of land, and sometimes the returns are in proportion. The object is earliness and fancy fruit. To succeed, requires, first, good, warm land; second, extra good strong plants, and third, close attention to details. However, under present conditions, great difficulties have arisen. The stakes are almost unobtainable and the price of them is prohibitive; the labor to get the stakes has vanished. The trimming of the plants must be done by home help, as the class of labor available is too indifferent to be trusted with such delicate work. We have for some years discarded the stake system, and used wires. We set strong fence posts at the end of each row, and support the wires by using sawed 2x2 oak or other stakes, one of these for every five plants—10 feet apart for the supporting stake. No. 12 wire is used and stapled on top of the supporting stakes, being careful not to drive the staples home, as that injures the wire. The wires are wrapped twice around the supports, and then only given one twist. That way, the whole system is easily removed. Each plant gets one string of binder twine tied to the plant near the root and to top of wire, again, being careful not to strain the string. As the plants grow, they are twisted around the string. Only when near the top are ties needed. This system has produced excellent results in our hands, and may solve the grower's problem elsewhere. MARKETMAN.

Vegetable Markets.

Changes in leading lines of produce were mostly downward according to reports to the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture for the period June 13-20. New potatoes were weaker. Prices at North Carolina shipping points held within the previous week's range, but in consuming markets new potatoes sold lower. Receipts were heavy and the markets are liberally supplied. Irish Cobblers, in cloth-top slat barrels, ranged $10.25-$11 carloads, f. o. b. Haulings were moderate. North Carolina and Virginia No. 1 Irish Cobblers in cloth stave and slat barrels closed generally in consuming markets at $10-$12.50. South Carolina stock closed $10.50-$12.50. Florida No. 1 Spaulding Rose sold at $10.50-$11 per double head barrel in Cincinnati, and carlots in Chicago closed at $11.25-$12. Louisiana, Texas and Alabama Bliss Triumphs ranged $7.50-$9 per 100 pounds sacked in St. Louis, and $6.50-$8 in Kansas City. Carlots in Chicago ranged $9-$9.50, but dropped at the close to a range of $7-$7.50. Onions were dull. The markets are still heavily supplied and movement is slow. Prices of California yellow Bermudas in standard crates were slightly lower in consuming markets at 90 cents-$1.40, but Texas stock held at 75 cents-$1.50. Green wrapped tomatoes were in good demand at Mississippi shipping points, and movement good, but prices of fours, green, wrapped, lost 10 to 20 cents to a range of $1.15-$1.35, carloads, f. o. b. cash, track. Haulings were moderate. Consuming markets were generally lower. Prices in eastern cities closed at $1.50-$2, and in Chicago, $2-$2.50. Haulings and movements were moderate at Texas shipping points, and fours pink, unwrapped stock, held at $1.50-$1.65, carloads, f. o. b. Texas tomatoes ranged $2-$3 in consuming markets, closing generally $2-$2.50. Florida, fancy gloves, in 6-basket carriers, closed lower in eastern markets at $3-$5. Repacked stock in Chicago ranged $6.50-$7.50. The tomato crop in the Swedesboro, N. J., section is late, and shipments may not begin until July 15.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

Members of the Tri-City Florists' Club journeyed to the Henry Lau farm in Scott county, June 17, where they viewed a collection of trees that is probably the most complete in all the middle west. Mr. Lau, in 1870, determined to have a specimen of every tree that would grow in this climate. He employed a landscape engineer to make his plans, and then began planting, and in all the years since, his planting has been continuous. His efforts have, of course, been marked by many failures, but his successes have more than compensated for them. His collection of oaks, including the willow and the laurel leaf, and all the ordinary kinds includes one of the show trees of the grounds. This specimen is 28 years old. It is about 50 feet in height and the spread of branches from north to south is 60 feet, 3 inches. From east to west, it is 57 feet, 9 inches, and one foot above the ground the trunk measures 6 feet 8 inches in circumference. The variety is undetermined, but the tree is supposed to be a natural cross of native oaks. His collection includes six varieties of magnolia, a fine cypress, many of the conifers, the ghinko tree, persimmon, paw paw, sassafras, tupelo, a tulip tree now in full bloom and an unknown variety of linden, now covered with its creamy, delightfully scented flowers.

His brother, Charles Lau, on his farm nearby has a collection of flowers, second only in interest to Henry Lau's arboretum. He also has one of the finest arbors of choice grapes, varieties with which the ordinary grower fails utterly, but which for him are complete successes. He even grows and ripens the catawba. His flower collection includes many plants that are supposed to be hothouse plants only, and these he succeeds in growing out of doors. The florists who made the trip, declare it will not be their last visit to the place of these pioneers in the farm beautiful movement.
